ADMINISTRATION TAX PLAN PRESENTED TO COMMITTEE

The Program Provides For No Changes in the Income Tax Rates of the Great Bulk of Taxpayers—Proposal Would Pare Down the Annual Tax Burden by $225,000,000—Secretary Mellon is Opposed to Reduction of the Remaining War Time Excise and Miscellaneous Taxes—Would Lower the Corporation Tax, Repeal the Estate or Inheritance Tax and Revise Some Brackets of the Income Surtax.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31—(AP)—Another overhauling of the nation's tax law was begun today, the Coolidge administration leading off with a proposal to pare down the annual tax burden by $225,000,000.

Under the administration plan most of this reduction would be accomplished by lowering the corporation tax 1 1-2 per cent., although the program also includes among other things a repeal of the estate or inheritance tax, and revision of some of the brackets of the income surtax, it provides for no changes in the income tax rates of the great bulk of taxpayers.

The program was presented by Secretary Mellon at the first session of a ten day hearing before the house ways and means committee, which had been called back to Washington five weeks in advance of the convening of congress so that some sort of bill might be ready for the house itself early in December. Both in committee and house prolonged discussion is certain, many democrats and some republicans disagreeing with the treasury secretary in his proposal to limit the cut to $225,000,000.

Mr. Mellon's request for such a limitation was based on a treasury estimate that the surplus for 1929 would amount to only $274,000,000, far under that which has been available in previous years. He made five specific suggestions as to the means by which the reduction should be accomplished.

He would make the corporation tax 12 per cent. in place of the present 13 1-2; repeal the estate tax outright; revise surtax rates on individual incomes between $16,000 and $90,000; exempt from taxation income derived from American bankers' acceptances sold by foreign central banks of issue; and permit corporations with a net income of no more than $25,000, and having no more than ten stockholders, to file returns as partnerships instead of as corporations if they so desired.

He argued against further abolition or reduction of the remaining war-time excise and miscellaneous taxes, declaring these should be kept "in the interest of a well-balanced tax system." In some quarters it had been thought that the treasury would sanction further cuts in these levies.

"The factor which definitely determines the extent to which we may reduce taxes is the 1929 surplus," Mr. Mellon said. "The treasury has placed the probable receipts at the highest figure compatible with the most dependable forecasts and * * * believes that tax reduction should not in any event be in excess of approximately $225,000,000."

The surplus of only $274,000,000 estimated for 1929 compares with a prospective surplus of $455,000,000 for 1928 and an actual surplus of $635,000,000 for the fiscal year 1927. Upon this basis and assuming that a tax revision bill becomes a law prior to next March 15, Mr. Mellon said, the reductions will only affect the revenue for the last six months of 1928, but will apply to the full twelve months of 1929, and therefore it is the surplus for 1929 that must be considered.

While Mr. Mellon, accompanied to the committee room by Under-Secretary Ogden Mills, who in the last congress was a member of the ways and means committee, admitted the treasury in recent years had erred in estimating prospective surpluses, he argued this had resulted from revenue derived from non-recurring sources.

He explained the treasury estimated that the same current receipts would be available in 1929 as in 1928, and as were actually collected in 1927, adding that "there is no evidence available to justify the assumption that they will be larger, but there are certain indications that they may be smaller. The treasury hopes, however, he continued, that the unfavorable factors will be offset by the normal growth of the country.

Apparently taking cognizance of the already announced democratic plan for tax reduction of between $400,000,000 and $500,000,000 and also of statements by democratic leaders that in past years treasury estimates always have been too low, Mr. Mellon said that underestimates were not the result of "deliberate intention or policy."

"Every effort to avoid a repetition of this result," he declared, "has been made in preparation of the estimates presented here. It would be unwarranted and unwise to assume that in the present estimates there is any concealed surplus. In these figures, the treasury has not consciously nor as a matter of policy played safe."

Mr. Mellon said he realized great pressure would be brought to bear on congress to repeal the excise tax on automobiles, but that he could not agree to the advisability of such a step and pointing out that federal appropriations for roads will reach $71,000,000 in the fiscal year 1928 and $75,000,000 in 1929, he declared that these expenditures were "for the direct and immediate benefit of automobile owners," who, he added, "should make some contribution in return."

Taxes paid by railroads were mentioned by Mr. Mellon as another reason to justify the automobile tax, because "the automobile is the railroad's chief competitor."

Referring to excise taxes in general, the treasury secretary said he thought those on tobacco, amusement admissions and the few stamp taxes on tobacco, amusement admissions and the few stamp taxes should also be retained, declaring that "it is difficult to imagine a more ideal tax than one on the $40 ringside seats at the recent Dempsey-Tunney fight," which was $3.64. "The revenue yield from that particular fight was $242,065.71" he said.

He estimated that reduction of the corporation tax would decrease revenue by approximately $135,000,000 and permitting smaller corporations to file returns as partnerships would deprive the government of between $30,000,000 and $35,000,000 annually. Revision of specified surtax rates, he said, would mean about $5,000,000 less in revenue, and repeal of the estate tax would result in about a $7,000,000 loss.

REGARDED AS A HERO THEN CHARGED WITH ARSON

NEW YORK, Oct. 31—(AP)—Accepted at first as a hero of the fire which a few minutes before he had himself started, Ernest Rhodes, a porter at the Methodist Episcopal hospital was under arrest tonight charged with arson. Rhodes, who later confessed, Fire Marshal Brophy said, to setting the fire, was arrested 10 years ago as a pyromaniac but was finally acquitted. The marshal recognized the porter immediately upon seeing him. A confession followed shortly afterward.

WOMAN ORDERED TO LEAVE PARENTS' HOME

BOSTON, Oct. 31—(AP)—Judge Sisk in superior court today ordered Mary G. O'Brien to leave the home of her parents in Jamaica Plain within 14 days and not to enter the house again without further ruling of the court.

William O'Brien, the woman's father, filed a bill in equity in which he said he had purchased the house so that he and his wife, Ellen, could spend their declining years in peace and comfort. Both are now over 70. For many years, the father said, their daughter, who is now 44 years old, had made her parents' lives miserable by "not speaking to them except to insult them, by declining to eat at the same table with them, whistling, singing and brawling." It was alleged that she had "wilfully, deliberately and maliciously harassed, annoyed and tormented" them.

Colorado to Subdue the I. W. W. Leaders

Byron Kitto, Publicity Agent, Was Arrested While Leading a Demonstration at M[illegible]

[illegible]ER, Colo., Oct. 31—(AP)—Colo[illegible] coal strike neared its zero hour [illegible]ghtw ith the I. W. W. leaders of [illegible]e walkout apparently divided on the policy of continuing picketing at the mines in defiance of warning from the state and the threat of military rule.

Half of the 30 hours grace granted by Governor W. H. Adams to the strikers to guarantee to him that picketing would be discontinued had passed tonight and the appearance of national guardsmen into the situation appeared imminent.

Conflicting views on the picketing question were expressed by Byron Kitto, publicity agent for the I. W. W. and Roger Francezon, leader of the I. W. W. organization in the United States. Kitto, who was arrested today for picketing, declared that pickets would be maintained at any cost.

Francezon's views were upheld by a group of strikers, meeting at Walsenburg, who voted to comply with the governor's request by a vote of 64 to 1.

Kitto's arrest occurred while he was leading a demonstration at the Tobacco mine of the Colorado Fuel & Iron company at Tobasco. He had previously voiced the view that the "constitutional rights of free speech" could not be set aside and that attempts to prevail upon miners to quit work would continue "regardless of the picketing laws of Colorado."

Another familiar figure in the strike, Amelia Sablich, the "Little Amazon," was behind the bars tonight. Always garbed in red, the 19-year-old girl has been a conspicuous figure in leading picketing strikers. She was slightly injured last week when she was knocked down by an unruly horse of the mine guard. The girl was held on a warrant charging picketing.

Another settlement proposal went awry when not a single mine operator appeared at a meeting in the statehouse here which had been planned by the miners with the consent of the governor.

Governor Adams' ultimatum, declaring that "patience has ceased to be a virtue," was issued last night by Adjutant General Paul Newlon. It declared all picketing activities were regarded as in violation of the law, and warned that they must cease immediately.

The thirty hours grace, granted by the governor to permit the I. W. W. to reach a decision, expires at 6 a. m., tomorrow.

TWO NEGROES HELD IN CONNECTION WITH MURDER

YORK, Pa., Oct. 31—(AP)—Two Negroes were under arrest tonight in connection with the slaying of J. C. Walsh, an employe of the American Chain company, whose body was found last night propped against the side of a garage in the foreign quarter. A cerebral hemorrhage which resulted from a blow on the head was the cause of death.

Walsh was believed by police to have been attacked as he left a dance hall in the foreign section. He was reported to have had a large sum of money when he left the hall, but only $1 was found in his pockets. This version was supported by Mrs. Marion Goines, Negress, who told Coroner L. U. Zech she had seen Walsh attacked by three Negroes who hit him with a brick and threw his body against the garage.

James Williams, one of the men under arrest, admitted striking Walsh on the jaw, but said he did so in defense of two girls who called for help when Walsh attacked them. With John Wilson, Williams was formally charged with murder.

The victim had been here about four months. He was said to have been a resident of Chicago where his wife is living. Friends asserted Walsh served in the navy and was an athlete.

Lowell, Mass., is to Lose Textile Plant

Appleton Company to Move Machinery to Anderson, S. C.—Mass. Cotton Mills Cut Wages.

BOSTON, Oct. 31—(AP)—A wage cut in one Lowell textile plant and decision to close another and remove part of its machinery to the south were announced today. The Massachusetts Cotton Mills put into effect a 10 per cent. wage reduction affecting 1,400 employes, including the office staff.

Stockholders of the Appleton company meeting in Boston authorized the directors to expend $780,000 to move a part of the mill machinery from Lowell to Anderson, S. C., and to erect new buildings at Anderson.

The Pepperell Manufacturing company, operating the Massachusetts Cotton mills gave as a reason for the wage reduction the necessity of cutting operating expenses if the plant is to be maintained in Lowell. In a further effort to obtain lower taxes officials of the company will confer on Wednesday with city officials and representatives of the Lowell chamber of commerce. The Pepperell company also operates mills at Biddeford, Me.

President Charles Walcott of the Appleton company said that some of the 75,000 spindles and 1,500 looms which will remain in the Lowell plant after the removal of between 30,000 and 35,000 spindles and 900 looms to Anderson would be sold in order to escape taxes. He saw no immediate prospect of operating the Lowell plant again. He cited unsuccessful attempts to induce the Lowell assessors to reduce taxes.

Under the votes of the stockholders the Appleton Manufacturing company of Anderson will be dissolved and merged with the Appleton company, which owns its entire capital stock.

Russell H. Leonard, treasurer of the Pepperell Manufacturing company could not be reached for a statement today but at his office it was said that the Lowell plant of the concern was the only one of its five plants which did not make any money last year and that the wage cut was decided upon as the only possible means of eliminating the deficit. It was intimated that cooperation of the employes in accepting the cut would be called to the attention of city officials in an effort to persuade them to reduce the assessment on the Massachusetts mills.

None of the other plants of the company will be affected by the wage reduction, which, it was explained, is purely the results of the situation in Lowell. The company operates mills at Biddeford and Lewiston, Me., and has two plants in the south.

MILLS HAD PROTESTED EXCESSIVE TAXATION

LOWELL, Mass., Oct. 31—(AP)—The Appleton company, which voted today to remove part of its machinery from this city to Anderson, S. C., and to erect new buildings there, has been threatening for some time to close its Lowell plant, chiefly because of alleged excessive local tax assessments.

The company paid taxes totalling $109,455.48 in 1926, but this year the local assessors reduced the levy against the company to $92,788.50, a decrease of $16,666.98.

The Appleton company has manufactured cotton goods in Lowell for almost a century. It was incorporated in 1828. In recent years it has been operating with a greatly reduced personnel.

PROCEEDINGS IN FALL-SINCLAIR CONSPIRACY TRIAL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31—(AP)—Defense counsel in the Fall-Sinclair conspiracy trial fought strenuously today to block the government in the presentation of testimony showing the wide ramifications of oil deals involving the Continental Trading Company, Ltd., of Canada, and the Sinclair companies in which the Standard Oil company of Indiana holds a half interest.

They were successful in keeping from the jury what companies were named in the "skeleton" draft of the final contract under which the Continental concern agreed to purchase thirty-odd million barrels of oil from the late A. E. Humphreys' companies, and also figures showing that H. L. Phillips, president of the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing company, had ben in error in his testimony as to the amount of oil delivered under that contract.

Despite these setbacks, special oil counsel presented evidence designed to show that Harry F. Sinclair and Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Indiana Standard, guaranteed the Continental contract "for the directors" of the Sinclair purchasing company, which is owned jointly by the Standard and the Sinclair consolidated companies.

ROOSEVELT SEES AL SMITH TAMMANY-CONTAMINATED

The Colonel Repeats Charges and Amplifies Statement Made at the Recent Republican Convention at Rochester, N. Y.—Does Not Question Smith's Integrity, But Does Question His Affiliation With Tammany.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31—(AP)—Governor Alfred E. Smith was characterized as "bell wether of the Tammany flock" by Theodore Roosevelt tonight in an address amplifying the keynote speech at the recent republican state convention in Rochester.

At the end of his address Colonel Roosevelt summarized his charges against the governor as follows:

"For 11 years in the assembly at Albany he represented Charles F. Murphy (late Tammany chief) and sponsored the Tammany legislation.

"As a reward for this work at Albany he was made sheriff of New York county in 1918.

"For seven years he supported Mayor Hylan.

"For many years he was party to the delay in putting in voting machines in ew York city.

"He refused to institute and push a proper non-partisan inquiry into the milk scandal.

"He pretends to believe in a non-partisan judiciary but refused to interfere in behalf of upright republican municipal court judges, endorsed by the bar associations, who are running this year in New York.

"He has investigated every suspicion of improper actions on the part of republicans, but he has not investigated either the counties of the greater city or Albany, which all know were subject to investigation, and where he could have found matters of all sort in need of correction.

"There is one conclusion and one only that fair minded citizens of this state or nation can draw—Governor Smith is a Tammany man, and there is no such thing as a new Tammany.

"I said at Rochester that 'a man must be judged by the company he keeps, and though we do not question the personal integrity of Governor Smith, he is sponsored and backed by Tammany hall.' There are no two ways about it. Governor Smith was bred in the Tammany fold and is the bell wether of their flock."

Colonel Roosevelt said that since his Rochester speech there had been no attempt to meet any of the issues he raised against Governor Smith and Tammany.

"The opposition," he said, "has been forced to turn for refuge to abuse and misrepresentation. In the hopes that the people, who are the referees, may be deceived, they are shouting 'foul'—though they know that every blow struck was fair. Unable to deny the truth of my statements they have been engaging in their time-honored tactics of putting words into my mouth which I never uttered, and fighting me on them—not on the questions at issue."

He complained that the governor had ordered investigations when there had been charges of corruption in Republican counties, but had failed to investigate similar charges against democratic counties.

Colonel Roosevelt's address opened his active campaigning in preparation for the fall legislative elections. Besides the race for places in the state assembly, both parties are hotly contesting one of the nine amendments to be voted upon. The sixth amendment upon which attention is focussed, provides that the governor's term of office be extended from two to four years, thus putting the gubernatorial race in the same year as the presidential election.

NEXT THURSDAY AL. SMITH WILL REPLY TO ROOSEVELT

NTW YORK, Oct. 31—(AP)—Governor Alfred E. Smith tonight announced that he would answer the attack of Col. Theodore Roosevelt upon the governor's political record and administration next Thursday when he is scheduled to speak at Tammany hall.

Col. Roosevelt let go a broadside at Gov. Smith tonight in a campaign speech in which he characterized the governor as the "bell wether of the Tammany flock", and attacked his political record.

"I shall reply in my speech at Tammany hall next Thursday night," Gov. Smith said. "That reply, I believe, will be convincing."

SEARCHING FOR BODIES OF IRISH FISHERMEN

LONDON, Oct. 31—(AP)—A moving story of the perils of those seeking their livelihood on the deep, a story whose pathos is heightened by the attendant circumstances of Irish superstition, was told today in connection with the disaster which overtook with terrible suddenness the Irish fishermen of the west in last Friday's gale.

The storm was of unusual violence and it swept the British Isles, and took all hold, by land and sea, some sixty or seventy lives. The figures are not yet available, as reports of widespread catastrophes are arriving piecemeal, and it may be days before all is known.

No fewer than 17 ships are posted at Lloyds as casualties and it is feared that the tale of these shipping losses is still incomplete.

But all the suffering endured in England pales before the horror of the disaster which befell the west coast Irish fishermen, whose priests were today pronouncing "conditional absolution," for those who would never return to their sorrowing families. Airplanes were engaged in the mournful task of searching the coasts of Galway and Mayo for the bodies of those who fell victims to the angry seas.

About 45 of these ill-fated fishermen, who had started out on a fine night and were having good catches, were suddenly overtaken by the gale, driven on the rocks and dashed to death in sight of their homes and their wailing wives and children watching from the shore.

The fighting lasted three hours, Lieutenant Chappel and his men inflicting severe punishment on the bandits. The combat patrol was supported by airplanes, and later was joined by cavalry under Lieutenant Moses J. Gould.

NEGLEY NOW REIGNS AS MAYOR OF INDIANAPOLIS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Claude E. Negley regined alone as mayor of Indianapolis tonight. His most active contender for the place—Ira M. Holmes, an attorney—withdrew following an adverse court ruling today on his motion to dissolve an order restraining him from interfering with Negley.

Superior Judge Joseph M. Milner in his ruling declared Holmes "is not now and never has been entitled to the office of mayor." A short time later, Holmes delivered his keys to the mayor's chambers to Negley.

WESTMORELAND, Kansas, Oct. 31—(AP)—Sheriff Wesley Taylor of Pottawatomie county declared today that the mother of Ortho Hamilton, 19, held by Chicago police when found with $50,000 in stocks and bonds in his possession, denied that her son had stolen any securities from her.

Mrs. Hamilton, who recently returned to her home here from California, the sheriff said, asserted that the only papers her son might have belonging to her were an abstract and an old deed to some Missouri property.

RAILROAD TRAINMEN TO REQUEST WAGE INCREASE

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 31—(AP)—The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen will file tomorrow with every railroad west of the Mississippi river a request for a wage increase of one dollar a day, about 19 per cent, W. G. Lee, president of the trainmen announced today.

The present agreement with western railroads expires March 1, 1928. Mr. Lee in making the announcement pointed out that filing of the request is laying groundwork for wage negotiations, which it is hoped, will be completed before the present agreement expires.

Last year trainmen east and south of the Mississippi negotiated a seven and one half per cent increase. Request of trainmen west of the Mississippi for a similar increase was turned down by the roads and went to arbitration, the board refusing to grant the increase. Since then yardmen have been granted a seven and one-half per cent raise.

The railroads have 30 days to answer after filing of the request.

BODY OF WOMAN WAS IDENTIFIED BY HER SON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31—(AP)—The body of a woman found floating in the Potomac river yesterday near Matthias Point, Va., was identified today by her son as that of Mrs. Laura M. Purvis 48 years old, of Washington and Galveston, Texas, who is believed to have jumped from a Norfolk and Washington steamer Saturday night.

EXPLOSION OF GASOLINE TANKS IN NEW ROCHELLE CAUSED $200,000 FIRE

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Oct. 31—(AP)—A fire which police said they believed the outcome of a Halloween prank destroyed three tanks containing a total of 150,000 gallons of gasoline, and several buildings at the storage yard of the Pure Oil company here tonight. An unofficial estimate placed the damage at more than $200,000.

A series of explosions which shook the neighborhood marked the progress of the fire as it spread from one tank to another.

The flames, which lighted up miles of Westchester county like huge torches, shooting 150 feet into the air, for a time threatened adjacent property, including a six-story apartment house and several fine residences.

Thousands attracted by the glare in the sky came from all parts of the surrounding country to watch the flames. Their motor cars seriously hampered fire fighting equipment called from surrounding towns and villages on its way to the fire.

The combined efforts of firemen of half a dozen communities were required in a four hour fight before the flames had been subdued.

Police were assisted in their task of keeping the crowd at a safe distance in the intense heat thrown off by the burning oil which broke windows in nearby buildings.

Two tanks of the Standard Oil company, whose storage yard adjoins the Pure Oil company yard, were drained into Long Island sound to prevent further explosions

REV. J. F. COBB DELIVERS SERMON ON PROHIBITION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 31—In a forceful sermon on enforcement of the prohibition law, Rev. Joseph F. Cobb of South Windham, acting as supply pastor for the Windham Center and South Windham, Congregational churches bitterly decried the evil influence of the now extinct saloon. Dealing in liquors, even when that business was legal, is not compatible with church membership, according to Rev. Mr. Cobb, who continued to say that the restoration of light wines and beers would be an unsatisfactory proposition because of the human tendency for drinks that are stronger. To the mental revolution at having "personal liberty" interfered with through prohibition, Mr. Cobb pointed out the generous supply of other laws which govern us in our daily routine and serve to quell many desires and yet are accepted as good laws by law-abiding citizens. He concluded, "The youth of today are facing tremendous temptations that their grandmothers did not have to meet and instead of criticism and preaching against them, they need our sympathy, and the example of blameless lives on the part of older people. The older people, by precept and especially by example, and the younger people by the avoidance of temptation when possible and by standing firmly against it when meeting it, can together help to build a higher and better citizenship. Let us all strive together for more Christ-like lives and for a greater loyalty to Him and to our country."

When to Suspect Acid Scalp

It isn't age that dulls the hair. Nor frequent washing or curling. If your hair lacks all life and lustre, it may be due to a condition you can correct in twenty-four hours. Acid scalp.

Neutralize the acid secretions of the scalp, and your hair will have the lovely sheen that makes any hair so attractive. A few drops of Danderine will do this; and as its name implies, Danderine is a scientific dandruff dissolvent. Five minutes after Danderine is applied, every particle of dandruff has been dissolved!

Acid scalp should be suspected if your hair is at all stiff or stringy, or won't hold a wave. Another sign—not so easily detected in one's self—is an acrid odor to the hair when it is warm, or after exercise. And for thirty-five cents at any drugstore, you can get a bottle of Danderine that will keep your hair soft and sweet and "on its good behavior" for weeks!

DANIELSON

QUARANTINE ORDERED ON DOGS IN WOODSTOCK

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 31—Dogs of the town of Woodstock are to go into an indefinite period of quarantine next Saturday, Nov. 5. This was announced here this afternoon by Chief Special Deputy Howard E. Elliott of the commisioner of domestic animals, and is set forth in detail in a legal notice appearing elsewhere in this issue of The Bulletin.

A female police dog, having no collar or tag, but believed to have come across the line into Woodstock from Massachusetts is responsible for the quarantine, the first to be ordered on dogs in Windham county in a long time. This dog was killed while going along a highway near Quinebaug, and the head forwarded to Hartford by Dog Warden George Butts in charge in that section of the county. Examination of the head established beyond all doubt that the animal had been suffering with rabies.

This dog appeared in North Woodstock last Wednesday morning and traversed various sections of the town before being killed. Meanwhile it had bitten an unknown number of dogs. However, in eleven cases known to have been bitten the dogs were put to death. Two other dogs believed to have been exposed are being given an anti-rabies treatment.

The regulations issuing from the office of the commissioner of domestic animals concerning dogs in the the town of Woodstock require, among other things, that all dogs or other animals in that town known to have been bitten by a rapid dog shall immediately be mercifully killed by the dog warden of the town, unless the dog so bitten has received, prior to the time of biting or innoculation by a rabid dog, a vaccination treatment known as anti-rabies vaccination.

On and after Saturday, until further notice, all Woodstock dogs are to be quarantined in close confinement or securely chained on the premises of the owner or keeper and no dog is to be allowed at large.

An exception is that hunting dogs while actually engaged in hunting game and accompanied by a licensed hunter may be allowed freedom.

A pair of inanimate veterans of the World war have found a new home in the state armory here. These veterans, happening to be a pair of three-quarter ton motor trucks that for the past ten years have occupied outdoor quarters at Camp Holabird, Md. They are of that vast store of war materials that Uncle Sam had accomulated when the Armistice was about to be signed, but fortunately did not have to use. Like thousands of other machines at the cantonment mentioned they were allowed to stand out of doors as a decade slipped by, eventually to be shipped to Niantic and then brought here. They were rather dilapidated vehicles, in appearance, when they arrived here, but Capt. F. O. Armington said this morning they are still good trucks and are being painted and furnished to be added to the fleet of trucks regularly kept here as part of the Service Battery equipment. The promise is that they will come out of the hands of the armorers in spic and span condition, ready for long and hard service.

The Civic federation's annual Tag day comes next Saturday, and an effort is to be made to raise at least $600. A close approach to this figure was made on last year's Tag day. She was given attention by Dr. W. H. Judson and then taken to her home. Hours after the accident Mrs. Wilson's mind had not sufficiently cleared for her to detail just how she came to fall, and it was believed that she had suffered a concussion of the brain. Her lips were cut and her nose bruised and a hurt knee was included in her injuries. Mrs. Wilson had gone up to the office of the assessors to file her tax return and was about to leave the building when the accident happened.

One of the newest and niftiest of things are little flares that persons walking along darkened sections of state highways are lighting and dropping to protect them from being hit by approaching cars. The flares looking like little electric lights in the darkness, burn sufficiently long to fulfill their purpose.

THE RECORD CHANGES HANDS

In accordance with a previous announcement the purchase of the Pullen Publishing company, publishers of the Record, by The Bulletin company was completed Monday and the property transferred. Henceforth the Record will be published from The Bulletin plant as the evening edition of The Bulletin with the intention of providing a newspaper that will completely serve the evening field.

In its editorial column Monday evening Frank H. Pullen, for the Pullen Publishing company, referred to his retirement from the newspaper business as follows:

After 54 years in the gripping newspaper game, it will seem odd indeed to be out of it for good. There will be something lacking in life. But it must be so in the quest of health, and we are accordingly forced to say farewell in this our concluding issue.

To the public of Norwich and vicinity we extend our hearty thanks for their generous patronage during the past 39 years in which it has been a pleasure to serve them. From our loyal fellow workers we part with sincere regret.

For our successors, The Bulletin company, with their great experience and ample resources, we bespeak a cordial and continued public support. We are glad to place the conduct of The Record in such able hands.

To each and all of you we wish long life and good luck.

PULLEN PUBLISHING CO.,
Frank H. Pullen.

Fifty four years is a long time to have been closely associated with any particular line of business. It can be looked back over by Mr. Pullen with a high degree of satisfaction for his services in that field have been most creditable, both to himself and to the communities which he has served. Norwich is particularly conscious of that from the nearly two score years in which he has labored in its midst. His retirement from business comes with sincere regret but with the hope that it will accomplish an early restoration of health.

It can well be appreciated, as Mr. Pullen says, that "it will seem odd indeed to be out of it (the newspaper game) for good," after such a long period of close connection therewith, but it is to be hoped and expected that he will feel free to visit The Bulletin office whenever the spirit moves and get the invigorating effect of the smell of printer's ink. May we see him often.

PROTECTING WILD FLOWERS

According to the bureau of education in Washington there is danger that the trailing arbutus will be exterminated. This means much to every state where this pretty and pungent wild flower is so much admired and Connecticut is amongst them.

As a means of handling this situation and giving protection where it is so greatly needed it is urged that all national, state and municipal lands be used as sanctuaries for wild flowers as well as for birds and animals.

It is a fair and interesting proposition, and one which should appeal to those who have anything to do with parks and forests. In many instances they are already doing this very thing to a certain extent, but there is opportunity for giving increased attention thereto by so increasing the amount that is being preserved that it will make up for the inroads which the thoughtless are steadily making into the existing supply.

It is desirable that there should be a haven for the oppressed. Many species of birds which have been wiped out might be in existence today if similar steps had been taken at the right time. In recognition thereof action has been taken to protect others which are threatened with extinction, and what is done for birds might well be carried out in regard to wild plants.

For the protection of the laurel, legislation has been enacted and it may get to the point where similar action will be taken concerning other flowers but if the people can be educated to the desirability of refraining from the destruction which would be the object of legislation in case it was resorted to the situation would be easily met. Whether they can be awakened to that necessity is a question. An appeal, directly to the point, has been made and the cooperation that is given, together with the establishment of sanctuaries in public lands, should afford valuable, if not adequate protection. If certain of the wild flowers are to be retained they should be kept free from the heedless attacks of the raiders.

ABUSED PRIVILEGES

That Washington is disturbed on numerous occasions because of the immunity which is granted to members of the diplomatic corps of other countries may well be imagined. When it is so that representatives of other countries can do as they please regardless of laws and regulations which citizens of this country are expected to obey, it is quite proper that there should be resentment.

In the extension of immunity to the representatives of other countries it would seem as if there ought to be no occasion for their trying to exceed the rights of Americans. In most instances there is probably no such attempt, no such abuse of special rights, but there are times when it is most conspicuous and annoying.

Imagine for instance an automobile tearing through the streets of the national capital at a rate estimated at 60 miles an hour, pursued by the police and overtaken after a chase of a mile or more only to have the driver hand out a registration showing diplomatic immunity and proceed on his way.

In the extension of such immunity it is to be expected that there will be some consideration given to the rules and regulations that apply to others. It is not an invitation to establish a menace and burn up the streets. They set an example which others are certain to follow only to find themselves in hot water and perhaps facing serious consequences because of the accidents in which they have become involved.

Special privileges are probably warranted but they certainly do not justify abuse.

SECRETARY MELLON'S PLAN

Numerous plans have been suggested for the reduction of federal taxes. They have ranged in amounts from $250,000,000 to $500,000,000. They have been advanced for both meritorious and political purposes. They vary as to the character of the reduction as well as to the amount.

According to the plan which was urged by Secretary Mellon of the treasury department before the house ways and means committee, which is responsible for any new revenue bill, there would be a tax reduction of $225,000,000. He would lower the corporation tax, do away with the inheritance tax and revise the surtaxes on incomes between $16,000 and $90,000. That there is need of such changes will be generally admitted. Some would afford relief to taxpayers, but he does not believe there should be any disturbance of the auto tax or the tax on admissions. His explanation for this is that he does not believe that the federal tax should be collected entirely from the few, but that all the people should have a share in it.

Such a plan will of course be used as a basis for action. Because the secretary of the treasury has presented it does not necessarily mean that it will be adopted, but it nevertheless deserves careful study. There is such a difference between it and some of the extravagant claims that the spot light of careful scrutiny must need be thrown upon the situation. Weighty consideration should be given to the secretary's recommendations even though the reductions ultimately voted are in excess thereof. The wisdom of the Mellon guidance of the nation's finances cannot be ignored.

A RELENTLESS GRIP

When it stops to note that there have been 948 persons killed by autos in New York city within six months the New York Herald Tribune thinks that "even the well nigh surprise-proof, typical New Yorker will be startled," and possibly he will but it doesn't appear that equally impressive statistics of the past have startled him to the extent of bringing about any noticeable reduction in such slaughter.

That same New Yorker might give consideration to the fact that there were 25 more killed for the 52 weeks ending with October 8 than there were last year in the big city, and at the same time reflect a bit on the statistics which show that for 77 cities of the country there were 6,585 deaths from auto accidents for that period last year to 6,978 this year.

"Carelessness is, of course, the chief factor in motor accidents," says the Herald Tribune. This is by no means a secret and yet a general recognition of the cause does not bring about a reduction in the yearly fatalities. They are constantly increasing. Auto accidents are wiping out humanity faster than some diseases and yet those within whose hands the remedy rests fail to utilize it. Just how long the heavy toll must be paid before self preservation gets needed attention is a problem. The time would seem to have arrived, and yet the death list mounts higher and higher as the weeks roll by. Carelessness has a relentless grip on humanity which too many are unwilling to shake off.

FROM LUCILE'S DIARY

On last Saturday afternoon I noticed a delivery boy at the door of the Avises, the people who live next to us. After he had rung the bell repeatedly I began to feel sorry for him and I called to him that I knew there was no one at home there.

"Would you take in this box of flowers for Mrs. Avis, lady?" he asked and, of course, I obligingly said yes. I felt tempted to open the package and see what kind of posies they were, as I am passionately fond of flowers, but the wrappings were tight and so well sealed that I thought it best to deny myself a possible whiff of roses and mignonette.

"What do you think of aength of character great enough to withstand a lovely box of flowers?" I asked George Requier later in the afternoon when he and I were taking a spin through the parks.

"I don't get you, Lucile," he said. "What do you mean—withstand a lovely box of flowers? Have you just spurned a handsome floral tribute?"

"Not exactly, George. I do feel like a heroine, though, for restraining myself from even peeping into a most alluring florist's box that was left at our house for a near neighbor. To any one who is as daft over flowers as I am this is a noble sacrifice," I said laughing. "I wonder why any one sends such a settled-down, old-married-woman sort of person flowers. I can't imagine Mrs. Avis getting half the joy out of them that I always do when any one sends me what you call floral tributes.

"And oh, George," I went on, "have you seen that new book, Flowers, Herbs and Forestry? I was looking at it in a book store and I was so intrigued with it that I'm going to try in invegle daddy into giving it to me for a Christmas present."

"By that time you'll be wanting something else, a new fan or a bangle," said George.

"How wonderfully you don't keep up to date, ol' dear," I said giggling at him. "Fan or bangle! buy those for your great aunt! No, really, I'm not nearly so fickle in my desires as you think. My heart is quite set upon that book. The colored illustrations are really marvelous. I know you think that I'm just a frivolous creature who cares only for personal adornment and gayety. No one seems to realize that I am actually very fond of good reading, good pictures and good plays. It's certainly annoying, to be taken for such a stupid."

"Well, well, don't pout any more, Lucile. I am sure that you have a really and truly Hypatia mind hidden away in that pretty head of yours."

I wondered what he meant, but I did not like to ask who that Hypatia person was. I must see if I can find out in dad's dictionary of names, and then I won't have to ask anybody.

To my tremendous delight and surprise a glorious box of flowers came for me on Sunday morning with a note from George, "Dear Lucile," he wrote, "this nosegay is to console you for the heroically unopened box of yesterday. I am ordering a certain book for an intellectual friend of mine. I hope that she will accept it as a humble apology for my fan and bangle ineptitude."

While I was reveling in my flowers and wishing that there were more generous, thoughtful men like George in the world, Mrs. Avis burst into our house and indignantly inquired for her flowers, having just heard that some had been sent her for an anniversary present.

"No," I smiled as she glanced suspiciously at the vases I was filling, "these are not yours. Yours came in a smaller box. I'll get them for you," which I accordingly did, and when she saw the unopened parcel she gave a little gasp of dismay.

"Why didn't you put them in water? They'll be dreadfully wilted." She tore open the package. "They're ruined. Why didn't you bring them over last night?"

"I didn't know you were home, Mrs. Avis, and, besides, the matter escaped my mind. Why didn't you call for them when you came home?"

"You know that I was not aware that they were here," she replied with arctic dignity. She did not even thank me when I told her that aspirin would revive drooping flowers. Instead, of showing gratitude for that valuable information she remarked that she preferred to have her flowers before they required medicine. I fear that she is an extremely disagreeable ill-bred woman and I wish that she would move away from our neighborhood.—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

A colossal combination of co-operative building societies recently formed in England has as its executive head a man who in his youth never had the opportunity to attend school. The man is Enoch Hill and he began his career at the age of eight as a half-timer in a silk mill at Leek. His parents were poor and both worked in the silk mill. Enoch was the eldest of six children and at the age when boys are usually entering school it was necessary for him to go to work. His first wages were a shilling a week. Later, as a helper, his wages rose to nine shillings a week, but it meant running about in bare feet for about 30 miles a day. Ultimately he became manager of a building society in Leek, and 25 years ago he was appointed secretary and manager of a similar organization in Halifax. The boy who never went to school and who worked for a shilling a week now controls assets of over $200,000,000.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Congratulations and Best Wishes

Mr. Editor: Please permit me to express my heartiest congratulations and best wishes for the prosperity and progress of the Bulletin company on the acquisition of the Norwich Evening Record. I am sure that today marks a new era in the newspaper service to the people of Norwich.

The Norwich Evening Record has been in the hands of public-spirited citizens who are a credit to our community. They have done the best they could with the resources at their command and have made many friends. With the transfer going into effect today the hope for a better evening paper for Norwich, which the Pullen family have been striving for, will be realized. I am confident that the progressive policy of the Bulletin company and the ability of its management and fine staff will inject new life and energy into the evening paper, and the Norwich public may look forth for up to the minute evening news. It will also offer to our merchants an enlarged advertising field, which will prove a valuable business asset.

In my connection with the publicity of several fraternal organizations, also charitable, religious and civic drives, I found the Bulletin company always ready to render assistance and encouragement whenever convinced that the cause was worthy. I also found the personnel of its staff actuated by the public spirit of the owners of the paper—ever courteous, friendly, and untiring in their zeal to help the citizens of Norwich to successfully carry out their communal activities. This spirit of cooperation by our premier newspaper has been a source of inspiration to many of our citizens interested in the welfare of Norwich. I therefore am very glad that the potentiality for fine and valuable public service will be greatly increased through the medium of the greater Norwich Evening Record which will surely result from the new ownership and management.

My congratulations therefore are double—they are extended to the Norwich Bulletin company and to the people of Norwich.

Sincerely yours,
MAX HANOVER.

Stories That Recall Others

She Knew

They were talking in the family circle one evening when William, age 11, who had been reading some of Tunney's statements, asked, "What does he mean by leading a clean life?"

"Oh, I don't know," volunteered five year old Mary, who had heard many family discussions relative to the famous contest. "It means that he takes lots of baths. Don't you remember his pictures always look lots whiter and cleaner than Dempsey's—his knees always look so clean," she added appreciatively, for she knew the handicap of wearing the otherwise comfortable summer short sock.

Another Burbank

A little four year old girl had been playing with a boy of the same age when she spied a dead bird lying in a neighbor's backyard and persuaded the boy to get it. They immediately began to examine, but wishing to know something about it they called a member of the little girl's family and several questions were asked and answered. Finally the little girl with a puzzled look on her face, turned and asked: "If you planted it, would it grow into a bird?"

Perfumes came to be so excessively used in ancient Rome that their use was finally restricted by law.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Mrs. Peter Sees Old Jed Thumper

Though bravely you may danger dare,
Be wise and for retreat prepare.
—Mrs. Peter Rabbit.

While Peter Rabbit was having such a time over in the Green Forest, hunting for Mrs. Peter and the handsome young rabbit he was sure she had gone off with, little Mrs. Peter was having a bad time up in the Old Pasture hunting for Peter. But little Mrs. Peter didn't lose her head. No, indeed, she kept her head. When she discovered that she couldn't find Peter right away, she made very sensible plans. "To begin with, I must have a place where I can feel reasonably safe, a place to run to in time of danger."

"I'm looking for Peter," said she softly.

So she hunted about until she found a bramble tangle that had an entrance from each side, which she could enter easily, but which Reddy Fox or Old Man Coyote could not possibly get through. She had found one of the bramble-tangles that Peter had so carefully cut paths through for himself. Of course, she had no idea of this.

"Now that I have this good, safe place," said she, "I must learn all about the Old Pasture. I must find out where all these paths go to." She meant the cow-paths. "I must find out just where Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy live, and where Old Man Coyote and Mrs. Coyote have made their home. It would be dreadful to blunder right into one of those homes while I was looking for Peter. Then I must visit every part of the Old Pasture in turn. If I could find my father, Old Jed Thumper, he might be able to help me."

That very evening she did find Old Jed Thumper. They met on a turn of an old cow-path. She was going up the path and he was coming down the path. So it was that they came face to face. At the first glimpse of little Mrs. Peter, Old Jed Thumper, the gray old rabbit, who felt that the Old Pasture belonged to him, made himself look as fierce as a rabbit can. He didn't propose to have another rabbit up in the Old Pasture. Peter Rabbit was too big to be driven out, but this one was smaller. But before he could jump and kick as he intended to, he discovered who it was. But all he said was, "Huh!"

Little Mrs. Peter hardly knew what to say. She knew that Old Jed Thumper had a very short temper. She doubted if he was at all pleased to see her. She had a feeling that if he had seen Peter, and Peter had told him that he had come up to the Old Pasture to live, he would be in a bad temper indeed.

"I'm looking for Peter," said she softly.

"Huh!" said Old Jed Thumper again.

"I don't suppose you have seen Peter," said little Mrs. Peter.

"Huh!" said Old Jed Thumper for the third time. "Yes, I've seen him," he added. "I've seen more of him than I wanted to. Why didn't you keep him down on the dear Old Briar-patch where he belongs? And now here you are following him up here. There is no place for you up here."

"But the Old Pasture is such a big place," pleaded little Mrs. Peter.

"There isn't any place in all the Great World big enough for two rabbits who don't like each other," declared Old Jed Thumper.

"If you'll tell me where Peter is, I'll try to take him away back to the Old Briar-patch," said little Mrs. Peter, and she said it very wistfully.

"I don't know where he is," replied Old Jed Thumper, "but I can tell you one thing, and that is that the sooner he gets out of the Old Pasture the better it will be for all concerned. I don't want him here and I don't propose to have him here. When you find him, you tell him that for me."

Poor little Mrs. Peter! What could she say to that?

CREOMULSION
FOR THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Mother! Do You Know the Danger of that Cough or Cold?

Mother, if the youngsters play hard and "take cold," if for any of a dozen other reasons they get "sick with a cold," stop it as fast as you can. Don't let it hang on. Colds that stay and stay, too often lead into pneumonia or flu or chronic bronchial trouble. Too often a cold leads into a fatal complication.

If any of your youngsters develop a cough or a cold that hangs on, use sensible precautions immediately and give them Creomulsion. Help their strong, youthful bodies to fight coughs and colds with Creomulsion. It is pleasant, easy to take.

Creomulsion is an old remedy now. Millions know its merits and like it. We guarantee that it will relieve stubborn coughs and colds, if you follow directions, or we'll refund your money.

Breakfasts That "Stand By" You

Quaker Oats Urged Widely by Authorities

FOREMOST educators, editors as well as leading business institutions like General Electric Company, now are widely urging breakfasts that "stand by" as an important aid to success.

That's because it is now known that over 70% of the day's important work, in offices, stores, etc., falls into the four morning hours—the hours from 8:30 to 12:30.

In most American schools, including Princeton, Yale, most State Universities and some 2,000 grade schools throughout the country, 80% of the important classes are held before luncheon.

Thus, largely on expert advice, millions now start days with Quaker Oats—food that "stands by" one through the morning.

Excellently balanced in protein, carbohydrates, minerals and the important Vitamine B, this delicious food is ideal for banishing listless mornings.

Today get Quick Quaker that cooks in 2½ to 5 minutes or regular Quaker Oats at grocer's.

"SHAMPOO" IS HINDOO FOR MASSAGE

The secret of beautiful hair is in the word "Shampoo." In Hindoo, it means massage; in English, thorough cleansing of hair and scalp. Frequent cleansing with antiseptic pine tar soap, which banishes germs, tones and stimulates—together with vigorous exercise of the scalp—keeps hair and scalp healthy. Hair specialists usually recommend Packer's, the standard brand of tar soap for 55 years, for the shampoo. At all dealers.

INGROWN NAIL

Turns Right Out Itself

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

FUNERALS

William Gordon

The funeral of William Gordon was held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the parlors of Undertaker C. A. Gager, No. 70 Franklin street with a large attendance of relatives and friends. The service was conducted by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church. During the service Mrs. William Crowe, Jr., sang Lead, Kindly Light and Abide With Me. The burial took place in Yantic cemetery and Rev. Mr. Ricketts conducted the committal service. The bearers were William Clark, James Semple, William Kramer and William Pitcher. There was a wealth of beautiful floral tributes. Mr. Gordon died Saturday from injuries he received when hit by a trolley car on Central avenue.

In addition to the surviving relatives already mentioned, there are two cousins, Mrs. Luella R. Carr and Mrs. Susie T. Grady, both of this city.

Denison Gallaudet

Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock the funeral of Denison Gallaudet, 57, formerly of Norwich, who died in New York Friday, was held at the Asylum Hill Congregational church, Hartford. Rev. Willis H. Butler, pastor of the church, conducted the service and burial took place in Cedar Hill cemetery, Hartford.

Mr. Gallaudet was the son of the late Edward Miner and Susy (Denison) Gallaudet. He is survived by his wife and two children, Mrs. H. Nathan Potter of Enfield, Mass., and Edward Gallaudet of New York city; three sisters, Miss K. F. Gallaudet, Hartford, Mrs. John W. Edgerton of Santa Barbara, Cal., and Mrs. William B. Closson of Clinton, Mass., and two brothers, Rev. Herbert D. Gallaudet, Waterbury, and Edison F. Gallaudet, now in Paris.

Mr. Gallaudet was a well known former resident of this city. While in Norwich he and his brother, Edison F. Gallaudet, established a hydroplane manufacturing plant. This was about 16 years ago and the plant was located in Thamesville. Mr. Gallaudet was a graduate of a college of engineering. His brother, Edison, was an inventor.

The company built a plane and tried it out on the Thames river but it did not prove a success. Later a company was formed and the plant was moved to East Greenwich, R. I. There the experiments were continued with the result that a hydroplane was finally constructed which made a number of successful flights. It was not entirely satisfactory, however. During one of the test flights the hydroplane crashed and the pilot was killed.

The Gallaudet brothers abandoned their efforts to build hydroplanes and started in to make fittings for planes. They afterwards sold out and Denison Gallaudet accepted a position with a Brooklyn, N. Y. construction firm. During the latter part of his residence here, Mr. Gallaudet and family made their home in the Stone house which is known as the Brand place on Rockwell street.

MRS. BARBARA TRIMBLE IS FOUND AT HARTFORD THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Search for Mrs. Barbara Campbell Trimble, 26, wife of Dana N. Trimble of 55 East Town street, in which police of Connecticut, Massachusetts and New York had taken part, ended Monday afternoon in Hartford, where Mrs. Trimble was found at Hartford Theological seminary. Friends here received word late Monday afternoon that she had been recognized by the matron who detained her long enough to get word to interested friends and Mrs. Trimble was placed in a hospital.

Mrs. Trimble disappeared last Thursday from Dr. Riggs sanatorium at Stockbridge, Mass., where she had been a patient for three weeks for a nervous disorder. Members of her family, including her husband, her mother, Mrs. J. H. Campbell of Ipswich, Mass., her brother, R. H. Campbell of Fitchburg, took part in the search for her over the week-end, believing that she was suffering from amnesia.

Mr. Trimble, who is assistant treasurer of the Aspinook company at Jewett City, went to New York state Monday following a clue that it was believed might lead to locating his wife. It was expected he might get back to Hartford some time Monday night.

Norwich friends were informed that Mrs. Trimble had apparently not suffered any from exposure during her wanderings since she left the sanatorium. It was not known whether she had been able to give any description of her movements since she left the Stockbridge sanatorium.

Rode From East Canaan

HARTFORD, Oct. 31—(AP)—Mrs. Barbara Campbell Trimble, 26, wife of Dana N. Trimble, assistant treasurer of the Aspinook mills of Jewett City, was found late today by local police working as a maid at the Hartford Theological seminary.

A woman's intuition that all was not well with a passenger whom her husband had picked up on his truck in East Canaan last Friday afternoon and loaned $20 for which the passenger gave a diamond ring as security, furnished the clue which finally led to Mrs. Trimble's discovery.

This afternoon a woman, whose name was withheld, said that her husband had received a letter from a Mrs. Davis, of number 10 Garden street, thanking him for the ride to Hartford and asking leave to get back the ring which she had pledged as soon as she could raise the money. Lieutenant Frank Stantord, chief of detectives, assigned Detective Sergeant Peter B. Gavin to run down the new clue.

At the Garden street address the detective learned that the woman was employed as a maid at the Hartford Theological seminary. Accompanied by President Remsen B. Ogilby, of Trinity college, a friend of Mrs. Trimble's husband, the detective went to the seminary where President Ogilby identified her. Relatives were notified at once and Mrs. Trimble was taken to the Hartford Retreat.

"MARRIED AND HAPPY" WAS SERMON THEME

In the second in a series of sermons upon "The Fine Art of Living Together," Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt preached Sunday night at the Central Baptist church upon the subject, "Married and Happy."

Speaking first of the importance of the home, he said that out of it has come about everything worthwhile in our civilization, but a weakened home means a weakened people, a weakened church and lowered standards in business and in political and social life. A father and mother living together with their children and practically every home should have children, maintaining a Christian home and raising their family, are giving about the greatest contribution that a man and woman can give to the community. The trouble with some couples is that they are thinking too much about themselves and too little about the purposes of the home.

The secret of a happy home, the speaker continued, lies in the right relation existing between husband and wife, that right relation exists wherever you find two normal people seeking to live up to their marriage vows. What are those vows? Not the following: "Those who enter into this relation are instructed to cherish a mutual esteem and love: to bear with each other's infirmities and weaknesses; to comfort each other in sickness, trouble and sorrow; in honesty and industry to provide for each other and for their household, in temporal things; to pray for and encourage each other in the things which pertain to God; and to live together as the heirs of the grace of life. The groom pledges his troth to the bride, in all love and honor, in all duty and service, in all faith and tenderness, to live with her and cherish her, according to the ordinance of God in the holy bond of marriage." The bride makes a similar pledge to the groom.

"Now I hold that where you have two normal people seeking to live up to this marriage vow you have a happy home. When you find this treated as a scrap of paper and one or both going their selfish ways you will find one of the most unhappy spots on earth. The home degenerates into a place to eat and sleep and each goes his way regardless of the other, there is little left that we associate with the word home. It is not a home, it is simply a house furnishing shelter but lacking in atmosphere. A horse eats or sleeps in a house and we call it a stable. What shall we call a house in which human beings do nothing but eat and sleep. Edgar Guest is right. "It takes a heap o' livin in a house t' make it home."

"Fidelity to the marriage vow is the secret of a happy married life. It might be well for young couples to read their marriage vows just as we read our church covenant once a month. Such fidelity will make impossible flirtations with other women or other men. A married flirt is simply a man or woman who hasn't grown up. By the marriage vows I mean not merely the letter but the spirit of that vow. Many a man is not carrying on a flirtation with another woman and yet he is not practicing the courtesies of life to the woman of his choice. Do good manners fly out of the window when matrimony comes in at the door? What is courtesy between husband and wife. The ideal is when each tries to see the other's point of view and respect it. Do these seem little things? The mosquito is a little thing, but the digging of the Panama canal was an impossibility until the mosquito was conquered. That was one of the greatest engineering feats of modern times. The building of a home is one of the greatest social engineer feats, but it cannot be built until some of these selfish, pesky mosquitoes are conquered. Christ's method is not force and selfishness but love and service. Dr. Beavens sent out a questionnaire to 150 couples whom he had married. In it he asked them the greatest element making for happiness. The largest number replied, "Religion lived daily in the home." I believe God intends every home to be a happy home, a little bit of heaven here on earth. I believe that all the resources of heaven are available for the man and woman who desire to build the home God meant."

Mrs. Grace Goff Fernald of East Hampton was guest soloist at the service and was heard in her beautiful soprano voice being heard in several selections with great pleasure by the good sized congregation. She sang with clear enunciation, fine tone and expression, indicating the careful training which she has received. Her numbers were the following:

"Spirit of God", Neidlinger; "O Come to My Heart Lord Jesus" Ambrose; "Prayer Perfect" Stanton; "How Beautiful Upon the Mountains" Harker.

HELD JOINT CELEBRATION OF MOOSEHEART DAY

Twenty-five members of Norwich chapter, No. 124, Women of Moose-heart legion left Sunday afternoon on the 3.15 bus to New London to join with the New London chapter in a celebration of Mooseheart day.

At 6 o'clock sharp the officers of Norwich and New London chapters were seated at a table beautifully decorated in Halloween colors of orange and black with a red heart at each place and vases of red and white carnations. The members of both chapters were seated at tables decorated the same way with vases of asters and a small table was especially arranged for the children.

The senior regent of New London chapter, Mrs. Mary Geer, gave the address of welcome and introduced the dictator of New London lodge, L. O. O. M., Mr. Carp, as the toastmaster of the evening.

After a few remarks on the wonderful work the L. O. O. M. and the Mooseheart chapters are doing, the toastmaster called upon Chaplain Irene Burns of Norwich chapter, to ask the blessing. The following delicious menu was served: Roast turkey, mashed potatoes, mashed turnips, creamed onions, cranberry sauce, celery, rolls, fancy cookies, ice cream and coffee. After the dinner the hall was filled to its capacity by the guests who were invited by the New London chapter.

The senior regent, Mrs. Geer, then introduced the guest of honor and the principal speaker, Past Regent Emma Beaver of Willimantic, the organizer of Norwich chapter, No. 124.

Past Regent Beaver gave a very interesting talk on Mooseheart and fraternalism. She said that the foundation of fraternalism is love, and that the success of the chapters depend entirely on the members living up to this and doing as the moose, for which the chapters take their name, holding together regardless of anything. Past Regent Beaver was applauded long and loudly.

After the speech, the following entertainment was carried out in charge of Past Regent Teresa Watters of Norwich chapter:

Solo, in costume, America by Legionnaire Mary Edwards; The Flower Girls, tableau by Past Regent Keenan and Legionnaire La Voire of New London; tableau, Faith, Hope and Contentment, Irene Burns, Vera Watters and Marie LaValley; tableau, The Union Forever, Ethel Hoelck, Mrs. Sawer; tableau, Discovering a Leak, Mrs. Geer, Mrs. Stockdale, Mrs. Hunter; tableau, Mooseheart at Nine O'-Clock, Mrs. Geer and Miss Ethel Geer, with Anna Stockdale singing Mooseheart the Happiest; chorus by Past Regents Mary Hunter and Rose Carter, Mrs. Stockdale, Mrs. Tomaino and Mrs. Edwards of Norwich and five legionnaires of New London chapter.

After the nine o'clock service, Dion's Review entertained with different numbers of dancing and singing. Mooseheart Tableau by Legionnaire Bogue of New London chapter and Past Regent Teresa Watters as the old people at Moosehaven; tableau, Birthday Characters, Monday, Irene Stockdale; Tuesday, Anna Stockdale; Wednesday, Irene Burns; Thursday, Hazel Markovis; Friday, Marie La Valle; Saturday, Ethel Hoelck; Sunday, Vera Watters. A soft shoe dance was performed by Miss Vera Watters. A fancy drill by the New London degree team, was given and the last number was a sketch, entitled, A Quiet Summer in the Country, with the following cast: Mrs. Le Grand, Ethel Hoelck, Mrs. Van Dusen, Miss Anna Stockdale, Mrs. Macpherson, Miss Irene Stockdale; Mrs. Henri Mead Smythe, Mrs. Clara Murphy, Mrs. Foxen, Mrs. Minnie Smith; Jeff, Mrs. Marie LaValle; Hiram, Mrs. Teresa Watters. Owing to the lateness of the hour quite a few tableaux had to be omitted. The Norwich chapter was warmly praised for their work and cooperation with New London chapter in an effort to make a success of the observance of Mooseheart day.

AUTOMOBILES COLLIDE ON ROAD NEAR QUAKER HILL

A new automobile belonging to Michael Scalzullo of New London, well known there under the nickname of Fonzi, was demolished about 2 o'clock Monday morning when it overturned near Quaker Hill on the Norwich-New London road after being sideswiped by an automobile reported to be owned by Henry D'Avignon, 262 Franklin street, this city. Scalzulo received lacerations about the hands and injuries about the body.

The crash on Quaker Hill road occurred nea rthe Cinderella inn, when Scalzullo's car, traveling towards New London, was sideswiped by the other car which was proceeding toward this city. Scalzullo's car was overturned and the operator and Michael Marino, also of New London, were thrown out. The latter, however, escaped injury. The other car swerved to the side of the road, grazed a tree and came to a halt.

State Policeman George Slasion was on the scene shortly after the accident, but was unable to locate D'Avignon, although it was thought that he was in his car at the time of the crash. Ethel M. Melvin of R. F. D. No. 6, Norwich, claimed to have been operating the car, but the state police are inclined to dubt her statement. No arrest was made, but the matter was being thoroughly investigated Monday.

MRS. JOHN IRISH AT 81 PICKS OCTOBER ROSES

Not every one is privileged to pick roses on her birthday, Oct. 30th, as was Mrs. John Irish of Laurel Hill avenue. Mrs. Irish was 81 Sunday and from the garden at her home she had red ramblers, also a beautiful pink California rose, "gorgeous." All those blossoms were grown by her niece, Miss Lola Belle Roath, who has made her home with Mrs. Irish since coming from California about five years ago.

To celebrate the birthday, Mrs. Irish and Miss Roath went to South Windham, where they were guests of Mrs. William Bell, a former matron at Johnson Home.

Comrades in the 26th Regiment Conn. Vols. will be interested to know that Mrs. Irish and Miss Roath visited during the week at the home of Alvah Morgan in East Lyme, finding Mr. Morgan recovering steadily from pneumonia, with which he has been ill since the summer.

GRACE PARISH VOTES CALL TO REV. ROBERT B. DAY

A special parish meeting Monday evening at Grace Episcopal church, Yantic, was attended by 40 parishioners. C. E. Carpenter presided, the other members of the vestry present being R. V. Congdon, Herbert M. Hichon, C. P. J. Vanderwaart and Edward Snow. New members elected to the vestry are Louis Engler and Charles E. Carpenter.

When the moderator presented the matter of extending another call to the former rector, Rev. Robert B. Day, who resigned recently to take a parish in his native England, the sentiment appeared practically unanimous to again proffer Rev. Mr. Day the rectorship.

A letter from Bishop Acheson was read, expressing approval of such a call, also offering to aid the parish in any way possible in this matter.

D., o. r and parked near the watering trough at Osgood wharf. Mr. Boska claimed he didn't see the auto. The case was nolled after Boska had paid Klemansky $25 for the damage his wagon did to the automobile.

A delightful Halloween party was held Monday evening in Christ Episcopal church parish room, given by the Girls' Friendly society. About 50 attended and the costumes were most attractive.

The games and tricks were enjoyed by everyone. Miss Mary Southouse carried off first prize in bobbing for apples, Mrs. Otto Berberick won second prize and Miss Anble Lambert came in third. In the speaking the apple contest, Mrs. Olive C. Magnuson won first honors, Mrs. Josephine Goodrow came second, while third prize went to Miss Annie Taft. In the swinging apple trick, Miss May Vallin took first prize and Mrs. Magnuson second.

Fortunes were told to all the young women present as well as the men. Then everybody went into the parish dining-room, where, under shaded lights and Jack o' lanterns ghosts in white served refreshments, after a doughnut eating contest won by several. The club song was sung by the girls while gathered about the piano, before the party dispersed, all feeling in the best of good spirits.

FEW UPSETS IN EASTERN CONN. HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL SATURDAY

Things moved along pretty much as expected in "Big Six" football the past week. There was but one result that might be called an upset that, Westerley's stunning defeat from the Rhode Island State Freshmen. The other four games in which schools of this section figured came out according to Hoyle, except that Windham's win over Stonington was by a wider margin than some figured.

The scores of last week's games:
N. F. A. 19, Wilby (Waterbury) 13.
Windham 19, Stonington 6.
Bulkeley (N. L.) 0, Central (Bridgeport) 25.
Westerly 0, R. I. S. Frosh 28.
Chapman Tech 0, Bulkeley (Hartford) 19.

The Big Six fared very, very poorly in its game with outsiders during the week, winning but one of four contests. That was the Academy in their win over Wilby and incidentally, the points scored by the Red and White were the only scores made by the Big Six against teams of other parts. Westerly, Bulkeley and Chapman Tech were all shut out, by teams of Kingston, R. I., Bridgeport and Hartford.

The work of the Big Six to date:

	W.	L.	T.	T. P.	O. P.
N. F. A.	4	1	0	69	44
Windham	3	1	1	59	31
Stonington	3	3	0	49	34
Westerly	1	2	3	12	47
Chap. Tech	1	4	0	19	74
Bulkeley	0	4	2	0	73

N. F. A. Had Close Call

Over at Waterbury Saturday the Academy had quite a narrow escape. Caught offguard in the first few minutes of the fray they allowed thirteen points before the team recovered. However, the outfit braced toward the latter part of the first period and then managed to put over 6 points at the opening of the second quarter. The two battled on even terms for the rest of the half. In the third quarter the Red and White started to hit their stride but it was not until the last period had been half spent that the two touchdowns, ever-threatening, came over to secure the much needed win. The aerial game was very conspicuous all the way, the five touchdowns being made by this method.

Wilby scored twice in the first quarter on heaves to Murphy and Walsh, respectively, by Conley; the Academy scored in the second period on a toss to Johnny Greene by McGlone and then added their two other touchdowns at the end on throws by McGlone to LaCroix and Greene, also respectively.

Harry McGlone was the outstanding Academy performer. His work was easily the best shown this year by a Red and White player. Tossing passes and scampering through broken fields besides chipping in with timely tackles was his dish Saturday and his play will be remembered a long time.

The play by which Wilby scored first was one of the trickiest that Academy followers had witnessed in some time. Wilby had received the kickoff and in short time had piled through for three first downs, featured by long runs and the ball was brought to the Academy 20 yard mark. Coach Lee then substituted two linemen and a half back. As the players leaving the game walked off they tossed their headguards back into the pile of players but instead of three toppieces, there went four, unnoticed to the locals. One of these belonged to Murphy, fullback, who by the way, was the star third sacker for their baseball club. He walked quite a distance across the field, halted long enough for legality, then dashed for the goal line and received a forward pass, almost unnoticed, for the score. It was a play that could be worked but once for when the Green and White tried it in the last half it was easily detected. It was really the old "hidden end" trick with variations.

Windham Here Sat.; Beats Stonington

At Stonington, Windham sort of surprised the boys with their two touchdown margin over the O'Brien machine. Callaghan's boys showed much improvement over their previous week's work and that they will be mighty dangerous for the Academy this coming week is taken for granted by the Red and White's followers. Wilkinson, Windham's valuable fullback, was out of the game but the work of keeping Windham going was ably taken care of by Saba and Warren, the latter an ex-scrub. It is not known whether "Wilky" will be ready for the game here Saturday. In winning Windham moved up close to the Academy at the top in the standings showing the work of eastern Connecticut's "conference" of high schools.

At Bridgeport, Central high resumed with the tactics that downed powerful Naugatuck the week before and had little trouble with the Academy's ancient rivals. Bulkeley has not scored a point to date in six games. They play the Academy at New London Armistice day.

At Kingston, R. I., Thursday, the Westerly high outfit, minus its mainspring, Pinky Meikle went down without offering much opposition before the freshmen team of Rhode Island State college. The first team had it all their own way while the second team battled Roger's men on even terms.

At New London Saturday, Bulkeley of Hartford found Chapman Tech for a 19 to 0 win. This Hartford club is now hitting the high spots and although Tech's line proved formidable, nevertheless the Insurance City club scored its fourth straight win.

Bits About the "Big Six"

The big game this week end in eastern Connecticut football comes here at the campus Saturday afternoon with the Academy and Windham renewing grid relations after a lapse of four years. It should be mighty, mighty interesting for these clubs have usually been only the bitterest of rivals. This game will also go a long way toward determining the sectional championship for the season. Both clubs claimed it last year but there should be some settlement this time.

There is a possibility of a cross-country run between the Academy and Bulkeley on this same Saturday at the campus.

Bulkeley, in her first attempt at scholastic competition in this sport finished last in a three cornered affair at Stonington Saturday. Stonington won and Suffield Prep was second.

They had quite a gathering at Stonington Saturday with teams of four schools in the little place.

Chapman Tech finished fourth in the Rensalear Polytechnic Institute Run at Troy N. Y. Saturday. There were something like 180 starters.

The Academy now leads Windham by ten points for the high scoring honors while the two New London schools, Chapman Tech and Bulkeley are running a close race for the matter of yielding the most points in the "Big Six." Tech now leads by one point but she has scored 19 points against none for the Orange and Black.

Other School News

Warren Harding removed almost the last unbeaten high school team in the state Saturday by beating Stamford 12 to 0. About the only unbeaten clubs we know of now are Meriden and Hartford Public high.

Hartford meets a tartar this week in New Haven Hillhouse, the team that slaughtered New Britain 24 to 0. Hartford won from Weaver for the city championship Friday 18 to 0.

Pheno Tombari and Dan Polsky, former N. F. A. athletes both saw service for Conn. Aggies and Brown varsity Saturday.

FINE CHAMPAGNE TAKES THE HASTINGS HANDICAP

NEW YORK, Oct. 31—(AP)—Fine Champagne, under perfect handling, scored in a drive in winning the Hastings Handicap, mile and 70 yards feature at Empire City today. She closed at 8 to 5 after touching a high quotation of 2 to 1. Gormond, an outsider, was second and Juggler, odds-on-favorite, third. Juggler ran away below his best race, quitting to a walk in the last quarter. Fine Champagne won by a head and Gormond got the place by five lengths. The time was 1:45.

The American National Endurance Handicap, $5,000 added, at Arlington, went to F. M. Grabner's Chicago, with the veteran Earl Pool in the saddle. The Durnell entry, Yeddo and Smiling Gus finished second and third. Chicago broke on top and soon dropped back to fifth place.

Yeddo took the lead and set a terrific pace to the stretch, where Chicago came up in his usual way on the rail to win by four lengths. The time for the mile and a quarter was 2:08 3-5.

The fourth race at Latonia, six furlongs for two years old fillies, went to Storm Signal. Golden Tinted was second and Claret Cup third. The time was 1:12 2-5.

NO SCRIMMAGE FOR HARVARD THIS WEEK

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 31.—(AP)—A hard-worked Harvard football squad, scrimmaged to weariness in preparation for the Dartmouth and Indiana games, heard good news today. The coaches intimated that probably there would be no regular scrimmage work this week, but the emphasis would be placed on the development of team play and rythm, accuracy in passing, and the like.

The men escaped from the Indiana game with many bruises but no serious injuries. French and Harder were the most banged up. All the members of the varsity squad including Everett Donagy, who missed last Saturday's game through a leg injury, will be available for service against Pennsylvania on Saturday.

It was indicated today that the starting line-up against Pennsylvania would be the same that took the field against the Hoosiers last week. In the dummy scrimmage team A, with the exception of two absentees, was the Crimson's first line-up of Saturday. A long kicking and passing drill and a session of fundamentals concluded today's work.

KAPLAN ATTEMPTS ONE MORE COMEBACK TONIGHT

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Louis (Kid) Kaplan, former featherweight champion boxer of the world who has twice been knocked out in his attempts to get a chance at the lightweight crown, will attempt a comeback tomorrow night at the Arena, here. He is scheduled to meet Mike Dundee, of Rock Island, Ill., in a 12-round bout. Both men will enter inner lightweight limits.

Dundee is a junior lightweight, and he is regarded as one of the logical contenders for both the junior lightweight and lightweight laurels.

Bobby Mays, New England lightweight champion, will appear in a eight round semi-final against "Pep" O'Brien, of Scranton, Pa.

Three six round bouts complete the card.

State Basketball Meeting.

AGGIES DID NOT SHOW WELL AGAINST LOWELL

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 3.—Although many Connecticut Aggie followers were disappointed by the poor showing of their team in its 28-6 victory over Lowell Textile here Saturday, Coach Sumner A. Dole refuses to become worried because of the apparent slump in form of his players.

"It was the first game that I have seen the Aggies play this year, and I wasn't surprised at the type of play shown" said Dole today. In the first place, Lowell Textile has a poor record for the season and not much opposition was expected. And any coach will tell you that more than anything else he fears the team which is greatly underrated. Furthermore, the Aggie eleven has been through four hard contests in the last four weeks, and against a supposedly weaker team a let-down in form might well be expected.

"After yesterday's showing, I look for the team to brace and play a much stronger game against Trinity at Hartford next Saturday," continued Dole." The team must do that if they would win for Trinity showed real power in holding Wesleyan to a 6-3 score, and the coming Aggie-Trinity game should be a real contest. Personally I'm pleased that Trinity did make such a good showing against Wesleyan, for that more than anything else will impress my boys that they must play heads-up football if they are to win from Trinity.

Several members of the Aggie squad suffered injuries in Saturday's game, though none of them are thought to be serious. For the most part, they were merely old injuries that were further aggravated during the course of the game.

Ed Colacurcio '29 suffered an ankle injury that will force him to stay out of his guard position for a couple of days, but he should be in condition for Trinity. Bill Knaut '29, fullback, has another case of "Charley Horse", and Quarterback Ray Ryan is once more bothered by a shoulder injury. Cole Hawkins '30, tackle, has a badly bumped nose, "Casey" Stangle '30 sprained his thumb, and Captain Eddy's hip is once more bothering him. It is expected that all of these men will be in shape for scrimmage by the middle of the week, and barring further injury ready for Trinity.

Only three games remain on the Aggies' 1927 schedule, and more and more it looks as though Connecticut is not going to have the fairly easy time expected with either Trinity or Rhode Island State. These two contests, along with Lowell Textile, were regarded more or less in the light of "warming up" games for the last game of the year with Boston college at Hartford, but in light of the form displayed by these two eleven in recent games there is every possibility that the "warming up" process may become too hot for comfort. It so happens that the Aggie game will be the last of the year for both Trinity and Rhode Island, and both will be pointing for it with the view of closing their respective seasons successfully at the expense of the Storrs men. Past experience would indicate that both Trinity and Rhode Island can be depended upon to battle Connecticut on even terms despite previous poor records, and this is more than likely to happen this year. Rhode Island's team has been making its best showing in years this season, and Connecticut will probably find the Rhody eleven a hard one to stop.

The closing game with Boston college looms up more and more as a tough assignment as the Eagles continue to improve from week to week. B. C. got away to a poor start but in the last two games has shown real power in defeating West Virginia Wesleyan and Fordham. Here at Storrs it is felt that the Aggies can flash an offense that will match that of Boton college, but there is some worry about the team's defensive play. Defensive tactics will be stressed in the remaining weeks of the campaign.

DEMPSEY MAY MEET TUNNEY NEXT JULY

NEW YORK, Oct. 31—(AP)—The possibility that Jack Dempsey would seek the heavyweight crown of Gene Tunney next July appeared today as the former king of the pugilistic realm held a lengthy conference with Tex Rickard in Madison Square Garden.

Although neither Rickard nor Dempsey would admit that the conference concerned affairs fistic, the report was current that the promoter sought Dempsey's agreement to meet Tunney early in the outdoor season as protection against the plans of Jim Mullen, Chicago promoter, to match the title-holder against a logical opponent in the mid-west sometime in September. Rickard's agreement with Tunney is said to call for a title defense some time before Sept. 1, 1928.

"I have not signed to fight anyone," Dempsey said, "and I haven't even decided whether or not I will enter the ring again. That must wait until spring, when the lawsuits of Jack Kearns and Teddy Hayes have been settled."

Dempsey admitted, however, that in case he does try again to lift the crown Tunney won from him at Philadelphia and defended successfully in Chicago this fall, the battling will be done under Rickard's direction in accordance with an agreement entered into sometime ago.

"Just now," Dempsey said, "I'm here to fight Jack Kearns' suit for $333,333.33, that opens in Trenton, N. J., Nov. 15.

"We're going to the bat to settle once and for all whether or not he has any money coming to him from me.

"If I owe Kearns anything I have the money to pay him and I will, it is just a matter of a contract which he believes he has and I believe he hasn't. There is absolutely no possibility of either a settlement or reconciliation. That part of it, at least, was settled long ago."

Dempsey, apparently in splendid health, said that Leo P. Flynn, his adviser during the recent comeback campaign, probably would handle his affairs again in the event of a new assault on Tunney's title. There could be no need of a decision on that matter, Dempsey said, until a return to the ring has been decided upon definitely.

ST. PATRICK'S ELEVEN PLAY AT DEEP RIVER TODAY

The St. Patrick's school football team goes to Deep River to play the eleven of St. John's Prep this morning.

The locals have been drilling for quite a while and now seem in good shape. They present several veterans in the lineups that will take the field today, which follows: Skelly and Shea at ends with White and Sullivan at tackles, Ravenelle, Burke and Guertin at guards with H. Matthews at center, A. Matthews at quarterback, Kirker and Fraschelli at halves and Caron at fullback.

Dartmouth Regulars Lay Off

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Dartmouth's entire varsity and all first string subetitutes were excused from practice today while the third and fourth teams went through a stiff scrimmage. The regulars were reported far from downcast over the Yale game and all were expected to report for drill tomorrow after a two-day layoff. Rain failed to halt today's battle of the scrubs and the third team won 12 to 0, with Longnecker making two touchdowns as wide and runs.

SIR WALTER LEADS FIELD IN FIRST ROUND OF PROFESSIONAL TOURNEY

CEDAR CREST COUNTRY CLUB, DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 31—(AP)—Stroking a sparkling 69, two under par, in his afternoon round for a day's total of 141, Walter Hagen, four times professional golf champion of the United States, took the lead over a field of 65 professionals in the qualifying round of the professional golfers' tournament here today.

Hagen's score was three strokes better than any of his strongest competitors, Albert Alcroft, of Youngstown, Ohio, Joe Turnesa and Gene Sarazen, of New York, all of whom finished with 144's. Al Espinosa, of Chicago was two strokes behind them with 146.

Par's resistance on the course was demonstrated last week when only five players broke into that class during the practice rounds last week. Sarazen was the leader of this group, holding a 68 and a 70.

Match play will start tomorrow at 9 o'clock and each match will go 36 holes. Hagen, because of his exhibition today was a heavy favorite tonight, but Gene Sarazen, who is noted for his ability to get the master's goat in match competition, was equally well backed.

After these eight the field strung out until six players tied at 154 for the last five places in tournament play. Because darkness was falling over the course it was necessary to postpone the play-off until tomorrow.

The eight lowest scorers were:

Walter Hagen, Pasadena, Fla.,	72-69—141
Albert Alcroft, Youngstown, Ohio,	71-73—144
Gene Sarazen, New York,	71-73—144
Joe Turnesa, New York,	72-72—144
Al Espinosa, Chicago,	71-75—146
Johnny Farrell, Mamaroneck, N. Y.,	72-74—146
Frances Gallet, Wauwasota, Wis.,	73-74—147
Jack Farrell, Glenhead, N. Y.,	71-77—148

YALE REGULARS HAVE DAY OF REST

NE WHAVEN, Oct. 31.—(AP)—"Tad" Jones gave his regulars a lay-off today and sent his reserves through signal drill and dummy scrimmage by way of initial preparation for the brush with Maryland next Saturday. Three of Ell's regulars were still out of the line-up after injuries received in the Dartmouth game Saturday and it was not expected that they would be back in the game until the end of the week. Quarrier, who injured his hip, and Greene, who netted a sprained elbow, were in the infirmatory today. Scott was recovering from a slight hip injury.

Tomorrow afternoon will find the entire Yale varsity squad doing signal drill and dummy scrimmage work. All heavy work will be avoided to prevent casualties among the regulars which might keep them out of the Princeton game, a week from Saturday, coaches said. Since they consider Maryland a vastly easier team than the one of a year ago which took the Bulldog into camp to the tune of 15 to 0, Jones' staff said that they planned to start the second team against the southerners, although this decision was not final.

The first team today included a number of the reserves who showed up so well against the Hanover team. West and Crile were at end positions; Marting and Ryan, tackles; N. Hall and Kell, guards; Harvey, center; R. Hall, quarter; Goodwine, Stone and Hubbard, backs. Billhardt, substitute quarter, who has been out with minor injuries reported today but did not enter the dummy scrimmage. Garvey, who was so spectacular Saturday, and Hammersley, also filled in the backfield. West, end, and Lampe, halfback, were promoted to the regular squad today.

OCKFORD HOSE ELEVEN BEATS EAST GREENWICH

The Ockford Hose eleven of New London railied in the closing moments of a close game at New London Sunday afternoon and beat out the East Greenwich team 13 to 7. An intercepted forward pass and line thrusts by Fulford and Gadbois put the ball in position for Fulford to crash through for the touchdown.

The Ockford team would like a game with the Greeneville Tigers. For arrangements call George Gadbois at 2492, New London.

GODFREY KNOCKS OUT SAYERS IN FIRST

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31.—(AP)—George Godfrey, bulky Negro battler of Leiperville, Pa., knocked out Tom Sayers, of Detroit, in the first round of a scheduled 10-round bout at the arena tonight. Godfrey weighed 237, Sayers 200.

T terrific left hook to the jaw sent Sayers down for the count two minutes after the match started. Godfrey battered the Detroit boxer about the body from the opening gong and had hi mhanging on the ropes when the finishing punch was delivered. Sayers failed to land a blow on the Negro.

Sayer's was Godfrey's 17th straight victim via the knockout route. The Detroit fighter had knocked out 17 of his opponents in his last 26 bouts.

Sayer's share of the purse was ordered held up by Chairman Frank Wiener of the Pennsylvania state athletic commission pending an investigation of the match by the boxing board. Weiner would not comment but many spectators said it appeared to them that the Detroit fighter had not been trying and "laid down," when Godfrey hit him.

Roberto Roberti, 220, of Italy, scored a technical knockout over Ralph Smith, 226, California, who was unable to answer the bell for the third round, in the semi-wind-up, schedu'ed for 10 rounds. It was also said he will be offered a four year contract at $40,000 a year, the same figure Johnson received after 26 years of building up the league. In addition to naming Johnson's successor the league probably will arrange for a suitable memorial to Johnson, who is at present at Excelsior Springs, Mo., attempting to regain his h%ealth.

RICKARD NOT TO QUIT THE GARDEN

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Tex Rickard may be at odds with some of the directors of the Madison Square Garden corporation but the veteran promoter has no idea of severing his connections with the organization or relinquishing any of his authority as president and general manager. He made this clear today upon his return from a vacation.

Faced with an assortment of reports of difficulties with his associates, even of rumors that he would be "ousted" from his controlling position, Rickard dismissed them as "laughable". His long term contract, which has more than 20 years to run, would be a sufficient barrier to any break in relations, Rickard pointed out, even if it was desired, either by himself or by a majority of directors.

Boxing observers nevertheless are convinced that a decided rift has occurred in the garden organization, involving some reported jealousies in the handling of big fistic events such as the Dempsey-Tunney battle at Chicago. It is said some directors felt Rickard was too extravagant in handling some phases of the Chicago title affair. But whether these issues, if they actually exist, have assumed a serious aspect is not definitely known. Rickard today minimized reports of any disagreements. He has a conference scheduled with the corporation directors tomorrow.

The promoter nevertheless made clear his intention of keeping a firm hold of garden affairs, while at the same time revealing that he had disposed of virtually half of his stock holdings in the corporation.

"It is silly to talk of my stepping out," he declared. "The new garden is the fulfillment of my dream. All my interests are bound up in it. Until, for personal reasons, I sold one of my stock recently I held fifteen times as much as any other individual. Even now my holdings are seven or eight times as much as those of anyone else."

POETRY

All Saints' Day

For all the saints, dear Lord, I kneel today,
For Brigid, saint and goddess, in the wild
Of Ireland; Francis, landing Clare, beguiled
By Lady Poverty; through slavery's way,
Vincent de Paul, to whom poor children pray;
Little White Flower, the pure and undefiled;
Saint Christopher, who bore Thee, Holy Child,
Across the stream. I see the long array
Adown the ages. I ask Thee, too, to bless
The saints who walk the earth today and cheer
Our lives with simple deeds of holiness,
Sharing our pains, allaying needless fear
But chiefly, rain on her Thy choicest blessing
Who shows to me Thy love past all expressing.

(Margaret P. Shafer
The Living Church)

Red Geraniums

Life did not bring me silken gowns,
Nor jewels for my hair,
Nor sight of gabled, foreign towns
In distant countries fair,
But I can glimpse beyond my pane a green and friendly hill,
And red geraniums aflame upon my window-sill.

The brambled cares of every day,
The tiny, humdrum things,
May bind my feet when they would stray
But still my heart has wings
While red geraniums are bloomed against my window-glass,
And low above my green-sweet hill the gypsy wind-clouds pass.

And if my dreamings ne'er come true,
The brightest and the best,
But leave me lone my journey through,
I'll set my heart at rest,
And thank Thee, God, for home-sweet things, a green and windy hill,
And red geraniums aflame upon my window-sill.

THIEVING BELL HOP FOUND AND TAKEN TO HARTFORD

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Oct. 31—Anthony Savarese, 21, alias Thomas Moran, of changing addresses, recently residing in Providence and at times making his home with his uncle, Dominic Ajiello in Charlestown, R. I., surrendered on Sunday to Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell of Washington county and was lodged in the Westerly police station. There he declared that he was anxious to "have it all over" as he knew that he was wanted by authorities in Hartford. Sheriff Mitchell received his first notice of Savarese's presence in his county when he got a telephone message that the man wanted to give himself up. It was thought that Savarese had lost his nerve when he knew that a warrant had been taken out in Hartford about two weeks ago.

Sergeant Thomas Hickey of Hartford came to Westerly Monday noon with the warrant, charging theft and embezzlement in Hartford. As the young man readily consented to return without extradition, he was furned over to Sergt. Hickey by Chief Thomas E. Brown, and at 1 p. m. started for Hartford by automobile.

At the Savoy hotel, Hartford, Savarese, without recommendations was engaged as a bell boy and when given $45 by the hotel night clerk to go out for change failed to return. He was found to have been staying at the Hudson hotel, which the police visited to find that he had left. In the room occupied by him were found several old travelling bags and in them was jewelry and clothing which had disappeared from rooms of the hotel guests. The property taken was valued by the Hartford police at from $60 to $70 dollars The police of the city were of the opinion that the missing bellhop had come in this direction or had gone to Brooklyn, N. Y. On his return to Hartford he was to be presented in the police court on the theft and embezzlement complaint.

Witches, goblins and ghosts of all sizes, shapes and descriptions flitted about the streets of Westerly Monday, Halloween. NOANK

Several members of the Sardines club went to New Haven to see the Yale-Dartmouth football game Saturday, leaving in a sedan, with Durwood Main at the wheel. Two of the members were Dartmouth graduates, Bill Spicer and Durham Matterson. They sang their college songs as the class of 1928 did. Arriving there at noon and having lunch at Hotel Garde, the visitors met several college chums and old times were talked over. Then they went out to the Yale bowl for the great battle. Every one of the club displayed a green feather, the color of the college on the hill in New Hampshire. Getting with the cheering section of Dartmouth, the Noank boys were cheering their heads off for that college to win. Flash Marsters, No. 4, got the pigskin out of the air and raced 57 yards through the entire Yale team, but was downed near the 8 yard line. Dartmouth went wild with joy and he was given great applause. The members of the Sardine club were down-hearted not to see the Hanover team win. It was a great day for the club, the members coming back home with the auto covered with green ribbon and sporting a large flag marked, "Dartmouth".

Noank Crushers football team went to Jewett City Sunday afternoon and battled it out with the fast Speed Boys team. A half hour before the game, Coach De Biasi had three players injured and unable to play. So 5-Yard Bouchard got into a suit, to help fill in for the Cod-Chasers, and another fellow from the crowd went on the line. At 3:15 p. m. it was for the championship of Eastern Connecticut when they kicked off to the Crushers. But Noank men could not gain much on their line and they had to punt out of danger and their mystery man, Mr. X., with No. 23, soon pulled off a long run for 40 yards for a touchdown. But Lightning Boyne could not gain much. He was fullback, and was in on several plays. A small crowd was on the side line. When the whistle blew for the first half, the score was: Speed Boys, 31; Crushers, 0. Capt. Swift Devreau was laid cold, getting hit on the chest by tackling a Jewett City player and Dr. Bratt worked on him for five minutes, but he soon was at it again. Boots Brassi shot a long forward pass to Quick Ellis over 25 yards The final score was, Speed Boys, 31; Crushers, 0. Mr. X was the whole show for the champion Speed Boys, while Boots Bracci and Lightning Larkin starred for the Crushers. Over 25 fans made the trip from here.

NORWICH MEN IN COUPE AFIRE AT NEWENT MONDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Oct. 31—Several men from the borough went to Newent with a chemical and put out a fire which threatened to burn a four passenger Lexington coupe this afternoon. The machine went by Jesse Phillips' home at an exceedingly high rate of speed, careening all over the road. Near Horace Knight's place it got afire, inside. Mrs. Phillips, who was driving back of them, said the men asked where the nearest fire department was and how near they were to Lisbon. They said they had come from Canterbury Green. Water did no good, but the chemical saved the machine. The upholstery was all burned, and one of the men said his overcoat was burned also. The man driving was Larivere, and th etwo other occupants were Benoit and Parmales, of Norwich, it is said.

SKULL AND BONES BURIED BY ORDER OF AUTHORITIES

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Oct. 31—Workmen Saturday doing some excavating in connection with the building of the runway for a saw mill, exhumed a human skull and other bones. The saw mill is being built by the Congdon boys in a back country section of the great Stone Hill woods, on a parcel of the Calvin Wilcox property. First Selectman D. F. Finn was notified and after a conference about the matter, Medical Examiner Dr. G. H. Jennings and Funeral Director J. A. Hourigan went to the place, which is off the main road. The medical examiner learned that the skull was found face down, about a foot below the surface.

He could connect no definite facts with its finding, nor could anyone acquainted with the country in that section.

It seemed possible that the skeleton might have lain there 50 years or even longer and that it might have been that of a charcoal burner, as there was a pit nearby; or it may have been some one buried by a friend. Mr. Hourigan buried the bones in accordance with the orders of the selectman.

Care of Babies

This baby has never had a day's sickness and never a cross or fretful spell that lasted an hour. And what do you suppose is responsible for this healthy, happy condition? Not diet, for he has eaten just about anything and everything a child could eat. Not drugs, for he has not been dosed with opiates; he has never had a drop of paregoric. Nor has his sensible mother ever made him taste castor oil. Yet his nerves are sound and his little bowels are strong, and when he does seem the least restless or wakeful, or out of sorts—or likely to be—his mother has him all serene again in ten or fifteen minutes!

The secret of this complete freedom from the many ills and upsets so common to infants? Plain old-fashioned Castoria. A million and more mothers swear by Castoria, and no wonder! A few drops and an approaching fever, colic, diarrhea or constipation seems to vanish in thin air. Castoria is purely vegetable; that is why physicians tell parents they may use it freely with children of any age—the youngest infant. And how they love the taste!

One word of warning: get the pure, real Castoria. Fletcher's Castoria is the original. It is the kind the doctor's specify. And with every bottle comes a book on "Care and Feeding of Babies" that is worth its weight in gold to any mother or prospective mother. So remember: tell your druggist you wish Fletcher's Castoria.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

Grandpa and Bees

Two bright heads in the corner,
Deep in the easy chair;
One with a crown of yellow gold,
And one like the silver fair;
One with the morning's rosy flush,
And one with the twilight's tender hush.

"Where do the New Years come from?"
Asks Goldlocks in her glee;
"Do they sail in a pearly shallop
Across a wonderful sea;
A sea whose waters, with rainbows spanned,
Touch all the borders of fairyland?

"Do all the birds in that country
Keep singing by night and day?
Singing among the blossoms
That never wither away?
Will they let you feel, as you hold them near,
Their warm hearts beating, but not with fear?

"And the happy little children,
Do they wander as they will,
To gather the sweet wild roses
And the strawberries on the hill;
White wings like butterflies all afloat
And a purple cloud for a fairy boat?

"There surely is such a country—
I've seen it many a night,
Though I never, never could find it
Awake in the morning light;
And that is the country o'er the sea
Where the beautiful New Years wait for me."

"Where do the New Years come from?"
Says grandpa, looking away
Through the frosty rime on the window
To the distant hills so gray;
"They come from the country of youth, I know,
And they pass to the land of long ago.

"And which is the fairest country?
Dear heart, I never can tell;
Where the New Years wait their dawning
But the sweetest summers that ever shone
To the land of the long ago have flown.

"The New Years wait for you, darling,
And the Old Years wait for me;
They have carried my dearest treasures
To the country over the sea;
The eyes that were brightest, the lips that sung
The gladdest carols when life was young.

"But I know a better country
Where the Old Years all are new;
I shall find its shining pathway
Sooner, sweetheart, than you;
And I'll send you a message of love and cheer
With every dawn of a glad New Year.

The eyes of the dear old pilgrim
Are looking across the snows,
While closer nestles the merry face
With its flush like the pink wild rose.
Dreaming together, the young and old,
Locks of silver and crown of gold.

—Emily Huntington Miller.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Few people know that the United States flag is the third oldest of the national standards of the world. It is older than the Union Jack of Great Britain or the Tricolor of France.

The flag was first authorized by congress June 14, 1777. This date is now observed as Flag day throughout America. The flag was first flown from Fort Stanwix, on the site of the present city of Rome, New York, on August 3, 1777. It was first under fire three days later in the battle of Oriskany, August 6, 1777.

It was first decreed that there should be a star and a stripe for each state, making 13 of both; for the states at that time had just been erected from the original 13 colonies.

The colors of the flag may be thus explained: The red is for valor, zeal and fervency; the white for hope, purity, cleanliness of life, and rectitude of conduct; the blue, the color of heaven, for reverence to God, loyalty, sincerity, justice and truth.

The star (an ancient symbol of India, Persia and Egypt) symbolizes dominion and sovereignty, as well as lofty aspiration. The constellation of the stars within the union, one star for each state, is emblematic of our federal constitution which reserves to the states their individual sovereignty except as to rights delegated by them to the federal government.

The symbolism of the flag was thus interpreted by Washington: "We take the stars from heaven, the red from our mother country, separating it by white stripes, thus showing that we have separated from her, and the white stripes shall go down to posterity representing Liberty."

In 1794, Vermont and Kentucky were admitted to the union and the number of stars and of stripes was raised to 15 in correspondence. As other states came into the union it became evident there would be too many stripes. So in 1818 congress enacted that the number of stripes be reduced and restricted henceforth to 13, representing the 13 original states; while a star should be added for each succeeding state. That law is the law of today.

The name "Old Glory" was given to our National Flag, August 10, 1831, by Capt. William Driver of the brig, Charles Doggett.

The flag was first carried in battle at the Brandywine, September 11, 1777. It first flew over foreign territory January 28, 1778, at Nassau, Bahama Islands; Fort Nassau having been captured by the Americans in the course of the war for independence. The first foreign salute to the flag was rendered by the French Admiral LaMott Piquet, off Quiberon Bay, February 13, 1778.

The United States flag is unique in the deep and noble significance of its message to the entire world, a message of national independence, of individual liberty, of idealism, of patriotism.

It symbolizes national independence and popular sovereignty. It is not the flag of a reigning family or royal house, but of a 100,000,0000 free people welded into a nation, one and inseparable, united not only by community of interest but by vital unity of sentiment and purpose; a nation distinguished for the clear individual conception of its citizens alike of their duties and their privileges, their obligations and their rights.

It incarnates for all mankind the spirit of liberty and the glorious ideal of human freedom; not the freedom of unrestraint or the liberty of license, but an unique ideal of equal opportunity for life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, safeguarded by the stern and lofty principles of duty, of righteousness and of justice, and attainable by obedience to self-imposed laws.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY THE WIDE AWAKES

France

Dear Uncle Jed: France is a country in Europe. It is equal to the middle Atlantic states in size. It is a mountainous country. On the south are the Pyrenees while the Alps and the Jural mountains are on the east.

France lies in the north temperate zone. The northern and the western parts are mild and moist owing to the influence of the "drift" of the gulf stream and Atlantic ocean. The southern part has a warm climate.

The people of France are of the Caucasion race. They are highly civilized and well educated. They are noted for gaiety, politeness and love of military glory.

The people are chiefly engaged in agriculture, mining and commerce. They manufacture silk, laces, porcelain, wine and brandy. Coal and iron are also found there.

Paris is the capital of France and is the largest city of Europe. Its palaces, churches and other beautiful buildings are magnificent. This city is a center of art and fashions for the civilized world. Its art gallery, the Louvre is one of the greatest in the world.

The most famous church in Paris is the Notre Dame cathedral.

Hereford Cattle

Dear Uncle Jed: I am a girl 10 years old and have never written to you before. The boys and girls of Connecticut study agriculture in school, and I should like to tell the Wide Awakes, what I have just learned about Hereford cattle.

The native country of the Hereford is England. There is a county named Hereford in England and Hereford cattle take their name from Hereford county. They are believed to have descended from a race of wild cattle that once ran wild over England. Hereford cattle have been greatly improved since the year 1500. Herefords began to be imported into the United States soon after the year 1800. A great many of them have been imported since 1880.

Herefords are strong, healthy cattle. They are said to be good rustlers which means that they are willing to travel long distances in search of food. They are good cattle to keep for beef where cattle must be fattened on pasture alone.

Hereford cattle are always red, and some are dark red, but they are always red. Their faces are always white, the feet are white, and the end of the tail is white. Sometimes there is a white stripe along the back. Sometimes this stripe extends all the way to the tail and sometimes only to the shoulders.

Hereford cows are poor milkers. Many of them do not give enough milk to feed their own calves. There are many Hereford oxen in New England.

The Gray Squirrels

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about a family of squirrels that lived in the trunk of a large maple tree in our yard. There were the father, mother, and two baby squirrels. We used to watch them chase each other around the tree and all over the branches.

We put nuts on the ground for them each day, and they would soon disappear. The squirrels would wait until we were out of sight before they took them. They stored them away in the tree. If a cat came near the squirrels would get very cross and make an awful noise chattering.

Later on they became very tame and would come upon the piazza and eat nuts from our fingers, but one day they became too friendly and one of the squirrels bit by aunt's finger.

Another day one of them came in the kitchen. After that we had to keep our door closed.

There was a cat in our neighborhood who had his eye on the squirrels and one days he caught one. After that we stopped feeding the squirrels, so they would not be so tame or the cat would have the rest of the family.

The squirrels must have been wise as they moved farther down the street to another tree.

Our Trip

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to the Wide Awakes and I am going to tell you about my trip to Canada. We started at Providence, R. I., and went through all the New England states. When we got to the line between the United States and Canada we had to get out of the car and let the customs officer search our car. When we arrived in Canada we went to my aunt's house in Sherbrooke, Quebec. We went to lake Magog and when we were there my sister and I learned how to row a boat and we went fishing with my uncle and father. Then our good time ended. Well my story will have to end now because it is quite long.

MARGARET MICHIC, Age 10.

A Rainy Day

Dear Uncle Jed: It is quite a long time since I wrote to the Wide Awakes. I would like to tell you about the rainy day which we had Thursday.

I could not go to school in the morning. I was only watching the rain falling around the house drearily. It ran into the tubs placed to catch it, dripped from the pump, and drummed on the upturned milk pails, and upon the brown and yellow beehives under the trees. The barnyard showed a horrible mixture of mud and mire, through which I saw men, slumping to and fro without more protection than a coat and shapeless felt hats.

Rained Seven Days

Dear Uncle Jed: This story is about camping. One rainy day when I had nothing to do I went down to the river where I was camping. I started to go in swimming but the water was too cold and besides there were too many crabs. It rained seven days. So I didn't have much time to go in swimming. But there was a dance hall near by so we could listen to the music.

My Dog Beauty

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first story. I have a dog. Her name is Beauty. She goes and gets the cows. Sometimes she follows me to school sits beside of me. She goes hunting if the teacher lets her in, she stays and and catches woodchucks. I am 9 years old.

ARTHUR M. ALDRICH, Age 9.

Trapping

Dear Uncle Jed: I have not written to you for a long time. As I had nothing to do I thought I would write a story. Last winter I went trapping with a friend. I didn't have very good luck in the beginning and didn't expect to catch anything. Near the end of the month of November I went to look at my traps, with my partner and we each went a different way. When I got to the place where one of the traps was. I put my hand in to get the traps and nearly touched a skunk. We killed him and I took him home. Two days afterward I sold him. I had four traps set but three of them were stolen. I am going to buy more traps this year and hope to catch something else.

Benjamin Franklin

Dear Uncle Jed: Franklin's boyhood was full of hard work. He once said that he could not remember when he did not know how to read. He went to school when he was eight years. They said that this famous man invented stoves. When Franklin was ten years he was taken from school and he was to help his father make candles and soap. When he was in the twelfth year he was apprenticed to his brother to learn the trade of printer. At the age of 17 he had a quarrel with his brother. He ran away from home and was found in Philadelphia with a dollar and a quarter in his pocket. One of Franklin's most celebrated writings is Pood Richard's Almanac.

How Laws Are Made

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you how laws are made. A proposed law is called a bill. If any member of congress desires to have a law or act passed he must write it out properly and must give it to the house he belongs to. Such a bill is given to a committee and is voted and debated on. If a majority favors this bill it is then sent to other members where the same method is followed. If it is passed by this body it is sent to the president. If he signs it it becomes a law, but if he refuses to sign it then it is sent back to the congress. Then the president must give reasons for disapproving it. If two thirds of the majority favors it it may become a law without having the president sign it. If a bill is sent to the president he must answer it within ten days or veto it.

How Big Firms Develop Men By Urging Self-Education

Here is a tried and tested idea in the scientific handling of men. The American Writing Paper Company, The Bristol Brass Corporation, The Hartford Fire Insurance Company, The New Departure Company, Noiseless Typewriter Company, Seth Thomas Clock Company, Underwood Typewriter Company, Winchester Repeating Arms Company and hundreds of other concerns, large and small, in every line of trade and industry, are developing dependable employes by urging self-education through the International Correspondence Schools.

They are doing this because they know that a man who acquires his training by self-education—correspondence instruction—is a man of unusual resourcefulness, perseverance and determination.

And they know by the achievements of such I. C. S. students as Jesse G. Vincent, Walter P. Chrysler and Eddie Rickenbacker that I. C. S. training is sound, practical and thorough.

Some employers urge their men to take these Courses—others pay outright for I. C. S. instruction—others simply ask the I. C. S. to recommend trained men to them.

Other Firms That Are Developing Men By Urging Self-Education

And 2737 Other Industrial Concerns and Railroads

A Word From You Enough

You may have a single promising employe whom you want to train for advertising, selling, or for some technical position. Or you may have 10 or 100, or 1,000 employes who would become more valuable and more productive with some technical training.

How 5000 Men Won Promotion During 1926

Prominent New England Student Credits International Correspondence Schools

The work of Edward Dorman, Architect, East Braintree, Mass., has attracted widespread attention. Many of New England's most beautiful homes and buildings were first envisioned on his drawing boards. Recently he wrote as follows:—"The lion's share of the credit for whatever success I have achieved belongs to the International Correspondence Schools. Several years ago when a very ordinary carpenter, I enrolled for your Course in Architecture.

What Others Have Done You Can Do

Over 5000 men secured promotion last year through I. C. S. training. Their letters are on file—you can see them if you want to.

Just think what this means to you—their testimony on the one hand and, on the other, the testimony of employers in the advertisement at the left.

When employers in all lines of business are seeking I. C. S. trained men—urging employes to take I. C. S. courses, even paying for these Courses, in many cases.

When employers are watching and promoting men who are taking I. C. S. Courses—

When the I. C. S. trained man is a man of recognized ability—a man known for determination, perseverance and ambition—

Can YOU afford not to be an I. C. S. trained man? Aren't you big enough to do what these 5000 men did last year, when the same opportunities are yours?

Look Into the Future

If you want to succeed, if you want to advance, if you want the things that make life worth living—

If you want these very things that an I. C. S. training makes certain—can you afford NOT to take up an I. C. S. Course?

Don't let anything stop you! What if you do make temporary sacrifices—what will they amount to, measured against the advancement that will be yours! Don't hesitate. Train yourself for the job ahead. Mark and mail the coupon TODAY!

TEMPORARY READJUSTMENT IN STOCK MARKET SENT THE QUOTED VALUES UP

NEW YORK, Oct. 31—(AP)—A moderate recovery in prices took place in today's stock market. The rally, which was not associated with any development in the day's news, was generally regarded as a temporary readjustment of quoted values after Saturday's spirited decline, with speculative opinion still sharply divided as to the future trend of prices. Gains in the most of the active issues ranged from 1 to 3 points although extreme declines of 5 to 10 points, few of which were fully maintained, were quite common on the early trading.

The rise in prices took place in the face of a 4 per cent renewal rate for call money, which was maintained all day. Banks called about $15,000,000 in loans to prepare for the heavy November 1, disbursements. Secretary Mellon's tax proposals, made public during the afternoon were about in line with Wall street's expectations, and failed to exert any market influence.

Common stock of the United States Steel corporation, operations of which are around 60 per cent of capacity, closed a point higher at 129 7-8, after having touched 131 3-8 in the early trading. General Motors common showed a net gain of 1 5-8 at 128 1-4 although it had sold 1 1-4 points higher.

Wide fluctuations developed in some of the pool specialties. Rossia Insurance, which broke 27 points Saturday, rallied more than 10 points to 164 today, but slipped back at the close to 156. Case Threshing soared 9 points to 268 1-2 and then fell back to 216 1-2. American Tobacco issues soared 6 points each to new high records at 166, but lost part of their gain. American Machine and Foundry, American Linseed preferred and Brown Shoe also reached a new high ground.

A violet break 79 to 70, a new 1927 low, by American Sugar Refining featured the late trading. One block of 2,600 shares changed hands at 75, and the next sale was a block of 2,000 shares at 70. Cuban American Sugar, Cuba Cane Sugar, preferred and White Motors also touched new low prices for the year, some of the non-dividend paying rails, particularly Wabash and Western Maryland, fluctuated rather erratically, but a good undertone was apparent for the investment issues despite the falling off of 6 1-2 per cent in September earnings published to date, as compared with the same month last year.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

In the commodity markets, wheat and cotton futures both showed moderate net declines, after earlier periods of strength. Sugar prices were little changed, but coffee prices advanced slightly.

(Reactionary tendencies characterized the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling was off about a quarter of a cent, around $4.86 17-32 and Spanish pesetas dropped 7 1-2 points to around 17.04 cents, but the other changes were nominal.

MASONIC BURIAL RITUAL AT FUNERAL OF F. W. HOPF

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 31—The funeral of Frederick W. Hopf, former employe of the Union Bank and Trust company, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at his residence, 234 Ledyard street and was attended by a large gathering of mourners, including a delegation of members of Brainard lodge of Masons. The service was read by Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, rector of St. James' Episcopal church. Members of Brainard lodge acted as bearers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Miss Elizabeth T. Heath of 151 Montauk avenue; Mrs. Leonard C. Sheffelott, Jr., 84 Maple avenue; Mrs. Harold Grulee, 40 Beckwith street and Mrs. Arthur M. Beckwith, 151 Lincoln avenue, were week end visitors in Providence. They made the trip by automobile.

Edward S. Neilan and Simon L. Ewald have sold to Frederick W. and Minnie B. Stanley a building lot, corner of Rosemary street and Crystal avenue.

Plant Field Realty company has sold two building lots on Freeman street to Agnes C. Golding.

Barney Belgrad has sold a house and lot on Prest street to Albert Bonita.

Michael Scalzulla of Ocean beach was in the police court today charged with violations of the state and city motor vehicle laws. He was fined $10 on each count of parking in traffic, blocking traffic and failing to report change of residence. The fine, together with costs annexed made $43 that Scalzulla paid into the city treasury. Scalzulla parked his automobile in the rear of the soldiers' and sailors' monument, State street, Friday in such a manner as to prevent other automobiles from being driven from their parking space. One car was held in the park because of Scalzulla's act for a long time, the owner being delayed a half hour in reaching his work.

R. M. Robertson, white, a member of the crew of U. S. S. Tripps, state pier and Mamie Holloway, colored, married of 26 Tilley street, were charged with lascivious carriage. Robertson was fined $10 and costs and the Holloway woman was fined $25 and costs. The pair were arrested Sunday afternoon in a Main street house where the police had received information that disorderly conduct was in progress, as numerous men and women had been seen to enter the house. Patrolman William Graham had observed the acts of the men and women and made a report of his observation at police headquarters. Sergeant Samuel Hick and Patrolman Elwood Bailey joined Officer Graham and went to the house. Instead of a gang of men and women there the officers were surprised to find the house practically deserted. They started an inspection tour and found Robertson and the Holloway woman in a room and they were arrested.

Louis Kozakow, 39 Perry street, was charged with reckless driving, but the charge was nolled. Kozakow was driving his automobile on Bank street on Sunday afternoon and at the corner of Reed street it crashed against the motorcycle being driven by Officer Elwood Bailey. The cycle was sent to the pavement, but the officer escaped injury. In falling the cycle landed on Lorenzo Fredello, 89 Jefferson avenue, who was injured. The cycle is now in a repair shop where it will require an expenditure of $40 to recondition it.

Ames Buley, a stranger, was charged with vagrancy and begging. He was sentenced to 10 days in jail, but execution of the sentence was suspended. Buley was arrested on State street Sunday by Patrolmen William Riordan.

The continued case of Charles Gordon, charged by the police of Nashua, N. H., with being a fugitive from justice, was continued again, this time to Nov. 14. Gordon is wanted in Nashua because he has failed to contribute toward the support of his wife. The continuance today was for the purpose of permitting Gordon to make an arrangement whereby he will pay a stipulated sum to his wife weekly.

Patrolman Cornelius Moriarty in making his rounds on Main street last night discovered the store 204 was unlocked. He located the owner, who went to the store and secured the entrance.

Frank W. Chapman, 70, formerly of Danielson, where he was employed many years as a butcher, died Saturday at Odd Fellows' home, Groton, after a lingering illness. He is survived by his widow, who is a resident at the home. The funeral was held at 11 o'clock this morning at the home where services were conducted by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of Groton Heights Baptist church. The body was forwarded to Danielson, for burial this afternoon. Mr. Chapman was a native of Danielson.

Anthony Parisi, 61, died Sunday at his home, 37 Chappell street. He was born in Italy Oct. 4, 1866 and is survived by his wife, three sons, Thomas and Anthony Parisi of this city and Joseph Parisi, New York and a daughter Miss Johannah Parisi of New York.

Roswell D. Manwaring, 75, of Waterford, died Sunday night at Lawrence Memorial hospital, where he had been a patient several weeks. He was for many years employed as caretaker at the Nevins estate, Waterford. So far as is known, Mr. Manwaring leaves no near relatives.

City Manager William A. Holt today notified Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney that Patrolmen Clarence Martin, Dennis Murphy and Edward Riordan had been advanced in line of duty, having been assigned to Grade A. The three officers have been serving their probationary period of a year and with that having been done they are now entitled to full patrolman's salary. The promotion dates from Nov. 1.

JUNIORS HOLD GAY PARADE IN HALLOWEEN OBSERVANCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 31—The kiddies of New London, as well as many grown-ups, had several hours of pleasure tonight, Halloween and the entire evening was devoted to seasonable pranks. Before nightfall the youngsters started to appear on the streets in costume and by 7 o'clack State and Bank streets were thronged with the youngsters. A street parade had been arranged and there were hundreds of automobiles parked on these streets with the occupants intent upon watching the enjoyment of the children. Traffic was at its height when the parade started at 7:30 o'clock from the Y. M. C. A. and headed by the Boy Scouts drum corps moved through State street, about 3,000 strong and with two members of the police department acting as an escort. All along the line of march thousands of automobiles were parked completely tying up traffic during the marching. Even after the parade itself had been ended, groups of marchers conducted parades of their own. Every conceivable variety of costume was worn by the kiddies, from the clown and sailor, to the bride and groom. Goblins were prominent and the youngsters carried every known device that would produce a weird sound. It was estimated that there were between 12,000 and 15,000 automobiles parked along the line of march. So great was traffic that many of the regular patrolmen were called upon to perform duty at the important intersecting streets along the line of march. Trolley traffic was delayed and buses of the New London-Norwich-Hartford lines were held up several times, interrupting their schedule.

Vauxhall street and that vicinity appears to be the location selected by a molester of the female sex for twice recently women have been attacked by a man, who evidently is inclined to the belief that he can attack females and not be detected. Saturday night a resident of Vauxhall street was walking to her home and when she arrived at a point where the street is but dimly lighted, the fellow, who had evidently been loitering in the vicinity seized the woman and forced her into a yard, where he started to attack her. The woman fought off the intruder as best she could, but the man was too strong and becoming weakened the woman screamed loudly for help. She had a strong pair of lungs and they served her well for with her shrieks piercing the air the fellow released his hold and fled. The woman had her unpleasant experience reported at police headquarters and officers were dispatched to Vauxhall street where they made a search of that street and other streets in the vicinity, but no suspicious persons were observed. It is but a few weeks ago that a young girl received the annoying attentions of this, or some other man, for the girl was attacked but a short distance from the location of Saturday night's attempted assault. This fellow also was scared away for some one was observed approaching and the man fled.

Mrs. Peter Kowalesky and daughter Stephens, of Old Mystic, are patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital suffering from injuries received Sunday when the automobile in which they were riding crashed against a telephone pole. Both the mother and daughter have either fractured legs or arms and both sustained innumerable lacerations and contusions. They are reported as being in a serious condition, but with chances favorable for recovery. The automobile was being driven on the Old Mystic road and when at a point where the highway is straight and wide the driver attempted to pass another car. In doing so she lost control of the steering wheel with the result that the machine plunged off the highway and against the telephone pole. Passing autoists went to the assistance of Mrs. Kowalesky and daughter. They were placed in an automobile and rushed to this city that they could be given treatment. The automobile was badly damaged.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

France may well be proud of the epic film portrayal of Victor Hugo's famous classic, Les Miserables, which is the feature attraction at the Broadway theater today and tomorrow.

Perhaps never before in the history of motion pictures has a production been made with such fidelity. The extravagant statements made in advance of the showing are easily borne out by the picture, for no one can doubt, after seeing this Universal Film de France production, that the towns in which the action of the novel were supposed to have taken place were reconstructed as they appeared a century ago.

The scenes representing Paris are said to have been built at the studio, as it was impossible to reconstruct the actual Parisian streets. These massive and beautiful sets have the authentic look of time, and it is difficult to believe that they are not real, like the others.

Gabriel Gabrio, in the character of Jean Valjean, proves himself a sterling actor. His role is a difficult one to portray, but he makes the part exist. He is first seen in the prison scenes. These, incidentally, were taken at the old prison at Toulon, convicts enacting the extra roles.

The sensational scenes at the barricades when the soldiers of the empire storm the stronghold of the communists, are exciting in the extreme and filled with pulsating drama. Throughout the entire length of the stupendous production one is held in the grip of interest, sympathy and heightened suspense. It is a really great picture.

Strand Theater

Vera Reynolds in Risky Business at the Strand theater tonight and tomorrow night is a fine love story that is really different. Sixty parts comedy, 40 parts tense, thrilling drama, a picture that will win every fan.

Conway Tearle in Moulders of Men. An amazing powerful story, plus the supreme artistry of Conway Tearle, plus the genius of Ralph Ince's direction makes a drama that can truly be called an epic!

Tonight and tomorrow night at the Strand.

Parish Hall, Taftville

At the carnival in Parish hall tonight in Taftville a special attraction will be a wrestling match. There will also be dancing, music furnished by the popular Dave Lyon orchestra. The hall is attractively decorated.

Breed Theater

When a Man Loves, Warner Bros. special extended-run production, starring John Barrymore, supported by Dolores Costello and a large and notable cast will end its run at the Breed theater Wednesday night.

This is the tremendous screen version of Abbe Prevost's immortal story of love and terror in the days when Louis XV ruled in France.

The costumes are replicas of originals loaned by the French government on Warner Bros. $24,000 bond. Historically correct settings of ancient Paris, the king's court at Versailles, streets, pastoral scenes and sequences on the prison ship, and during the mutiny of the crew, and many others, are marvels of photography. Alan Crosland, who was responsible for Don Juan directed.

Palace Theater

An excellent bill of vaudeville was seen at the Palace theater by those attending yesterday's performances. The hit of the bill being Gangler's Comedy Circus, consisting of 30 or more performing animals of various sorts, includes a wrestling bear. The act was surely worthy of the large amount of applause they received. Staring honors on the program were Alberts and Polly who rendered a little comedy skit, On their way to School. Rowland and Joyce scored many hearty laughs with their comedy golf links chatter. Then there was Jack Danger who did a little of everything and strange to say, did everything well. Opening the program was a charming juvenile couple, Bud and Eleanor Cole, who entertained nicely with a song and dance routine.

The feature picture concerns the domestic troubles of a newly married couple, very much in love with each other. In fact the jealously of the young wife is responsible for all the trouble which befalls the newlyweds. The quarrel really starts when the husband comes home with a pair of silk stockings which were placed in his pocket by mistake. Wifey thinking there is some other woman brings suit for divorce and it is granted. Then the young husband starts out to win her all over again and what happens is the cause for some real comedy scenes. This picture, Silk Stockings, is skillfully directed and has an admirable cast, with Laura La Plante as the wife, John Harron as the husband, and Otis Harlan as the lawyer who represents them both.

Thursday brings to the Palace screen, Mrs. Wallace Reid, in a powerful drama, The Satin Woman. Five superior vaudeville acts will be featured.

ASKING POST OFFICE PATRONS TO CO-OPERATE FOR CHRISTMAS MAILING

Postmaster General Harry S. New is reminding local postmasters that it is none too soon to remind patrons of their offices that the Christmas mail season is approaching and that co-operation on the part of the patrons will go a long way towards solving the Christmas problem for the postoffice. This co-operation means early mailing and it is all themore necessary this year because Christmas falls on Sunday, but the observance will be on the following day.

While it has always been the policy of the postoffice department to grant to postal employes the same liberty and freedom from holiday work that is generally enjoyed, it has this year been deemed not only inexpedient but impossible to forego all deliveries of mail for two successive days at Christmas time and for this reason the holiday privileges of the employes of the local office will be necessarily curtailed.

The usual routine will be followed on Sunday, but on Monday, the day to be observed as the holiday, it will be necessary for postal employes to work during the morning in order to prevent congestion, which would follow suspension of deliveries for 48 hours. It is planned to complete the work during the forenoon of that day and that all employes except such as are necessary to keep the service moving shall be excused from further service at noon.

Mail matter should be deposited at the local office in time to reach its destination for delivery on the Saturday preceding Christmas, and to this end early shopping is advised, as this will make early mailing possible.

The special delivery feature of the Christmas mail service is one that is much as it is planned to deliver special delivery articles throughout both Sunday and Monday. Patrons are especially urged to affix special delivery stamps to any belated mail which they may desire delivered on Sunday or Monday and to all mail, the delivery of which they want to assure, either on Sunday or Monday.

The volume of Christmas greeting cards is greatly increasing yearly at the local postoffice and the problem of handling this type of mail matter is one of the most serious that the local office will have to contend with. As this mail bears first class postage it must be handled the same as other letter mail, and delays will therefore not be excused. For this reason the card mail must be handled promptly and not placed aside to be delivered after the rush period.

As a valuable aid in spreading the peak of the Christmas card business over a considerable period and assuring delivery in good time, local postal officials are already urging that Christmas greeting cards for local delivery should be prepared and mailed by Dec. 15, or even earlier, and that they will not be delivered until two or three days before Christmas day, the postmark to bear the date of delivery.

Persons intending to send out a considerable number of cards should tie them up in a package marking it for Christmas delivery. They can thus be received at the postoffice and kept apart from the regular daily mail until the proper time for delivery.

Postal officials, in their efforts to facilitate the handling of card matter will also take up this feature of local delivery with large business firms which have adopted the practice of sending Christmas greeting cards to their patrons and other known larger mailers of such greetings. Dealers in Christmas greeting cards will also be asked to co-operate with the postal officials to the extent of explaining the early mailing plan to their customers. Special cases will be set up at the local office for the distribution of the Christmas card mail in order that it may not be confused with regular mail.

PROSPECTIVE CUBAN TRIP BY PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

Plans to Attend the Pan-American Congress in Havana, Jan. 16, Discussed at the White House—The Delegation Will Be Headed by Charles Evans Hughes, Who Will Represent This Government at the Deliberations.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1—(AP)—Plans for President Coolidge's prospective trip to Cuba to attend the Pan-American congress were discussed at the white house today simultaneously with the naming of the delegation, headed by Charles Evan Hughes, which will represent this government at the deliberations which open in Havana Jan. 16.

It has been suggested that Mr. Coolidge intends to show his admiration for the island republic as well as his friendly feeling for the nations of Central and South America by his presence at the congress, and likewise that the delegation of distinguished citizens he selected for this country's participation in the deliberations was indicative of the importance he attaches to the conference.

In addition to Mr. Hughes, the delegation comprises Ambassador Fletcher and Ambassador Morrow who will come, respectively, from Rome and Mexico City for the meeting; former Senator Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama; Morgan J. O'Brien, lawyer, of New York; James Brown Scott, author of several books on international law; Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Leland Stanford university and Dr. L. S. Rowe, director of the Pan-American union. To this list the new ambassador to Cuba will be added as soon as he is appointed.

The president discussed plans for his proposed trip today with Senator Fletcher of Florida, who expressed the hope that Mr. Coolidge would be able to make brief stops at several Florida cities on his way south and returning.

Senator Fletcher presented an itinerary which called for stops at Jacksonville and Miami on the way to Key West, where a ship would be boarded for the channel passage to Havana, and stops at Tampa, St. Petersburg and Orlando on the way home.

STATEMENT BY MRS. KNAPP DEFENDING HER CONDUCT

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—(AP)—Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, former secretary of state, who is under fire for alleged maladministration of the 1925 census fund of $1,200,000, in an interview today amplified her previous statements defending her conduct. She declared her census work was "the greatest job a woman ever had to do in this state."

She declared she had not done a single thing in conection with the 1926 census for which there was not a valid explanation. Much of the work done by her relatives was strictly confidential and her mother, her sister, Julia A. Smith, and her brother, Charles A. Smith, had earned the money that had been paid them, having contributed valuable services.

She said it never occurred to her that, in placing her relatives on the payroll, she might be opening herself to criticism.

"I think I can say it was the greatest job ever undertaken by a woman," she said, "and I think it was done as well as any job ever undertaken by a woman."

CONTESTING LEGALITY OF MASSACHUSETTS DIVORCE

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Contesting the legality of her husband's Massachusetts divorce from a former wife, Mrs. Ruth E. Andrews Taylor of New York today instituted suit for annulment of her marriage to William Bell Taylor, of Los Angeles, charging that Taylor induced her to wed by "false and fraudulent" representation of his marital status.

Mrs. Taylor's complaint alleges that Taylor, whom she married in New York December 20, 1923, was still the legal husband of one Aramita Taylor, whom he married in Cerru De Pasco, Peru, in August of 1913. Although Taylor was awarded a divorce on grounds of desertion in Suffolk county, Massachusetts, three days before his marriage to his present wife, she contends that the separation was illegal since Taylor was not married in that state, the complaint continues, and neither he nor his first wife ever lived there.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Women outnumbered men in the aviation spotlight today, two being linked as possible co-pilots of a trans-Atlantic venture this mone and another taking off on a cross-continent flight to keep a "date."

That two women might attempt the ocean crossing together became a possibility when Thea Rasche, German stunt flier, made public a telegram to Mrs. Frances Wilson Grayson, half-owner of the Dawn, suggesting the feminine conquest of the Atlantic.

The cross-country flier was Mrs. Waldo Cory Johnston of Cooperstown, N. Y., who took off from Hadley field, N. J., in a mail plane to keep a dinner appointment in Los Angeles tomorrow night. She will make brief stops at Cleveland, Chicago, and Salt Lake City.

I. W. W. STRIKERS CEASE PICKETING IN COLORADO

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 1.—(AP)—Marked by a cessation of picketing activities and the removal of threats of interference by the state, Colorado's coal strike tonight apparently entered a deadlocked period of waiting with both the operators and strike leaders confident of success.

The state has contended picketing violated a state law. Gov. Adams warned the strike leaders it must be stopped after he personally visited the mining fields last week. State troopers were held ready for mobilization.

I. W. W. leaders said today, frequent mass meetings would be held and entertainments would be given to keep up the spirit of the strikers.

Operators were confident that the strike would soon collapse without picketing. The Colorado Fuel & Iron company, largest coal operators in the state, announced that 752 miners reported for work today, an increase of 181 over Monday. The company now has a 45 per cent normal force in the Las Animas County mines and 30 per cent. of its normal force in the Walsenburg field.

Between 2,000 and 3,000 men at the Colorado Fuel & Iron company's steel mills at Pueblo were out of work because of the fuel shortage.

COLORADO MINERS VOTE TO RESUME PICKETING

WALSENBURG, Colo., Nov. 1.—(AP)—Amid cries of "to hell with martial law," 400 striking I. W. W. miners at a mass meeting here tonight voted unanimously to resume picketing at coal mines tomorrow.

Their vote followed an impassioned plea of Kristen Svanum, strike leader, who was released from jail today that the strikers "ignore the promises of capitalistic Governor Adams."

The chairman of the meeting who spoke against a resumption of picketing was hooted down as persons on the floor shouted, "kill the guy who don't want to picket."

Ate Shipmates, But Died of Starvation

Harrowing Tale of Fate of Crew of Japanese Fishing Smack—Ship Had Drifted 4,000 Miles.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 1—(AP)—Dead of starvation, despite evidence indicating they had devoured the bodies of seven or eight of their shipmates, the last two to survive of the crew of the Japanese fishing smack Ryo Yei Maru, meaning "good and prosperous," arrived at Port Townsend today, aboard their pitiless vessel after drifting with the sea currents more than 4,000 miles from the coast of Spain.

Physicians from the United States quarantine station who went aboard the Ryo Yei said there was no question but that cannibalism had been practiced by the last survivors of the crew. The bones of seven or eight human beings were found aboard the derelict, which bore unmistakable evidence of many months at sea.

The Japanese boat was picked up by the freighter Margaret Dollar off the Washington coast yesterday and towed to quarantine at Port Townsend. United States custom officials took charge of the boat, which was of sturdy and fairly recent construction.

Y. Hanawa, Japanese vice consul in Seattle, went aboard the ship and determined its identity, the name of the vessel was painted in Japanese characters on its prow and stern.

The bodies of the two survivors, emaciated and partly mummified, will be taken ashore as soon as the vessel is fumigated. No food or water was found in the ship and the engine was disabled, it being apparent that the fishermen had been unable to make repairs at sea.

Papers found aboard the derelict were found to be letters, telegrams and receipts all bearing the name of Tokizo Miki, believed to be captain or owner of the boat. All bore dates in November, 1926 or earlier.

Three personal letters, including one from Katsue Miki, daughter of Tokizo Miki, who was attending school at Kanagawa, Japan, near Tokyo, and another from T. Zune Miki, wife of the mariner, were among the papers, but no explanation of the disaster which overtook the vessel and its crew was contained in the documents.

Captain H. T. Payne, master of the Margaret Dollar, expressed the opinion today that the men had been dead for a month or more and that the vessel probably had been drifting for at least 100 days.

The bodies of the two Japanese were found in bunks in the tiny, dark cabin aft of the engine room. They were in natural postures, as if the men had failed to awaken from a deep sleep.

The boat was about 55 feet long, of 15 foot beam and 13 foot depth. The sails were torn to shreds by gales and standing gear on the deck was twisted and bent.

Barely decipherable Japanese characters scrawled upon a board in the death ship's cabin gave a meagre record of the last days of the starving crew.

The writing was said to indicate that the ship drifted helplessly for seven months after the captain and crew of 12 despaired of repairing their stalled gasoline engine. Three months ago, the starving Japanese gave up hope of living when they saw the first of their number taken by death, the scrawled and faded script in the cabin revealed.

Dr. L. P. Seavey, United States quarantine officer at Port Townsend, announced officially that the whitening bones strewn about the deck of the derelict craft were of humans—eight in all.

EXPLOSION OF STALLED AUTO ENGINE KILLED TWO PERSONS

CENTRAL CITY, Ky., Nov. 1.—(AP)—Two persons were killed instantly and five injured, two perhaps fatally when the engine of an automobile, which had stalled in the down town section here today, exploded.

The explosion occurred, witnesses said, just as P. C. Wells, a passerby, had raised the hood of the car. Wells and William Lewis, 16, who were standing near, were struck by fragments of the engine and apparently were instantly killed. Their bodies were recovered several yards from the wreckage.

The car, driven by Mrs. E. D. Porter, stalled as she was negotiating a turn, she said. Wells, who was passing by, stopped to assist her.

Mrs. Porter suffered wounds about the lower part of the body when portions of the motor were blown through the front of the car. Carson Porter, 7, was struck by a piece of metal and his left arm severed. Two younger children were less seriously hurt by broken glass. Robert Lewis, 18, a bystander, was believed internally injured.

A CARGO OF RUSSIAN LUMBER AT PROVIDENCE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 1.—(AP)—An attempt by the soviet government to introduce Russian lumber to the American market, despite an inevitable loss due to Pacific coast competition, was seen today in the arrival of 3,000,000 feet of Russian redwood, which docked here yesterday.

A. C. Dutton of the Dutton Lumber company, to which the wood was consigned, said his firm had agreed merely to unload the lumber and store it for the soviet government's agency in New York, the Amporg Trading Company, Inc., which he said he expected would lose money on it.

Mr. Dutton said Russia has the greatest timber resources in the world, and will supply us with lumber in five or ten years when our rapidly diminishing supply had been further depleted. But in the meantime, he said, it is still cheaper to ship American lumber of about the same grade from eastern Idaho and Montana by rail.

To Resort to Church Authorities at Rome

E. J. Daignault, Whose Suit Against R. C. Prelates Was Dismissed in Supreme Court at Providence.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 1—(AP)—Elphege J. Daignault of Woonsocket, leader of a Franco-American group whose suits against the Roman Catholic church heads in this diocese for an accounting of parish funds were dismissed today by Presiding Justice Willard B. Tanner in superior court, announced he intends to leave here November 16 to place the case before the church authorities at Rome.

Daignault also said he would appeal to the state supreme court from the final decree entered by Justice Tanner dismissing the amended bills of complaint. He has thirty days in which to file the appeal. It was indicated the appeal may be argued in the supreme court late in January or early in February, if at all.

Justice Tanner, in his decree, referred to a rescript he handed down October 1, before the amended complaints were filed, in which he held that funds received by a parish church corporation may be expended not only for the benefit of the local church but also for educational and charitable institutions of the church as a whole. It was Daignault's contention that funds had been taken from certain French Catholic parishes in this state and diverted to unauthorized uses.

Asked if he expected that sentence of excommunication would be passed upon him before he leaves for Rome, Daignault replied in the negative.

CONFESSED SLAYING HIS WIFE AND SISTER-IN-LAW

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 1—(AP)—Henry Molty confessed today that he killed his wife and sister-in-law last Thursday while they were sleeping, dismembered their bodies and stuffed them in trunks. He declared his wife had been unfaithful and he held his sister-in-law largely responsible.

Previously he had said that the actual slaying was done by a "red headed" sailor although he admitted he helped dispose of the bodies.

In his confession to the district attorney Molty said he had brooded over the conduct of his wife and on the day of the crime got drunk. He said he bought a cane knife on the way home. His three children, he asserted, were hungry and his wife had neglected to give them anything to eat.

Molty declared he cut his wife's head off while she was sleeping, hacked the body and put it in a trunk. Then, he said, he went to the next room in which his sister in law slept and struck her with the knife. She fell off the bed, his confession said, and he struck another blow before she was killed. Her body also was dissected and placed in another trunk.

He said he took his children who were still asleep, to the home of his brother and then left.

His confession resulted in the liberation of his brother, Joe, whose wife was one of the slain women.

300 PYROMANIACS ARE AT LIBERTY IN NEW YOPK CITY

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—(AP)—Three hundred pyromaniacs, who have either served prison sentences for arson, or have been convicted or indicted in connection with incendiary fires, are at liberty in New York city, Fire Marshall Thomas Brophy declared today.

They constitute the worst single menace faced by the metropolis, he added. Each has been listed in a card index system and a large force of assistants work night and day "keeping tabs" on them.

Brophy's statement was made while authorities investigated the case of Ernest Rhodes, held on a charge of setting fire to the Methodist Episcopal hospital in Brooklyn yesterday, endangering the lives of 600 patients.

"These men belong to institutions for the insane," the fire marshal said in explaining that he did not believe the sentence for arson should be increased. "They know it is wrong to set fires, but they are unable to overcome the desire."

"They never reform," he said, "they can't. There is a kink somewhere in their brains. Rhodes, you will recall, wanted to be a hero. That is one of the characteristics of most pyromaniacs. He wanted to be the big cheese and mingle with the firemen, whose uniforms he liked. That sounds crazy, but that is the way their minds work."

BELIEVES HUSBAND WAS SLAIN BY BOOTLEGGERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Conflicting theories of suicide, robbery and murder by bootleggers tonight surrounded the mysterious death of Edwin J. Kennedy, manager of a restaurant in the Broadway theatrical district, whose body, wrapped in a bed comforter and with a small calibre bullet wound in the head, was found in the North river today.

The man's watch was missing but a sum of money was found in his clothing. A $300 diamond ring was accounted for by a pawn ticket for $100 issued on a pledged ring.

Police, after the body had been identified by Mrs. Ella Kennedy, 22, as that of her husband, were unable to say whether Kennedy had been murdered or committed suicide. She expressed the belief that her husband had been killed by bootleggers but could name no definite suspect. The motive of robbery was discounted by discovery of $210 in the man's pockets.

EDISON STUDYING FIELD OF RUBBER PRODUCTION

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Thomas A. Edison is conducting his research into the field of rubber production as a war preparedness measure, he has revealed in an interview to be published tomorrow in the December issue of Popular Science Monthly. His objective is the discovery of a plant which will produce rubber quickly in America in the event of a war with Europe.

The inventor made it clear that he is not interested in rubber as a commercial product but only for war emergency purposes.

"Don't make any mistake about that war," he said, "it will come. We may run along for a good many years without it, but sooner or later the nations of Europe will combine against the United States. The first thing they will do will be to cut off our rubber supply."

CHARGE OF JURY TAMPERING IN THE FALL-SINCLAIR CASE

Judge Siddons Has Taken Under Advisement Until Tomorrow Whether the Evidence Submitted Was Such as to Warrant the Declaration of a Mistrial—Alleged Exposure is Based Upon Information Obtained by Government Agents in a Raid on a Hotel Apartment Occupied by Operatives of the Burns Detective Agency of New York City.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy trial came to a dramatic halt today, while a grand jury began investigating charges of efforts at jury tampering which furnished sensations, rivalling those when the oil scandal first broke in the senate.

This inquiry was predicated largely upon information obtained by government agents in a night raid on an apartment in the fashionable Wardman Park hotel occupied by operatives of the Burns Detective Agency of New York city.

In bringing this trial to a pause, if not ultimate end.

Government oil counsel presented four affidavits in which were named Harry F. Sinclair, lessor of Teapot Dome, and one of the defendants on trial; A. Mason Day, vice president of the Sinclair Exploration company; Donald Woodward, president of Woodward and Lothrop, Washington's leading department store; Edward J. Kidwell, juror number 11, a young leatherworker, and two Burns' operatives.

After examining these affidavits in chambers in the presence of counsel and of Sinclair and Albert B. Fall, the other defendant, the trial judge, Justice Frederick L. Siddons took under advisement until tomorrow whether the evidence was such as to warrant the declaration of a mistrial.

Meanwhile, the two women and ten men constituting the jury, which has not been locked up as was done with the Fall-Doheny jury last year, was excused for the day, after being held at the District of Columbia supreme court under close guard for several hours, while Justice Siddons considered the affidavit.

These documents dealt with two separate phases of a case that now has become one of the most celebrated in the annals of District of Columbia court. Two of the affidavits refer to the activities of the Burns' agent and the other two to conversations affiants swore they had last Friday and Saturday with Juror Kidwell.

A. Ray Akers, a street car conductor, and Donald T. King, a Washington newspaper man, detailed conversations they said they had with Kidwell in which the juror was quoted as having expressed "great admiration," for Sinclair because of his "democratic manner," and as having said that, "if I don't have one (an automobile) as long as this block, I will be much disappointed."

Kidwell also was quoted as saying he had been picked as a juror because he was "a pretty good yes-and-no man," and that "three smart lawyers said these conversations took place in a "soft drink" establishment, in a back street of southwest Washington.

The affidavits dealing with activities of the Burns agents were made by Neil Burkingshaw and Walter M. Shea, assistant United States district attorneys, the former of whom made the investigation leading to the Wardman Park hotel raid, carried out under Shea's personal direction.

Burkingshaw declared that the papers obtained in that raid disclosed "the close, intimate, objectionable and improper surveillance," which the Burns detectives kept on the jurors as they moved about before and after court hours daily. He also averred that "the real employer of the said detectives was Harry F. Sinclair, a defendant in this case."

Moreover, the young district attorney stated that the operatives living at the Wardman Park—C. G. Ruddy and G. H. Robbins—reported to O. Mason Day, "who is registered at the Mayflower hotel in Washington, D. C., where also the defendant Harry F. Sinclair is registered."

"I further aver," the affidavit continued, "that said reports were at times rendered to the said Day at the home of Donald Woodward, 2118 Leroy place, Washington, D. C.

"I aver that Day was what is known as the 'contact man,' between the real employer of said Burns Detective Agency in this behalf and said Ruddy acting as manager of the operatives in Washington, D. C.

"I aver that there have been since on or about October 18, 1927, the date on which the jury was sworn in said case, at various times, some or all of sixteen detective employes working in Washington.

"I aver that the activities of said detectives have been inimical to the proper administration of justice in this court, wholly improper and without warrant in law or otherwise."

BRNS CLAIMS HIS MEN HAVE NOT VIOLATED ANY LAW

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP)—William J. Burns, head of the Burns Detective Agency, commenting on charges that his operatives had been shadowing jurymen in the Fall-Sinclair conspiracy trial, said tonight that his men had not violated any law.

"Whatever the Burns Agency had to do with the case," Burns said, "you can be sure was not toward violating any law of the nited States."

"C. G. Ruddy is our manager in Washington. I do not know Robbins or the fellow named Day. I have had nothing to do with the case and do not know who employed our agency, or what for, but we will never be accused of helping to obstruct justice."

MOVEMENT IN OHIO TO INVESTIGATE DRY DEPT.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 1.—(AP)—A legislative investigation of the state prohibition department, the Ohio Anti- Saloon league and the operations of card prohibition agents in various sections of the state will be asked by State Senator Paul M. Herbert, he informed State Prohibition Commissioner B. F. McDonald in a letter mailed to him this afternoon.

Senator Herbert in the letter informed the prohibition head he would ask the latter to explain alleged "framing of a justice of the peace in Auglaize county by a prohibition agent cooperating with an attorney prominent in dry work; the alleged operation of a wholesal 'pardon mill' at the Canton workhouse; and alleged dictation by Anti-Salon league attorneys at Cleveland, Cincinnati and elsewhere to prohibition agents of the state department."

The senator declared that if Governor Donahey calls the general assembly, he will see to it that the demand is made for the investigation.

A NEW DEAL IN CHINESE POLITICAL SITUATION

SHANGHAI, Nov. 1.—(AP)—A new deal in the Chinese political situation with Canton again assuming a place of leadership in the Nationalist movement and general Chiang Kai-Shek, former Nationalist generalissimo, back in harness appeared imminent today.

Leading figures in the original Nationalist movement which was cradled at Canton, including Wang Ching-Wei and Li Chai-Sum, Canton's military dictator, meeting in Canton, adopted a resolution declaring that the time has arrived for the reestablishment in Canton of a true Nationalist government under purely civilian control embodying the ideals of the late Dr. Sun Yat Sen, Chinese first president and founder of the Nationalist movement.

At the same time official foreign dispatches from Canton stated that Chiang Kai-Shek, who is now in Tokyo, is slated to assume command of the military forces of the newly proposed Canton government.

CONFERENCE ON FARM PROBLEMS IN ST. LOUIS

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Demands for passage of the McNary-Haugen or a similar farm relief bill, attacks on the administration's agricultural policy and favorable mention of the presidential candidacy of former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, were made in addresses here today at the corn belt and southern conference on farm problems.

Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, demanded that the farmer be put on a basis of equality with other industry. He said he hoped the next congress would pass the McNary-Haugen bill or some other measure to assist farmers in getting a fair price. Any legislation enacted, he said, must deal with the problem of farm surplus and must aid the farmer in organizing for marketing purposes.

PORTUGUESE SCHOONER SEIZED AND UNDER GUARD

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Acting upon orders from Washington the coast guard destroyer Burroughs today seized and brought to Boston the Portuguese schooner Aida. Tonight the vessel was at anchor in President Roads, under guard. Officials, while declining to discuss details of the seizure, said the vessel had been held at the request of the Portuguese government and that further action probably would be taken by Washington.

It became known, however, that the Aida was one of the vessels on the so-called "suspect list" of the dry navy, and that the offshore patrol along the New England coast had been watching for her for several days.

The Burroughs sighted the schooner this morning off Cape Cod and within territorial waters, it was indicated. The crew, made up of nationals of several European countries, offered no resistance. The Aida hails from Libon, Portugal. She cleared from Halifax, N. S., on October 17, for St. Johns, N. F., and Ceuta, North Africa, and had not been reported since that date.

$45,000,000 SUIT FOR ALLEGED BREACH OF CONTRACT

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 1.—(AP)—After two days' delay, trial of the new suit of George D. Haskell, of Springfield, Mass., to obtain $45,000,000 from the estate of the late James B. Duke, tobacco magnate, of Somerville, for alleged breach of contract by Duke, will be started in federal court here sometime next month, Judge Runyon ruled today.

Haskell is asking treble damages under the breach of contract clause of the Sherman anti-trust act. This figure is said to be the largest in any suit ever filed in Newark.

The contract involved in the suit was in connection with manufacture of aluminum ware, in which Haskell and Duke were to engage, the former supply technical knowlege and the latter financial backing.

AMBASSADOR MORROW TO GIVE FORMAL RECEPTION

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow will give a formal reception tomorrow afternoon to all the members of the diplomatic corps, and on Friday afternoon will kep open house at the embassy for the American colony.

Most of Mexico is taking a holiday but not the ambassador. He has been right at his desk, and early, too, although All-Souls and All-Saints' day mean playtime here. The ambassador is studying the problems involved in the relations of Mexico and the United States, going over the records thoroughly, conferring with the members of the staff. Such time as he has found for recreation thus far has been devoted to visiting some of the historic buildings in Mexico City and the nearby monuments of the ancient civilization, and brief strolls alone about the streets observing everything about him with keen interest.

CONTEST EXPECTED FOR OFFICE OF CITY CLERK

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 1—A little excess steam is already beginning to spout from the political kettles here as the boiling point for the city elections of December 5 approaches. A grand rush for the now vacant position of city clerk and treasurer is among the early predictions. There are several selective candidates from both parties looming up and the race for this lucrative job is one that is creating much interest which will be anything but unabated as the caucuses get underway. Old office holders and new timber are elbowing their way for nomination and support for city clerk. No less than a dozen names are being prominently mentioned as prospective candidates. It is generally understood, however, that the common council chairs do not look quite so lucrative and that the city committees may have to do a little "approaching" to line up promising vote-getters.

John R. Pickett, chairman of the democratic city committee, stated today that the caucus of that party would be held at the town hall Thursday evening, November 10. Chairman Pickett seems to be a big favorite as a prospective candidate for the mayoralty. Unless there are previous eliminations there may be a contest on for city clerk at this caucus. Probabilities include the names of M. E. Sullivan, Albert J. Piche, James J. Lee and Louis J. Flynn. Gilbert P. Flynn had been mentioned but he announced this morning that he would not consider nomination.

Nelson A. Daniels, chairman of the republican city committe, said that the party had not as yet fixed a definite date for a caucus. There is a little rumor among G. O. P. men that the careful considerations of the committee for nominating a candidate for mayor may receive an eleventh hour upset by the sudden appearance of a "dark horse."

Windham high school graduates are making good records at Worcester Polytechnic institute according to a letter received by Egbert A. Case, principal of Windham high school from Z. W. Coombs, chairman of the committee on admission of students and certification of preparatory schools of the institute. The letter: "I take pleasure in informing you that our committee on certification of preparatory schools has voted to renew the privilege of your school for three years, to expire January 1, 1931. You have sent us many students in former years and they have made good records with us. I am sure that you will send us at least an occasional student in the future. I have no fear as to his preparation. I am still thinking of your system of marking which, it seems to me, is the most excellent one. With assurance of all co-operation on our part and with best wishes, I am, Very truly yours, Z. W. Coombs, chairman."

The Hallowe'en night merry-making in this section was not without its pranks that fell considerably short of being humorous, it became known today as property owners made a check-up of damage done. A South Coventry man went to get into his car which was parked in this city Hallowe'en night. In time to save his clothing, he found that the steering wheel had been well plastered with lard and that an egg of ancient vintage had been broken on the driver's seat. In Andover, Allison L. Frink found that a fruit and vegetable stand and several baskets had been removed from his lawn. Several of the baskets were found on fence posts along the road. Road signs of the Andover Lake association were either torn down or the wording changed. The South Windham younger generation behaved in a provoking manner by removing property and rampaging in general. The damage there was of such an extent that a police investigation has been requested. The ringing of doorbells was about the only source of annoyance in the city. There was the usual parading of masqueraders and the display of pumpkin moonshines.

An enjoyable masquerade party was given Monday night by Miss Helen Loisell at her home with several novel features introduced in the fun-making. Prizes for costumes were awarded as follows: First to Eleanor Foote; second to Lena Clouthier and consolation to Alice Sullivan. Luncheon was served and games and dancing enjoyed. Present were the Misses Albertine Coutu, Alma Liberty, Jeanette Liberty, Leona Clouthier, Lena Clouthier, Eleanor Foote, Bessie Hochberg, Mildred Pickett, Hilda Berard, Marguerite Hutchins, Alice Sullivan, Ruth Belanger, and Alma Buteau of Norwich and Mrs. Ralph J. Lussier.

Miss Paulita Clark of Concord, N. H., assistant physical director of the Willimantic State Normal school resumes her duties Wednesday, having received from a deep cut on one leg sustained when a car driven by her figured in an accident while she was visiting at her home over the past week end.

At the session of police court this morning a continuance until next Tuesday was granted in the case of Arthur Rogers charged with tampering with an automobile. A continuance was granted in a breach of the peace case and a fine, which will be worked out in jail, was imposed in a case of intoxication.

Mrs. E. Byrd Freeman and Miss Merlyn Towne entertained 14 members of the Methodist church Sunday school at a Hallowe'en party in the afternoon.

A larger average of square feet of new concrete gutters were laid in this city during the past season than over any previous year, it was made known today by Merrill J. Jones whose contract for the construction of sidewalks and gutters for the city during 1927 has now terminated. The distance in lineal feet of new sidewalk averages that of previous years.

W. B. Hopper of Willimantic and I. H. Weeks of Hampton are named in the winners of the congressional medal of honor of the American army just issued Civil War veterans by the war department. The award is for conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity above and beyond the call of duty in action with the enemy.

A beautiful oak tree, that had a spread of about 40 feet, is being cut down on the grounds of St. Joseph's hospital on Jackson street by Tree Warden Wilfred Blanchette. It was found that the tree cast too much shade on the building and in rainy weather caused dampness in several rooms of the convent adjoining the hospital. The cutting of the tree is part of extensive improvements being made to the grounds of the parish building.

Police Chief Thomas F. Grady has made the following assignments of patrolmen for November: William Hurley, lower village; Roderick Lariviere, Jackson street; Albert Montie, upper Main; F. Rudolph Laramee, center Main; night traffic, Arthur Hurley; day traffic, Grant Bombria.

Rotary entertained Exchange at a delightful joint meeting of the service clubs held in the Nathan Hale hotel this evening, opening with an excellent dinner served under supervision of Manager Daniel F. Daley at 6:30 o'clock. Special dinner music and accompaniment was rendered by Ralph J. Gibson, violinist, and Ivin White of Hartford, pianist. The greeting to Exchange and the introduction of the Exchange club president, C. C. Case, was made by Rotary President Richard E. Dodge. Louis H. Arnold was chairman of the evening and John C. Frazier led the singing. The first speaker was Rotarian Valentine L. Murphy who elicited much merriment in a clever satire on life, entitled Life's Inconsistencies. Rev. Garfield S. Morgan of Lynn, Mass., noted orator, delivered the address of the evening on the timely subject, The Art of Living Together. His talk was highly inspiring and served to knit more closely the bonds of fellowship and friendship among the business and professional men of the community. The affair was in charge of the following committee: Louis H. Arnold, chairman, Roland B. Jordan, Gerard E. Loisell, Harvey H. Bronson and Walter S. Barnes.

LING WEIGHING 40 POUNDS CAUGHT OFF FISHERS ISLAND

Nate Edward Morgan on board schooner Earl, off Fishers Island Monday was fishing for blackfish and got something on the hook. Only for getting a good hold Mate Morgan would be in for a swim in Long Island sound. He hauled the mystery fish up where he could get a look at it and found it was a 4-foot Ling, weighing 40 lbs—the largest one the old fishermen ever seen. So Morgan leads them all now for Ling fishing; his prize monster and record fish is on exhibition at F. I. Rathbun's on Front street.

Mrs. Lewis Main has returned after a two weeks' visit with her sister, Mrs. Frank Goodwin, in Philadelphia.

Capt. Charles T. Potter of Norwich was a caller in the village Monday.

Miss Catherine Johnson has returned to Norwich after a short visit in Noank.

Halloween night in the village was the liveliest in years. Young and old dressed up getting into their family cast-off clothing barrels in the attic. A short parade was held, when Robert Johnson led over 100 witches, sailors, girls in men's suits, etc. Horns were blown and for bass drums, dish pans, with sticks made the big noise. One resident lost his row boat; the crowd had put it in the school yard. They took it from the river. He came up to the school yard and with help took the craft back to the river. Signs were placed around the village and the night was noisy but the crowd had a good time.

Dave Davidson of Miami, Fla., is visiting for a week with his cousin, Mrs. Duncan McDonald.

WESTERLY

OLIVER R. PORTELANCE EXECUTOR OF GALIN ESTATE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 1—The session of Westerly probate court, Judge Edward M. Burke on the bench, held this afternoon at 2 o'clock was the last session of the present two-year term of Judge Burke. The members of the Westerly town council on Tuesday, Nov. 8th, elected the judge to serve for the coming two years. Probate matters were disposed of as follows:

Estate of John Galin. Petition re-ceived from Executor Oliver Roi Portelance, represented in court by Attorney Henry Harris, to compromise the claim of the deceased against Arthur Dubruelle of Westerly. Mr. Harris in offering the petition said there had appeared no other claim against the estate than that of the executor and no other creditor except Arthur Dubruelle and that people mentioned in papers all resided in Italy. The petition represented that John Galin, late of Westerly, died in Italy, March 25, 1927, leaving a will in which petitioner was named executor. Oliver Roi Portelance June 7th was appointed executor by the Westerly probate court, the deceased during his lifetime was associated with Arthur Dubruelle in the restaurant business in Westerly; the business during the testator's lifetime was operated at a loss and on March 25th the financial affairs of the concern were unsound, and following conferences with Mr. Dubruelle's attorney, Morris S. Waldman of Providence, the true condition of the partnership was unknown as the papers of the partnership were incomplete. Dubruelle had claims against the partnership for salary and against the estate for loans to testator, which, if allowed, would render the interest of the estate in the partnership negligible and unable to disproof. As the partnership was unable to find a customer who would pay any price to leave a balance, the compromise offered was the payment of $400 by Dubruelle to the estate of John Galin. The petition was granted.

Estate of Henry B. Fisher, Account of Earl Fisher from Oct. 5, 1926 to Oct. 7, 1927, was received and with no objection, examined, allowed and ordered recorded. Petition for order of distribution was granted to legatees residing in Westerly, Rockville, Storrs and Butler. Permission was granted to sell personal property at private sale for not less than inventoried value.

Estate of Richard Opie, First and final account received from March 17, 1925 to Oct. 6, 1927. Same was examined and with no objection, received, allowed and ordered recorded with order of distribution.

RETURNS TO HOME OF ANCESTORS TO PREACH SERMON

(Special to the Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Nov. 1—The voice of one whose ancestors, in Colonial days, contributed largely to the formation of the parish and the erection of Old Trinity church, Brooklyn, was heard within the ancient fane of worship today when an impressive All Saints day sermon was preached by Rev. Godfrey Malbone Brinley of St. Paul's school, Concord, N. H. This annual service—the only one held regularly each year at Old Trinity—today brought out a throng of worshippers to test its capacity and to worship as have the generations that have come and gone since the establishment of this church in 1771. The congregation was representative of numbers of towns and cities in Connecticut and of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New York and New Jersey.

Many assembled long before the service to reverently wend their way through the little church yard in the midst of which the church stands, decorating the graves of their kin with floral remembrances and pausing here and there to read inscriptions on stones now in many cases so aged as almost to obliterate the inscriptions. Leaves filtered down from the trees in the churchyard today to carpet the graves and to let brilliant sunlight through in benediction. The majority of those assembled at Old Trinity today had some ancestral connection with those who established it while others were drawn by a special fascination for the church and its traditions.

The All Saints day service, at 11 o'clock, was conducted by Rev. Leonard R. Richards, rector of St. Alban's and of Trinity church, Brooklyn, assisted by Rev. Mr. Brinley, a number of whose ancestors lie at rest in the old churchyard and whose family was prominent in what was the Manor of Kingswood when the church was in its early years.

Following the sermon, near the close of the service, Rev. Mr. Richards explained that the collection of the day would go to St. Andrew's cathedral, Aberdeen, Scotland, and briefly outlined the early connection between Old Trinity and the impressive edifice in the Scottish city.

ONE CASE OF INFANTILE PARALYSIS IN KILLINGLY

DANIELSON, Nov. 1.—The fact that a few cases of infantile paralysis have developed in eastern Windham county towns, is not regarded as an alarming situation here. Danielson has one case, that of a youth who is a member of the junior class of Killingly High school, who has been ill at his home on the southern outskirts of the borough for a number of days. There is another case at Killingly Center, in this instance a child three years of age, of course, not attending school. Just over the western border of the town of Brooklyn, in the town of Hampton, a child died of the disease a few days ago, and in the household where it lived, out in a country district, there is at the present time another case. Still another case has developed in Canterbury, just over the southern border of Brooklyn and cases have been reported from Plainfield and from Putnam.

Discussing the matter today, Supt. W. E. Parker of the schools of Killingly and Brooklyn said that he had just issued to teachers instructions furnished by the state board of health as to symptoms of the disease and other facts purtaining to it. He also has instructed teachers to send to their homes at once any pupil who gives such evidences of being ill as running eyes or nose, fever and colds. In such instances there is also to be a recommendation that the family physician be called by the parents and that the health oicer be notified.

The symptoms mentioned, and others, such as severe pains at the base of the brain, by no means indicate that a child is being attacked by infantile paralysis, Mr. Parker pointed out, and 99 times out of a hundred the symptoms mentioned are simply the forerunners of a cold. However, even colds can be spread in a school room, so every precaution is being taken.

The situation in Killingly is not such as to be a cause for alarm, and such information given on the subject herein discussed is published not to cause any apprehension, but merely as instructive and protective material.

Reports submitted by the officers of the Killingly Trust company at their regular semi-annual meeting showed that the past six months had been an unusually profitable one. Dividends to the savings depositors were voted at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, the customary dividend was declared to stockholders, and a very handsome amount added to surplus. This Trust company now shares a surplus of twice its capital, together with a good credit to its undivided account. The officers and directors are to be congratulated upon the excellent showing made.

Killingly grange members have a special and unexpected invitation for Wednesday evening of this week, Rev. Charles A. Downs of Goodyear said this afternoon. They have been invited to neighbor with the grange at Moosup Valley and to furnish a part of the program. It was indicated this afternoon that a considerable number would errange to make the trip.

As announced in an advertisement elsewhere in this column today, a new era in taxi service has dawned in Danielson. It has to be with the experiment of giving service to any point in the borough and on the West Side for 20 cents. Heretofore, the minimum charge for any taxi trip in Danielson has been 50 cents. The new service is established in the belief that more people will ride and ride more frequently at 20 cents than at the 50 cent rate. It is an experiment that all interested in transportation facilities will watch with interest.

There are dogs in the town of Killingly whose owners anticipate will win blue ribbons at the dog show to be held in Putnam next week. The Windham County Kennel club, which is sponsoring the show, has stirred up a great deal of interest in dogs in many towns since it was organized a few years ago and has been the means of many fine dogs coming into the ownership of county men. Danielson has a number of them, and they should do well at the fall exhibition.

Members of McGregor W. R. C. were making final preparations today for the inspection of the organization Wednesday evening of this week. Preceding the inspection there is to be a supper for the members and their guests.

Our dividend declared at the rate of 5 per cent. is payable December 1st The Windham County National bank, Danielson, Conn.—adv.

Danielson members will attend a meeting of the Quinebaug Valley Circuit league at the Moosup Methodist Episcopal church Friday evening, when Rev. Russell A. Waitt of Providence will speak. Friday evening, Nov. 11, another meeting will be held at the church here with Rev. Myron E. eGnter, district superintendent, of Norwich, as the speaker.

Some rather mischevious pranks marked the celebration of Halloween by young people here, and including among the stunts was the use of the pile of cannon balls on Davis park after the style that billiard balls are used. The balls were scattered around the neighborhood of the park this morning.

Roofers will go to work on the new Dowa block Wednesday. Brick masons are completing their work on the structure and carpenters are at work on the interior, part of which may be ready as early as December 1. Work on the foundation for the building started a month ago today.

This afternoon the assessors completed their work of receiving tax lists for this fall, only as belated ones are taken in or made up with a 10 per cent. addition. As usual, a considerable number failed to file lists.

November, opening today, kept up the splendid weather record made by October, with a maximum temperature of 72 degrees this afternoon, amidst bright sunshine.

John A. Besmonies of New Bedford arrived here today for a visit with relatives and friends in this vicinity.

Four masses at St. James' church this morning were attended, in observance of All Saints day, by congregations apparently aggregating 2,000 communicants. The feast of All Souls will be observed at the church on Wednesday.

The Danielson Taxi Service, 1 Furnace St., Tel. 366, offers a 20-cent taxi service anywhere in Danielson and the West Side; new cars, good drivers.—adv.

The brain concussion Mrs. George Wilson, Reynolds street, suffered when she tripped and fell down a long flight of stairs at the town hall building Monday afternoon had not cleared up today and she was in considerable pain, indicating the severity of her injuries.

Construction work is proceeding where a new bridge is to be built over Blackwell's brook on the state aid highway running southward from Brooklyn, near the fairgrounds, into Canterbury.

The road grader of the town was in service on streets within the borough today, clearing gutters against the coming of winter weather.

COUNTY Y BOYS TO SEE BROWN-NEW HAMPSHIRE GAME

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 1—The Windham county Y. M. C. A. through an invitation to their secretary, L. Edwin Hill of Putnam are to be entered at the Brown-New Hampshire game at Providence on Saturday, November 19th. The Rotary clubs of Putnam and Danielson are working on the matter of transportation. Any citizen who is interested in helping to transport a group of boys to this game and see the game themselves should offer his car to John M. Dean, chairman of boys' work in Putnam or to Sidney P. Marland, chairman of Rotary's boys' work in Danielson. The number of boys going will be limited by transportation that may be secured. Any boy desiring to go who does not live in Putnam or Danielson should apply directly to L. Edwin Hill, Windham county Y. M. C. A. secretary for further information. The invitation comes from the Brown athletic council and the letter reads as follows:

"We would be very glad to entertain your Y. M. C. A. boys at our Brown-New Hampshire game at Providence on Saturday, November 19th.

"As a favor I would ask that you make sure that if you bring younger boys, as some associations have done in the past, that you take special pains to see that they remain seated during the game. We have had some very unpleasant experiences by some of our guests annoying the spectators by racing up and down the stands."

Mr Hill says that he feels sure that the invitation will not be limited to Y. M. C. A. boys this year so that any plans that might be made will include all boys. He wishes, however, to know who the boys are that wish to go and also to make sure that a responsible person is in charge of each group, otherwise the privilege may be refused for another year.

Pomfret people are interested in knowing tha tthe "Hall Farm" residence of Mrs. Ferriday was recently sold has been bought by Mrs. Thomas and Miss Tainter of Cambridge, Mass., and will make it their permanent residence after some alterations have been made, early in December. Mrs. Thomas and Miss Taintr are well known in this vicinity as they conducted the "Mad Hatter Tea Room" in the E. P. Allen house several years ago.

Putnam merchants and manufacturers are gratified over the change in the morning train from New London which brings the morning mail from New York. The train is no ayail passenger from New London to Putnam, where it again becomes a mixed freight and passenger train. A special freight train runs from New London tao Putnam where it is joined with the passenger train. This morning mail is most important to Putnam manufacturers and its late arrival almost every morning caused a protest from Putnam and which was made in the form of a petition through the chamber of commerce to the post office department officials.

Mrs. Mary Davey Lynch, aged 74 years died at her home in Quinebaug after an illness of six weeks. Besides her husband Owen Lynch, she is survived by four daughters: Mrs. James McCulloch of Putnam, Mrs. Alfred Martin of Waterbury, Conn., Mrs. D. I. Toomey, Marlboro, Mass., Miss Viola Lynch of Quinebaug and two sons, John Lynch of Alberta, Canada and Albert Lynch of Worcester, Mass. There is also one sister, Mrs. Beesy Davey of Providence.

The Putnam chapter of the American Red Cross began today with their annual roll call for membership, instead of waiting for Armistice day, as has been the custom for several years past. This is done partly to take advantage of the very excellent weather we are having at this time and partly to get the roll call out of the way before the holiday season begins.

As every one knows by this time, one half of the funds raised at this remains with the Putnam chapter to assist in maintaining the district nursing service. The other half goes to the National Red Cross for use in relief work of any kind that may be needed for emergencies, such as floods, earthquakes, tornnadoes, etc. The officers of the local chapter hope that there will be even a larger enrollment of members in this community than that of former years.

Mrs. Beth Banks, teacher at the Chandler district school gave a Halloween party for her pupils at the school house The parents and friends of the children were invited. A short program was given after which refreshments were served and games were played.

Mrs. Mary E. Johnson of Jaffrey, N. H., is the guest of her sister, Mrs. George W. Perry of Providence street.

Edward Keefe of New Haven has been the recent guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Keefe.

George W. Child of Hartford has been the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Child of Putnam and East Woodstock.

Last night being Halloween the usual small pranks were indulged in by the young people. A number of pumpkin lanterns were left lying around the streets this morning, a number of door bells were out of commission and several pecks of corn on verandahs.

Mrs. John Addison Porter has been entertaining her little grandson, John Addison Van Name of New Haven at Pennybryn at Pomfret.

Mrs. Joseph Clark Hoppin closes her home "Courtlands" at Pomfret this week and will spend part of November at the Ben Grosvenor inn.

Miss Elizabeth Bigelow is in Brooklyn, N. Y., where she was a bridesmaid at the wedding of her friend Miss Katherine Duncan.

Mrs. Elizabeth Canda and Miss Elizabeth Andrews of Hartford have returned to their home after a visit of several weeks at Fox Hill farm.

EAST WOODSTOCK

A dog suffering from rabies came through this town early last Wednesday morning, biting several dogs and a cat. The animal was killed by Mr. Creighton, of Quinebaug, in the afternoon on the state road leading from North Woodstock to Quinebaug. Nine dogs have been killed as a result and all others are under quarantine. The dog was seen at Mashapaug the evening before.

Mrs. H. E. Bannister of Webster, Mass., spent a week with G. L. Upham and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Houston, of New Bedford, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Carl Surnson.

Franklyn Withrell is home, after undergoing a minor operation at the Day Kimball hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Leste Pearce entertained relatives from Providence Sunday.

The union social held Friday evening was well attended, about 200 being present. A fine supper was served. The program presented by the visiting parishes consisted of piano solos, vocal solos, choruses, a reading and the Family Album.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Lindeman left Saturday morning for Bedford Hills, N. Y., to visit their daughter, Mrs. Everett Burbank. While going through Pomfret a coal truck belonging to Allen Averill ran into them smashing the forward end of their car. Luckily neither was hurt. The car was taken to Putnam and a new one secured with a driver and after several hours' delay they continued their journey.

Schools in the town were closed Friday to permit the teachers to attend the state conventions held in Norwich and Hartford.

Now Comes Simplified Electric Refrigeration

THERE is now a new development in electric refrigeration for the home. An amazingly simplified icing unit—made by General Electric.

Electric refrigeration—above all things an electrical problem—has been solved electrically by the world's outstanding group of technical experts, General Electric engineers.

The General Electric Icing Unit is so simple mechanically that it is virtually trouble-proof. So efficient electrically that it consumes very little current. So precisely constructed and supremely engineered that you can hardly hear it within three feet of the refrigerator.

The entire mechanism is housed in one hermetically sealed casing mounted on top of the cabinet. You never need oil it—never need touch it. It operates automatically, maintaining a practically constant temperature in the refrigerator.

Only an institution like General Electric—with its world-wide electrical resources—could have produced so outstanding an electrical achievement.

It marks 15 years of intensive research. Some 64 leading engineers cooperated in its development. Their goal was to produce the simplest, most practical electric refrigerator that science could achieve.

The General Electric is the superlative refrigerator. Come in and see it or mail in the coupon. Find out what General Electric has done in the field. Buying any other way is a mistake. Remember that the efficiency of any electrical refrigerator you may purchase rests basically on its efficiency as an electrical device.

MOTORISTS AT CROSSINGS

No doubt there may exist in the minds of many the feeling that they have just as good rights at a grade crossing as the engineer of a train, and under such an assumption fail to assume such responsibility as really rests upon them. That attitude may be responsible for the carelessness that is discernible at such danger points and for many of the fatalities.

Those who harbor such an attitude should hasten to cast it aside. They are standing in their own light and inviting serious consequences to themselves as well as any others who may be with them, and should give careful thought to the decision which has just been rendered by the United States supreme court upon this very question.

Most people realize that it is folly to try to combat the way with a locomotive. It doesn't pay even to race for first honors at a crossing. The supreme court says that "when a man goes upon a railroad track, he knows that he goes to a place where he will be killed if a train comes upon him before he is clear of the track. He knows that he must stop for the train, not the train stop for him," and the court lays down the rule once and for all that "if a driver cannot be sure otherwise, whether a train is dangerously near he must stop and get out of his vehicle, although obviously he will not often be required to do more than to stop and look. It seems to us that if he relies upon not hearing the train or any signal and takes no further precaution, he does so at his own risk."

This gets down to the oft repeated statement that motorists are responsible for crossing deaths because they fail to look after their own protection. Lack of care is the verdict of the supreme court. Stop, look and listen is old advice and some of it should at least be observed at all crossings. If it is there is no question but what there will be a large reduction in the fatalities which occur at just such points. Motorists must look carefully to their own safety.

TOWN FARM FORESTS

Many a community has debated the question as to what it ought to do with its town farm. Some have found it economical to abandon them, but others are unwilling to make any change, although they are conscious of the effect of changing conditions upon them.

The experiment which is being tried in Barre, Mass., is certain to be followed with keen interest in view of its bearing upon this general situation. In that town there has been a determined effort to sell the town farm and board the poor of the community. But there has been an even greater determination not to disturb the present arrangement, and now it has finally voted to plant a town forest on the town farm. It was decided that not over 10,000 trees would be set out and about two thirds of that number of pine and spruce have been planted and further work will be carried on.

Barre has high hopes that this town forest will in time prove a panacea for all its ills. It has visions that it will cut the annual tax rate and, like the enthusiastic sponsors of our municipal gas and electric plant, thinks that the day will come when it will provide sufficient revenue to meet the town expenses.

However far off such estimates may be, there can be no question but what such development provides an excellent opportunity for keeping the hands and minds of the town farm interested in some actual work. This of course applies only to those who are physically able to do something, but like the maintenance of a truck garden or the conduct of other farm work, it is bound to be beneficial to the individuals and there is good probability that the town will also benefit from it as the forest develops. Even if it should prove to meet only the expense that is involved in maintaining the poor farm it would be a worthwhile effort, and in it there is an idea which many another town may see its way to make good use of. With available land from which no return is coming, and with available help to look after it, the proposition is certainly an interesting one.

RUSSIA AND DISARMAMENT

Whenever a conference has been talked of or held concerning disarmament the question has always been raised as to what the attitude of Russia was going to be in regard to such a move. To some countries it made little difference, but there are countries which are vitally concerned in what Russia does. They are obliged to consider it in every move they make. They are within the vicinity of that big country which has the men for producing powerful armies and resources for backing itself in any quarrel. Thus it is quite evident that several European countries are not disposed to join in with the idea of reducing armaments, however much they may favor it at heart, until they know that Russia is going to do as much if not more than they do. They are not willing to make themselves any more vulnerable to the Russian strength.

Thus the announcement from the headquarters of the league of nations to the effect that Russia has stated that it will participate in the work of the preparatory commission on a disarmament conference will cause other nations to take notice.

Because Russia has failed to participate in the past has handicapped even the discussion of such an effort. Certain nations would shut their ears to anything of the kind until Russia could be interested, but now that it has consented to join with the others, to present its views and to hear what the rest have to say for and against it improves the situation greatly by removing a recognized obstacle which could be eliminated in no other way.

This may not mean that a disarmament programme will be adopted. It may not get them any nearer to the goal but there will certainly be removed that excuse for refusing to do anything until it could be ascertained what the Russian viewpoint was going to be. Russia, likewise, is going to be better able to appreciate the object of the disarmament advocates if it joins in and hears what is being advocated. Russia has its opponents, self created, but it is possible for it to so modify its attitude as to bring it into harmony with the rest and aid in the handling of international problems.

THE MELLON ADVICE

It was to be expected that there would be those who would insist that the amount fixed by Secretary Mellon for tax reduction was too low. It wasn't even half of what some of the democrats have been urging and it was lower than some of the republican congressmen and senators have been advocating.

Secretary Mellon has presented a plan which differs from those the others have advocated and it cannot fail to be regarded as a guide whatever the final action may be. Reflection upon the fine results which have been gained by following his advice in the past, even though it has been reluctantly done, will prompt considerate attention for his recommendations.

When he warns that there are certain definite indications pointing to a decline in federal revenue, it will be wise to bear them in mind in the enactment of a new revenue law. When it is set forth that there are certain large factors in the surpluses of the last two fiscal years which cannot be anticipated in the fiscal year of 1929 it cannot be wisely ignored. It is in fact not the past but the future that must be considered in the cutting of taxes. There is the large surplus to urge tax reduction but because it was obtained in the past gives no assurance that it will be received in the future. It is made up of certain items which cannot be relied upon another year.

It is possible and it might be said probable that the tax cutting will not stop at $225,000,000 but it certainly should not run wild. The country would benefit far more in the long run by sticking to that amount than it would by rushing into such a cut as to pile up one of those undesirable deficits.

WHAT LOWER TAXES DO

Every city has its tax problems and the constant demand is for lower rates. There are those who insist that it isn't the rate so much as the valuation that has an influence upon a community's welfare.

In the city of Lynn the demand for a reduction in taxes has been met. The change has been accomplished and in a period of two years the rate has been lowered $6.80 on each $1,000 valuation. Evidently there has been a combined effort on the part of the authorities and the citizens to keep the rate down. How long it will continue no one knows, but if the results that have been obtained by the reduction makes the impression that they should it not only should be kept down but pushed even lower, if such a thing is possible.

Lynn by the curtailment has effected a saving in taxes to the amount of $1,600,000. That in itself is a welcomed relief, but because of this change it has attracted the attention of others and in the two year period has experienced an increase in industries by 50. That is even more valuable to Lynn than the actual saving of the million and a half in taxes.

Such relief as that city has accomplished was due to its citizens and its industries. They have been obliged to shoulder the expense whatever it was. But they have evidently been brought to a recognition of the mistake in permitting the continuance of such conditions and insisting upon a change are able to point with pride to the beneficial results. There's many another community which would like to experience the same.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Preparations for 1928 calendars show that there's no danger of a 13 month year yet awhile.

Have you booked passage on the first of the four day liners for a trip across the Atlantic?

The man on the corner says: Many hope "it isn't true," but they keep on repeating the gossip.

These are the days when more and more attention is being paid to the reports about the turkey crop.

Indianapolis may feel that not every city can have two mayors at once. But every city doesn't hanker after such notoriety.

One autoist who struck two cows in the highway thinks cows should carry taillights. He might also insist that they blow their horns.

Now that the president has refused to grant the appeal of Admiral Magruder probably the admiral will insist upon the supreme court hearing it.

THE MAN WHO LEFT MILWAUKEE

The climax of the case had been reached and the young lawyer knew it. Everything hinged on a bit of writing, which might send his client to the gallows.

"This signature," said the expert is the handwriting of the man in the dock."

Timothy McAllister, the young lawyer, still had faith in the innocence of his client. The accused man's story, any times repeated, had the ring of truth. But Timothy could see that the jury was impressed by the expert's assertion.

"You say," McAllister turned suddenly upon the witness, "that it is your hand?"

"Certainly it is his handwriting."

"How long have you been an expert, Mr. Wagner?"

"I have been appearing in courts as handwriting authority for twenty-two years."

"Where were you born?"

"In Frankfort, Germany."

"When did you come to America?"

"I arrived in New York on March 1900."

"How long did you live in New York?"

"For seven years."

"Then where did you go and how long did you remain?"

"To Chicago." The witness moved uneasily in his chair and McAllister, watching the jury from the corner of his eye, was able to detect that the sneer he had just put into his voice had aroused the interest of at least a few of the twelve men.

"And so, Mr. Wagner, in the course of events you arrive in Chicago, still practicing your profession, I suppose?" The lawyer's voice was mocking.

"Certainly there was nothing wrong about arriving in Chicago, was there, Mr. McAllister?" the witness asked, his face flushed.

"If you please, I will do the questioning," was McAllister's curt reply. He stood contemplating the handwriting expert, his face drawn into sour lines. "And so you arrived in Chicago, still practicing your profession?"

"Yes." Again the blood poured into Wagner's face, as the lawyer asked:

"Things did not go well with you in Chicago?"

"No, times were — you see times were hard during the period of my residence in Chicago."

"That was all, I suppose. Just hard times and nothing more?"

"Nothing more, I assure you." The witness replied eagerly.

"Where did you move from Chicago?"

"To—to Milwaukee."

"Oh, indeed. So you went to Milwaukee. You are quite certain of that?"

"I am certain—yes."

"Now, Mr. Wagner, I ask you for only one thing and that is the truth. I want you to answer this question for the jury. Why did you leave Milwaukee?"

The witness started as if suddenly he had seen a ghost. He gasped and worked his hands nervously. He tried to speak. His face turned almost purple. He half rose in his chair, then fell back limply.

"Why did you leave Milwaukee?" McAllister repeated menacingly. "Tell the jury why you left Milwaukee."

"Why," Wagner choked over the words, "there was—I assure you, there was—there was no—no reason, I assure you. I can assure on — very definitely on that point, Mr. McAllister."

"It is not assurance I want. I want you to tell why you left Milwaukee."

The district attorney objected and there was a period of argument before the court. What had Mr. Wagner's leaving Milwaukee to do with the innocence or guilt of the accused? McAllister insisted that an answer to his question had everything in the world to do with the issue.

Finally the court ruled.

"Mr. Wagner is well established in this city," said the judge. "He has qualified in numerous cases, even in this court, and whether or not there was any personal reason for his leaving Milwaukee has nothing to do with our task of determining whether or not the accused committed this crime. You may proceed with your questioning, Mr. McAllister, omitting reference to Milwaukee."

McAllister bowed.

"Under those circumstances I have no more questions to ask."

The jury, out twenty minutes, returned a verdict of "not guilty." The young lawyer shook his client's hand.

"I knew you were innocent."

Three years later while McAllister was waiting for a street car he was approached by a man who said:

"You do not remember me, of course, Mr. McAllister, but I was on the jury in the Black Herman case. You asked Wagner, the handwriting expert, why he left Milwaukee. I've always wondered about that. Would you mind telling me to satisfy my curiosity why he did leave Milwaukee?"

"I'm sure I haven't the slightest idea, my friend," McAllister replied, as he boarded the car.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

W. C. T. U. Work In California.

Mr. Editor: The paper upon which I am writing bears the slogan, "See America First." A timely bit of advice for it is undeniably true that the majority of Americans see Europe first.

A trip from New York to California would be an eye opener to these travelers, not only on account of the scenic wonders and beauty, but to obtain the view point of western thought and action.

It was very good to reach Los Angeles in time for the 45th annual state convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance union, the event of the present week. The programme covers five days; 500 delegates are in attendance.

The Times of Los Angeles has shown its appreciation in the following tribute: "The W. C. T. U. fought against great odds in the first quarter century of existence in California and seemed almost to be crusading in a forlorn cause. It now has a record of astounding success to add to its story of determination and moral heroism.

"No other organization in the United States did as much to educate the country to the total abstinence idea in the days before prohibition as did the W. C. T. U. The women of the W. C. T. U. have always been the champions and defenders of the American home."

I am confident that many of our eastern papers would say amen to this worthy recognition of the noble and self-sacrificing work of the W. C. T. U. of America. This organization of women know no east or west, north or south, in this struggle to free America from the taint of the liquor traffic. They have been one in head and soul. They have followed Shakespeare's advice. "Say what you think and speak it from your soul." Their enthusiastic dictation at the opening of the convention that the major part of the 1928 programme will be a campaign to elect a dry president of the United States, was heartening. It was also announced that $500,000 had been raised by the members in southern California for the W. C. T. U. work. It was worth crossing the country to look into the faces of their faithful, untiring women! That the W. C. T. U. women are broad and generous is evident in the erection of a home for aged woman, aiding the Frances Willard school for girls in Los Angeles; for the home center for sailors, soldiers and marines at San Diego; also an endowment fund has been established for the Willard home. The mother heart has embraced the world.

A jubilant note was sounded when the report of the success of the union's campaign in politics during the past year was reported and their determination to elect future congresswomen, presidents, governors and legislators who were bone dry and would enforce the Volstead act.

The democratic women of California are hand and glove with the W. C. T. U. in their determination to give all their energy the coming year to the election of dry officials.

If the politicians do not sit up and take notice of what these wide-awake women are up to they will certainly rue the day that they failed to recognize that women have become a power in the political world. The W. C. T. U. has 600,000 women who are consecrated to the protection of the home and nation and they will naturally influence in a great measure the vote of their fathers, husbands and sons.

They are to be seriously reckoned with. This is only a summing up of the salient part of the first day's work of this convention.

Stories That Recall Others

Is That So?"

A fifth grade teacher was testing her class on geography and found most of the pupils responsive until she came to one ten year old boy who could not remember the location of the Sahara desert.

After the boy had spent several moments in vain remination, she attempted to help him along. "Surely you have forgotten that the Saraha desert is in Africa, John?" she suggested.

"Is that so?" exclaimed the innocent boy in amazement. "Why I just was thinking that it was in Egypt."

"Died Last Week."

Jimmy, six years old was ready for school. Instead of being happy over the prospect Jimmy did not want to go. The following conversation took place between the youngster and his mother.

"Mother, I'm not going to school."

"But, Jim, how can you get out of it? All little boys and girls have to go to school."

"We-ll, I'll just have Bob take a note to the teacher and say, 'Jim died last week.'"

Little Talks on Thrift

KEEPING A RECORD

"I can't understand why I am always running behind in my personal financial affairs," a man who earns a handsome salary said to the writer some time ago. When asked if he kept a record of his expenditures he replied that he was too busy to be bothered with such details. "Try the experiment for a month," suggested the writer, "and you will have the answer to your question."

The plan was tried. Every penny of expense was jotted down and at the end of the month the man found that he had spent about $100 more than he had thought was his custom.

That explained the reason why he was always in a quandary about his personal affairs.

When he was brought face to face with conditions he began to change his habits, and his situation improved in like proportion.

There are no doubt many such persons as the one referred to who constantly are running behind and cannot understand why.

Figures do not lie. You can't spend your money and have it. If you want to spend constructively and save wisely you must eliminate the little wastes.

Above everything else you must know what you are doing. You cannot build yourself up on the shifting sands of ignorance or indifference.

It may seem like a waste of time and effort to keep a strict record of every penny you spend, but it is the best method of getting on the right track in the management of your personal affairs.

Personal thrift, like business efficiency, is a matter of method and system. It must be foundationed on complete knowledge of one's affairs.—American Society for Thrift.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Little Mrs. Peter Has a Fright.

That which is fun for you may be
The cause of dreadful fright to me.
—Mrs. Peter Rabbit.

Poor, timid little Mrs. Peter! Her meeting with her father, Old Jed Thumper, wasn't at all pleasant. This was bad enough, but what was worse was the fact that she failed to find out where Peter was. Old Jed Thumper simply worked himself into a rage. That's what he did, worried himself into a rage. She just wouldn't listen to him any longer.

She went on up one of the old cowpaths. Presently she heard, up ahead of her, some strange noises. They frightened her, yet at the same time they aroused her curiosity. Little by little she stole nearer. Presently from behind a big blueberry bush she peeped out and saw two strange creatures fighting. Anyway, she thought they were fighting. They were black and they were ever so much bigger than she. But what surprised her and startled her most was the fact that every once in a while they stood up just like those two-legged creatures called men. They stood up and struck at each other. Then they threw their arms around each other and down they went and rolled over and over kicking and squealing.

Now, those two cubs, for, of course, they were Buster Bear's children, were not fighting at all; they were just playing. They were having a great romp. Little bears are very rough when they play. This is what made little Mrs. Peter think they were fighting.

Suddenly, one of those cubs just happened to spy little Mrs. Peter. In an instant, he was after her. She jumped and ran. The other cub saw her and both started for her. Poor little Mrs. Peter! She was so frightened that she almost forgot how to run. At first she did forget how to dodge. She never had seen little bears before and these two mischievous scamps seemed to her the most terrible creatures that ever lived. She saw a hole between the roots of an old dead stump and she darted into it.

"Now I'll be safe," she panted, "they can't get in here. They'll probably go away now."

But she didn't know bear cubs. Here was great sport. One of them began to dig. The other began to pull on the old stump. Poor little Mrs. Peter heard the old stump crack and groan and she was more frightened than ever. She crept just as far down as she could. She was looking for a back door, but there was no back door. Whoever had dug that hole under the old stump long ago had failed to make a back door. Little Mrs. Peter was trapped!

"Snap!" Down in that hole the noise sounded very loud. One of the old dead roots had broken. "Snap!" There was another. There was a grinding and a tearing overhead and presently, with a crash, the old stump went over. You see, it was a very rotten old stump and the two little bears, working together, had managed to pull it over. Then each in turn sniffed at the hole left by the old stump. Then what do you think those silly cubs did? They quareled. They did so! They quarreled as to which one should dig little Mrs. Peter out. You see, only one could dig. There wasn't room for both to dig together. Each wanted to be that one. So they lost their tempers and quareled. And while they were doing this little Mrs. Peter did some digging of her own. She dug fast and hard. She kicked the sand behind her until it filled the passage. She was digging a back door.

The next story, "Mrs. Peter Has a Pleasant Surprise."

MANY GET BACK YOUNG APPETITE

Quick lunches, usually cold, gulped down so the "dinner hour" will not be over before you can do a little playing, is the best way to ruin your stomach, and you suffer from indigestion, heartburn, bloating, nervousness, headaches; and worst of all, you get thin, pale and weak.

If you must eat that way, always keep a package of Pape's Diapepsin handy so you can chew one of the pleasant-tasting tablets after your meals. It keeps the food sweet so your stomach can digest it.

Follow the experience of thousands who again have a young appetite. All druggists recommend and guarantee Pape's Diapepsin to relieve indigestion and sweeten the stomach in 5 minutes.

Itching Skin

Peterson's Ointment

To the millions who know about the mighty healing power of Peterson's Ointment for old sores, ulcers, and chafing Peterson says, "use it for itching skin; it never disappoints." All druggists, 35 cents.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

Donovan, died Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock at his home, No. 124 North Main street. He had been in poor health for four or five years but his condition did not become serious until about five weeks ago.

Mr. Donovan was the son of Patrick and Margaret Crooker Donovan and was born on Roath street, this city, 66 years ago. He received his education in the local schools and afterwards learned the trade of locksmith in the old lockshop. Later he entered the employ of William Burton, contractor and after serving his apprenticeship was taken into partnership by Mr. Burton.

After Mr. Burton's death Mr. Donovan engaged in business for himself. Among the buildings he erected were the former Y. M. C. A. building on Broadway, the Masonic Temple on Broadway, the Laurel Hill school house, the T. A. B. building, the Armour building on Commerce street and the Mahoney block.

He was appointed street commissioner in 1902, serving in that capacity until 1906. In 1907 he was reappointed and May 9th of the following year resigned. Then he became connected with the state highway department as supervisor of repairs in New London county, serving from 1908 until 1913 when his health made it necessary for him to retire.

JUDGE HEARD $25,000 SUITS IN MOTOR FATALITY AT "GHOST BRIDGE"

Judge John Rufus Booth of the superior court has the conflicting claims of the highway department of the state of Connecticut and those of Mrs. Jennie Glaubinger of Colchester, widow of Elias Glaubinger and administratrix of his estate, to decide in two suits which went on trial before him in this city Tuesday morning. She asks for $10,000 damages and Patrick H. Kinney, alias Kenney, also of Norwich, asks damages of $15,000 in suits brought against John A. Macdonald, state highway commissioner.

Kenney was riding in the back seat of Glaubinger's automobile on the afternoon of March 24, 1926 when the machine went off "Ghost Bridge" on the Norwich-Colchester road, causing the death of Glaubinger and serious injury to Kenney. The plaintiffs claim that the bridge was defective and that a section of flooring had sunk, which condition was noticed by Glaubinger as he drove towards the bridge and that he tried to stop his machine, but failed to do so and sideswiped the end post, going off the side of the bridge into the stream below, which at this point is in the town of Lebanon.

The state highway department contends that Glaubinger was driving towards the bridge at fast speed, that he lost control of his car, scraped along a highway fence and plunged into the end post of the bridge, knocking this out and causing his machine to go off into the water.

By agreement of counsel and understanding with the court the two suits were tried together.

Attorney Edmund W. Perkins, Edward G. Mackay are counsel for Kenney and Attorney C. Hadlai Hull for Mrs. Glaubinger. The state highway department is represented by Attorney Joseph Berry of Hartford.

Counsel for the plaintiffs began their case by introducing a number of photographs which Hector Desmarais explained. He was followed by Dr. E. J. Brophy who testified that Kenney sustained a fractured hip and dislocated hip joint, resulting in shortening his leg two or three inches. He now carries a crutch which he uses as a cane when he walks. Charles F. Brown of Colchester testified that he had observed a rotten condition of the ends of stringers on the bridge and John F. Gorman of this city told the court that the Glaubinger machine passed him about 800 feet before it reached the bridge and was traveling about 20 miles an hour at the time.

Patrick Kenney, the plaintiff, testified that he was in the back seat of the automobile and that it was going slowly and that it did not hit the fence or the bridge. Other witnesses put on by the plaintiffs were Jerome Sullivan and Mrs. Jennie Glaubinger.

The first witness for the defense who was called to the stand was Ernest F. Gadbois, road foreman for this section for the state highway department. Mr. Gadbois testified that he was directing some work on the road on the Colchester side of the bridge at the time of the accident, that he heard the crash and looked up just in time to see the wheels of the automobile in the air disappearing over the side of the bridge. He told of what he did in getting the two men out of the Ford touring car and in making observations of conditions there.

Allen C. Collier of East Hartford, superintendent of bridges in the state highway department, testified to making an investigation at the bridge soon after the accident. He explained in detail a plan of the bridge construction and in answer to a hypothetical question said that it would have been impossible for the bridge to fall because of the rotten condition of one end of the stringer which had been testified to by Mr. Brown. He described the condition of the corner post of the bridge which he saw lying over the axle of the automobile, having a 30 degree bend in it and a gouged spot. This indicated, he said, that the end post had been hit with sufficient force to break it. About 15 feet of the roadside fence approaching the bridge was broken off and showed marks of scraping. In making repairs to the bridge the same stringers were used and remained in the bridge until the new bridge work was begun.

Asked to give his opinion as to how the accident happened, the answer to the question was admitted over the objection of Attorney Hull, and the witness said he believed the end post of the bridge was struck with sufficient force to knock it off its feet and allow the side of the bridge to go down.

In making objection to the question, Attorney Hull said the plaintiff's side would claim that the bridge was down before the automobile reached it.

On cross examination, Attorney Hull brought it out that Mr. Collier had found the ends of stringers under the bridge floor in a safe condition, but the witness said they left these stringers in for the false work on the bridge.

On re-direct examination, Mr. Collier was shown a picture of the automobile with the front axle badly bent. He said he believed this was the part of the machine that hit the end post of the bridge.

John Smith of Eastford, division engineer for the Norwich district of the state highway department, testified that he reached the scene of the accident about 3:30. He told of seeing marks on the highway bridge and of seeing the front axle of the automobile bent. The end post of the bridge was lying on the bottom side of the axle between the wheels. He said he also saw that the end post had evidently been struck with considerable force by a moving body and was bent and punctured.

Benjamin B. Green of New London, a state highway employe, who was called to the scene of the accident, testified that he saw two lengths of the fence gone at the bridge and there were fresh gouge marks on the lower rail of the section of the fence that was not broken down. On cross examination, he said that these marks in the rail were about 16 inches from the ground.

Charles Patridge of East Great Plain testified he was working for the state highway department, driving a truck on the Colchester side of the bridge and had crossed the bridge about 20 minutes before the accident. He said he saw nothing the matter with the bridge when he drove across it. He was using a two-ton truck with a load of sand on it.

Charles A. Rogers of Norwich Town, also a state highway department employe, testified he heard the crash, looked around and saw that the bridge was sinking. Rogers was working on a post hole at the time and had his back to the bridge when he heard the crash.

When the testimony had closed, Attorney Perkins filed an amendment to the complaint in the Kenney case, alleging that the bridge fences and railings were unsafe.

Arguments were made by Attorney Perkins and Hull for the plaintiffs and by Attorney Berry for the defendants just before court adjourned for the day.

J. J. CORKERY MEMORIALIZED BY CURRENT YALE WEEKLY

He returned to Norwich about 1893 and practiced law there until 1900. He was subsequently connected with the Norwich board of water commissioners for many years. He served as cashier from 1903 to 1906 and again during 1908-09 and from 1911 to 1916. In 1921 he was appointed a member of the board to fill an unexpired term, and in 1923 he was made president and supervisor for the department. He retired from active business in 1926 on account of ill health due to heart disease. Corkery married in 1903 Jennie B. St. John, of Norwich, who died in 1919. He is survived by a sister.

RECOMMENDS INVITING RELIGIOUS EDUCATION COUNCIL

The Norwich Council of Religious Education, at a regular meeting Tuesday evening at the Central Baptist church, voted to recommend to the churches of Norwich that an invitation be extended to the Connecticut Council of Religious Education to hold its annual meeting in this city in the fall of 1928. It was also voted that the recommendation be sent to the individual churches in Norwich to secure their cooperation.

The meeting, called for 7:30 o'clock, was presided over by Rev. Gurdon P. Bailey, president of the local council. After voting to invite the state council to hold its convention in this city next fall the meeting named Rev. Gurdon P. Bailey, B. P. Bishop and James L. Case a committee to convey the invitation to the state council at its convention November 16, 17, and 18, at New Haven. The meeting also discussed the matter of having a teacher training class but no definite action was taken. The meeting adjourned shortly before 9 o'clock to meet at the call of the president.

PAYS $10 FINE FOR CRUELTY TO ANIMALS

On a complaint of cruelty to animals made by Humane Society Officer Fred H. Wyant, a farmer from Ledyard Center, Abraham Mitzendorf, was fined $10 and costs in the city court Tuesday morning.

Residents in Yantic reported to Agent Wyant that Mitzendorf had driven his horse to that section of the town and had left him hitched on a side hill so that the weight of the wagon bore down on the animal's back. A bad cut was also found on the hoof of the horse.

EXPLAINED GOVERNMENT FORMS TO WOMEN VOTERS

At the regular meeting of the Norwich League of Women Voters held Tuesday afternoon in Slater hall annex, Judge Henry H. Pettis spoke in a most interesting way, explaining the forms of local government and in the brief time was able to enlighten his audience on a subject that should be of greatest interest to every citizen of the town and city of Norwich.

Judge Pettis began his talk by saying that the term of city and town government is peculiarly complicated, the town government dating back even before a state government and the city government a form chartered by the state and which the state can dissolve. The area of the town is approximately 29 square miles while the area of the city is 5 square miles and the 1920 census shows the town population of about 39,000 while the city population is 22,000.

Judge Pettis outlined briefly the duties of the officers of both town and city and emphasized the importance of the annual town and city meetings and deplored the fact that there was so little interest shown by the intelligent voters of today in these important meetings.

After Judge Pettis concluded his talk there was a general discussion pertaining to the subject and he answered many puzzling questions regarding both systems of government.

At a short business meeting held previous to Judge Pettis' talk, with the president, Miss Audrey Gernon in charge the reports of the secretary, treasurer and membership committee were read and it was urged that all who could attend the state convention to be held in Waterbury Nov. 8 to 10, would get in touch with Miss Gernon as soon as possible.

Wenzel, 25,720; J. Peringer, 25,640; J. Schaffhauser, 25,490; W. Huntington, 24,845; J. Cook, 24,540; C. Schilenz, 23,675; F. Kirchner, 23,530.

GAVE INSTRUCTIVE TALK FOR CURRENT EVENTS CLASS

Anniversaries, alliances, rebellions and politics made the four topics upon which Mrs. Marion Gaylord Atwell of New York spoke Tuesday evening at the Wauregan hotel ball room before the current events class of the Woman's City club of Norwich. Over 250 heard Mrs. Atwell's unusually interesting comment upon world affairs.

Anniversaries she spoke of were the fifth anniversary of the arrival of fascisti in Italy, the tenth anniversary of bolshevism in Russia, the birthday of Michael, the boy king of Rumania, and the tenth anniversary of the Zionist movement.

She called attention to the treaty with Jugoslavia which has been concluded by France, which places around Italy a ring of nations friendly to France, since France is no longer fearful of Germany.

Speaking of the rebellion in Mexico, she said that Obregon would doubtless be the next president there and that President Coolidge had done a wonderful thing in naming Dwight Morrell as ambassador to Mexico, which promises to bring about a better understanding between the two countries.

Taking up the subject of politics, she said that wet and dry is not to be an issue as neither party wants it. Possibly support of the navy may be an issue and it may be the tariff which will be brought up by the farmers. The Fordney-Macumber tariff bill, she said, is admitted to be unscientific, illogical and unjust. As to the presidential candidates they are before us on their records. There is Coolidge with his enigmatical "I do not choose," since which he has said nothing. Hughes and Hoover are equally silent. The farmers don't like Hoover, but the south and the women do. Dawes and Lowden are two other candidates about whom it is said that the supporters of Lowden feel that he cannot secure the nomination in the convention, but they will throw their support to Dawes. "Alice Roosevelt's husband" Mrs. Atwell dismissed as not a possibility.

On the democratic she said that Al Smith had made a great governor, but the south does not like him. Senator Reed is another strong man, but there is nothing constructive about him. It looks like Smith and the republicans will need to put up a strong man against him.

PRINCETON AND HARVARD CREWS TO MEET IN TRIANGULAR REGATTA NEXT SPRING

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 1—(AP)—Yale, Harvard and Princeton, formerly comprising the "big three" of sports, will compete through their 150-pound crews at Derby, May 19, it was announced here today. With the exception of participating in the already scheduled triangular cross-country meet here later in the fall, Harvard and Princeton have not met in dual or triangular competition since the breakup which followed their 1926 football game at Cambridge.

It could not be learned here tonight when the crew race for next spring was scheduled. If it was after the break it is the first event scheduled since that time which will bring the two institutions into direct athletic competition.

The announcement was sandwiched into the schedule without emphasis and without comment, and Yale athletic association officials declined tonight to comment in any way on it. Only the 150-pound crews are included in the arrangement. The other Derby day races are announced as between the Yale, Princeton and Cornell varsity and junior varsity crews, and between the freshman crews of the same three institutions.

The only athletic competition in which the former "big three" have met, or in which Princeton and Harvard have come together in dual competition, since last fall's breakup, was a cross-country race here later in the fall which had already been scheduled and was carried through, Harvard winning the event.

Representatives of both institutions competed in the intercollegiate track meet at Philadelphia, as members of the association.

The 150-pound race next spring carries a trophy for the winner, but whether it would take the form of a cup or banner could not be learned tonight.

Derby day is an annual rowing regatta held at Derby, Conn., Yale's "home waters". Last year Columbia and Pennsylvania were guests of Yale for the event, moving to Philadelphia for the triangular meet this year. The Yale-Cornell-Princeton event, which features derby day this year, was rowed at Princeton last spring.

The Derby day regatta is the only home event on the schedule for Yale, unless the annual Harvard-Yale feature on the Thames at New London be included.

The schedule, as announced by Manager Horton Spitzer of Perrysburg, Ohio, follows:

May 5, at Philadelphia, Yale-Columbia-Pennsylvania, varsities, junior varsities and freshmen over mile and a half course; 150-pound varsities over mile and five sixteenths course.

May 12, Yale-Massachusetts I. T., 150 pound crews at Derby.

May 19, Derby day, Yale-Princeton-Cornell varsities, junior varsities, and freshmen over two mile courses; Yale-Princeton-Harvard 150 pound varsities over mile and five sixteenths.

May 26, American Henleys at Philadelphia, third varsity.

June 22, at New London, Yale-Harvard varsities four miles; junior varsities and freshmen, two miles.

RESUMPTION OF RELATIONS DENIED AT PRINCETON

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 1—(AP)—Emphatic denial that the scheduling of a race among the 150-pound crews of Princeton, Harvard and Yale, meant a resumption of athletic relations between Harvard and Princeton or a change in the position of the latter, was made tonight by Dr. Charles W. Kennedy, chairman of the Princeton board of athletic control.

"When Princeton severed athletic relations with Harvard a year ago the action applied to dual competition," Dr. Kennedy said. "Princeton had no intention, because Harvard would be represented, of withdrawing from the group or league competitions involving other opponents and Harvard was so informed."

"Princeton representatives," Dr. Kennedy added, "last winter and spring competed against Harvard representatives in the indoor and outdoor intercollegiate track and field meets. Last autumn, after the break, the Princeton cross-country team competed in New Haven against the Yale and Harvard cross-country teams.

"This constitutes a precise parallel to the 150 pound crew race in which the Princeton crew will meet the Yale and Harvard crews next spring.

"The scheduling of this race involves no change in Princeton's position."

PENN HAS PLENTY OF RESERVE BACKFIELD MEN

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 1—(AP)—There is no dearth of reserve backfield material on the Pennsylvania football squad, coaches learned today when all the second string ball carriers were given an opportunity to perform.

Carrel Rosenbloom and Walter Pine showed up well, both being able on several occasions to skirt the ends for long gains. Pine ran fifty-five yards for a touchdown. The latter was a team mate of Joe Crosby, the Harvard star, at Exeter. Penn meets Harvard here next Saturday.

Coach Young allowed his regular backfield, with the exception of Martin Brill, to take things easy.

He devoted the practice session to reserve material.

BUSCH ON FINAL LAP OF RUN ACROSS COUNTRY

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Nov. 1—(AP)—William H. Busch, veteran marathon runner of Boston, Mass., passed through here tonight on the final lap of his 3000 mile run from Los Angeles to New York. He carries a letter from Mayor Quier of Los Angeles to Mayor Walker, New York and expects to reach the latter city tomorrow at 2 p. m., Busch left Los Angeles September 1, and is paced by a brother riding a bicycle.

"SPIDER" KELLEY TAKES FINAL COUNT AT ROCHESTER

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1—(AP)—The death of "Spider Kelly in Rochester, Minn., today removed one of the most famous old-time figures of the ring and severed a boxing partnership that endured forty years.

"Tim" McGrath, who "shook hands in partnership" with Kelly four decades ago, narrated the story of two immigrant Irish lads, one from County Limerick, the other from County Kerry, who met in San Francisco at the age of 15. The pair became one of the greatest team of seconds boxing has known.

Shortly after arriving here Kelly started boxing, first four rounds, then 26 and finally going the 45-round route. He met in the ring many of the famous fighters of other days. He fought Joe Gans when that great Negro was in his prime and McGrath told how Kelly's resourcefulness helped him in avoiding a knockout. Coming up for the twenty-fifth and last round barely able to hold up his hands, Kelly whispered in Gans' ear, "It's lucky for you it ain't ten rounds more." It surprised Gans so that he was unable to score with a telling blow during the round.

Kelly gave up fighting in 1900 and began the second career that was to carry him to the top of the ladder. As a manager and second, he had under his wing at various times, such ringsters as Abe Attell, Frankie Neil, both former champions, Jimmy Britt, Peter Maher and Tom Sharkey.

Kelly is credited with bringing Jack Dempsey and Jack Kearns together and the latter of the two Jacks piloted the former to the heavyweight championship.

At the time Dempsey fought Gunboat Smith and made a sorry showing, the "Spider" predicted that the then little known youngster would become a champion.

Kelly will be buried in Holy Cross cemetery here where his father and mother rest. Three sisters and a son, residents of San Francisco, survive him.

AGGIES SHOW MORE SMOOTHNESS IN PRACTICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Nov. 1—The Connecticut Aggie varsity and freshman elevens scrimmaged here this afternoon as work continues in preparation for the games to be played in Hartford against Trinity and the Trinity Junior varsity net Saturday.

More and more the Aggie players, especially the varsity, realize they will face a determined foe in Trinity this week, and they went at their work earnestly today to once more develop the offensive drive that flashed so well against Maine and Springfield. Those two games were lost it is true, yet it is doubtful if Connecticut has shown in later games the same offensive power displayed in those contests. Against both New Hampshire and Lowell Textile the team slumped considerably in its attempts to gain from scrimmage by rushing.

Against the freshmen this afternoon, the varsity eleven uncorked an offense that moved with smoothness and precision, sweeping the yearlings backward with every rush. Captain Eddy, Williams, Ryan and Knaut all made substantial gains against the frosh, as did the second team backfield of Lamoreaux, Flydal, Groat and Haversatt. Present indications are that these eight men will do the bulk of the ball carrying for the State college eleven, with the first named quartet in the starting lineup.

HARVARD ELEVENS MAY INVADE MID-WEST GRIDIRONS

CHICAGO, Nov. 1—(AP)—The possibility of a Harvard football invasion of the middle west within the next three or four years, was disclosed tonight by Walter Eckersall, Chicago football official and critic, in publishing the comments of William J. Bingham, director of Athletics at Harvard, after the Indiana football game there last Saturday.

Eckersall, who refereed the game, quoted Bingham in a signed article in the Chicago Tribune tonight, as saying that he hoped to take a Crimson team west within the next few years, to convince the Harvard football officials that such a trip would be of great benefit to the squad and the university.

Bingham made it plain he was speaking only for himself, and not as representing the football authorities.

WESLEYAN DRILLING FOR CRUCIAL GAME SATURDAY

MIDDLETOWN, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Following Wesleyan's unsatisfactory performance against Trinity, Coach Bill Wood laid out plans for a hard week's work in preparation for Saturday's battle with Williams. A victory will give the Cardinal and Black the covered "little three" championship for the first time in a number of years.

Secret practice was instituted yesterday and it will continue. Flood lights were in use at dusk, and they will be used throughout the week in late workouts.

Eddie King, of the '23 team, who has been assisting Wood, has been concentrating on improved tackling. Sanders, fullback, returned to the lineup today and his presence will add offensive power to the team.

St. Patrick's Win

The St. Patrick's football team defeated St. John's Prep eleven at Deep River Tuesday, 18 to 0. The locals showed nice ball and outclassed their opponents throughout almost the entire game.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

(By the Associated Press)

Two of the outstanding football backs in the east this year are "Kid Brothers" of former line stars at the same institutions. Eddie Wittmer, Princeton's flying sophomore ball-carrier, is measuring up to the standard set by Al Wittmer, now a Tiger line coach. Hal Bayslnger, Syracuse field general, punter, runner and passer, is proving even more valuable to the Orange than Reeves Bayslnger, running guard of three years ago.

Last season had its "Devil May" Kaer, All-America back at the University of Southern California, but 1927 has its "And" Howe as a candidate for the year's descriptive nickname championship. Although only a substitute halfback, "And" Howe of Williams has earned the exclamatory cognomen by making 46 points thus far this season.

LACK OF SCHOOL SPIRIT AT THE ACADEMY

According to Webster's, school means a place for instruction and spirit means to animate with vigor; to excite. School-spirit means to animate with vigor for one's place of instruction, to get excited.

And that is something that a number of students at Norwich Free Academy either do not know or knowing, have little care about.

School-spirit at the local school is now at a low ebb. And coming with the best athletic teams in the last twenty-five years, it is queer. The student body of something over 900 shows little interest in what some thirty members of the football squad are doing this season. These boys, out every day in the week for their hard bumps, tackling the dummy, scrimmage, the several laps around, etc., have little backing from the student body.

At the four home games to date the attendance has not been satisfactory at all. Of the 900, hardly 150 have turned out on each occasion and less than that have assisted in the cheering.

The Academy has done as good work to date on the gridiron as any high school team of any size in this commonwealth of Connecticut and deserves better support. Winning four of five games against the opposition they had was no easy task whatsoever. They set Chapman Tech back, 13 to 0, for the worst defeat ever handed that school by a Red and White grid aggregation, they beat out Torrington, a club that is now proving itself one of the best in the state, they won from Westerly for the first time on the football field in seven long years and then they showed plenty of the old time fight in coming from behind, thirteen points behind, and trouncing Wilby High of Waterbury. True, Harding of Bridgeport beat them, but where is there a club in the state that has had first-class opposition that has not been beaten this season?

Academy Leads in Scoring.

The Academy is the leading scoring machine in southeastern New England and they also, more important, lead in the race for top honors in this section. Their nearest rival is Windham of Willimantic.

These teams meet Saturday at the campus with the supremacy of this section at stake. Windham has a multitude of backers who will trek to the local field to back their club to the limit.

Windham has been defeated once, that by Hartford Public High, 25 to 0, has tied once, that with Westerly, a scoreless affair, and has won three games, those with Putnam, 26 to 0, Conn. Aggie Frosh B squad, 14 to 0, and the strong Stonington bunch, 19 to 6. Their record on paper does not look quite as impressive as the Red and White's but, what's a record among teams that always have been the bitterest of rivals and on this occasion resume grid relations after a four-year span.

Windham came out ahead in the last football meeting of these schools by the mere margin of 54 to 0. To say that it pleased the Willimantic outfit is putting it very mildly. It happened in 1923, the year that Windham had one of her greatest teams. At that time the Academy was in a general all-round athletic slump while Windham was very good in football and above the average in other sports.

Now things are a bit different. Windham is still enjoying successful football seasons and is above the average in other sports, in fact, she has a very good basketball team but the Academy is at the present one of the leaders in state scholastic sportsdom. With nine championships and a tie for one more since the spring of 1926, N. F. A. can stand right up in front.

Windham-N. F. A. Tied in 1926.

The tie mentioned above, incidentally, was with this same Windham team and it was in the same sport at which they are to try conclusions Saturday—football, in 1926. The two claimed the eastern Connecticut title. Both had good records and to determine which was the better would have taken a couple of Solomons.

There should be no such mystery this year. These teams will battle Saturday with plenty of tradition, bitter rivalry and what have you at stake and to say that it will be the most colorful thing that has been served up to date in high school football in this neck of the woods will be something like the truth, the whole truth, etc.

Both camps are full of activity this week. The Academy was right down to brass tacks Monday, something unusual after a hard game. Coach Whitney realizes that Windham is nothing like a setup but will probably give the Academy as stiff a tussle as they will want. This game will also act as sort of a home-coming contest for local fandom has not seen the Red and White since their first defeat of the season. To Windham, this game is practically the entire season. A win over Norwich has been their clamor now for several weeks and they have the Thread City taking up the cry almost as one, as it were. Callaghan is getting his men in the best possible condition for this is Windham's objective game.

Preparations for handling the largest crowd of the season, in which will be included a much larger percentage of N. F. A. students are now going on.

On Tuesday at the campus the squad went through quite a lengthy scrimmage with the first team on the offensive throughout.

Coach Whitney worked the boys for about two hours. The regulars showed more impressive in yesterday's practice than in a good many drills. The backs in particular, seemed to be working with greater precision and snap.

Johnny Greene was not present but Shea, tackle, made his appearance, apparently fully recovered from injuries.

BOSTONIAN WINS $25,000 RIGGS HANDICAP YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—(AP)—Harry Payne Whitney annexed another rich purse today when his Bostonian, ridden by R. Workam, won the $25,000 Riggs Handicap at a mile and a half. The winner came within three-fifths of a second of establishing the track record. Black Panther ran second and Mike Hall third.

At the break Jock assumed the lead, closely followed by Wandering Minstrel, with Nimba third and Bostonian fourth. At the first turn there was some crowding among the leaders. Jock remained in front for the first mile. Turning for home, Bostonian, which had been in a striking position of the leaders, came with a rush and won by a head from Black Panther.

It was the second running of the rich handicap, Crusader winning last year. Bostonian's winings now place him up among the big money earners of the year. He ran the mile and a half today in 2:31 1-5.

The Canyon stable's Doctor Wilson, with Frank Catrone in the saddle and quoted at 5 to 1 in the betting, was the winner of the Rainbow Claiming Stakes at Empire City. Palm Beach was second and Sport Hallahan third. Jack Dempsey, former owner of the Canyon stable, watched the race. The race was worth $2,610 and the about six furlongs was run in 1:10.

The fourth race at Latonia, the Faraway Handicap for all ages, went to Energy, with Rothermel second and Percentage third. The time for the mile was 1:37 1-5.

KAPLAN TAKES EVERY ROUND TO BEAT MIKE DUNDEE IN 12-ROUND BOUT

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 1.—Louis "Kid" Kaplan, of Meriden, retired featherweight champion of the world, won the decision over Mike Dundee of Rock Island, Ills., in a 12-round bout here tonight and began his climb toward lightweight honors he occupied before he was set back two weeks ago in Chicago when he was knocked out by Jimmy McLarnin.

Kaplan carried the fight in every round.

Both men weighed in at 122 pounds. Kaplan with his weaving style bothered Rundee, who hung on all through the early rounds. In the fifth stanza, Kaplan opened a cut over the Rock Islander's left eye.

Kaplan was active and aggressive, but he was more cautious than usual. In the eighth round, Dundee uncorked his best drive, landing three hard smashes to Kaplan's jaw and face, making the Meriden fighting-cock hang on.

In the 11th, a hard left hook opened a cut over Dundee's right eye and another opened the cheek below. The last round found Dundee slugging wildly at times trying to put over a lucky punch, but he semed tired and Kaplan handled him easily.

Bobby Mays, New London, won a technical knockout over "Pep" O'Brien, Scranton, Pa., in the 135 pound class when the referee stopped the bout as unequal in the fifth round of the scheduled eight round semi-final.

Adt De Champ alne, Wallingford, took the decision from Ed Atto, New London, who substituted for Young Wagner, in the 122 pound class, in a six round bout.

In the other six round preliminaries, Spike Marino, New Haven, won the decision from Tommy Abobba, New York, at 120 pounds, and Joe Lagrey, New York, won over Lew Friedman, Chicago, at 142 pounds.

HAGEN BRILLIANT IN HIS DEFEAT OF JACK FARRELL

CEDAR CREST COUNTRY CLUB, DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 1.—(AP)—Walter Hagen again rose to the superb golfing heights that have made him "the invincible" of the links when he stayed a typical come-back today to defeat Jack Farrell, of Glen Head, N. Y., 3 and 2 and in his quest for his fifth championship of the Professional Golfers' association.

After trailing the youngster almost all the way, Hagen wiped out a four-hole advantage held by Farrell at the 18th, and stroked his way to victory.

Most of the favorites were among the 16 crack golfers who successfully came through the first round of match play. Among them were Tommy Armour, of Washington, open champion, who eliminated Johnny Farrell, Mamaroneck, N. Y., 4 and 3; Harry Cooper, Los Angeles, victor over Eddie Murphy, Chicago, 7 and 6, and Gene Sarazen, New York, who eliminated J. G. Curley, Marlborough, Mass., 1 up on the 37th hole.

Bobby Cruickshank, of Purchase, N. Y., and Bill Mehlhorn, of New York were the victims of upsets.

Cruickshank lost a heart-breaking battle when Anthony Manero, of New York, made a come-back in the afternoon round to win 4 and 2. Mehlhorn lost on the 36th when his putt rimmed the cup and bounced out giving William Klein, of East Williston, N. Y., a one-hole advantage.

Tomorrow's pairings in the upper bracket will bring together Hagen and Tony Manero, Cruickshank's conqueror, and Tommy Armour and Tom Harmon, with the probability that Hagen and Armour will meet in the following round. Harmon defeated John Pecell, of Feather River Inn, Calif., 4 and 3.

Other pairings in the upper bracket tomorrow will throw Charles Guest of Los Angeles, against Morte Dutra, Tacoma, Wash., and Al Espinosa, Chicago, against Harry Cooper.

Gene Sarazen and Ed Dudley, of Hollywood, will be pitted together in the lower bracket; William Kein, New York, vs. Joe Turnesa, New York; John Goden, New York, vs. Harold Long, Raleigh, N. C., and Francis Ouimet, Wauwasota, Wis., vs. Ralph Beach, of Bethseda, Md.

SALE OF CLEVELAND CLUB IS VIRTUALLY CONCLUDED

CHICAGO, Nov. 1—(AP)—The first move toward clearing the path that leads to the presidency of the American league was taken today when negotiations were virtually concluded for the sale of the Cleveland club to a syndicate headed by Alva Bradley, Cleveland millionaire, who intends to become the club president.

When the sale is completed tomorrow, E. S. Barnard, the prospective president of the American league, will be automatically relieved as president of the Cleveland club. If the sale is not concluded, it was pointed out that Barnard could resign as president of the Indians, be elected president of the American league, and as such, proceed to lend a friendly hand in adjusting the Cleveland situations.

The sale of the Indians was temporarily held up today pending the negotiations for a few stray shares of stock. Mr. Bradley and his associates desire complete ownership that no minority stockholders may interfere with their plans. The controlling shareholder is Mrs James Dunn, widow of the former president of the club.

No opposition to the election of Barnard as president of the American league, succeeding Ban Johnson, is anticipated when the club owners go into session tomorrow.

Reports from the east, however, said that Clarke Grimth, president of the Washington club, and Ben Shiba, who with Connie Mack owns the Philadelphia Athletics, also are candidates along with Edward Barrow, business manager of the New York Yankees. Barrow formerly was president of the International league.

Boston Tigers Buy MacKay.

BOSTON, Nov. 1—(AP)—The Boston Tigers of the Canadian-American Hockey league tonight announced the purchase of Mickey MacKay, defense player, who last season played with the New York Rangers of the National Hockey league. MacKay came to Boston through the Springfield Club of the Canadian-American League, used as a "farm" by the Rangers.

Freddie Litzen, center on last year's Tigers, has been sold to the Hamilton club of the Canadian Professional league.

WALKER KNOCKS OUT MCTIGUE IN FIRST

COLISEUM, CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Mickey Walker, world's middleweight champion, knocked out Mike McTigue, former light heavyweight titleholder in the first round of a scheduled ten-round fight at the Coliseum here tonight.

McTigue, the Methuselah of the ring, was knocked down three times before he fell across the middle rope of the ring, his hands at his side, his eyes closed, helpless and unable to defend himself, there he was counted out.

The end came two minutes and 15 seconds after the fight started. Walker, boxing cautiously did not get warmed up until a few punches had been exchanged — then he suddenly lashed out with a right to the jaw, following it up with a left hook, which knocked the venerable McTigue into the ropes.

Walker sailed in, driving terrific punches to hte jaw, and McTigue looking like an old man, started sliding to the floor, but fell across the rope and hung there.

After nine seconds had been counted, McTigue attempted to struggle to his feet. He was knocked down again, this time in Walker's corner. He got up and stoo there helpless while Walker unmercifully beat him about the head. He went down again, got up at nine, and then Walker cracked him with rights and lefts. He did not fall the last time, but dropped to the floor completely knocked out. McTigue's seconds worked over him frantically for at least five minutes before he regained consciousness.

Tonight's battle was the second battle between the two Irishmen. They fought back in 1925, when Walker was a welterweight, with the result in doubt. Tonight, Walker left nothing for McTigue to worry about.

Walker weighed 162 pounds, while McTigue scaled 171 1-2. McTigue made only a feeble effort to fight, landing only one solid punch, a stiff right to the jaw.

Roleaux Saguero, Cuban light heavyweight, scored his third straight knockout by stopping Benny Ross of Buffalo in the second round of a scheduled ten round bout.

The Cuban southpaw dropped his opponent with a left hook to the jaw, and the Buffalo boxer was counted out. Ross held the Cuban fairly even in the first, trading wallops with him.

Abe Bain, of Newark, N. J., won the verdict from George Manoleum, Boston, in six rounds at 158 pounds. Bain was fouled in the fifth, but continued after a minute's rest.

The Milkman

Who is it plods the lonely street,
Braves nightly peril, snow and sleet,
That we may call our breakfast sweet?
The Milkman.

Who, while we dream of pastures fair,
Gropes up the back apartment stair
With pasture-joys—and leaves them there?
The Milkman.

Who is it, as he goes his way,
Up four long flights, finds notes that say:
"Yes, we don't want no milk today!"
The Milkman.

Who is it must forgive our whim
When, with his lantern burning dim,
We think him burglar, shoot at him?
The Milkman.

Who is it that must wear a smile
When, in his path, the children pile
Old paving bricks or building tile?
The Milkman.

Who is it, in the sombre light,
Emerges with a strange dog's bite—
Must save his bottles in his flight?
The Milkman.

Who is it that must humbly grin
When, at the door, his bill goes in?
Who hears it said: "Come back agin'!"
The Milkman.

Who is it that must sleep by day;
While others rest, be on his way?
Who seldom gets a chance to play?
The Milkman.

Who is it that his own child knows
As some strange man who comes and goes?
Who is that strange man, you suppose?
The Milkman.

Who is it all the babies know
Will be there, sunshine, rain, or snow?
Who joys to see the babies grow?
The Milkman.

Who is it strives so hard to be
A faithful friend to you and me?
Who answers Man's first waking plea?
The Milkman.

A Spray of Honeysuckle.

I broke one day a slender stem,
Thick-set with little golden horns,
Half bud, half blossom, and a gem—
Such as one finds in autumn morns
When all the grass with dew is strung—
On every fairy bugle hung.

Careless, I dropped it, in a place
Where no light shone, and so forgot
Its delicate, dewy, flowering grace.
Till presently from the dark spot
A charming sense of sweetness came,
That woke an answering sense of shame.

Quickly I thought, O heart of mine,
A lesson for thee plain to read;
Then needest not that light should shine,
Or fellow-men thy virtues heed;
Enough—if haply this be so—
That thou hast sweetness to bestow!

—Theodore Tilton.

The vicar made a bad break the other day. At the close of the anthem he rose to preach, and tactlessly chose the text, "Now when the noise had ceased——"

But the choir got their own back. At the end of the long prosy sermon they rose and spontaneously burst into the anthem, "And when we awoke from our sleep."

Earthquake studies are to be conducted on a large scale in Soviet Russia, according to information received in Washington. One hundred seismograph stations are to be constructed and equipped with the latest type of instruments. Inasmuch as the whole vast interior of European Asia, the scene of frequent earthquakes, is now virtually without facilities for the study of these phenomena, it is expected that the completion will result in substantial additions to the world's earthquake information.

A woman visitor told Leslie Peterson, guide at the Kansas Capitol, that there was a woman there she would like to see, but she couldn't think of her name. Peterson told her he had been taught to knit as a boy and during the war knitted many sweaters for the soldiers and since then for the State house women. If she could tell her friend's size he might identify her. The visitor described the woman and the guide led the visitor directly to the office where the woman worked, identifying her instantly when the sweater was mentioned.

A RENEWAL OF SELLING PRESSURE MADE PRICES OF STOCKS IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—(AP)—Renewal of selling pressure against a number of sugar, motor, rubber and miscellaneous shares turned the course of prices irregular today after an early period of strength. Liquidation of the sugar and rubber shares was influenced by price cuts on refined sugar and automobile tires. Trading was fairly heavy in volume, but again failed to reach the 2,000,000 share mark.

The early rise was influenced, in part, by a reduction in the call money rate from 4 to 3 1-2 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged. Except for special dividend disbursements by the Brown Shoe, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore and Vacuum Oil companies, the day's business news was rather colorless in character.

Speculative opinion is still sharply divided as to the future trend of prices, although it is generally agreed that the trend of business will be the determining factor. Expert observers point out that credit facilities are still ample. The declines of about 12 points each in the rail and industrial averages from the high levels of the year have resulted in the elimination of many weakened speculative accounts and impaired others, but the apparent increase in the short interest has also served to strengthen the technical position of the market.

The official statement that the original Dupont investment in U. S. Steel common was intact had a bullish effect on steel stock, which closed 1 3-8 points higher at 131 1-4 after having fluctuated between 130 1-8 and 133 1-8. At one time the spread between steel and General Motors had narrowed down to 1 1-2 points, but later lengthened to 4 points when General Motors sold down to 127 1-4, off 1 point net.

A few high priced specialties reached new 1927 high prices including American Machine & Foundry, Adams Express and American Railway Express. Substantial gains also were recorded by Case Threshing, Midland Steel Products preferred, Otis Elevator, Rossia Insurance and a few local bank stocks.

Selling of the sugars followed the announcement that one of the large refiners would consider business at a price 10 points below the prevailing market. American Sugar Refining, which had run up to 73 in early trading, collapsed again to a new 1927 low at 65 1-4 and then rallied to 66 7-8, off 3 1-8 net. Cuba Cane preferred and Cuban-American preferred also sank to new lows and all the others were close to their 1927 bottom prices.

A reduction of 5 per cent in certain tire prices by a leading manufacturer stimulated the selling of the rubber shares. Mack Trucks broke 5 points, Hudson 2 and White touched a new low for the year.

Commodity prices moved within narrow and irregular limits. Cotton futures advanced slightly with trading held in check pending the publication of the new government estimate. Wheat futures were fractionally lower but corn prices advanced. Coffee prices held firm and raw sugar futures eased slightly.

Foreign exchange trading was quiet—because of the widespread observance of All Saints day in Europe and South America. Moderate rallies in the Norwegian and Spanish rates were the only features. Sterling cables ruled around 4.86 7-8 and French francs around 3.92 1-4 cents.

Whereas, a rabid dog has recently run at large in the town of Woodstock, thereby exposing persons, dogs and other domestic animals to the infectious disease known as Hablea, now,

Therefore, the Commissioner on Domestic Animals, deeming it reasonable and necessary for the security of the inhabitants and their property and to prevent the spread of said disease and to protect the public therefrom, in pursuance of the authority given under Chapter 269, Public Acts of 1925, hereby makes and promulgates the following rules and regulations for confining, controlling and destroying dogs and other domestic animals in the town of Woodstock:

HEART TROUBLE CAUSED THE DEATH OF CALVIN A. BEEBE, JR. AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 1—Calvin A. Beebe, Jr., 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Beebe, Fitch avenue, whose sudden death marred the Halloween celebration at the Y. M. C. A. last night, did not meet his death by suffocation in a dumb-waiter as was supposed, but succumbed to an attack of the heart, according to Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman. The boy had suffered from a weakened condition of the vital organ a long time and when he entered the dumb-waiter and with other boys tugged on the rope that hoisted the device the heart's action was affected. When the boy started to hoist himself from the basement floor to the floor above the exertion was too great for the heart with the result that the boy suffered the attack while the waiter was between the two floors. He was unable to cry for assistance and his companions believed that he had climbed from the elevator on the upper floor. Had they made a search for their companion there is a possibility that the boy's life might have been saved, but it was nearly half an hour after the Nathan Hale grammar school student had been missed that a search was made for him. The waiter was lowered and the huddled form of the youth was taken from it and carried to one of the assembly rooms, where physicians worked heroically in an endeavor to revive him, for it was believed that life existed, although there was no pulse. A call was made upon the fire department for a pulmotor and within three minutes after the call was received at fire headquarters, Thomas Gilbert, driver of Niagara Engine company, was operating the life-saving device in a further endeavor to revive the stricken lad. During the greater part of the two and one-half hours' labor by physicians and members of the fire department to resuscitate the boy, his father, who had been summoned watched the fruitless endeavors by which it was hoped the boy's life would be saved.

NORWICH WOMAN DRIVER ORDERED WATERFORD COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 1—Michael Scalzulla has been unusually busy the past few days keeping out of the clutches of the law, but he was in no ways successful in doing so. Last Friday Scalzulla was ordered into court for three automobile violations on State street. The next day he was fined $10 and costs on each count making $43 that Scalzulla paid into the city treasury. Sunday night Scalzulla was driving his automobile on the Norwich road and when near Quaker Hill the car collided with another auto driven by Miss Ethel Melvin of Norwich. State Police Officer George Sisson investigated Sunday night's accident and as a result Scalzulla was arrested today. He was ordered to present himself in the police court in Waterford next Friday afternoon and answer to a charge of violation of the state motor vehicle law in failing to grant right of way. Miss Melvin was also arrested on a similar charge and was ordered to appear in court the same day.

Miss Carrie F. Davies of Montauk avenue, employed as bookkeeper in a Bank street market, reported to the police this evening that her Dodge roadster had been stolen. Miss Davies left the automobile in front of her place of employment when she returned from lunch this noon. She observed the auto parked there at 4 o'clock, but at 6.30 o'clock when she started to go to her home she discovered that it was missing. The auto is of 1922 model and carries Connecticut registration 9067. The state police at the Centerbrook and Groton barracks and the police of Norwich, Westerly, Middletown, New Haven and Hartford were asked to be on the lookout for the auto.

Abraham Turner, Brooklyn, was best man and Miss Anna Lubchansky, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Misses Mae Ross, Sylvia Goodman, Annie Levine, and Minnie Flock, of New York. Mr. and Mrs. Goodman are spending their wedding trip at Atlantic City and upon its termination will reside at 501 East 93rd street Brooklyn.

Miss Marion Polley, 13 Walker street, is spending a few days in Providence.

SHORTAGE FOUND IN TREASURER'S ACCOUNT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 1—Dyer S. Elliott, for 20 years town clerk and treasurer of Thompson, has tendered his resignation to the selectmen and it was accepted today at a meeting of the board. The town books are being audited for the first time it has ever been done by experienced accountants. The selectmen admit that there is a shortage and that the accounts are involved. They place no figure on the amount of the possible shortage, but from other sources it is estimated to be about $10,000.

Mr. Elliott has had the utmost confidence of the townspeople and it is said that he has agreed to make good any loss that may be shown. It is claimed that this loss is due to loose bookkeeping and he has not made personal use of the town's funds.

Charles V. Chase has been selected as his successor.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Lyceum Theater

Famous for her dimples and golden curls to millions of motion picture fans throughout the world, Lillian Walker, the vivacious little artist will be seen in the forthcoming melo-dramatic thriller The Banshee, at the Lyceum theater, New London, Friday and Saturday, Nov. 4-5 with a matinee on Saturday.

In an interview today Miss Walker stated: "The lure of the legitimate stage was overpowering and when I was approached by the producers of The Banshee, I simply could not refuse them, especially as the part assigned to me is one that I have been seeking for some time and I feel that after all is said and done, the speaking stage is my first love."

The Banshee is being directed by Clark Silvernail. The cast includes Marion Kerby, Joseph Brennan, Dana Desboro, Barry Macullum and Doane Borup.

Palace Theater

The big hit at the Palace theater the first half of the week, proved to be the Gangler Novelty Circus, who have delighted old and young with the display of animal intelligence exhibited on the stage. This act is being shown for the last times today in conjunction with the feature picture Silk Stockings, and four other acts of real good vaudeville.

Whenever the name of Mrs. Wallace Reid appears on a screen production something unusual may be looked for. The Satin Woman, which is the feature photoplay for the last three days of the week, is no exception. Here is the spectacular vivid story of a woman who, by virtue of her flair for style was able to win applause of the world but who at the same time, lost the love of her husband and family. Mrs. Reid personally plays the title role and for her supporting cast has secured the services of Rockliffe Fellows, John Miljan, Alice White, Laska Winters, Gladys Brockwell, Ethel Wales and Ruth Stonehouse.

The vaudeville program featured in conjunction with The Satin Woman brings to the Palace stage the best talent obtainable, among the five acts being comedy, singing, dancing, novelty entertainment, music and other forms of divertisement.

Broadway Theatre

It is difficult to express in the space at our disposal our admiration for the artists and producers responsible for adding the Universal-Film de France Production of "Les Miserables" to the world's screen entertainment. We feel that we can pay the film no greater or more sincere compliment than to say that it is Victor Hugo's story come to life. The children of his brain take shape before us and suffer and rejoice again through the genius and enterprise of these French artists. One feels that were the author himself able to witness this film, he would agree that no literary work has yet been translated into the language of pictures more sincerely or with greater restraint and humility. That it has been a labor of love for all concerned is apparent from the opening scenes to the death of Jean Valjean in the finale.

Naturally, the dominating role is that of Jean Valjean—as woodcutter, thief, convict, mayor—hunted by the upholders of law and order and helped by the servants of God. Gabriel Gabrio acts this difficult part with restraint and understanding, and clearly delineates the progress of his slowly awakening conscience, until his final act of supreme self-abnegation—his release from death of Javert, his archenemy and persecutor.

Les Miserables, will end its engagement at the Broadway theatre tonight.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Chester Conklin and George Bancroft, Paramount's new comedy team, will appear in the rollicking romance of roistering railroaders "Tell It to Sweeney." It's a signal for a good time so we would advise you not to miss it.

Strand Theater

Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights at the Strand theater another wonderful double picture program with Priscilla Dean in The Dice Woman and Fred Thomson and his wonder horse in Silver Comes Thru.

Dramatic action, sentiment, humor and thrills abound in Priscilla Dean's new starring picture, The Dice Woman while Fred Thomson and the horse with a personality, Silver is a corking thrilling story of the vindication of a wonder horse. Don't miss this double feature program at the Strand Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

Breed Theatre

Magnificent indeed is the Warner special, "When a Man Loves," which closes tonight at the Breed. The direction is by Alan Crosland who was responsible for the splendou. of "Don Juan" and the story is laid in the golden age of France depicting the fabulous riches and unspeakable poverty in the days of Louis XV.

It retells the well known and passionately beautiful love story of Manon Lescaut and Fabien Des Grieux; two youths whose devotion had been to religious until their chance meeting aroused within each, the fires of unquenchable love.

"When a Man Loves," is a production to acclaim from the housetops.

George O'Brien, said to be the screen's most perfect athlete has the stellar role of Ed Chick Cowan in "Is Zat So?", Fox Films version of the James Gleason-Richard Taber comedy drama. The part of Cowan calls for an all around athlete, a prize fighter who becomes champion and O'Brien with his splendid physique is splendidly fitted for the role.

"Is Zat So?" which will have a showing at the theatre commencing Thursday includes in its cast, Edmund Lowe, Kathryn Perry, Doris Lloyd, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and other screen favorites.

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 1.—What looks to the firemen like a false alarm called the fire truck to the N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad station at 6:45. No fire was found. It is reported that some automobile owner called from the depot pay station, thinking his machine was about to get afire.

The Woman's Mission Circle met in the parlors of the Baptist church Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. R. A. Wilbur had charge of the meeting and had prepared a one-act missionary play called "All One." Those who took part in it were Mrs. Nellie Swift as Mrs. Brooks, superintendent of the Primary department of the Sunday school; Mrs. B. R. Gardner, as Helen Shaw, interested in general missions, Gertrude Shaw, her sister, Mrs. John McLean, and Ruth Green, interested in missions, Mrs. Lewis Hewlitt. Mrs. Wilbur sang twice during the play. It proved to be a very pleasant variation in the regular programs. A Christmas party is to be held Dec. 8. Mrs. Brown served tea and cakes.

The Halloween celebrators departed from the safe and sane line in Sylvandale, Monday evening, when some one threw a pumpkin through the parlor window of the Baptist parsonage where, shattering the large window, the vegetable landed on the parlor floor.

In the borough gaily dressed queens paraded the streets, while bold, bad buccaneers proved not so fierce as their appearance indicated. Those who answered rings at the door were confronted with strange masked faces of glaring jack-o-lanterns. As some of the Halloween pranks of 40 years ago were recalled, the present celebrations seem reasonably mild. The late C. H. Ray used to tell of one night when 50 or more front gates were changed in the village.

No local weather record of recent date tells the story of any such day as Nov. 1, in this section. During the afternoon the mercury rose to 76 degrees, by far a warmer and altogether "rarer" day than many of last June.

Furnace fires were banked, kitchen ranges were cold, and with windows and doors open, some said "it's a weather breeder," while others declared it was a forerunner of Indian summer. Whatevere it was, it was a beauty.

MYSTIC

The members of the Old Mystic Baptist church gave their pastor, Rev. Francis M. Mitchell, a halloween surprise party Monday evening. A few of the members had been busy soliciting and collecting things for a large box to be placed on the doorstep; it proved too small to hold all the articles, so a second box was filled. It contained 40 pounds of sugar, vegetables of many kinds, apples, groceries, a box of chocolates, and an envelope containing money. In answering the bell Mr. Mitchell found a masked caller who handed him the letter and money, quickly disappearing, while others watched from a distance to see him get the supplies into the house.

A Bridgeport Sunday paper contained the following item: Attorney John P. Gray, former prosecutor of the Bridgeport city court and widely known resident of Laurel avenue, who is now in business in South America is spending a few days renewing friendships in this city. Mr. Gray handles legal affairs for South American exporters and travels all over the world. His family resides in Mystic. His wife and son and two daughters are living on Library street and the two older sons, John and Philip are students at Wesleyan.

Dr. and Mrs. Walter Russell of New Haven came Sunday and took Mr. and Mrs. William H. Marsh home with them. Mr. Marsh will enter a hospital for treatment.

George H. Bailey of New London called on Wallace Phillips Monday.

Mrs. Ida Norman of Old Mystic called on her aunt, Mrs. Eliza A. Copp Sunday afternoon.

So Clean Inside, No Fear of Perspiration Offense, However Over-Heated

Once a person realizes the wonderful properties in cascara, no other laxative in the market would ever be considered.

It's no trick to "clean out the bowels." Dozens of things will do that. But a little natural cascara purifies the system clear through. Cleanses even the pores of your skin. Renders perspiration as inoffensive as so much dew! The old fashioned way was "salts." They get action, but they take the mucous membrane along with the waste matter! Mineral oils are gentler, but they leave the bowels with a film of poisons for the blood to carry off through the pores. But when you cascarize the system, you get rid of all the poisons by normal muscular action of the bowels.

If you have the habit of taking medicine for constipation, or even for auto-intoxication, stop it. For a candy cascaret is a delightful form in which to take cascara; children love them, and the taste tempts most grown-ups to have "more."

And what a comfort to know you are in that clean, wholesome condition that does away with any need of deodorants, even in warmest weather! Try a cascaret tonight—see how you feel next day, and for days after! With the skin fresh and fragrant. All druggists, 10c and 25c.

"ANYTHING that gets results, was all the thought I ever gave to laxatives. In those days my perspiration was so acid, it used to rot my clothes. Then a doctor tipped me off to those wonderful little sweeteners—

THREE MASSES TUESDAY AT ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH

At St. Patrick's church the observance of the Feast of All Saints—known and unknown—began with low mass read Tuesday morning at 5 o'clock by Rev. John J. Reilly, for the accommodation of parishioners obliged to go to work early. At 7 mass was read by Rev. Myles P. Galvin, the mass at 8 being read by the rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May.

At each mass there was a large number to receive holy communion and at 8 o'clock Monsignor May required the assistance of Father Galvin in administering the sacrament, as special confessions had been heard the previous afternoon and evening. November is the month which the Catholic church devotes to remembrance of the holy souls, particularly the souls of relatives and friends who, through some blemish of sin may be detained in the purgation state until they have atoned and are worthy to enter the presence of God. Consequently many of the holy communions were offered in propitiation for the souls in Purgatory. Large congregations attended the three masses Tuesday; also during the day and evening many paid special visits to the church to offer prayers for the eternal welfare of the souls of their relatives and of all the faithful departed. Similar visits will be made today (Wednesday) the Feast of all Souls.

WOMEN APPROACHING MIDDLE AGE

Pass Through This Trying Period in Good Condition by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

MRS. HARVEY TUCKER
R. R. 9, SHELBYVILLE, IND

"Grow old along with me,
The best is yet to be"

With her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do the things she never had time to do before—read the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grandchildren, take an active part in church and civic affairs. Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds a full, rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good.

Thousands of women of middle age, say they owe their vigor and health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Those who have learned through their own experience the merit of this dependable medicine are enthusiastic in recommending it to their friends and neighbors.

"I had been in bad condition for three months. I could not do my work. One day I read what your medicine had done and just had a feeling that it would help me, so I sent and got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had only taken half a bottle when I got up and started to do my work. It gave me an appetite, and helped me wonderfully. I can not praise this medicine highly enough. I surely will advise all women and girls to take it, and they don't have to use rouge to look healthy. My two daughters are taking it now and one is also using the Sanative Wash. I am willing to have you use this testimonial and I will answer letters from women asking about the medicine."—Mrs. Harvey Tucker, R. R. No. 9, Shelbyville, Indiana.

"I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the little books you give away and began to take the medicine. After the first few bottles I began to feel better and could eat better and had fewer headaches. I feel like a different person. At anytime that I don't feel good I take the Vegetable Compound again, as I always keep a bottle on hand. You may use this letter for every word is true. I will answer any letters sent to me."—Mrs. Jennie Bollerman, 611-11th St., Union City, N. J.

GOV. AL. SMITH REPLIES TO COL. THEODORE ROOSEVELT

Calls Attention of the Colonel to the Fact That Police Raids Have Revealed Gambling in Both Democratic and Republican Clubhouses—Mentions That in One Republican Clubhouse Raid the Police Met With Armed Resistance and That Gunmen With Police Records Were in the Employ of the Club—Charges Roosevelt With Complete Ignorance of Fiscal Matters in the State.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Counter charges of open gambling in republican clubhouses, together with the additional charge that in one such club armed gunmen were hired to protect the play, were made today by Governor Alfred E. Smith in a statement replying to similar chargest made against democratic clubhouses by Colonel Theodore Roosevelt.

Colonel Roosevelt, in his keynote speech at the republican state convention in Rochester which was supplemented in a recent speech in an uptown school house, asserted that Gov. Smith, having been identified throughout his political career with Tammany Hall, must accept responsibility for the corrupt conditions the speaker attributed to Tammany Hall. He termed the governor the "bell wether" of the democratic political organizer.

The governor prefaced his statement with the remark that it must seem strange to the people of the state that "the young colonel" should "devote himself to an attack on me and my administration" in the heat of a campaign on nine constitutional amendments "many of which are of grave importance." The statement ended with return to this subject.

"Why don't you try to render a real service to the state?" Talk about the pending constitutional amendments, no matter which side of the question you take. You will at least be stirring up public interest in the real issue of the campaign, and quit the job of trying to pull the red hot political chestnuts out of the fire for the discredited leaders of your old, broken down, dilapidated, corrupt, republican machine."

The governor freely admitted the truth of Col. Roosevelt's charges about gambling in democratic clubhouses and the police raids that uncovered it.

"That is true," he said, "the raids were directed by a police commissioner who was appointed from my cabinet by the mayor of the city. But I did not hear you say anything about the raids that were made on republican clubhouses for open gambling, and lest you have knowledge of it let me say that in one republican clubhouse that was raided, police were met with armed resistance, and it is a matter of record in police headquarters that gunmen with police records were in the employ of this republican club to protect the game. * * *

"Bear in mind, colonel, that I am just as much opposed to gambling as you are. * * * But while we are talking about it lets be truthful."

Governor Smith denied a statement of Col. Roosevelt that he had investigated republican counties and failed to investigate democratic ones.

He charged the colonel with complete ignorance of fiscal matters in the state and stald that figures Roosevelt used to bolster up his arguments were evidently prepared by "somebody in the republican state committee who knows as little about the subject as you."

"Please do not insult the intelligence of the people of the state" he said in conclusion, "by attempting to lead them to believe that the governor is a policeman and should go out patrolling his post every night looking for violators of the law."

TROTZKY ARRAIGNED BY RUSSIA'S "MAN OF STEEL"

MOSCOW, Russia, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Joseph Stalin, Russia's "man of steel," threw down the gauntlet to the opposition at a recent stormy meeting of the general committee of the communist party. Leon Trotzky had raked Stalin and other leaders over the coals and had declared, during the course of his violent attack, that Lenin wanted Stalin eliminated.

In a letter, read at the meeting, which Lenin wrote prior to his death, he recommended Stalin's removal, saying "Stalin is too rough—a defect fully tolerable in our midst, but it becomes intolerable in his post as secretary-general. Therefore I propose, comrades, a deliberate means of taking Stalin out of his post and replacing him by someone differing from Stalin in the following respects—more patient, more loyal, more courageous, more attentive to his comrades, less capricious."

Answering Trotzky's charges, Stalin admitted that Lenin had willed his dismissal from the post of general secretary of the communist party, and declared emphatically:

"Yes, I am rough," he looked Trotzky straight in eyes. "Yes," am rough," he repeated. "Rough regarding those who roughly and faithlessly try to destroy the communist party."

Stalin paused to permit his words to penetrate; then went on: "I have knowledge of all the opposition tricks better than they are aware, perhaps. It is not easy to fool Stalin at any time day or night."

He hoped that the opposition would to all the cursing it liked, if that would do it any good.

DRIFTED NEARLY A YEAR WITHOUT BEING SIGHTED

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 2.—(AP)—A story of privation and slowly-awaited death was told in a message, transcribed today from the crew of the ill-fated Japanese fishing smack Ryo Yei Maru, who starved after floating nearly a year at sea.

The note was formally written, though barely decipherable on a piece of cedar on which it had been written.

Mariners marvelled that the ship could have drifted in the ocean nearly a year without being sighted. The Ryo Yei Maru was taken in two to Seattle today, and a suit for salvage claims was expected to be filed in federal court by the owners of the freighter Margaret Dollar.

The bodies of two of the victims, last survivors of the crew, were to be cremated here before being sent to Japan for burial. Physicians yesterday said cannibalism undoubtedly had been practiced before the last two men were overtaken by death.

BERGDOLL NOT PLANNING EARLY RETURN TO THE U. S.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—(AP)—So far as the department of justice is informed, Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, the draft evader, still is in Germany and does not contemplate an early attempt to return to the United States.

Recently inquiries have been made in his behalf both at the department of justice and the war department whether he could return without being prosecuted. This decision has been left to the war department, which so far has stood firm for prosecuting Bergdoll as son as he comes within reach.

MASSACHUSETTS HUNTER SAW SEVEN ALLIGATORS

UXBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 2—(AP)—Joseph Shaughnessy, night operator of the local telephone exchange, while hunting pheasants today came upon seven alligators sunning themselves on the bank of the Mumford river here and sho ttwo of them.

The largest of the two killed was three feet 10 inches long and weighed pounds. They will be placed on exhibition tomorrow in the show window of a local store. Residents of this section are unable to account for the presence of the alligators.

DISCUSSION OF MINING SITUATION IN OHIO

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 2.—(AP)—The executive committee of the Ohio Coal Operators' association meeting here today disclosed the mining situation in Ohio in general, but took no concrete action, J. L. Good, secretary announced tonight.

While no statement was forthcoming from those who attended the meeting, the intimation was made that there might be developments of considerable interest to Ohio miners and the trade in general at tomorrow's session.

The Ohio mine situction, marked by burning and dynamiting of mine tipples, isolated shootings of non-union miners and union workmen, and federal injunctions restraining union sympathizers from interfering with operation of mines on a non-union basis, now is in a deadlocked condition.

Ohio operators have refused to meet the miners on any proposition that has as its basis wage the Jacksonville scale while miners have insisted that this be the basis of any parley looking to the signing of individual agreements.

Since granting of a federal injunction to many of the largest Ohio operators restraining union members from interfering with operation of non-union mines, many of the large mines have been reopened.

Mining operations in the state have been suspended since April 1.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS PORTUGUESE SCHOONER

BOSTON, Nov. 2—(AP)—The Portuguese schooner, Aida, lay under guard in President roads again tonight while the mystery surrounding her seizure continued to deepen in the absence of any statement from coast guard officialdom in this city or in Washington.

The coast guard base here reiterated today that the Aida was seized off Cape Cod yesterday by the coast guard destroyer Burroughs acting on orders direct from Washington, and that the Portuguese government had requested such action.

In waterfront circles today it was asserted that the Aida carried no liquor. Her papers show that she cleared Halifax, N. S., on October 17 for Ceuta, Morocco, in charge of a Captain Fonseca. His manifest shows a cargo of salt. Her proximity to Cape Cod when the Burroughs seized her has gone unexplained, and requests for confirmation or denial of current waterfront reports that she is filibustering have been met with silence.

TO RE-ARREST THE FORMER ENFIELD TAX COLLECTOR

HARTFORD, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Clark L. Hamilton, former tax collector of the town of Enfield, who was paroled from the state prison today after serving little more than a year of his one to three years' term for embezzling $60,000 of the funds of his office, will be arrested again when he leaves the prison, it was indicated tonight.

Lawyer Philip J. Sullivan, Jr., who was counsel when Hamilton's defalcations were discovered and who is now representing the Thompsonville and North Thompsonville fire and sewer districts, said that definite announcement of the new proceedings against Hamilton would be made tomorrow afternoon.

THE SOUTHERN FARM CONFERENCE DEMANDS

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 2—(AP)—A demand for repassage by the next congress of the McNary-Haugen bill, which was vetoed by President Coolidge at the last session, or passage of a similar farm relief bill was made in in resolutions adopted today by the corn belt and southern farm conference at its closing session here.

Although many individual members of the conference had spoken in favor of the presidential candidacy of former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, the resolutions did not indorse any candidate but urged "united support of the man in each political party whose position on the farm question is known to be satisfactory."

National Armistice Day Proclamation

Calls For Display of American Flag and Suitable Exercises in Schools and Churches.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—(AP)—By proclamation, President Coolidge today set aside Nov. 11 as Armistice day, calling upon the people to express their gratitude for peace and their desires for a continuance of amicable relations with other nations.

The proclamation, issued under a congressional resolution, suggests the display of the American emblem and suitable exercises in schools and churches. It atext follows:

"By the president of the United States of America.

"A proclamation

"Whereas, the eleventh of November 1918, marked the cessation of the destructive, sanguinary, and far-reaching war in human annals; and

"Whereas, by concurrent resolution of the senate and the house of representatives, in 1926, the president was requested to issue a proclamation for the observance of Armistice day;

"Now, therefore, I, Calvin Coolidge, president of the United States, in pursuance of said concurrent resolution, do hereby order that the flag of the United States be displayed on all government buildings on Nov. 11, 1927 and do invite the people of the United States to observe the day in schools and in churches, and other suitable places, with appropriate ceremonies, giving expression to our gratitude that peace exists and to our sincere desire that such amicable relations with all other peoples may continue.

"CALVIN COOLIDGE,

"By the president:

"FRANK B. KELLOGG,

"Secretary of state."

A 70 YEAR OLD FARMER IS SUSPECTED OF WIFE MURDER

MIDLAND, Mich., Nov. 2—(AP)—Joe Dettloff, 70 year old farmer, faces a charge of murdering his 65-year-old invalid wife, after 44 years of married life. The body of Mrs. Dettloff was found Monday in the log cabin in which the couple and two sons of Mrs. Dettloff by a former marriage had lived for 35 years.

"We had quarreled for 25 years," Dettloff told officers in the county jail today. "Three times she had tried to poison me and each time I had to beat her. Sunday she had been in bed since Wednesday and would eat nothing. She begged me to kill her. She could not even help herself and I did all the washing and work around the house and farm.

"Sunday night I woke about midnight and she was trying to sprinkle poison on me."

Dettloff admitted that he went into her bedroom and hit her, but insists the blows did not cause her death. The next morning, he said, she was dead and he came here for a priest.

An autopsy performed over the body disclosed that the aged woman had suffered a broken chest, 12 broken ribs, bruises and cuts. Examination of Dettloff is set for Nov. 14.

AMPHIBIAN PLANE DAWN BEING RECONDITIONED

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Mrs. Frances Grayson's amphibian plane, the Dawn, was being diagnosed today preparatory to treatment which it is hoped will put it in condition for a fourth and successful attempt to span the Atlantic, but the identity of the pilot and navigator remained a matter of some confusion.

Mrs. Grayson said that Bernt Balchen, who landed Commander Byrd's America in the surf of the French coast, was to be the pilot, but Balchen said there was nothing definite about it. Clarence Chamberlin, who flew Charles Levine to Germany, said he was still considering the post but had made no decision.

It all simmered down to the triple possibility that either Balchen or Chamberlin might go, that both of them might go, or that neither of them might go.

NEW BRITAIN MAN HELD ON CHARGE OF COUNTERFEITING

NEW BRITAIN, Nov. 2—(AP)—John Kopel, 29, of this city, was held here tonight for hearing before Federal Commissioner McLaughlin in Hartford tomorrow on charges of counterfeiting.

Kopel admitted to police and Federal Inspector Gilmartin that he had raised a $5 bill to a $20 by clipping the figures from several genuine $20 notes and pasting them over the corners of the smaller note. By using several 20's, Kopel could still cash the partially mutilated notes and gain the $15 on his raised bill.

He was arrested when identified by William Buden, a grocer, who recognized him as the man who had passed such a bill across the counter in return for $5 worth of groceries.

DR. HORWITZ AT LIBERTY UNDER BONDS OF $5,000

Fall-Sinclair Case Declared a Mistrial

Grand Jury Will Investigate Charges of Jury Tampering Before New Trial is Begun.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—(AP)—Another startling chapter in the dramatic story of the naval oil leases was closed today with the declaration of a mistrial in the hearing of criminal conspiracy charges against two of the foremost actors in the long drama—Albert B. Fall and Harry F. Sinclair.

A grand jury will write new history in its investigation of charges of jury tampering before the former interior secretary and the multi-millionaire oil operator and sportsman come to the bar of justice again for a new trial, probably in January.

Meantime, these principals in a celebrated case have been crowded completely out of the spotlight by a hitherto obscure young leather worker, who probably never has seen his name in print before this trial. He is Edward J. Kidwell, juror No. 11.

For fleeting minutes Juror Kidwell this morning sat in the jury box, pale-faced and trembling, the center of a thousand eyes, awaiting whatever fate might have in store as a result of charges that he had talked freely about the case against the orders of the court and had said that he expected to soon have an automobile "as long as this block."

Justice Frederick L. Siddons singled him out to inform him that certain affidavits touching his conduct as a juror had been presented to the court and that he could read them. That was all from the court for the time being, and if Justice Siddons contemplates any contempt proceedings he has given no indication of that intention.

FRENCH TARIFF NOTE HAS BEEN DELIVERED

PARIS, Nov. 2—(AP)—A note which probably will be the last of the preliminary documents from the French side in the tariff discussion with the United States was handed to Sheldon Whitehouse, American charge d'affaires, this evening.

The new note is understood to be merely a summary of what already has passed between the two governments in connection with the Amercan protest gainst alleged discrimination, and its object is to make clear the French understanding of the situation at the outset of negotiations for a commercial agreement.

The text of the document will be kept secret as far as the French are concerned, it was said this evening, but it was also remarked that it raises no new contention and is not at all likely to halt progress toward active negotiations. At the American embassy it was said that the American government would be given information as to the note by cable tonight.

PROGRESS OF COMMITTEE HEARING ON TAX REDUCTION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—(AP)—Through its various trade organizations, business today placed its argument for a reduction in the tax on incomes of corporations, before the house ways and means committee, a majority of the spokesmen advocating a 8 1-2 per cent cut compared with a 1 1-3 per cent reduction recommended by the treasury.

Discussion of this levy, now 13 1-2 per cent on a corporation's net income, less certain deductions, occupied the committee's attention to the exclusion of practically all other subjects, and witnesses who failed to suggest a specific cut in the rate were nevertheless unanimous in urging that it be pared down as far as the condition of the treasury would permit.

While democratic committee members frequently asked how the corporation tax could be cut to 10 per cent and the total tax reduction held to the treasury maximum of $225,000,000, the witnesses were not inclined to discuss the administration estimates.

HOW STRIPED ADDER HAD CRIPPLED ENGLISH SETTER

NEW GLOUCESTER, Maine, Nov. 2—(AP)—Ickininny, favorite English setter of Edward A. Atherton, a well known dog trainer, was quartering through a clump of small firs at intervale yesterday, where Mr. Atherton with his 13 year old son, Ashton, was hunting woodcock, when she suddenly stopped and let out several barks of distress.

Bird dogs, being silent workers, Ashton hurried to investigate such an unusual outburst. "Pick" was on three legs with the right hind leg raised and stretched out. Closer examination showed a large, striped adder with its tail hooked twice around a stump and its forepart wound once around the dog's leg.

The snake was severed in the middle with a sharp rock and the animal released, uninjured.

OHIO DRY COMMISSIONER READY FOR INVESTIGATION

COLUMBUS, Nov. 2—(AP)—Branding as a "campaign effusion," State Senator Paul Herbert's letter yesterday in which he declared he would ask for an investigation of the anti-saloon league in prohibition enforcement, B. P. McDonald, prohibition commissioner, declared hsi department "stands ready for an investigation at any time and really courts an investigation from anyone except a body of dry law nullifiers," in an open letter to Herbert made public today.

The prohibition head denied officers alleged in Herbert's letter ot have been involved in enforcement irregularities in Auglaize and Shelby counties were members of the state prohibition department. "As usual," McDonald's letter says, "you have the wrong pig by the ear."

ABNORMAL HEAT WAVE HAS BROKEN IN BOSTON

BOSTON, Nov. 2—(AP)—The abnormal heat wave which has prevailed n this city for two days receded this afternoon after equalling the record for the day and approaching to within one degree of the record for the month in the half century annals of the government weather bureau here.

For two hours today the mercury stood at 75 degrees. Only in 1876 has a November 2 been as warm, the records show. The honors for the hottest November day in Boston still remain, however, with November 7, 1924, when the official reading was 76 degrees. The forecasters looked for showers tonight followed by cooler and more normal temperatures.

COLORADO HAS CURBED PICKETING AT THE MINES

I. W. W. Publicity Director Says They Expect to Continue to Picket—National Guardsmen Will Be Sent to the Mines Should Strikers Attempt to Resume Picketing—Working Forces at the Mines Are Being Increased as I. W. W. Terrorism is Held in Check.

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 2—(AP)—Quiet reigned in the strike-affected coal fields of Colorado today as the miners complied with demands of the state that picketing be stopped. Governor Adams indicated that if pickets defied the order, national guardsmen would be sent to the mines.

Operators claimed large increases in their working forces at properties in the southern fields, and expressed the belief that the mine crews soon would be back to normal if there was no more picketing.

Although 400 striking miners at Walsenburg last night voted to picket, there were no demonstrations by the workers in that area today.

I. W. W. leaders, who called the strike issued an official bulletin from their headquarters in Walsenburg expressing satisfaction with the situation and declaring that "We expect to carry on in the usual way, delegating ourselves to regular organization work." The statement made no mention of picketing, but Frank Orr, publicity director of the organization, said that "We expect to continue to picket."

The northern Colorado coal operations still were paralyzed by the strike and only one mine, the Columbine in Weld county, operated. The Routt county field reported many more miners were working and in Fremont county the situation also seemed improved as to the number of men working.

VAN LOON-GOODRICH AFFAIR IS "NO FOOL MARRIAGE"

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP)—"Twaddle," was the brief say in which Hendrick Van Loon, modern historian, today disposed of stories of his ultra-modern marriage to Francis Goodrich, actress.

Living apart from his wife, said Mr. Van Loon, who readily admits his 45 years and his two previous marriages, is a matter of necessity, in view of the hard-heartedness of their respective landlords.

Miss Goodrich lives uptown, while her husband has an apartment in Greenwich Village, but neither can get away from the irrevocable leases which they signed the first of October, just previous to thei marriage.

"We entered into no fool marriage," insisted the author of "Tolerance," and "The Story of Mankind." "We are sensible people, and we married in sensible fashion. All these reports about artistic temperament, and such, and silly experiments, and no sharing of home, money, and property, is so much —so much twaddle."

Expressing her views on marrage in general, and living-apart marriages in particular, Miss Goodrich tonight not only cited the binding leases as reasons for maintaining her own apartment, but confessed that she "liked this little place," referring to her Fifty-seventh street establishment.

"There is no reason for couples living on each other's heels all the time," she said. "Living a part, they see each other when they want to. Association is not enforced.

"They are not thrown together at times when one or the other is feeling badly or is nervous or irritable. This avoids quarrels, and I don't know anything I despise more than quarreling."

Of the marriage institution, Miss Goodrich said, she doubted if it would exist as now constituted in another hundred years. She said the state is taking over more and more of the responsibilities and interests of parents and thus shifting the relationship of marriage to meet this change.

DEPUTIES TODAY WILL CONSIDER FRENCH BUDGET

PARIS, Nov. 2—(AP)—The Poincare government, now more than a year old and one of the longest lived in recent French political history, goes back on the firing line tomorrow when the chamber of deputies will meet in special session chiefly to consider the 1928 budget.

The feature of tomorrow's opening session is the reappearance of former President Alexandre Millerand in his seat as senator from the department of Orne, and the presence in parliament of this famous political fighter, after having been defeated for re-election from the department of the Seine, is regarded by some political prophets as foreshadowing a stormy session.

The decision of the recent radical convention to refuse to collaborate in the present Poincare union government makes Millerand, who elected on a national union program, the natural leader of the union forces.

The Poincare government goes before parliament apparently as firmly in the saddle as at any time since it began in August 1926 to prop the crumbling franc, but political prophets are not all sure that it will find the going good throughout the session.

SUBWAY SLEEPER HAS BEEN RELEASED ON BAIL

NEW YORK, Nov. 2—(AP)—James Moore, 19 year old subway sleeper from Lawrence, Mass., who was recently sentenced to serve three months in the workhouse for disorderly conduct, will not have to complete his term.

An order signed today by Justice Herbert modified the sentence to the fine days Moore had served before he was admitted to bail on appeal.

Moore, arrested as he slept on a subway bench, said he had worked as a cement mixed by day and a dish washer by night, sleeping in subway stations to save room rent, and adding his savings to a bank account of $600. Publication of his sentence brought a reputedly wealthy man to his aid and the youth was released on bail.

Three justices of the appellate division ruled that the magistrate's sentence of three months was excessive.

APPOINTED GERMAN AMBASSADOR TO U. S.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—(AP)—Herr O. C. Kiep, charge d'affaires of the German embassy here, late today presented a request to Secretary of state Kellogg that the name of Dr. Wilhelm von Prittwitz-Gaffron be considered as persona grata to succeed the late Baron Ago von Maltzan as the German ambassador.

While the secretary did not announce a decision, it is taken for granted that this is equivalent to Dr. von Prittwitz's selection.

It is assumed that pending the complying with the necessary diplomatic formalities an official announcement of the appointment will not be made by the foreign office.

Dr. Von Prittwitz is at present counsellor of the German embassy.

KILLED HIS DAUGHTER FOR TAMPERING WITH ALARM CLOCK

NEW YORK, Nov. 2—(AP)—Because James Larkin, 57, thought his daughter had tampered with his alarm clock and so caused him to be late for work, he shot and fatally wounded her tonight as she sat eating dinner in their home in Brooklyn.

The daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Monaca, 27, died in the driveway outside, whither she ran after the shot. A police lieutenant caught Larkin as he was running from the house, and took him to a police station, where he admitted he had been drinking.

"I am sorry I shot her," he said.

"He went over to our daughter when he came in, as if to kiss her and make up," Mrs. Larkin told police. "She raised her face to his and then he shot her through the neck with the revolver he had concealed in his right coat pocket."

Larkin admitted to police that after the alarm clock had awakened him at 6.30 a. m., a half hour after his usual hour of rising, he had quarreled with his daughter and then decided he wouldn't go to work because he would "lose his pay, anyway, for being late." He said he had spent most of the day drinking.

AMBASSADOR MORROW BREAKFASTS WITH CALLES

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Breakfast of ham and eggs and hot cakes brought President Calles and Dwight W. Morrow, the American ambassador together this morning at the president's ranch near Mexico City. A four hour conversation ensued.

The American ambassador went to the ranch on invitation of Senor Calles, who sent the presidential car to the United States embassy at 6.30 in the morning. The two men walked over the farm, apparently in close conversation through an interpreter most of the time.

Observers attach significance to this personal and intimate meeting of the president of the republic and the American ambassador, and to the fact that within a few days after the ambassador had formally presented his credentials, President Calles by personal invitation should have established such personal contact.

What they talked about is not revealed.

MARINE WOUNDED IN BATTLE IN NICARAGUA

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Nov. 2—(AP)—A combined combat patrol of United States marines and the national guard fought a fierce engagement with guerrillas yesterday morning, killing or wounding sixty of them.

One marine was wounded and two national guardsmen were killed. The patrol was under command of Lieutenants C. J. Chapell and Mose J. Gould, United States marine corps. Postal inspectors reported that Schmidt's records showed him to have disposed of $515,000 worth of stamps in 18 months, but did not indicate whether all his dealings had been legitimate. RE-VALUATION TO BE TOPIC AT CHAMBER MEETING

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 2—The problem of equalization and re-valuation in the assessment of property which will be discussed in a speech by Arthur O. Lamb of Rocky Hill, an expert on this subject, at the first monthly meeting of the season of the chamber of commerce to be held next Thursday evening. A supper will be served by the ladies of the Woman's Relief corps at 6:30 o'clock. Another important matter to be taken is to take action on the proposal of employing a full-time paid secretary to carry on the work of the chamber. Both of these issues are of vital importance and a large attendance is being arranged for. Local officials have estimated that a proper re-valuation and equalization of the tax list would give the town of Windham a grand list of $25,000,000 or more as compared with approximately $18,000,000 at the present time.

Although some improvement of conditions was made in 1926 assessments, the property is assessed on an average of 47 per cent of the real value and the assessed value has varied in the past from 22 per cent up to 96.4 per cent of valuation. It has been shown conclusively that under the present system the tax payers are paying a tax of about six mills in the town and about 12 mills in the town and city. Although the expenses of the town of Windham increased more than $220,000 in the past few years the revenue from taxation has not increased in proportion. Windham has remained among the lowest tax rate towns in the state in proportion to grand lists. The last and only revaluation of town property was in 1913 and was brought about through the efforts of Dr. George E. Wilcox, then a member of the board of assessors. At that time the grand list was increased by 8 millions of dollars. In round numbers the increase in the grand list in the last 15 years has been 12 and one-half million dollars. The real value of automobiles in the town is nearly two million dollars.

Murphy Brothers, who hold a contract with the railroad to solicit passengers at train time near the railroad station also complained of the encroaching. DANIELSON LEGION PREPARES FOR ARMISTICE DAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 2.—(F)—Danielson's Armistice day observance is beginning to loom up like a real event. American legion members are getting active support in their effort to make it a highly impressive observance, and there is the prospect, all going well, of the parade being unusually good. Today there was a prospect that the reserve officers battalion at the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs with its band, will be in the parade. If the college boys are granted permission of President Beach to accept invitation of the legionnaires to come to Danielson, their transportation will be furnished by the legion committee and meals arranged for them.

The service battery also will turn out, with all of its motor trip equipment, to do honor to the World war's heroes, and fraternal organizations will be well represented, as will, of course, patriotic organizations of the borough.

It was announced this morning that the Chamber of Commerce has made an appropriation for the use of the Legion in meeting the expenditures of the Armistice day observance and has appointed two committees to co-operate with Legion committees in matters or arrangements, or in any way they may be needed. One of the principal objectives being aimed at is to have a general half-holiday here on Armistice day, a week from next Friday. Merchants generally are agreeing to close at noon for the day. Manufacturers are being solicited to close their plants at noon, for two special reasons—that service men may have an opportunity to parade with organizations that will be in line and that all others in the plants may have a chance to attend the interesting program arranged for the afternoon. Legion members are also seeking the co-operation of organizations, especially urging that they be represented in the parade. On Nov. 11, 1918, it was a joyous honor to do this. The Legion men believe that this spirit still lives, and they would be happy to see it displayed in no uncertain way next week.

DANIELSON CHAMBER DISCUSSES MANY VITAL MATTERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 2.—Many things were discussed at last evening's monthly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce at the Attawaugan hotel with President M. H. Berthiaume presiding. Among other things, on motion of E. B. Wilbur, the chamber adopted a resolution appointing a committee to investigate as Killingly's system of valuing property and as to other systems of making valuations for assessment purposes. This committee consists of Walter Anderson, Judge Sabin S. Russell, Ernest R. Warren, Alfred L. Reed, Pierre Jodoin, M. H. Berthiaume and they are to make a report on their findings not later than June, 1928.

In explaining the resolution, Mr. Wilbur said that the state will require the general revaluation of the property within its limits in 1930, and that some towns and cities already are taking action to prepare for this important matter.

A committee composed of Walter Anderson, Norman Reeves and G. L. Caron was appointed to investigate as to having the name Danielson painted on the roof of the armory or some other structure, that this community may be identified by aviators flying overhead, such a practice now becoming general in progressive towns. Mr. Caron said that on account of the type of the armory roof, which is somewhat slanting with the likelihood that it would be difficult to read the name 1500 feet up, especially on a day not clear, it might be preferable to select some other structure on which to paint the community's name. He indicated that the Main street plant of Powdrell and Alexander, a high structure with a nearly flat roof might be available. Having flown over Danielson recently and observed the roofs of the buildings, Mr. Caron expressed his preference for the mill roof as the place for the name. The committee will investigate and report.

Alfred L. Reed discussed the matter of the chamber lending a hand to make the Armistice day observance here a success and, later, thanked the chamber for its appropriation to the American legion funds for the purpose and for the appointment of committees to co-operate with Legion committees in any way they may be needed.

Irving W. Davis told the meeting of the helpful attitude the Rotary club here has taken to make the observance a success.

On motion of Walter Anderson the meeting voted to request the warden and court of burgesses to have published in pamphlet form copies of the new charter of the borough, that they may be available for citizens.

Aviation came in for a bit of attention from the meeting. E. B. Wilbur presented a map showing present air routes and routes where new routes are likely to be established, one of these being the Hartford-Providence air line, which is directly over Danielson. The discussion had to do with the prospective development of an airport here in the not distant future. Secretary Gordon J. Gale and Walter Anderson had a part in the discussion on flying and flying fields.

Sharp opposition to the use of advertising in unapproved mediums, such as programs, folders, etc., was brought forth through the fact that some sharp practice has been indulged here recently by strangers, who came to town, soliciting advertising, and obtained it, though unapproved by the Chamber of Commerce, as required by one of its rules for members. W. H. G. Herkes lets sharply scored these itinerant advertising men and their methods, and the meeting agreed they should be squelched for the future.

Before the next meeting of the chamber in December, a committee appointed for the purpose will bring in a list of nominations for the members to consider for officers at the annual meeting.

The body of Pierre Gentilhomme, 70, a resident of Danielson for a long period of years, will be brought here Thursday for burial. After an illness that had made a helpless invalid of him for four years, Mr. Gentilhomme died Monday night at his home in New Bedford.

He was a native of France and lived at San Mare before coming to the United States and locating in Danielson, where he is cordially remembered. Following the death of his wife, he left Danielson, about 20 years ago, to make his home in New Bedford, but since going away had returned periodically, until his severe illness, to visit with friends here.

It was voted to make a record on the books that the property owners on Gilman street and Ravine street who had paid for curbing should be reimbursed for one half of their expenditures when a special city meeting for highway appropriations is called.

The condition of the central fire station was discussed and the matter of installing hot water and a heater was laid on the table but it was decided that the repairs to the building be taken care of soon. Mr. Labby stated that the heater burned more coal than was necessary because of the smallness of the chimney. To enlarge the chimney would cost approximately $120.00. It was moved by Mr. Rogers that the property committee look into the matter and confer with the manufacturers of the heater and was adopted.

Mr. Rogers stated that Mrs. [illegible] had called on him and said that she wished to give to the city a piece of land, a continuation of May street, as her bit of taxable property there was used as a common thoroughfare. The matter was referred to the highway committee.

Mr. Richard asked if the council would sanction the purchase of 500 feet of new hose for the fire department and give 200 feet of used hose to the highway department. It was voted that the fire committee purchase the new hose.

Captain Jarvis spoke of the need of a new or better typewriter for the police department and it was referred to the police department.

It was voted that the city clerk prepare an abstract and rate book and make a list of assessed property from the assessors, this now being in course of completion.

After ordering current bills paid the council adjourned.

The Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary society of the Thompson hill church met this afternoon at the vestry room of the church with a large attendance. Mrs. W. L. Beard of Foochow, China, formerly of Putnam was the speaker. Mrs. Beard has recently returned from China with her husband who has been a missionary in that country for a number of years. She is thoroughly conversant with the work in China and tells of many interesting experiences here. Many of the members of the W. C. T. U. were at the meeting by special invitation.

At the meeting of the The [illegible] Thimble club, Miss Emma Pilling of Danielson gave an interesting talk on the "Scholarship Fund." Miss Plumley of Greenwich, state president of the Federation of Women's clubs gave a very inspiring talk on the subject of the afternoon, "Auto Tours and Camping," and gave some very unusual experiences. Her address led to the purpose and work of the women's clubs in the home, church and school.

The first session of the indoors sports tournament between the Elks club and the Masonic club pointed toward an interesting a winter sports as was enjoyed by these two clubs last year. There were no billiards played. The Elks won the total score of 9 to 7, and at that it looked for a time as if the score might be tied. Omer Milot and George Lewis won their games by only a margin of one hundred, so that the Masons are not altogether discouraged as to the ultimate result. There were sixteen tables at play, eight being auction bridge, seven of bid whist and one at cribbage.

The score was as follows, Masons first:

Auction bridge, Morse and Geissler lost to Milot and Lewis; Sherman and Stanton lost to Chadwick and Mansfield; Brousseau and Miner won from Champlin and W. Averill, Holden and Miron won from Girard and Wheelock, Johnson and Schoonover lost to Cotter and Macdonald, Tourtelotte and Kerr lost to Rafferty and Kerowack, Jenkins and Wheaton won from Frasier and Lefrance, Johnson and Padgett from R. Wheaton and T. Wheaton, lost to Backus and A. Averill.

Bid whist—Diamond and Miss won Seward and Baker lost to Birth and Cavanaugh, King and Gifford won from Gallant and Montville, Thurston and Arnold won from Charron and Chapdelaine, Perry and Simpson lost to Loomis and Twigg, Duffy and Prince won from Richards and Berthiaume, DeCarlo and Bell lost to Wheatley and Burgess.

Cribbage—deCoudres and Wheaton lost to Tetreault and Lisotte.

The first meeting of the clubs for play was held at the Elks' club rooms on Main street and the next one will be held at the Masonic club house on South Main street.

On Friday morning at ten o'clock at the farm of John R. Stromberg in Abington a rock blasting demonstration will be held in charge of F. W. Knipe, specialist in agricultural engineering.

At two o'clock in the afternoon on the same date he will give a demonstration at the farm of Herbert A. Tibbett, Bush hill on the Wolf Den road in the town of Brooklyn.

Frank L. Davis, county agent of the Windham County Farmers' association will speak at the Agricultural and Home Making institute in Sterling on Thursday. The institute will be held in Ekonk Grange hall and Mr. Davis' subject will be "The Latest Agricultural Development in Dairying, Poultry, Fruit and Crops."

The class social of the Drop-in class of the Second Congregational church will be held at the home of Mrs. Lillian Phillips, 36 Church street, on Thursday afternoon. There will be the semi-annual business meeting and the election of officers.

VANDAL BOYS DAMAGE PROPERTY OF CONTRACTORS

The Stonington police have been called on to investigate damage done Sunday at the stone and sand hopper of Benvenuti and Son, east of Railroad avenue. The trap doors were opened and about 50 tons of trap rock and sand were allowed to run out of the hopper. There has been the same trouble on previous Sundays, evidently the work of boys. The contractors will now be forced to go to the entire expense of placing a watchman there Sundays and nights.

He appealed and was released on bonds of $200, furnished by Joseph F. Pont.

At the meeting of the Ladies' Aid society of the Second Congregational church Monday evening, a quantity of articles were packed to send to the Atlanta, Ga., university for the use of the pupils there. Further donations are to be brought to the chapel this (Thursday) evening when the box will be made ready for shipment. A social hour followed and refreshments were served.

CANNOT SATISFY ALL

It isn't possible to please everybody all the time. Probably it wouldn't be a good thing for us if all of our wishes were granted, for it is repeatedly disclosed under test that while some of them may be good there are others that are bad and some very bad, so that the folly of trying to please everyone is evident.

Do as congress may it will not be able to satisfy all who are offering suggestions in regard to a reduction in taxation. Only to the extent that there will probably be some tax cut can it be expected that all will be satisfied, and yet even with that there will be some who will not be pleased, if we note aright the attitude of the American Farm Bureau foundation. This organization opposes any tax cut. In its place it urges the reduction of the federal debt and believes that it should be cut a billion a year.

There is much to be said in behalf of debt reduction. The federal treasury has experienced great benefits because of the manner in which it has been lowered each year for several years. It cannot fail to be understood that every reduction that is made in it cuts down that tremendous interest bill which will have to be faced every year that the debt stands. Debt reduction with the interest cut at the same time means tackling a burden from both ends.

Nevertheless it is not to be expected that the benefit which would be derived from such action will satisfy those who are clamoring for a tax reduction. When the time comes for the general comparison of ideas it is believed that it will be found that the ways and means committee of the lower house of congress will put forth recommendations for a revenue bill that will accomplish certain tax cuts but keep within the bounds of reason and common sense so that it will also be possible for something to be applied to debt reduction at the close of the year. In other words there should not be such a cutting of taxes as to invite a deficit when it is known that whatever may be accumulated as a surplus can be applied to the lowering of the debt which also carries its benefits for a very large number.

A PUBLIC MENACE

Within the week New York has had an experience which it has no desire to have repeated. One of its hospitals was set afire by a pyromaniac for no other reason than to see and participate in the action attending it, for the one who applied the torch was prominently engaged in the rescue work and suffered severe burns while doing so.

In such a role that person might easily have escaped detection, but his confession has cleared up the affair and called the attention of the authorities to the danger that is involved in permitting such individuals their freedom to rove about and terrorize the public.

Happily it was possible to prevent the loss of any lives, but it was an instance where tragedy was hovering most threateningly. The individual who admitted his act and identity has such a record that he ought not to have been at liberty to yield to his weakness. He has been engaged in such work for a considerable time. His desire was to see the excitement regardless of the consequences to self or others. Had the hospital been completely destroyed with all those therein, it would have been the same to him.

Mental defectives of this character may seem to be harmless on all ordinary occasions but it is evident that they are most dangerous when it comes to responding to an urge over which they have no control. For the protection of humanity, those who may be concerned when the uncontrollable desire grips him, it is of much importance that persons of this kind should be put where they can be given the needed oversight and not be allowed to roam where they please to do whatever they see fit. Such persons might fill efficiently certain kinds of jobs, but as this case proves it is only putting temptation in their way when they are given employment where they can cause serious destruction of life and property. His record was bad enough without the addition of the hospital fire. How many more opportunities should he be given?

AS IT SHOULD BE

In order to have them in condition to meet the possibility of high water this winter and next spring, early reconstruction of the levees which were broken by the Mississippi valley floods has been urged. Funds have been found which could be applied to this work without waiting for the action of congress and there is cause for gratification in the report which Secretary of War Davis brings from his latest inspection of this work. He finds that the repairs are progressing so satisfactorily that they will be completed in time to give the necessary protection to that area which they are expected to safeguard.

This is as it should be. It doesn't mean that it will relieve the necessity of flood control action, but it will replace the broken levees and under all ordinary conditions prevent the Mississippi and the other rivers in that region from overflowing their banks. With that work accomplished attention can then be turned to the establishment of such control as will be required to keep the Mississippi henceforth within its banks. That will be a much longer job and a much more difficult one.

Naturally all through that valley, and throughout the country as well, there is an earnest desire for the prevention of any more such floods like that which has been experienced within the past year. It is believed it can be done. It will cost much money. It is a proposition which deserves to be dealt with by itself and considered on its merits. Because it is worthy does not mean that it should be loaded down with riders and be made to drag a number of unworthy measures through with it.

This is a matter which should be kept as free from politics as possible. It shouldn't be made a football and yet there's no telling what may happen if there is a disposition to do a lot of log rolling in connection with it. If it cannot be put through without carrying a lot of other things through on its back it will be far from creditable action on the part of congress.

THE MISTRIAL

Because of the manner in which it has claimed attention for so long a period, it was hoped that the trial recently started at Washington of the criminal conspiracy charges against Fall and Sinclair would wind up the case. It was a trial which it is believed was necessary but the circumstances which brought about a mistrial will serve to prolong its existence and possibly serve to increase public interest.

Here is a matter which has been up in so many phases that people have begun to get sick and tired of it, but when there are conditions surrounding the trial which indicate attempts to influence the outcome it is impossible to disregard them. It is a situation which throws suspicion upon the trial in such a way that a continuance at this time would be inadvisable. This means not only a delay before another start can be made but the keeping of the case to the front through the investigation which is being conducted by the grand jury, the outcome of which no one knows.

This investigation should determine whether there is grounds for the suspicion that has been aroused by the acts of private detectives and by the statements attributed to one member of the jury. Upon the outcome will depend what action if any will follow this new development. In view of what has transpired there is no alternative. The investigation that has been commenced must go through and later there will be an opportunity for bringing to trial again the conspiracy charge. As much as it might be wished otherwise, this delay gives promise of the case being strung out through another year.

FIGHTING RECKLESSNESS

Fine preventive work is done every year by the members of the fire department. They are fully able to fight fires but they are also on the job when it comes to investigations and advice relative to prevention.

It is possible for the authorities having in charge the enforcement of laws to do much in the reduction of the recklessness on the highways. By their enforcement they can influence the conduct of others. But it is also believed to be possible for others than those vested with legal authority to take a hand in putting a stop to such conditions. This is being put to a test by the insurance underwriters in Massachusetts who have formed an organization to serve as a clearing house for getting information relative to irresponsible auto drivers.

Their purpose in doing this is to bring about a reduction of that kind of driving which encourages accidents and they believe it can be aided by indicating to those who must have insurance on their autos in order to get a license that a recklessness record will be a good and sufficient reason for denying to such motorists the insurance which makes possible the much coveted license.

Whether it will be possible to get around such efforts to bring the auto drivers to a full realization of their responsibility to others is a question. The test is underway and its effect will be noted with interest. If it proves to be successful in Massachusetts other states will be desirous of adopting something similar, although a record of recklessness, if obtainable, ought to be a good and sufficient reason for the denial of a driving license to say nothing of the refusal to insure such drivers against loss in case of accidents.

UNCLE JOHN HENRY

He had been a young man once and was an old man now. Henry Porterhouse was the same lively, well-bred, optimistic youth at sixty-eight that he had been at twenty-five. His nephew, Carleton Brown, his sister's son, considered Uncle John Henry about as near perfect as they make 'em; was a most indulgent nephew and supplied all the old man's needs and luxuries in a most bountiful manner. And these were not a few—especially the luxuries.

Uncle John Henry appreciated his nephew's indulgence, was grateful to him for it, and cast about for an opportunity to do the young man a good turn. "Carleton is nearing thirty," thought Uncle John Henry, "and not yet married. I wonder if there is anybody he wants—and can't get. I was two years younger than Carleton is when—"

"Carleton shall not suffer my fate," decided the uncle. "If there is a girl in this fair town he wants, by Jingo! he's going to have her." And that night, when the two were alone at dinner, says the uncle to the nephew: "Carleton, why don't you get married?" The sudden shot took the young man by surprise; he reddened, hesitated and then said with a laugh: "Oh, plenty of time, uncle, plenty of time for that."

"No, there isn't," replied the uncle. "I want yo uto get married right off. I see by your looks that you haven't picked anybody. Never thought of marriage, eh? Well, never mind; don't worry. I'll pick out a girl for you." And the gay old boy hurried off to the opera, where he had agreed to be in the Stanwix box early.

Rose Stanwix was a picture that evening. She wore something in pink and silver and had on her diamonds. Also her eyes were like diamonds, her cheeks were pink and her voice silvery. Gal old Uncle John Henry could not keep his eyes off of her. "Golly! but she's pretty," he thought. Now there was the very girl for Carleton. Social position, youth, beauty, money. He asked Rose if he might see her the next afternoon.

Why, of course, Rose would be delighted to see Mr. Porterhouse the next afternoon—weren't they old chums? And she actually gave him a pat on his ruddy, withered-apple cheek. Rose was twenty-six. She was very fond of Uncle John Henry—everybody was fond of him. Meanwhile, at home, Carleton was thinking: "Uncle is such an impetuous youth. If he had waited a moment, instead of hurrying away, I would have told him— Now I am afraid he will go and o something ridiculous."

Uncle John Henry slept soundly that night, his spirit soothed by the thought of the benevolent plans he had laid for the happiness of his beloved nephew. Promptly at the appointed hour he presented himself before Rose. She appeared to him even more charming than she had the night before in her opera finery. And she was such a sensible girl, too; she looked it and she talked it. Why was it that he had never realized before how entirely desirable she was?

At length Uncle John Henry got down to business. He discoursed a little on the general subject of the advisability of the marriage state and then asked Rose point blank, why it was that she had never married. She parried by asking him the same question. He sighed and said that there had been a time, in the dear, dead past—when he had thought of it. But that was long ago—and now he was too old.

"Old!" cried Rose. "Why Mr. Porterhouse, you are the youngest man in our set. What's a few years when the heart keeps young?"

"Do you really think so?" asked Uncle John Henry.

"I am sure of it," laughed Rose.

"In that case," faltered the old beau, "it I might offer the heart and hand of an—"

"Mr. Porterhouse!" exclaimed Rose.

He saw a strange look come into her eyes; surprise, amusement — and something else.

He could not grasp, on the instant, exactly what that look meant; but he saw in it a signal to keep to the right and keep moving and went on: "Er—of my nephew—for your consideration, it would afford me—er—unbounded satisfaction."

Rose cast down her eyes and replied demurely: "I cannot tell you how grateful to you I am for the offer. I will give it my careful consideration. I think you may be assured of a favorable answer."

"Golly!" thought the old man as he left the house, "came near betraying Carleton's interests that time. But what did she mean by looking at me like that? Old men have married young girls before now. And I'm not so very old."

"Carleton," said he that night, "it's all arranged. You are to marry Rose Stanwix. I fixed it up for you."

"Rose Stanwix," gasped Carleton. "So you proposed to her for me? Well, I have no objections. Your taste was always excellent, uncle." And Carleton wrote off to Rose that very night: "Uncle tells me he has arranged for us to marry. I guess we had better announce our engagement next week—instead of the week after as we had intended. The joke is on uncle; but don't let him know. He is tickled to death to think he has done something for me."

YOUR HEALTH

X-RAY HELPS DIAGNOSE TUBERCULOSIS

By Lewis Gregory Cole, M. D., New York
Member Gorgas Memorial

Within the memory of some of us Koch discovered that tuberculosis is caused by a germ, the tubercle bacillus, and when this germ enters the lung it causes small hard tumors about the size of bird-shot or bird-seed to develop and grow in the air sacs of the lungs. These small tubercles are scattered through portions of the lungs much the same as raisins, currants or caraway seeds are scattered through a loaf of bread, each separated from another by normal air sacs.

The diagnosis of tuberculosis is easy in its later stages, when it is too late to do anything to cure or to arrest its progress, but in the early stage when it is most important to diagnose it, when there may not be more than 10 to 15 of the seed-like tumors scattered through part of the lung, the accurate diagnosis of tuberculosis is much more difficult. By pressing, tapping and listening to the outside of the chest the doctor is often able to tell if one has the disease.

The x-ray will show the small seed-like tubercles in the lung just as accurately as it shows the bullet, fractured arm, kidney stone, stomach cancer or ulcer. Even in the early stage of tuberculosis, when there are only a few tubercles, one can see and count them in the x-ray. Thus being able to see if they are increasing in size or number, combined with the story of how one is sick which the patient tells the doctor, will furnish the most accurate and complete evidence on which to base a diagnosis of tuberculosis. The doctor knows exactly then if the patient may live a normal life in such location as desired with friends and relatives or if the cure must be taken at some institution where they are best equipped to give it and where the patient will learn how to take care of himself and to protect others.

It has been said that procrastination is the thief of time. Procrastination of a visit to your doctor is stimulated by fear that he will find something wrong, and this theft often robs one of an early and accurate diagnosis of tuberculosis and his only chance of cure. Early diagnosis will not eliminate tuberculosis as a white plague, but it will arrest its incidence and cure and arrest a great majority of cases. Therefore, see your doctor for a routine examination at least once a year as you would see your dentist or take your car to the garage for an overhauling.

Stories That Recall Others

Too Much Lipstick

Not long ago mother took little Lena to a movie. There was a love scene and it seems the hero had a "die away" expression on his face after kissing his sweetheart. Lena called out in an excited voice: "What's the matter with him, mother, did he get too much lipstick?"

To Hear Him Fish

He is an angler of exceptional ability and he bears an enviable reputation for his way of recalling countless tussles with the finny tribe. His dramatic talents serve him in good stead, too, as he vividly describes ancient tussles with the pugnacious small mouth black bass.

A few days ago, seated in his office, he was the center of interest for a large group of would-be anglers as he illustrated one of his outstanding fishing experiences. Sinking back in his chair as he completed the story of how the bass finally jumped in the boat of his own accord he closed his eyes and gave a smile of satisfaction.

"I love to hear that man fish," remarked one of the group as he walked out of the room.

POETRY

Then and Now

To me the earth once seemed to be
Most beautiful and fair;
All living creatures were to me,
In wood or air,
But kindred of a free class;
I thrilled with keenest joy
To find the young quail in the grass—
I was a boy.

The robin in the apple tree,
The brown thrush in the wood,
The meadow larks, all called to me,
I understand;
A sense of union with the whole,
Of love for beast and bird,
Deep chords from man's ancestral soul
Each wild note stirred.

All that is gone, and now I see
A blood-stained earth, where strife,
Unceasing war, and cruelty
Make room for life;
Each living thing a helpless prey
To sharper tooth or claw,
Ten thousand murders every day
By nature's law.

But still old earth its clamour casts
O'er the clear eyes of youth,
And still the old illusion lasts
In spite of truth;
For now I find my boy can see
The earth I used to know;
He sees it as it seemed to me
So long ago.

Poor little chap! Sometimes I think
I'll tell him how he's fooled,
But when I see his eyes, I shrink,
My purpose cooled:
Why should I cloud his soul with doubt,
Or youth's illusions mar?
Too soon, alas, he will find out
That life is war.
—Charles Frederick Johnson.

The Attic Room

Much have I lived since in this room
I slept—
This little attic room with rafters showing,
With thin, trim curtains at its windows blowing,
Its bed so white, so delicately kept.
Much have I lived since in this room
I slept
And listened to the rain, its gentle patter,
Or in the morning heard the birds' glad chatter;
Much have I lived since then: joyed worked and wept.

I would forget the chaff that I have found,
And mindful be but of the choice, fine wheat;
There have been times when to the timbrel's sound
Delightedly have danced my happy feet;
There have been times when to my heart was bound
A friend's true heart, and such accord was sweet.
—Daniel Hugh Verder, in "A Book of Lyrics."

John Krubsack of Embarrass, Wis., has "grown" an armchair. By grafting and bending the limbs of thirty-two box elder saplings, Krubsack trained the trees to grow in the form of an armchair. It took eleven years of patient effort, but the chair was sold for $4,000.

A request from C. W. Allendoerfer, school board treasurer of Kansas City, Mo., that his salary be cut $50 a month was approved by the board "with thanks." Mr. Allendoerfer's letter to the board merely said that the service he was giving was not worth the $200 he was being paid.

In plowing near Fairlee, Md., a farmer turned up a pocketbook which he had lost two years ago while at work in the same spot. A stray bullet snipped one of the high-tension wires supplying electricity to the Maine towns of Winthrop, Readfield, Wayne, Monmouth and East Winthrop, curtailing service in those towns for more than two hours. It is thought that the bullet came from the state rifle range, which is not far distant from where the wire was severed.

A fourteen-year-old Illinois boy wrote to Ambassador Herrick in Paris asking for his autograph and those of "any other French officials." The ambassador sent the boy five, including those of Foch and Poincare. Then to show that he had been well brought up the youth sent the ambassador a letter of thanks, inclosing a dime, "so that you may buy yourself a good cigar."

Nine years after his death, the University of Arkansas has learned it is to receive the valuable collection of Indian relics of Captain Carlos I. Von Berg, a famous government scout. When Von Berg died in 1918, he left most of his property to his wife and also specified that his collection was to remain in her possession until her death. For this reason contents of the paper were not made public but recently the executor decide to file the will. Among the autographed pictures of notables is one of Theodore Roosevelt, still resting where the "Old Scout" placed it among those Indian chieftains.

Brown of Norwich, this morning, in the Superior court, when the suit brought by Miss Ethel Cable, through her mother, as she is now only 18, against Everett Clark, came to trial. Before the trial got under way counsel tried to effect a settlement. Both parties demanded terms to which the other would not agree, and it is left to Judge Brown to pass upon the evidence. The girl told her story and wept under a severe cross examination. The defense sought to establish an alibi and throw responsibility on another whose acts were admitted by the girl. There was a baby girl in court and her coos and cries were lusty at times.

SAYS LEGISLATIVE CZARS BLOCK "UNIVERSAL DRAFT"

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 2—(AP)—The "universal draft" act urged by the American Legion is intended solely and purely to see that, in the event of another war, the nation will pick up where it left off at the end of the World war, National Commander Edward P. Stafford told the Connecticut department of the legion and auxiliary tonight. Commander Spafford, making his first official appearance since his election at the Paris convention this fall, installed the new officers of the department of Connecticut at the Lawn club.

Two legion-sponsored measures, the universal draft act and the act for the retirement of disabled emergency officers, have been blocked from consideration by congress, he said, by a group of legislative czars as absolute as any in the history of the federal legislature.

Department of Connecticut headquarters will remain for the coming year in Hartford, Department Commander Earle F. Richards of West Haven announced in his address following the induction of the new state heads into office.

HUNDREDS OF DOLLARS IN SERVICE TO RED CROSS

Volunteer workers of the American Red Cross in Connecticut have contributed hundreds of dollars in service during the last fiscal year, according to figures contained in the annual report of the organization made public by the local chapter.

Victims of disasters, destitute children in foreign lands, the soldier in the hospital, the blind, the sick and needy, all have been made more comfortable and more content, says the report, because these workers found time to make supplies and to perform countless friendly tasks.

Twenty-nine chapters in the state were engaged in this work, carrying on a diversified program of service. They produced during that period 4,669 garments, and prepared 310,802 surgical dressings. Throughout the entire year an average of 118 persons each month were doing volunteer work for the Red Cross in Connecticut. Twenty-five chapters also maintained loan closets containing linens, layettes, and emergency equipment for those in need.

PLAN ORGANIZATION FOR BERKELEY'S $1,000,000 CAMPAIGN

An organization meeting for this district in the $1,000,000 Berkeley divinity school endowment fund was held at noon Wednesday at the Wauregan hotel when rectors of Episcopal churches in the New London district were entertained at luncheon by Henry F. Packer. Among those present were Archdeacon J. Eldred Brown, Revs. C. Montgomery Budlong and J. Rees Jones of this city, Rev. T. H. M. Ockford of Poquetanuck, Rev. P. M. Kerridge of New London, Rev. This important change is looked upon as an exceedingly valuable development in the history and the opportunity for Berkeley to do more effective work and wield a wider influence than ever before.

A herd of nine Ayrshires owned by Connecticut Agricultural college ranked second among all herds in the United States tested under the Ayrshire herd test rules, with an average yield of 687 pounds of milk and 27.40 pounds of butter-fat during the month of September, according to a report received from the advanced registry office of the Ayrshire Breeders' association at Brandon, Mass. This herd has completed nine months of the year's test and each cow has averaged 893 pounds of 3.96 per cent. milk and 35.38 pounds of butter-fat per month for this period.

JUDGE WOLFE WILL BE THE NEXT TO RETIRE

The next member of the state judiciary who will retire from the bench, on account of the age limit of 70 years, is Judge Isaac Wolfe of New Haven, the ranking judge of the superior court and who many times has occupied the bench in the New London county superior court. The age limit deprives Judge Wolfe of the distinction of membership of the supreme court for a definite term. He will be 70 on Nov. 2, 1929. The next governor will appoint his successor.

Chief Justice George W. Wheeler will retire from the judiciary on account of age limit in December, 1930, and when he retires he will have occupied the exalted position of chief justice of the state for ten years. Since 1861 no other chief justice has held the position for so long a period with the exception of Charles B. Andrews of Litchfield, who was chief justice from 1889 to 1901, and John Duane Park of Norwich, who was chief justice for 15 years.

It is interesting to note that on the retirement of Chief Justice Park the general assembly for the first time made provision for a retirement allowance for a member of the judiciary. It was on the initiative of the late Charles E. Searls of Thompson, who was a member of the house, that the legislature voted a retiring allowance to Judge Park.

At the 1927 session the general assembly removed the limit of ten years of service on the bench to entitle a judge to an allowance, and provided that the retiring judge shall become on retirement a state referee to which there is attached a compensation of one-half the salary he received as judge. In the case of the chief justice this rate of allowance amounts to $6,250 a year and for the other judges of the supreme and superior courts the state referee allowance is $6,000.

When Chief Justice Wheeler retires in 1930 he will be succeeded by Justice William Maltbie, according to the present order of succession. Judge Maltbie will have 20 years' occupancy of the chief justiceship before he will have reached the age limit for retirement. He was only 32 years of age when he represented Granby at the session of 1913. In 1915 he was appointed executive secretary by Governor Holcomb, who in 1917 appointed him a judge of the superior court.

It is interesting to note that the late Chief Justice Samuel O. Prentice was executive secretary to Governor Bulkeley when the latter selected him for the superior court bench in 1889. Judge Edwin S. Thomas of the United States court, was executive secretary to Governor Baldwin when he was appointed to the bench. The governor had strongly recommended his appointment to the federal judgeship.

He wanted authority to spend the $1000 for new machinery.

Previous to the council adjourning the matter of engaging John Wall of Providence to audit the town accounts and inaugurate a more simplified bookkeeping system was discussed.

Charged with failure to grant the right of way, Herman Zierler, a peddler of No. 51 Maple street, was presented in the city court Wednesday morning. It is said that Zierler was driving towards Norwich and started to turn into South B street without giving any warning. Both the automobile and the horse was knocked down by the automobile.

GROTON HAS $84,572 IN UNCOLLECTED TAXES

Net uncollected taxes of $84,572.01, from the levy of 1926 to the levy of 1926, are shown in the detailed list of unpaid property taxes in the town of Groton as of Aug. 31, 1927. ERNEST S. BARNARD IS ELECTED PRESIDENT OF AMERICAN LEAGUE

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Ernest S. Barnard, of Cleveland, today was elected president of the American league, filling the office Ban Johnson vacated, when the former "Czar" of organized baseball resigned after serving the league he organized for 27 years.

The American league club owners unanimously chose Barnard, former president of the Cleveland Indians, for a term of three years. Although the salary figure was not made public, it is believed to be approximately $40,000 a year, the same as Johnson was receiving when he decided to retire. Barnard also was made treasurer of the league.

William Harridge, who for 15 years acted as private secretary to Johnson, was elected secretary of the league, a newly created position. Harridge's term also is for three years. Previously, Johnson held all three positions.

The new American league head, who started his career in sports as a 16 year old football coach, promised to continue the high ideals of baseball management created by Johnson. There will be no changes in the general policy of the league.

The headquarters of the league will be maintained in Chicago with President Barnard taking up the duties immediately.

Up to the time the club owners went into session today, Barnard was the president of the Cleveland club, a position he has held since 1922, upon the death of James C. Dunn, at that time chief stockholders. Barnard resigned this office to become president of the league. He had been connected with the Cleveland club for 24 years, when he left the job of sports editor of the Columbus, Ohio, dispatch in 1903 to become secretary of the Cleveland club. He was promoted to the vice-presidency of the club in 1910, and was made business manager in 1916.

All the club owners, with the exception of Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the White Sox, signed a resolution expressing recognition and appreciation of Johnson as president of the league.

Thus, Comiskey, who, with Johnson, founded the American league and then broke with him over the "Black Sox" scandal in 1919, continued his fight on Johnson to the last. Comiskey, in feeble health, did not attend but was represented by Harry Grabiner, secretary of the club.

Negotiations for the sale of the Cleveland club to a syndicate of Cleveland millionaires headed by Alva Bradley, may not be concluded for two or three d ays.

INVASION OF FOREIGN CHAMPIONS EXPECTED

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP)—The tide of foreign champions, coming in over the Atlantic to seek world laurels in the "heavy money" fight centers of America, swelled today with the announcement that Tony Ascencio, featherweight champion of France, would land here tomorrow from the liner De Grasse.

Hot on the newcomer's trail are Johnny Cuthbert, bantamweight champion of England, and Willie Smith, South African 118-pound king, due here within two weeks to challenge for both the bantam and featherweight crowns now in dispute because of the retirement of the world titleholders.

Already the list of heavyweight contenders has been increased by the appearance of Phil Scott, English recruit from overseas, whose possibilities will be tested by Knute Hansen, Minnesota Dane, in Madison Square Garden Friday night. Among the foremost contenders for Gene Tunney's heavyweight laurels are Paulino Uzcudun, bounding Basque from the Pyrenees of Spain, and Tom Heeney, New Zealand champion, who battles Jack Sharkey, in a crucial engagement at the garden Nov. 18. Within a few weeks, Tex Rickard expects to introduce Victorio Campolo, his impression of a "bigger and better Luis Firpo," to New York audiences in the South American champion's heavyweight debut. Campolo weighs 216 pounds and is 6 feet 4 inches.

The arrival of Ascencio, Cuthbert and Smith in height will further complicate a situation already badly muddled among the little fellows. Although the bantamweight title has been vacant since the abdication of Charley Phil Rosenberg last winter, Bud Taylor, Terre Haute puncher, is generally recognized as the titleholder.

The foreign newcomers, all of whom are classed as "heavy bantams," probably will see more action, however, in the featherweight class, that now has the boxing commissions of 25 states represented on opposite sides of a strenuous title argument.

The claims of Benny Bass, of Philadelphia, to the feather title, vacated first by Johnny Dundee and later by Tid Kaplan, are given recognition by the Pennsylvania ruling board and the National Boxing association, representing 24 states, because of Bass' recent victory over Red Chapman.

The New York commission recognizes Tony Canzoneri as the outstanding featherweight and will consider only the man who beats him a champion. In the meantime, boxing promoters in Boston, bally-hooing Canzoneri as the 126-pound "king", as a result of his defeating Johnny Dundee here, have labelled a go between Canzoneri and Red Chapman in Boston Nov. 14 a "championship" affair.

DONOHUE WILL STOP AMATEURS UNLESS IMPROVED

BRIDGEPORT, Nov. 2. —(AP)—Declaring that amateur boxing as promoted in Connecticut today is a menace to youth of the state, Thomas E. Donahue, Connecticut boxing commissioner, today stated he would soon be forced to take steps to abolish amateur boxing in this state as practiced today unless the necessary reforms were brought about. The Bridgeport Telegram will say tomorrow.

Commissioner Donahue in discussing the matter declared that although the state legislature refused to put amateur boxing under his control last winter, the Connecticut boxing law gives him full right to take the so-called amateur boxing into hand if the conditions warrant it.

Donahue Denies Report

HARTFORD, Nov. 2.—(AP)—State Boxing Commissioner Thomas E. Donahue denied over the telephone tonight that h planned "take steps to abolish amateur boxing in Connecticut." The Courant will say tomorrow. He said his views on amateur boxing in the state recently given to newspaper men had resulted in his being quoted incorrectly.

The commissioner did say, however, that he was very much dissatisfied with the condition of amateur boxing in Connecticut and that he was collecting evidence now which he hopes will eventually induce the state legislature to put amateur boxing under state control. The legislature, after hearing evidence from both sides last summer, voted not to interfere with the Connecticut Association of the Amateur Athletic union, which has sole jurisdiction over amateur boxing.

Commissioner Donahue said he still believes that amateur boxing is "getting away" from the A. A. U. and that it should be brought under state control. He pointed out that Connecticut alone of the states in which boxing is legalized has failed to put the sport under state jurisdiction.

Commissioner Donahue denied a statement attributed to him that the Connecticut boxing law gives him full right to take amateur boxing in hand, "if conditions warrant." He admitted that his office has no control over the amateur sport. "I have some evidence that so-called amateur boxers are being paid," Commissioner Donahue said, "and I am investigating further. Whenever I have proof that amateur boxers have been paid such boxers and the organization responsible for paying them immediately become professionals and therefore come under my jurisdiction. Until that time, I have no right or intention to interfere."

ACADEMY-WINDHAM GAME TOPS HIGH SCHOOL LIST

The Academy-Windham game at the campus Saturday afternoon looks like a real important affair. Never before in the memory of present followers of the Red and White's athletics has so much been at stake in a meeting between these two schools.

Although these clubs have been rivals for a long time and some spirited contests have come about when they met, this game should outdistance them all for the eastern Connecticut mythical grid championship will hang in the balance. Windham has taken care of Putnam and Stonington, the Academy has beaten Chapman Tech and Westerly. Of the schools in this section there remains only Killingly, Plainfield and Bulkeley of New London. Killingly is not strong enough to hope to have any claim for football honors while Plainfield another small school has done well but defeats by Chap Tech and Stonington have eliminated her. Bulkeley has not played in eastern Conn. school to date but in six games has shown little that would place her in a position threatening to any championship aspirations.

Bits About The Big Six

About all that's needed to make Saturday a big day for Academy athletics seems to be fair weather and victory. The crowd should be the largest of the season by far. The boys deserve support.

Westerly, now experiencing its poorers expects to have Meikle and Sawyer as a conditioner for the game with Warwick this week end. Coach Roger's expects to have Meikle and Sawyer, his two mainstays, back for this game and that should help the Blue and White boys quite a bit. Meikle and Sawyer were absent last Friday when Westerly took a 28 to 0 lacing from the Rhode Island State college freshman.

The Academy expects to have a cross-country run with its ancient rival, Bulkeley of New London, between the halves of the Windham game. This affair was originally set down for the intermission of the Academy-Bulkeley game at New London Armistice day but because the interscholastics are at Westerly that day and because the Academy will compete in them the meet between the Orange and Black and its bitter rival who wear Red and White, if it is to be held at all, will have to be run off this week end.

It is not yet definitely known whether Wilkinson, Windham's rugged fullback, will be ready for the game here Saturday.

Save for Vitilano's game leg and Shea's general shaking up, the Academy is now in good physical shape.

"Spud" Murphy, who was making a great bid for the center berth, has probably finished his football career at the Academy. His broken hand was sustained about two weeks later than Pitt's and it will consequently be about two weeks later that it will heal.

Pitt was a tackle and was playing good ball up to his injury.

Harry McGlone continues to scintillate. He is the most-improved player on the squad and right now is just as valuable to that red-shirted team as any of them. Thus he ranks with Pheno Tombari as the sweetest tossers of passes that N. F. A. has had in late years, while his broken field running can stand next to the feats of Tombari and Jack Hinrichs, Academy stars of the past few years. Harry will be closely watched Saturday.

If the Academy's ends can take up their work where they left off Saturday at Waterbury, Windham's backs will do a lot of worrying Saturday. Buck LaCroix and Johnny Greene, besides scoring all the touchdowns with clever receipts of passes also spilled the Wilby running attack innumerable times. They have been held up all season as examples of all state material and last Saturday they proved it.

In commenting on the Academy-Wilby game, a Waterbury paper referred to the Red and White as the eastern part of the state's candidate for the state title. But maybe Windhsgn will have something to say about that Saturday. Who knows?

In Other Sections

Friday at Hartford, Hartford Public high and Hillhouse of New Haven, the only unbeaten teams in the state, meet in what should be a corker, to say the least. Bulkeley of New London is also in Hartford playing the other Bulkeley on that date.

What rivalry there ought to be out of a "Big Three" or "Little Three" of the two Bulkeleys and the Academy. It would be Academy against Bulkeley twice and Bulkeley vs. Bulkeley once.

There are plenty of teams in the state now in the one defeat class and after Friday's Hartford New Haven game one more should be added. Among the one loss clubs are Central and Harding of Bridgeport, Naugatuck, Stamford, Hartford Bulkeley, Crosby, New Britain, Windham and our own Academy.

While there is no state high school game that can surpass an Academy Bulkeley contest for rivalry yet it seems that there is at least one in the Nutmeg state that can defeat it for attendance. The Hartford-New Britain grid game, which comes Nov. 19 at New Britain will show before something like 9,000 paid admissions. Tickets have already been placed on sale.

While the Academy is thinking of Windham and Bulkeley in regards to football, vice versa and while Westerly and Stonington are planning for their football series, Chapman Tech is already thinking seriously of basketball. Their quintet has now been practicing for nearly two weeks. The court game is the big thing at that school.

JOHNNY KEELEY ENTERED IN NEW HAVEN MARATHON RACE

Johnny Keeley, midget marathoner of Norwich, is entered in the New Haven Thanksgiving day marathon race. Keeley will wear the colors of the Dunwell A. A. in the coming race and is expected to place well in the front. Keeley has competed against some of the best distance runners in the east and has shown up extremely well, in fact his work has been very surprising. Although what might be termed a pocket edition of a runner Keeley shows remarkable stamina and gameness. He is a born runner with his heart and soul in his work.

DUNDEE AND HUDKINS READY FOR FIGHT TONIGHT

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 2—(AP)—Joe Dundee of Baltimore, and Ace Hudkins of Nebraska, were primed and confident on the eve of their 10-round fight in the Los Angeles ball park tomorrow night, at which the welterweight crown worn by Dundee will be at stake.

The fighters took things easy today. Both were reported under the 147 pound welterweight limit, Hudkins scaling 146 pounds and Dundee 144.

Groh Is Released.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Heinie Groh, utility infielder of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who recently signed as manager of the Charlotte club of the South Atlantic league, was given an unconditional release by the Pittsburgh management today that he might be free to assume his new duties in the league.

JACK SLATTERY WILL SUCCEED DAVE BANCROFT AS MANAGER OF BRAVES

BOSTON, Nov. 2.—(AP)—John T. "Jack" Slattery, Boston college baseball coach, Braves scout, and former Harvard baseball coach, has been appointed manager of the Boston Braves succeeding Dave Bancroft, resigned, President Emil E. Fuchs of the Braves announced tonight.

Slattery, who is 45 years old, a resident of the Jamaica Plain section of Boston and who broke into baseball big time on a Boston team as a catcher for the Red Sox in 1902, was under contract to Boston college as baseball coach there. From the tenor of President Fuchs' announcement tonight, however, it was apparent that he will not renew his contract at University Heights and give his full time to the Braves, in whose harness he has worked for the last five years as scout, while holding coaching berths at Harvard and B. C. Slattery's contract is for one year, and no salary was mentioned in the announcement of his appointment.

"Through the courtesy and cooperation of Boston college and its athletic director, Mr. Frank A. Reynolds, we have been enabled to secure the services of Jack Slattery as the new manager of the Braves," said the statement issued by Judge Fuchs from his hotel.

"We feel that we have in Mr. Slattery a well grounded matured judge of the game of baseball and of its players. A man of judgment, and, while possessing the milk of human kindness, he has the asset of firmness and the knowledge and demeanor which will install confidence in the men under him.'

"We are especially glad that it so happens he is a product and resident of Boston who will give all his time, effort and ability to baseball and the city of Boston.

"A great player and hitter in his time, he has been able to associate with us in the last few years, to keep in close touch with the strength and weaknesses of the players in the National league and with the ability of those in the minor leagues. His heart and life have been surrounded with baseball and the men associated with it. A man of unquestioned character and loyalty, who are absolutely satisfied will give his all to his city and his club."

Slattery's appointment tonight ended the "hot stove leagues" earliest session of the current off season which began on October 14 with the unconditional release of Dave Bancroft, for 4 years manager of the Braves, to Brooklyn. Details of the transaction were somewhat hazy at the time, but Judge Fuchs intimated that there was no cash involved in the transaction and that Bancroft's own desire to turn in his uniform with the Braves and transfer to a New York club prompted the change.

Rumor and speculation as to Bancroft's successor ran riot in the following weeks and several possible choices were freely discussed on sport pages, including the names of Jack Dunn of Baltimore and Tris Speaker, former Red Sox outfielder, Cleveland manager, and for years idol of Boston fandom. Judge Fuchs, while admitting that several players had been under consideration, was careful to mention no names and it was believed here tonight that Slattery had been probably been first choice with the details of his Boston college contract preventing an early announcement of his appointment.

Slatery coached the Boston college baseball team for the last three years. Before that time he served as Harvard baseball coach for five years. He first took to coaching in 1916 when he piloted the Tufts college nine through two successful seasons. Then he became coach and scout for the Braves under George Stallings.

Slattery has had much major league experience mostly in the American league. After playing with the Red Sox in the early days of his baseball career, he went to the Chicago White Sox, then to the St. Louis Cardinals and finally to the Washington Senators where he caught Walter Johnson when "Old Barney" was in his prime.

HAGEN AND ARMOUR WILL CLASH TODAY

CEDAR CREST COUNTRY CLUB, Dallas, Tex., Nov. 2.—(AP)—America's two reigning golf champions, Walter Hagen and Tommy Armour, stroked their way past further obstacles today for a third-round match in which they will battle each other tomorrow on the pathway leading to the championship of the Professional Golfers' association.

The two stars had little difficulty in today's matches. Hagen made a walkaway of his match with Anthony Manero of New York, to win 11 and 10, while Armour defeated Tom Harmon of Yankers, N. Y., 7 and 6.

Other stars who gained the quarter finals today found rough going, and one outstanding favorite, Harry Cooper of Los Angeles, was eliminated by Al Espinosa of Chicago. Cooper, a former Dallas boy, fell 5 and 4.

Morte Dutra of Tacoma, Wash., Gene Sarazen of New York, Joe Turnesa of New York, Francis Gallett of Wauwatosa, Wis., and John Golden of Patterson, N. J., entered the charmed circle with Hagen, Armour and Espinosa.

Dutra was carried to the last green to down Charles Guest of Hollywood, two up and Joe Turnesa trailed all day to win one up on the 36th hole from Willie Klein of East Williston, N. Y., Gallet beat Ralph Beach, Bethesda, Md., two up on the last green and Golden was carried to the 37th green to down Harold Long of Raleigh, N. C. Sarazen led most of the way to eliminate Ed Dudley, Van Nuys, Calif., 6 and 3.

Either Hagen or Armour will be eliminated tomorrow and there are other favorites who must fall by the wayside. Dutra must stroke his way through the wily Espinosa if he is to reach the semi-finals and Sarazen and Turnesa will fight it out in another match. Golden and Gallet are matched in the final bracket.

Most of the scores for the day were high, Harmon and Armour being the only players to crack par. Each scored a 70 in the morning round. Espinosa shot a par 71 and Hagen and Sarazen collected 72's on the morning round.

TY COBB IS A FREE AGENT

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Ty Cobb will not be with the Philadelphia Athletics next year. As soon as waivers are received on him from all American league clubs, he will be free to negotiate with any baseball club whose offer for his services next year looks tempting.

Fresh from a hunting trip in the west, Cobb called on Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics, and conferred for an hour today on Ty's status with the team.

When it was over, Mack announced that baseball's colorful outfielder would not be with the Philadelphia Americans any longer.

"Cobb came to us last season under a very heavy contract," said Mack, "and we feel that we are unable to continue the high salary next year. I am very sorry that we will lose him. He is a great player. We liked him on the club; we liked his playing and would like to keep him."

Mack said that Philadelphia was one of the few cities where Sunday baseball is not lawfully permitted and that the revenue received would not permit the paying of a salary such as the famous player was paid. It was said that Cobb's contract last season called for $60,000 and a bonus.

Mack further said that the Athletics would ask all the other clubs for waivers and when they are received Cobb would be given his unconditional release. After he is a free agent, Cobb will be in a position to dicker with any club he chooses without hindrance from any other club. There was no question, Mack said, that the waivers would be forthcoming.

Cobb after the conference would make no definite statement about retiring from baseball. He remarked, as he has said before, that he has been in the game 23 years and is thinking of the time when he would retire.

It is expected that Cobb will defer any announcement of his plans for next year so long as there is an opportunity for him to play under conditions satisfactory to himself.

Under directions from Rhode Island health authorities Dr. William A. Hillard made examination of the situation in Pawcatuck and the conclusion was reached that no unhealthy conditions existed there.

MRS. H. LEONARD CHAPMAN DIES AT NORWICH HOSPITOL

(Special to The Bulletin).

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 2.—This morning the death occurred of Mrs. Mary A. Chapman, who has lived in Westerly for nearly fifty years. She had been receiving treatment at Norwich for about a year. Mrs. Chapman was born in Ireland and coming to America, first made her home in Waterbury, Conn., but came to Westerly 45 years ago.

She was twice married. Her first husband, Martin T. McGrath, died about 40 years ago. She later married H. Leonard Chapman, who died about 12 years ago.

John Morton Hiscox, in his 85th year, retired Westerly printer, died Tuesday evening at 11 o'clock at his home, 19 Granite street. While in failing health, he was out last Friday and did not take to his bed until Saturday. Mr. Hiscox was a close observer of public events and his associations with Westerly people through his work in the printing business gave him a wide knowledge of people in all walks of life. At his retirement he was in the employ of the Westerly Sun and had been with its predecessors, the Narragansett Weekly and the Westerly Echo, dating back in the late forties and early fifties, which made him one of the oldest printers in the state. He retired from active service in 1911.

When a boy, Mr. Hiscox worked after school hours in the office of the Literary Echo, the town's first newspaper, owned by George H. Babcock. He later entered the employ of James H. Hoyt, publisher of the Westerly Echo, in 1856. When J. H. Utter established the Westerly Weekly, later the Narragansett Weekly, to succeed the Westerly Echo, Mr. Hiscox, then 15, entered the new printing establishment.

The famous "C" Model Glenwood Coal Range

A Glenwood oven is heated on all five sides (instead of four)

SOME ovens are heated on only four sides. Glenwood ovens, however, are so arranged that the back of the oven is thorcughly heated just the same as the top, bottom and sides.

This is just one of the reasons why Glenwood ranges have always had such an enviable reputation for better baking. The Glenwood damper helps, too; if it's open it stays open, wide; when closed it is shut absolutely tight and you need never have any doubts about which is which.

The Model "C" Glenwood for coal or wood is a handsome, generously proportioned range that will appeal to any housewife who takes a real pride in her kitchen. Come in and see this and other Glenwood ranges in both the standard black finish and gray enamel.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

There were 15 sales of real estate in Norwich during the past week, an increase of two sales over the corresponding week in 1926 when there were 13. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $24,900 and $23,-050.

In New London during the past week the number of real estate sales totaled six as compared to 12 for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $35,-850 and $89,660.

Building Conditions

The approach of the winter season finds conditions in the building industry, briefly outlined, as follows: 1. General winter building prospects about 10 per cent behind last year. 2. Stabilized and tranquil labor conditions with well balanced supply and demand. 3. Downward price tendency of basic construction materials. That the trend in the industry continues toward lower is bourne out by official reports from 476 cities in all parts of the country made by S. W. Straus and company. In these places new projects were scheduled to the value of $2,947,-384,857 during the first nine months of the present year, compared with $3,-308,394,936 for the same period last year, a loss of nearly 11 per cent.

New London

Home building continues at a rapid pace in the vicinity of Norwood avenue, Fitch avenue and Ledyard street, and from present indications that comparatively sparsely populated section of the city a few years ago is now fast becoming one of the most popular residential sections of the city. Starting less than two years ago, the development of that section was given a decided boom of a sudden which has continued with added impetus as time passed until there have been about 50 new houses built or under construction thereabouts.

In Fitch avenue there are at least seven new homes that have been completed in the past two years, in Ledyard street there are at least five, in Norwood avenue there are at least seven, in Vauxhall street there are at least a dozen new houses. Whittlesey street, one of the shortest in the city, has two new houses, Briggs street at least two, Parkway at least one, Bayonet street three or four, and more in the other streets in the immediate vicinity.

Many of the new homes were built for sale and the vision of the builders in seeing the need for just such homes as were built, as indicated by their ready sale in practically every case, reflects a deserved faith in the development of that section. The city has recognized the importance of the new development and is doing all possible to promote the district community life. The heretofore almost impassable thoroughfare of Ledyard street has been curbed and new sidewalks laid in place of the rough paths, and at present the city is paving the street with a substantial bed of macadam. Fitch avenue has also been improved immensely through to Bayonet street, giving two good roads through from Bayonet street to Vauxhall and thereby lining the two streets definitely. New sidewalks are now being laid in Fitch avenue and Addison street and Berkeley avenue, and plans for next year include the macadamizing of Addison street, the one remaining street of that neighborhood which is still in bad shape. An earlier building boom which developed to a large extent Norwood avenue, Vauxhall street and Whittlesey street had previously resulted in necessary improvement of roads and sidewalks in those thoroughfares so that the entire section is rapidly assuming an up-to-date appearance.

Of significance in the development of that section is the fact that nearly every one of the new homes is of the one-family cottage or bungalow type, tending to show an increased popularity with the single-family house and also considered an indication of growing prosperity. In every case the new homes are attractive and of modern construction throughout, designed for permanency. There is also a wide range of architectural effort to good effect.

Says F. H. Marble. This is Nature's Signal of "Danger Ahead."

Fred H. Marble, Danielson, Conn, says in his own home paper, the Danielson Transcript: "My bladder bothered me 4 or 5 times every night. After taking Keller's Lithiated Buchu a few days I saw I was improving. Now I am not troubled at all. They have also relieved my friend Elmer Martin. I will tell or write my experience to anyone."

Lithiated Buchu acts on the bladder as epsom salts do on the bowels. Drives out foreign deposits and lessens excessive acidity. This relieves the irritation that causes "Getting up nights." The tablets cost 2c each at all drug stores. Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio, or locally at George Engler's, druggist.

Mrs. Peter Has a Pleasant Surprise

Mistakes are made by one and all;
Rejoice when ill does not befall.
—Mrs. Peter Rabbit.

Little bears are very like small boys at times; their attention is easily distracted. You will remember that the two cubs up in the Old Pasture were quarreling over the matter of which should try to dig out little Mrs. Peter. They quarreled and, I am sorry to say, began to fight over it. Their tempers are short and they get into a good many quarrels during the day. But these quarrels do not last long. Now they cuffed each other and tried to bite and scratch, but really did no harm at all. When they got tired they stopped. They had tumbled and rolled their way from the hole in which little Mrs. Peter had disappeared. When they stopped to rest they forgot what they had been fighting about. Something else drew their attention and they wandered off.

"Who are you?" he demanded

Little Mrs. Peter, who was frantically trying to dig a back door, stopped digging when she discovered that those little bears were no longer trying to get her. As soon as she dared, she left that hole and scampered away as fast as her legs would take her. Never was there a more frightened rabbit than timid little Mrs. Peter. She ran until she came to a fine bramble-tangle, just the kind of a bramble-tangle that all rabbits love. The minute she saw it she decided that that was the place for her. If there were no little entrances already cut, she would cut one with those sharp teeth of hers. But there was an entrance. There was a nice little path of just the right size, leading right into the heart of that bramble-tangle. Only a rabbit could cut such a little path as that. That meant that somebody else used, or least had used, this bramble-tangle.

But little Mrs. Peter didn't care. She darted in and then she drew a long breath and slowly made her way toward the heart of the bramble-tangle. A sudden loud thump made her jump. It was a rabbit thump. There was no mistaking it. She looked in the direction from which it had come and fully expected to see her father, Old Jed Thumper, the gray old rabbit who had lived so long in the Old Pasture. Instead, she saw another rabbit. She couldn't see him clearly because there were some brambles between. But in that first glimpse she thought it was Peter.

"Oh, Peter!" she cried, "I was looking for you.

"Oh, Peter!" she cried, "I was looking for you.

"I guess not," replied the other rabbit. Then little Mrs. Peter saw that it wasn't Peter. It was another rabbit who looked like Peter, looked very much like Peter, but was a stranger.

"Oh," said little Mrs. Peter, "I made a mistake! Do you live here in the Old Pasture? Is this your bramble-tangle?"

The stranger hopped toward her so that she got a better look at him. Yes, sir, he was a handsome young rabbit. Yes, sir, he was a handsome young rabbit. Without answering little Mrs. Peter's questions, he asked a question himself.

"Who are you?" he demanded.

"I am Mrs. Peter and my home is in the dear Old Briar-patch," replied Mrs. Peter proudly.

The stranger stared at her very hard. "When I was little," said he, "I lived in a dear Old Briar-patch and they called me Little Pete."

Then Mrs. Peter knew that this was one of her own children, one who had gone out into the Great World and been a long time gone. They touched noses. There was no doubt about it then. Wasn't that a happy surprise?

NOANK

Sam Carson has secured employment as molder at the shipyard.

Several fans fond of the Charleston and fox trot attended a dance in East Lyme Tuesday.

Mike Wardson of Lawrence, Mass., is visiting friends in the village.

Gray squirrels are numerous in the village. In one day 20 of them were seen around on the streets and in trees. One local hunter who follows the wild game has explained why the squirrels leave the woods and frisk about the village. He has never seen a time when the butternuts and walnuts were so few. It has been such a poor season for them one can see only a few on the ground. That is the reason the squirrels had to leave the woods; they are gathering in their nuts for the winter. Like getting in one's coal or potatoes they have to lay up the butternuts for a rainey day. There are many butternut trees around the village.

Groton Long Point has pulled down the shades for the season of 1927, which was a success in spite of the condition of the weather; for nine week ends it rained. The roads have been in good shape all the summer. Road Commissioner William Wheeler and his men were always on the job. Several new cottages will be built this winter. The board walk is about filled up with cottages. Another season has rolled away, making fourteen since the Point started its boom. In 1918 only seven cottages were on the Point; now there are over 250. In 1916 a record was set for building cottages, when 30 were put up by different contractors during six months.

The latest style in the village is on the autos. It is a sign put on front of the car and reads Rolls Ruff and people wonder how a working man can buy a high priced car like that. A Ford car stopped in front of Park's market on Main street with the sign on it such as the others are using and soon a crowd gathered to see the high priced car. One woman said, "I don't know how the driver can afford such an auto!" but when she wiped her glasses off it was a Henry Ford car with that sign in front, Rolls Ruff, just advertising a new kind of candy.

MARKET WAS STRONG, WITH THE FINAL QUOTATIONS ABOUT HIGHEST OF DAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 2—(AP)—The rally in stock prices today was one of the most impressive since the recent sharp decline in prices. Some irregularity developed at the opening when a few new weak spots cropped out, but the recovery which followed continued to gain momentum as the session progressed, final quotations being around the highest of the day. Net gains of 1 to 4 points were quite common, with the advances in a few high priced specialties running as high as 12 points.

In the absence of any important news developments, the rally was generally considered as a correction of a temporarily oversold market position. Active short covering in a number of recently weak rails and industrials testified to the nervousness of the short interest, although the day's trade news failed to disclose any marked improvement in current business.

Weekly steel trade reviews emphasized the smaller October business, as compared with the same month a year ago, and held out little hope of any sharp upturn in the closing months of the year, although private reports from steel centers indicated a moderate increase in mill activity this week. U. S. Steel common, however, was well supported, closing 2 points net higher at 133 1-4.

Motors developed a few points of weakness in the early trading on selling, inspired by fears of Ford competition and a falling off in last quarter sales, but they later turned upward under the leadership of General Motors, which closed 3 5-8 points higher at 129 7-8 and Hupp Motors, which advanced 2 1-2 points to 22. Mack Trucks rallied from an early low of 97 1-4 to 99 5-8, and Hudson from 64 3-4 to 66 3-8.

Lower crude production and higher gasoline consumption provided for the groundwork for an advance in the oil shares. Houston, General Asphalt, and Atlantic Refining all showed net gains of more than 2 points while Marland, Texas corporation, Phillips and several others advanced a point or so. Sugars, which were weak yesterday, received better support, American Sugar Refining closing more than 3 points higher. Renewed weakness cropped out in U. S. Rubber common, but the Kelly-Springfield issues recorded substantial gains.

American Tobacco issues soared about 12 points each to their highest prices since 1920 in expectation of record-breaking holiday trade. Other tobaccos, particularly, Reynolds and Tobacco Products, advanced in sympathy. Brooklyn Union Gas, Midland Steel Products preferred, Radio Corporation, Union Carbide, Christie Brown and International Harvester were other outstanding industrial strong spots.

Speculative interest ni the rails was divided between the 5 point jump in Chesapeake & Ohio to 210 and the advance of 3 1-2 points in Southern Railway.

Call money renewed at 3 1-2 per cent and held steady at that figure all day. There was no change in time money and commercial paper rates.

The commodity markets displayed a firm undertone. Cotton advanced about $2 a bale in early trading on reports of cold wet weather over the belt, but more than half of the gain was lost. Grain prices showed only fractional changes. Coffee advanced 5 to 10 points and spot raw sugar was unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were slightly rectionary. Demand sterling ruled 2-32 of a cent lower around $4.86 11-32 and French francs held fairly steady around 3.91 1-4 cents. Recessions in the other continental rates were nominal.

New England Industries

THE MACHINE TOOL INDUSTRY.

(Note: The information, on which this article, issued by the research department of the New England council, is based, was obtained by the domestic commerce division, United States department of commerce, through an industrial survey of New England conducted in co-operation with the New England council. The department of commerce is now preparing for publication a full report of this industry which will contain additional information of practical value to all New England.

Machine tools are considered, in a survey conducted by the United States Department of Commerce in cooperation with the New England Council, as distinct from machinists' tools, the former including power-driven machines for cutting or shaping metal or for calking, riveting, or driving screws. Bending, boring, broaching, and cutting-off machines, portable tools and presses, threading machines, etc., are included under the heading of machinists' tools.

Census figures show that in 1923 New England producers made goods valued at $40,183,000, or 29 per cent. of the country's total. These were made in eighty establishments employing 13,316 wage earners. Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Vermont produce most of this region's output. The average annual sales are $455,000, ranging from $30,000 to several million of dollars.

The average machine tool plant reported as having been in operation for thirty-one years, and only three concerns have been started since 1921. Nearly one-fifth of all these companies have made a change in management in the last seven years. Only one producer reported the operation of branch plants.

Labor costs are an important item, and during 1925 were 36.4 per cent. of the total value of product. Incentive methods of wage payments are confined by the companies with which this survey is concerned on the average of 10 per cent. of the employes. Connecticut, with 27 per cent., reported the highest state average. Among the raw materials, grey iron castings come almost entirely from New England foundries, steel is bought equally within and without this region, and pig iron comes mostly from other parts of the country. Other metals are generally purchased here.

Periods of maximum and minimum are influenced more by general business conditions among consumers than by seasonal tendencies. One-fourth of the producers reporting in this survey have developed supplementary products. Control of production leads in improvements effected by this group, with organization and executive control second, and inspection third.

Sales in 1925 were reported as 132 per cent. above 1921, and except for a slight drop in 1924 the upward movement was steady between those years. A large majority of these producers sell outside New England, the average amount of product sold here being 27 per cent. of the total. Increasing sales in this region, however, are reported by a substantial number of companies. Competition from other parts of the country has generally been blamed for such sales decreases as were reported; and increases are attributed to new products and better selling methods.

Ninety-three per cent. of the total product manufactured by this group is branded or trademarked. The principal selling method is direct to the manufacturer-consumer.

OCCUM & VERSAILLES

Rally day was observed on Sunday by the Versailles M. E. Sunday school. The pleasing programme rendered included songs under the direction of Joshua Heap of Baltic, Miss Boutilier being at the piano.

Helpful addresses were made by L. M. Crandall and Robert J. McNeely of Norwich. The programme committee consisted of Mrs. F. H. Topliff, Mrs. Henry Benker, Miss Lillian Hargreaves; music committee, Mrs. Louis Erbeck and Miss Alma Boutilier. The vestry was effectively decorated by Misses Isadore Barton, Mildred Phillips, Gladys Carlson and Doris Bateson.

SOUTH COVENTRY

Mrs. William A. Wolfe has returned from Hartford hospital where she underwent an operation recently. She is to stay with her daughter, Mrs. Raymond Johnson for a few weeks.

Four local pupils were on the Windham High school honor roll: Dorothy White, Charles Christie, Bernice Clark and Clair Frink.

The roll call of the Congregational church was held Thursday evening. A total of 94 out of 147 members responded. Rev. Morris Alling of Storrs and Prof. Albert John Murphy were the speakers. There was special music by the vested choir.

A number of local people are making preparations for leaving for the South this winter.

Weather records made at New York city for 55 years show that out of 20,000 days no two are exactly alike.

than those handled by the Chappell Company. We are sole agents in Norwich and vicinity for the following anthracite coals:

Our Famous Henriette, acknowledged as one of the finest soft coals from Pennsylvania.

Our Premium New River, known as "The Cream of the New River Fields", from West Virginia.

Our Cambria Coal, a free burning, quick steaming coal from Cambria Co., Pennsylvania.

Our Somerset Coal, a slow burning, very economical coal, will stand hard work, from Somerset Co., Pennsylvania.

Big 10-day Sale on the best of all Tires - Michelin

There may have been a time when the leading tires were about alike in quality. But no more. Today one tire is much better. And we want more people to realize that fact by experience. Hence, we are making this big special on Michelin Tires and Tubes.

Consider the following facts:

Fact 1 You are almost certain to get more mileage by changing to Michelin Tires. Of 3000 motorists who changed to Michelins, more than 80% reported that they secured more mileage by the change.

Fact 2 The extra mileage which Michelins give you is not trifling. Records covering millions of miles show that Michelins go 36% farther than the average tire. That means you get 4000 or 5000 extra miles out of every Michelin.

Fact 3 Michelin Tubes are as superior as Michelin Tires. When the 5000 best-rated tire dealers in the country were asked to vote for the best tube, Michelin Red Ring-Shaped Tubes received many more votes than any other.

Fact 4 Even at regular prices you pay no more for Michelins than for other standard tires. That is possible because Michelin, unlike other manufacturers, makes only one grade of tire and, by specializing, is able to produce better tires more economically.

Fact 5 The special prices we are now quoting make Michelins a more wonderful buy than ever. Even if you don't need any tires right now, take advantage of this sale and put away the tires and tubes you now buy. Or if any of your tires are worn replace them now rather than wait for them to blow out on the road where you may have to buy whatever you can get at whatever price.

CITY MANAGER CONDEMNS LEAKING OF POLICE NEWS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 2—City Manager William A. Holt is displeased because of the newspapers publishing articles in advance of their being given official announcement, particularly in reference to the police department.

His displeasure was revealed today when he sent a communication to Captain Charles A. Pinney in reference to the matter. The communication in substance follows: "Will you call to the attention of the department Rule 14 of the rules and regulations in the police manual? Recent events lead to the conclusion that some members of the department are not observing Rule 14. It is absolutely essential that police news be given out through the office. Section A of Rule 22 covers the enforcement of this very thoroughly." The action of City Manager Holt was the result of publication being made of the intention of Captain Pinney to create a detective bureau prior to the official announcement of the creation of the new branch of the department.

Robinson, until recently employed in Stamford, but, who, it is understood, came to New London to take employment. Robinson is not known here.

An Essex coach, owned by John McArdle, 92 School street, was stolen last night, the second auto to be stolen during the night. The car which is of 1923 model and carries Connecticut registration N-2081 was driven to Brewer street about 9 o'clock and parked while the owner went to the Elks' club. Mr. McArdle left the club about 11.30 and then the theft was discovered. He reported the loss at police headquarters and the state police at Groton and Centerbrook and the police of Norwich, Westerly, Middletown, New Haven and Hartford were asked to maintain a watch for it. The other car stolen is owned by Miss Carrie F. Davies, 91 School street and was stolen from Bank street. No trace of either machine was obtained.

The automobile of Miss Davies was found this afternoon abandoned on Washington street and tonight the police of Milford notified the New London police that McArdle's auto had been found on the outskirts of the city where it had been abandoned. In the auto was found a brief case containing valuable papers belonging to the owner. Mr. McArdle will go to Milford tomorrow and drive the car back to New London.

Mrs. Olive Chaffee of Provincetown, Mass., went to the union station last night and while there she left her leather case a short time, long enough to give a thief an opportunity to steal it. Mrs. Chaffee reported the theft at police headquarters, but no trace of it was gotten. The case contained apparel, earrings, about $13 and a passport issued in the name of Miss Ada Gilmore.

Thomas Murphy of this city and Clarence L. Skinner, members of the crew of the United States coast guard destroyer Shaw, state pier, were arrested this afternoon by Traffic Officer Frank Linehan and George Cockell, charged with desertion. They were returned to the pier by a guard and will be given a court martial tomorrow. Murphy and Skinner watched for a favorable opportunity to leave their boat at noon. They did not leave the city and that is where they made a mistake if they really desired to depart from the city. A short time after Murphy and Skinner were missed the police were asked to keep a watch for the men and an hour later they were detected passing through State street, and they were arrested and locked up.

Joseph Roderick, 20, a marine fireman, and William Gormley, 22, a mechanic, both of 453 Bank street, were arrested today by Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh charged with the theft of an overcoat belonging to George Sullivan another lodger at the Bank street house. They will be in the police court tomorrow. Sullivan recently absented himself from the rooming house and when he returned this morning he discovered that the garment was missing. He went to police headquarters and reported his loss. Sergeant Cavanaugh was assigned to the complaint and suspicion pointed to Roderick and Gormley as the thieves. When they were questioned both denied any knowledge of the disappearance of the coat. It was then discovered that the coat had been sold to a Bank street tailor and there the coat was found. Roderick and Gormley were escorted to the store where the proprietor identified them as the men who brought the coat to him and offered it for sale and to having paid them, Roderick and Gormley dividing the money. Gormley has a police record for about two years ago he was arrested charged with theft and carrying a concealed weapon. For those offenses he was sentenced to six months in jail and fined $100. At that time he was employed as a bell boy at one of the hotels.

Six drunks occupied cells at police headquarters last night, but only two of them were in court today, when both were disciplined, one being fined $10 and costs and the other sentenced to jail for 30 days. The other four drunks were members of the United States coast guard and they were taken to the local section base, state pier, where they will be disciplined.

The condition of Mrs. Peter Kowalski and her daughter, Stephenie, 17, of Old Mystic, who were injured Sunday when the automobile Miss Kowalski was driving, collided with a telephone pole on the Old Mystic road, was reported today at Lawrence Memorial hospital as improving. Peter Kowalski, who sustained several fractured ribs, is reported as resting comfortably at his home. The accident occurred when Miss Kowalski attempted to pass another auto. She lost control of the car and it crashed into the pole. Miss Kowalski, who was driving the automobile, will be arrested by state police as soon as she is able to leave the hospital, which, it is believed, will be within a few days. She will be charged with reckless driving.

The continued case of Charles F. Hall, 15 Orchard street, city employe, charged with manslaughter, was called in the police court today. Hall was driver of a five-ton truck used for the collection of dry garbage. Oct. 12 one of the laborers, Hector Charron, of Shaw street, was riding on the front fender. As the truck rounded the curve at the corner of Williams and Broad streets, Charron lost his balance and fell to the highway. Before Hall could apply the brakes and bring the auto to a stop, the wheels passed over the lower part of Charron's body, inflicting internal injuries. He was rushed to Lawrence-Memorial hospital where he expired a quarter of an hour after he had been admitted. Hall was arrested the following day A few days ago Coroner J. J. Desmond, of Norwich, rendered a finding in which he exonerated Hall from any criminal responsibility.

Alfred Zoccarelli, of Waterford, was presented in the Waterford town court this afternoon charged with violation of the prohibition law, the specific charges being manufacture and possession. The case was continued to Monday next. Zoccarelli furnished a surety on his bond of $1,000 for his appearance on the later date. The Zoccarelli house had long been under suspicion and as a result the building was given frequent scrutiny. A warrant was issued and given to Lieut. Roy Streman, state police, Groton barracks. Lieut. Streman, accompanied by other officers went to the house last night and found much in the way of evidence. A 60-gallon still, a large quantity of mash and a quantity of alcohol and wine was found stored in the house and all were seized and will be used as evidence against Zoccarelli when he is placed on trial.

Broadway Theater

A perfect example of modern photoplay comedy construction is now showing at the Broadway theater, where Paramount's, Tell It To Sweeney is being screened. This picture, a comedy of railroad life as it shouldn't be, presents a new team of farceurs, Chester Conklin and George Bancroft, who seem to be congenially cast as partners in the business of manufacturing chuckles.

Cut-and-dried ideas are conspicuously absent from Tell It to Sweeney. The picture brings one roar after another because of this pair of comedians who are so long experienced in the comedy field.

The story, the work of Percy Heath, Monte Brice and Kerry Clarke, centers about a haughty old engineer and his old fashioned steed of the thundering rails, both relics of a bygone era and another engineer of the modern day. Of course, there is romance, plenty of it, and this romance serves to bring about a series of spectacular thrills in which a runaway train plays the principal part. Conklin has the role of Luke Beamish, the out-of-date throttle-pusher, while Bancroft is well suited to the part of Cannonball Casey, the Herculean operator of the crack flier.

Real state Sold

Norwich Land Title and Insurance company sold for Frederick and Armstrong of Franklin his farm of 200 acres consisting of a large house and out buildings with stock of over 30 cows and horses and about 100 sheep. This farm has been in the Armstrong family over 100 years. Dr. Stephen Sweet, the one time bone setter made this his home. This farm is noted for its fine fruit having picked about 3,000 bushels of apples last year. Mr. A. Shuman and M. Schwartz are the lucky buyers. They already are making improvements on the buildings and are going right ahead with the work of making this one of the best cultivated farms in Franklin. These brokers have been very successful in selling farm and city property this summer and fall.

Palace Theater

Today ushers in a new bill at the Palace theater, with a new vaudeville and picture program. Headlining on the vaudeville stage is the Smith-Colton company, who offer a fantastic novelty revue called, "The Parade of the Goblins." The act consists of seven people and has played all the big time theaters in the country. Fletcher and Smith, two men, offer "Bits of This and That" in which comedy reigns supreme. Kramer and Mack are sure to please in one of those delightful comedy skits that have won so much favor recently. Sydney Grant, the former musical comedy star entertains with his witty observations on the days of yesterday. Concluding the program are Gomez and Gomez in "Musical Moments."

On the screen, the feature attraction is Mrs. Wallace Reid in The Satin Woman. Here is the spectacular vivid story of a woman, who by virtue of her flair for society, was able to win the applause of the world but who at the same time lost her husband and family. Mrs. Reid is surrounded by an excellent cast including Rockliffe Fellows, John Miljan, Alice White, Laska Winters, Gladys Brockwell, Ethel Wales and Ruth Stonehouse.

Breed Theater

From What Price Glory, an epic film to Is Zat So? a hilarious drama, is the transition made by Edmund Lowe, the tough marine of the battle film and the equally tough prize fighter's manager of the comedy.

Is Zat So, which comes to the Breed theater today, Friday and Saturday, is the play which James Gleason and Richard Taber wrote, and which, produced on Broadway, was the outstanding comedy-drama hit of years. But strangely enough, it was a play that had been rejected by every well-known manager on Broadway before it was finally produced with Gleason, one of the co-authors playing the same role in which Lowe appears in Fox Films screen version.

It is a story about a prize fighter and his manager, the role of the fighter being played by that virile specimen of manhood, George O'Brien. But it is more than a story of the ring. In fact it is one of the finest studies of modern society so far produced. The film cast, too, is one of the best that could possibly be assembled, including, as it does, in addition to Lowe and O'Brien, Doris Lloyd, Kathryn Perry, Philippe De Lacy, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Cyril Chadwick and Dione Ellis.

Strand Theater

At the Strand tonight, tomorrow night and Saturday night, Priscilla Dean's latest picture, The Dice Woman. The click of dice echoed on the click of dancing heels. She was a creator of thrills, a rollicking frolicking, dashing, unusual girl. A thrilling picture story that carries you from the sunny slopes of California to far off China, on the road of perilous adventure.

Fred Thomson and his wonder horse in Silver Comes Thru, is a compelling drama of the race track staged on the rolling vistas of the sage. The thrills of Saratoga in the old time glamor of the west.

MOTHER!

A Child Doesn't Laugh and Play if Constipated

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

The Tigers have tasted defeat and are out for revenge and expect to show a better exhibition of football Sunday.

A most enjoyable Halloween social was held Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Helen Mertell at 375 Boswell avenue with 20 invited guests being present. The program opened with a grand march with the guests masked and in costume. The parlor was attractively decorated with autumn foliage and orange and black streamers. Games and music furnished the evening's entertainment. The hostess served refreshments of sandwiches, doughnuts, cookies, chocolates, apples and popcorn.

At St. Mary's memorial church the observance of the Feast of All Souls began with a low mass at 5 o'clock for the accommodation of parishioners obliged to go to work early. This was followed by masses at 7 and 8 o'clock. At each mass there was a large number to receive holy communion. Special confessions had been heard Tuesday afternoon and evening. November is the month in which the Catholic church devotes to remembrance of the holy souls, particularly the souls of relatives and friends who through some blemish of sin may be detained in the purgation state until they have atoned and are worthy to enter the presence of God. Consequently many of the holy communions were offered in propitiation for the souls in purgatory. During the day many of the parishioners paid special visits to the church to offer special prayers for the eternal welfare of the souls of their relatives and of all the faithful departed.

TAFTVILLE

The Feast of All Souls, designated as a day of prayer for the souls in purgatory, was observed Tuesday at Sacred Heart church with special masses at 5:30, 7 and 8 a. m., all largely attended by the parishioners. The last service of the day was a high mass of requiem.

The second night of the carnival being given for the benefit of the Sacred Heart church under the auspices of the Army & Navy club was held Tuesday evening at Parish hall. A large oak tree which stands in the grove on Providence street near the giant boulder got afire Tuesday evening. Evidently some children had covered the hollow trunk with leaves and lighted them. The blaze was discovered by a motorist returning home late, who summoned help and the blaze was extinguished. It is believed that if the tree had been burning for only a few minutes more, it would have crashed across the street through the roof of the garage which is located there.

NON-SUIT JUDGMENT IN $1,500 CLAIM MADE AGAINST LAUNDRY CO.

Non-suit judgment was entered in the superior court here Wednesday afternoon by Judge John Rufus Booth when the case of David Feister of this city against Norwich American Steam Laundry Inc., also of this city came up before him.

Feister, who is a dry goods peddler, sued the laundry company for $5,000 damages on the claim that on Feb. 2, 1926 he was invited by Henry Hyde, driver of one of the laundry trucks, to ride with him from New London to Norwich and that while on the way the truck skidded, hit a tree near Connecticut college and Feister was thrown out, sustaining a broken arm as the most serious of numerous injuries.

Attorney Lee Roy Robbins with Attorney Arthur M. Brown were counsel for the plaintiff, Attorney Thomas M. Shields for the defendant.

EAST LYME SUIT IS TO BE RE-ASSIGNED

In the superior court in this city Wednesday morning, with Judge John Rufus Booth presiding, partial trial was held in the $1,500 suit of Henry L. Drabik of East Lyme against James A. Way of Meriden and Charles A. Reed of East Lyme, but the case went off for re-assignment after a request had been made to the court allowing the pleadings to be amended.

Drabik brought the suit on the grounds that there was a breach of warranty deed of a farm in East Lyme which he claims Reed deeded to him in 1921 "free of all incumbrances," but the common pleas court adjudicated that Walter and Josephine Gadbois of East Lyme had a right of way over the property.

The only witness called in trial of the suit was Lewis Crandall, clerk of the court of common pleas. When the plaintiff's counsel attempted to have a judgment rendered by the common pleas court put in as evidence, counsel for the defendant interposed strong objection and the point was argued for some time.

BIBLE STUDY SESSION CONDUCTED AT Y. M. C. A.

At the local Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening the weekly Bible study for men was held and it proved an intensely interesting session. The scripture used was 1st Samuel, verses five to twenty inclusive. Among the points brought out in the discussion were the following: It is possible to love an enemy; one can overcome evil with good, and it is a true man's duty to do so. King Saul was saturated with jealousy against David because David was growing popular and Saul was losing popularity. The spirit of jealousy is all too common in this day and time. No man, even though he have high position and unlimited wealth can possibly be happy if he has a jealous disposition; jealousy kills happiness. Saul's jealousy was so extreme that he was continually seeking an opportunity to kill David. David had a very unusual opportunity to "get even" with Saul, and one of his trusted men suggested that he take advantage of it, but David in the bigness of him said "no." When his friend argued that it would be justifiable, David said, "I am endeavoring to follow a higher code, and therefore I will not consent to have Saul slain." A high class man will not always insist upon his rights. A man with a magnanimous spirit will in long run be a winner. David profited most by his decision not to kill Saul, for he had great satisfaction in the fact that he did the right thing. Saul confessed to David that he had "played the fool," and every time that a man does wrong, he to that extent plays the fool. A drunkard, a gambler, a profane man and an impure man all play the fool and they will in due time receive a fool's reward. A weakling can do wrong, but it takes a strong man plus God to stick true to the right.

PUT UNDER BONDS FOR U. S. COURT APPEARANCE

Mathias J. Lavigne, Taftville, charged with violating the liquor law, waived examination, when presented before U. S. Commissioner Earl Mathewson Tuesday afternoon. He was held for trial in the U. S. district court and was released on bonds of $500. Lavigne was arrested by Prohibition Officer Stanton L. Briggs, October 24. The officer happened to be standing on a truck which was parked nearby. He investigated and found a load of 719 bottles of beer on the truck. Lavigne who was in a store at the time was identified as the owner of the truck.

SPEEDING TAXI DRIVERS PAY FINES IN COURT

Three local taxi drivers were fined in the city court Wednesday morning, one for speeding and the other two for reckless driving. They were arrested about midnight Tuesday after a race over West Main street after a customer. It is said that this customer is quite liberal with his tips and each of the taxi drivers was bent on securing him as a passenger. Maxime Brokowski, one of the drivers, entered a plea of guilty of speeding. He was fined $10 plus costs of $17.74. Carlisle Botham and Albert G. Rodgers pleaded guilty to reckless driving and were each fined $25 and costs, their total bills being $35.74 each.

"SHAMPOO" IS HINDOO FOR MASSAGE

The secret of beautiful hair is in the word "Shampoo." In Hindoo, it means massage; in English, thorough cleansing of hair and scalp. Frequent cleansing with antiseptic pine tar soap, which banishes germs, tones and stimulates—together with vigorous exercise of the scalp—keeps hair and scalp healthy. Hair specialists usually recommend Packer's, the standard brand of tar soap for 35 years, for the shampoo. At all dealers.

MIDDLETOWN PASTOR WAS SPEAKER BEFORE ROTARIANS

"Tolerance" was the subject of a very interesting address given before the Norwich Rotary club at a meeting of the club on Wednesday noon by Rev. H. C. Rollason, pastor of South Congregational church, Middletown, former pastor at the Hanover Congregational church. Rev. Mr. Rollason came as the guest of William G. Park, chairman of the November program, who introduced the speaker.

Rev. Mr Rollason in opening his talk complimented Rotary on its democratic policies, policies which have endured throughout history and which have a very large amount of tolerance in them. Tolerance, said Rev. Mr. Rollason, is a virtue and we must possess it under trying circumstances. Tolerance is just a knack of seeing things from the other fellow's point of view and receiving his ideas with open mind. To possess tolerance is an achievement, something for which we must strive. Thomas Morley once said "We are all born intolerant" and I think he was right. We are born with certain likes and dislikes and sometimes our environments tend to make us intolerant, especially if something new comes to our notice which is directly against some idea which has been instilled in us through our environments. We are all more or less intolerant of things political, religious, social and otherwise. We are intolerant of the foreigner and the stranger in our lands.

This intolerance may be born of fear and it may be a sort of protective instinct, against imaginary fears. Intolerance is also the child of ignorance. For is it not truth that we often look upon a thing that we do not understand with a feeling of intolerance. When we rid ourselves of our ignorance then we see and understand and become tolerant.

As was said before, tolerance is not born in us, it must be acquired. To acquire it is an achievement of which we may feel proud. But first to acquire tolerance we must have faith in our fellowman. We must believe he is as trustworthy as we are ourselves. When we trumpet the faults of others it is almost certain that we are trumpeting our own faults. This is a truth that has been apparent down through the ages of man. Then we must believe in truth and have faith in it. How many of us have refused to believe until we have been shown and even then some of us do not believe. We must seek the truth in all things whether political, social or religious.

History is a great teacher of tolerance. We see in looking over the histories glaring examples of intolerance and then in sharp contrast is the exponent of tolerance. In reviewing the history of democracy we see many noble examples of tolerance, Abraham Lincoln, Wendell Phillips, Phillips Brooks and Lloyd Garrison and many others, who possessed that spirit of tolerance but were sorely misunderstood by the intolerant. We find in one of Emerson's writings on "Fears and Superstitions" that 80 years ago people feared emigration, Roman Catholicism and radicals. That was nearly a century ago and do not some people still hold the same fears? Don't let these fears rule us today. More and more are we exercising this virtue of tolerance and we are building for a better Americanism in so doing.

At the conclusion of his talk Rev. Mr. Rollason was given a very hearty vote of appreciation.

President Clarence A. Spear presided at the business session and E. A. Harris was the song-leader. Nicholas J. Spellman was at the piano in the absence of Henry J. LaFontaine who is recovering from a tonsil operation. Secretary Edward L. Jewett read a communication from the Women's City club announcing an open meeting on Tuesday evening, Nov. 15th, when Charles Steize of New York will speak on the "Cause and Cure for Social Unrest."

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

Robert Staplins.

Robert Staplins, born in Salem, Conn., enlisted in Company H, 14th Connecticut Volunteer Infantry, July 25, 1862, discharged July 20, 1865; joined Perkins post Oct. 25, 1879; died Nov. 25, 1926, aged 92 years, and was buried in Montville. His record was read by Past Commander John Goddard.

Daniel McGinn.

Daniel McGinn was born in New York and enlisted in the U. S. navy. During the Civil war a United States frigate was anchored in the Thames river at the foot of State street. He was drafted on several ships and was in several attacks on Fort Sumpter and was discharged after one year service. He later enlisted in Co. H, First Connecticut cavalry, and was discharged late in 1865. He joined the post May 26, 1887. He died February 3, 1927, and was buried in cemetery at Flanders, aged 78 years. Morman Bulkeley Haven responded for Mr. McGinn.

William L. Davies.

William L. Davies was born in Fishkill, N. Y., but moved to Connecticut when young, at beginning of Civil war, living in Norwich. Enlisted in Co. F, 18th Connecticut Volunteer Infantry and served till close of war. Was a former member of Sedgwick post of Norwich, transferred to W. W. Perkins post April 12, 1890. He was a past commander and at time of his death was chaplain. He died in New London Feb. 3, 1927, aged 85 years, and was buried in Cedar Grove cemetery. His son, William Davies, responded with tribute.

Frederick C. Eager.

Frederick C. Eager was born in Worcester, Mass., enlisted in Co. G, First Mass. Cavalry, where he served honorably. He was a past commander of the post. He died Sept. 5, 1927. METHODIST WOMEN HERE FOR MISSIONARY CONFERENCE

The Woman's Home Missionary society of the New England southern conference opened its 44th annual meeting at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. The attendance of delegates from the various sections of southern New England is large. The president, Mrs. F. W. Coleman of Stafford Springs, opened the session with devotions following which holy communion was given by Rev. Myron E. Genter of this city, the district superintendent, and Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of the church. The meeting then accepted the programme and Mrs. Robert W. McNeely, president of the Wesleyan service guild, welcomed the delegates. The response was by Mrs. Jerome Greer of Gales Ferry, the corresponding secretary. Committees on registration, resolutions and courtesy, were appointed as follows: Registration, Mrs. E. N. Griffith, Pawtucket, R. I.; resolutions, Mrs. Albert Thurston, Woonsocket, R. I., and Mrs. Sadie L. Davis of Providence, R. I.; courtesy, Miss Emma Bliss and Mrs. Myron E. Genter of this city. The greater part of the morning session was taken up by the reports of the district officers.

In her report, Mrs. A. M. Bruce of New Bedford showed a gain of membership and finances. Mrs. R. N. Mauney of Attleboro and Miss L. P. McLennon of Norwich district read reports showing much progress in the work of the organization and several bequests. Miss J. C. Gallup of Moosup spoke on the national conference recently held at Baltimore. At the conference reports were read showing a total of 469,000 members and 400 delegates in the organization.

Mrs. S. A. Prentis of New London reported 35 deaths and an impressive memorial service was conducted. Reports made by the treasurer, Mrs. J. T. Cooper of East Greenwich, R. I., and Mrs. Jerome Greer of Gales Ferry, corresponding secretary, showed a gain in finances and members during the year. During the morning session, Mrs. Robert Bitgood of New London presented Mrs. F. W. Coleman and Mrs. Jerome Greer with perpetual memberships in recognition of valued and devoted service to the organization.

Luncheon was served the delegates by a committee of the Wesleyan guild as follows: Mrs. John Phillips, chairman; Mrs. William H. Denison, Mrs. Martin Colberg, Mrs. Charles Browning and Miss Emma Bliss.

The afternoon session was called to order about 1.30 o'clock with the devotions led by Mrs. Myron E. Genter of this city. A feature of the afternoon was a vocal solo by Mrs. William Crowe, Jr., after which Mrs. William F. Anderson of Boston delivered an address on Our Responsibility to Child Life in America. On the American home rests the responsibility of the country, she said. Motherhood should be considered a profession rather than a job. She spoke of the value of having good music in the home. Two-thirds of the children in the United States do not get any religious education, she said. When we are indifferent to the children of our country, we are indifferent to our Maker, said Mrs. Anderson.

At 7 o'clock in the evening the annual banquet was held with Mrs. Robert A. T. Bitgood of New London presiding. During the banquet menu served by the Ladies' Aid society of the church, a duet was sung by Mrs. Roberts and Miss Mary Grey. This was followed by a vocal solo by Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham after which Mrs. S. L. Davis of Providence spoke of the summer activities at Silver Lake. Hitch Your Wagon to a Star was the topic of a short talk by Mrs. O. L. Griswold of Fairhaven, Mass. The triple link membership plan was explained by Mrs. Bitgood after which Mrs. J. C. Gallup spoke briefly on Our Part in Thinking Forward. A violin solo was given by Miss Roberta Bitgood of New London after which Miss M. E. Stewart of Boston spoke briefly of the new Browning home being erected in North Carolina. This new mission school is to cost about $125,000.

Mrs. J. C. Bridgeford of Providence spoke on Missionaries and their Needs. She told of the various problems that confront the missionaries and exhibited a number of pictures of orphans who are being cared for and educated by the missionaries.

Owing to the lateness of the hour Mrs. Anderson, the speaker of the evening, confined her address to a rather informal talk to the 75 delegates present. During her remarks she said it is time for every woman to be a patriotic woman and show her patriotism by going to the polls and voting. Too many women stay away from the voting places, she said. Just as sure as Christian women fail to do their duty, she said, the country will be in the hands of the enemy. Boost the temperance proposition before our country, said Mrs. Anderson.

Mrs. Anderson's talk brought the evening session to a close.

The conference will be continued this (Thursday) morning when the election of officers will take place. The installation and consecration service will be in charge of Mrs. Anderson. The conference will come to a close about noon time.

FLOOD THREATENS TO BURST RUTLAND RESERVOIR DAMS

Rain, Which Began Falling in Vermont at 7.30 Wednesday Night, Continued Unabated Last Night—The Southern Section of Rutland is Under Water—Rail and Road Communication Has Been Cut Off—The City is Without Light and Power—Chittenden Dam, Situated in the Mountains Six Miles Above Rutland, Constitutes the Main Menace—Several Families in Bennington Have Been Marooned by Flood Waters—Highways in This State Closed To Traffic by Heavy Rain and Overflow of the Naugatuck River.

RUTLAND, Vt., Nov. 3—(AP)—This city was isolated tonight by the worst flood conditions on record here following a night and day of steady rain. Despite earlier reports that one of the reservoir dams near the city had been carried out by the flood, early tonight both the Patch dam, one mile north of Rutland, and the Chittenden dam, six miles above the city, still were holding. The southern section of the city was under water however, rail and road communications were cut off, and light and power had been suspended.

The rain which began at 7.30 o'clock last night continued tonight unabated. It was feared that a continuance of the storm would cause one or both of the reservoir dams to burst, causing loss of life and widespread damage.

The Chittenden dam, situated in the mountains six miles above Rutland, constituted the main menace tonight. The dam holds the waters of a large artificial lake, one of the reservoirs of the Vermont Hydro-Electric company, supplying one of the plants of the hydro-electric chain. Tonight families living along the valley between Chittenden and this city were moving to higher ground in the event of a break.

The dam which was reported collapsed today was the Patch dam, a mile north of Rutland, supplying the power plant of the Rutland Railway Light & Power company.

While a great volume of water was pouring over the spillways, forcing the shutdown of the power plant, the dam still held tonight.

The force of the flood first became apparent in Water street in the southern part of the city, when the swollen waters of East creek invaded the streets and houses. Firemen and police were mobilized to aid in the work of rescue and at 6 o'clock 15 families had been assisted to safety. Boats were used to navigate the watery streets.

In other parts of the city sewers were backed up, causing further flood. In the Moon brook section a number of residents floated away from their homes on hastily constructed rafts of furniture.

The closing down of the Rutland Railway Light & Power company plant left the city tonight in darkness and without electric power. The plant, officials said, would be unable to resume until the flood subsided somewhat.

Rail service on the Rutland and Delaware and Hudson lines, the two railroads serving the city, was suspended because of washouts at North Adams and Roxbury, south and east of here. The flooded conditions of the roads made access to the city by automobile impossible in several directions.

With water still pouring down from the mountains and inundating new portions of the city as rain showed no signs of ceasing tonight the local national guard company was called out to aid the police, firemen and city officials in handling the flood situation. The state armory was placed at the disposal of the scores of refugees who had been driven from their homes.

Mayor Arthur W. Perkins took charge of the task of securing food and dry clothing for the homeless.

The inundated area is in the poorer residential section, the business district and streets where the larger houses are found not being affected.

Power company officials said tonight that there would be no resumption of electricity for lights or power purposes until tomorrow at least, the main distributing station being 10 feet under water.

TORRINGTON FLOODED BY OVERFLOW OF RIVER

TORRINGTON, Nov. 3—(AP)—The east branch and main stream of the Naugatuck river overflowed its banks here tonight, and inundated the business section of the town through which it runs, flooding cellars, halting traffic and causing heavy damage to merchandise stored in cellars.

Police were stationed at every bridge in the city and three of the spans were closed to all traffic as the flooding waters of the river lapped close to the bridge floors.

The highway between here and Thomaston was entirely closed to traffic and under 2 1-2 feet of water, according to reports.

WINSTED REPORTS HEAVY DAMAGE TO HIGHWAYS

WINSTED, Nov. 3—(AP)—Heavy downpouring of rain, unbroken since the early hours of the morning, had caused damage to high ways in this section of the state running into thousands of dollars as night settled down. Cellars along the Mad river, which runs through this city, were flooded and many streets were covered with water. Both the Mad and Still rivers were at freshet height and continued to rise.

HOMASTON-WATERBURY ROAD FLOODED BY RAIN

WATERBURY, Nov. 3—(AP)—With three feet of water on the Thomaston-Waterbury road in the flats between Reynolds Bridge and Frost Bridge, State Highway Superintendent Henry Schildgen tonight closed the road to all traffic while workmen labored to save the road foundation from one of the most disastrous rains here in years.

The dirt shoulders of the road were washed away at many points early this evening as a heavy downpour continued. When the damage to the highway increased the road was closed to prevent accidents and enable workmen to try to block the flood. Rain water from nearby hills poured down into the road far faster than the drainage system would handle it. Traffic is being routed through Watertown to Waterbury.

Waterbury itself suffered unestimated damage in the storm. Reports of cellars flooded, roads awash from curb to curb and a freshet in the Bunker Hill section which tore away lawns, partially undermined a garage and filled the lower floors of several houses were received. The main streets in the center of the city were partially under water from time to time until the rain diminished and gave the surface sewers a chance. On South Main street, water a foot deep was reported.

Nearly four inches of rain have fallen here according to the government weather bureau.

OVERFLOW OF NAUGATUCK RIVER CLOSES HIGHWAYS

HARTFORD, Nov. 3—(AP)—John A. MacDonald, state highway commissioner, late tonight ordered state highways in the vicinity of Thomaston closed to traffic when he received reports that the Naugatuck river was overflowing its banks and threatened to do heavy damage. The commissioner left for the scene soon after he received the reports.

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS DAMAGE IN VERMONT

MONTPELIER, Vt., Nov. 3—(AP)—Practically the entire state of Vermont tonight was in the grip of floods following a night and day of heavy rainfall. The sudden freshets surpassing the annual spring overflow from melting snow in the mountains, caused some loss of life, millions of dollars worth of damage and paralyzed rail and road transportation.

BENNINGTON RESIDENTS MAROONED BY THE FLOOD

BENNINGTON, Vt., Nov. 3—(AP)—Inhabitants of more than a score of homes in the lower part of this city were marooned by the flood which swept through here tonight. The water at some homes had risen to the second story and cut off all communications.

The city was without lights, the power system having failed late in the afternoon. Trolley cars were unable to move, and the street car bridge between Bennington and North Bennington washed away.

The water was three feet high in Main street and nearly as high in most other streets. All highways to the north were impassable.

RAILROADS ARE TO COPE WITH FLOOD WATERS

BOSTON, Nov. 3—(AP)—The Boston and Maine railroad tonight threw every available force into a finish fight with flood waters throughout Vermont state and northern Massachusetts where 24 hours of torrential rains left trains stalled and traffic generally delayed behind washed out tracks and weakened river bridges.

The Minute Man, crack western flier, was stalled both ways at Greylock where a reservoir overflower and washed out both east and west bound tracks. Busses, commandeered from Greenfield, were sent to the scene and passengers on both east and west bound sections were carried around the block.

The 3 o'clock express, east bound from Troy, N. Y., also was delayed and the passengers were rerouted.

A highway bridge went out west of North Pownell, Vt., carrying the railroad bridge with it and traffic there was hung up indefinitely. The Burlington branch of the Rutland railroad was tied up by washouts and trains were being rerouted to Albany, N. Y., by way of the Deleware & Hudson railroad.

The Green Mountain flier, southbound, got out of Bellows Falls ahead of a washout without waiting to connect with the Montreal train. Schedules were being arranged to continue the Montreal train through as a second section.

COWBOYS AND COWGIRLS WITNESSES IN COURT

NEW YORK, Nov. 3—(AP)—The pioneer days of the old west came to life today in the court room of a city magistrate where cowboys and cowgirls from a rodeo in Madison Square Garden appeared as the aftermath of a professional feud between two performers.

Michael Hastings, of Forth Worth, Texas, charged with disorderly conduct by Bob Belcher, of Morgan, Texas, was fined $5 after several witnesses in high-heeled boots had told their version of a fight between the two. Belcher said the battle arose as the result of general jealousy of the horsemanship of his wife, a native of Boston, and a graduate of Wellesley college.

Because his wife could outride any woman in the troupe he said, Hastings' animosity led him to put oil of mustard on a steer she was "bulldogging," with the result that she was thrown. Mrs. Belcher said the fight between her husband and Hastings followed Belcher's accusations that Hastings was responsible for her fall.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Frances Grayson's flight to Denmark was indefinitely postponed today because of "all the circumstances" surrounding her preparations for a fourth attempt.

"In view of all the circumstances," she told The Associated Press, "it seems to be the only thing I could do."

She declined to say how long a postponement was meant by "indefinite" or even whether she intended to convey that the flight would not be made this year. She would not elaborate on what she meant by "all the circumstances" though she did acknowledge that she had dropped negotiations with Bernt Balchen, copilot of the Byrd flight.

Favor Lowering Tax On Single Persons

Recommendation That Income Exemption Be Increased to $3,500.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3—(AP)—For the first time in years the house ways and means committee devoted virtually an entire session today to consideration of the direct tax on individual incomes without a single witness advocating reduction in the levies. However, a recommendation was received [illegible] the exemption granted a single [illegible] sons should be increased [illegible] to $3,500.

During the writing [illegible] revenue laws, the [illegible] and income rates, which direct[illegible] the pocketbooks of millions [illegible] taxpayers, were the center of debate and today was in marked contrast with the meeting two years ago, when the levies were being considered.

The move for increased exemption for single persons was sponsored by the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs, represented by Lena M. Phillips of New York city, Martha L. Connole of East St. Louis, Ill., and Vornelia Adair, of Richmord, Va., their appearance marked the first time in the memory of committee clerks that women had testified before a committee of congress on revenue matters.

Miss Connole argued that the average married man or head of a family now enjoys a 130 percent better position in the matter of exemptions than during the war, and about 20 per cent better than before the war, while the exemption allowed single persons is only one half of what it was before the war.

"The injustice done single persons is emphasized by the fact that the treasury has each year unnecessarily collected about $600,000,000 over and above the government's needs," she said.

The witness also held that a number of single persons contribute to the family's support in some way and argued that most of them came within the lower income levels.

About 2,000,000 single persons pay an income tax, Miss Phillips testified and their average tax does not exceed $3.

"It is obvious that it costs more to collect this tax than it brings to the government," she continued.

Isaac W. Frank, Pittsburgh, Pa., advocated that all incomes devoted by persons to philanthropic purposes be exempted from taxation.

"At least it would be more just," he said, "to increase the present exemption on charitable donations up to 50 per cent of the income instead of 15 per cent."

INCOME TAX VIEWS GIVEN BY MISS MARTHA L. CONNOLE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3—(AP)—The tracitional dignity of the house ways and means committee did not balk Miss Martha L. Connole, of East St. Louis, Ill., today when she took the stand to insist on increased exemptions on the income tax for single persons.

"I've often wondered how Daniel felt in the lions' den," she said, "and standing here now, I know."

Miss Connole remarked that she was not excluding single men from her appeal. In response to a suggestion that she might be embracing them, she said, "No, I'm not embracing them, but I'm willing to. I'd be afraid to ask a single man about his financial affairs, for fear that he would suspect me."

Another touch of humor enlivened the meeting when Isaac W. Frank of Pittsburgh, Pa., disclaimed being a preacher in asking that income donated to charity be exempted from taxation. "You certainly preach a good sermon anyway," said Representative Treadway, republican, Massachusetts.

NATIONAL CONFERENCE ON THE REDUCTION OF CRIME

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The establishment of a national clearing house for criminal statistics and the improvement of the calibre of juries were advocated today by speakers, including former secretary of war, Newton D. Baker, and Chief Justice Taft of the supreme court at the closing session of the national conference on the reduction of crime.

"A further examination of the methods by which jurors are selected so that jurors of weak intelligence, of little experience and subject to emotions easily aroused may be eliminated," was proposed by the chief justice as a method of bettering the legal machinery for the prosecution of crime.

With former Secretary Baker as a principal speaker and chairman at the final meeting of the conference tonight, the securing of criminal statistics by state legislation and the extension of the activities of the national bureau of criminal identification were discussed as means of curbing the recent crime wave.

Douglas, of Middletown, reported on the financial condition of the auxiliary. Reports were made by the chairman of the various departments. Due to the resignation of Deaconess Roberts, and the very recent appointment of Deaconess Peet as educational secretary of the diocese, this department of the work was not reported upon. but Deaconess Peet was introduced to the members of the auxiliary.

One Col. Mine Closed By Demonstration

All Other Mines Reported an Increase in Working Forces Yesterday.

DENVER, Col., Nov. 3—(AP)—One mine was forced to close in southern Colorado today because of a strikers' demonstration and all others reported increased working forces at the strike [illegible] Colorado coal miners dragged [illegible]gh its sixteenth day.

As a result of the strikers' demonstration that caused the Ideal mine in Huerfano county to suspend operations, Colorado Fuel and Iron company officials announced they would drop their "no resistance" policy. Superintendent M. M. Watson of the Ideal mine was instructed to use his own discretion in the future in handling trespassers on company property.

"Avoid bloodshed if possible," was the only suggestion made to the mine superintendent.

The demonstration was held on the public school grounds about 300 yards from the mouth of the mine. The school property is owned by the Colorado Fuel and Iron company. More than 300 strikers and there I. W. W., leaders went to the property at 5 a. m., and remained until 8 a. m., listening to 12 speakers who told the miners not to go to work.

In Las Animas county there were no demonstrations or picketing and the C. F. & I., report showed that the working forces at their mines was getting close to normal.

I. W. W. headquarters at Walsenburg issued another official statement expressing confidence that the strike would be successful and saying the organization would carry on until the operators granted the Jacksonville wage scale, fixing $7.75 as a basic pay for a day.

NEGOTIATIONS WITH FRANCE TO STOP RUM SMUGGLING

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Efforts of federal prohibition officials to break up what they consider the chief source of smuggling liquor into the United States threaten to collapse because of the deadlock in the negotiations between the American and the French governments over a rum agreement affecting the French islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon off the Newfoundland coast.

These islands, prohibition authorities believe, furnish the base for rum running operations that accounts for 80 per cent. of the foreign liquor that reaches this country. Smuggling activities from the islands, they claim, have increased greatly since the Washington administration obtained an agreement with the British authorities in the Bahamas to furnish information on the departure of rum-laden ships for American ports. Through this agreement, officials say, operations in southern waters have been curtailed and has shifted the principal smuggling activities to northern waters.

A similar agreement is sought with the French authorities but conversations which have been in progress since July have made little headway and now are reported to be on the verge of a collapse. American officials are clinging to the remaining slender thread in the hope of saving the negotiations from a complete crash but they have only small hopes of successful culmination.

TO CONTINUE THE CUT OF OIL PRODUCTION

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 3—(AP) — An agreement to keep the lid on production in the Seminole oil field of Oklahoma, despite a recent falling off in the output, was reached here at a meeting of operators of the area today.

Action of the producers in voting to extend their curtailmept agreement to January 1, was entirely unexpected. Another surprise was furnished by the Seminole production figures for the last 24 hours, showing a flow of 403,405 barrels, an increase of 11,959 barrels over the previous day.

Before the conference today, predictions had been made that, as the result of the decline in production, all restrictions would be cast aside and well owners would scramble to bring up the "black gold" while it lasted.

Ray M. Collins, umpire of the field, who has been enforcing the curtailment program adopted some months ago when the Seminole production shot up over the 500,000 barrel mark and brought a crisis in the petroleum industry, explained the attitude of the operators by declaring "they were afraid if they let up now this job would have to be done all over again."

GUILTY AS ACCESSORY IN MURDER OF HIS INFANT

WORCESTER, MASS., Nov. 3.—(AP)—Nathan Desetnick, 24, 10 Edson street, Dorchester, was convicted by a jury in superior criminal court this afternoon of being accesory before the fact in connection with the murder of his four months old daughter, Marion Stella, who was drowned in Lake Quinsigamond, June 6th. The jury found him not guilty of murder in the first degree. Counsel for the defendant asserted as soon as the verdict was made known that in their opinion there was no evidence to show the defendant was an accessory and that the case would be carried to the judicial court on that ground.

The jury gave no explanation of their verdict but during the course of the trial there was evidence that Desetnick on the night before the child was found dead had turned the baby over to a man named Harry Balkin, who was to take it to New York and find a home in a Jewish family for the girl. FARM LEADERS IN CONGRESS ARE SPLIT OVER PRESIDENCY

Conflicting Views Are Expressed Over Prospective Candidacy of Frank O. Lowden of Illinois—Senator Nye of North Dakota, One of the Group of Western Independent Republican Senators, is Supporting the Candidacy of Senator Norris of Nebraska.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3—(AP)—The split in the ranks of congressional farm leaders over the prospective presidential candidacy of Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, was accentuated today with expression of conflicting views at the capitol.

Representative Dickinson of the farm problem pointed to Mr. Lowden's name and that the "proper alignment of agricultural states in a common cause should dictate a united support for a single candidate."

At the other end of the capitol, however, Senator Nye of North Dakota, one of the group of western independent republican senators supporting the candidacy of Senator Norris of Nebraska, revived the ghost of campaign expenditures raised against Lowden in connection with the republican national convention at Chicago in 1920.

Without mentioning the former Illinois governor by name, Senator Nye in a letter to the Farmers' union convention at Jamestown, N. D., in part wrote:

"Let us not overlook the fact that one of our friends, now most prominently mentioned as a candidate, was defeated at Chicago in 1920 because of the scandal raised over the use of his money by his friends in attempting unduely to influence the vote of the Missouri delegation, in which effort, hearings before the (senate) committee on privileges and elections disclosed they were caught redhanded."

Both Dickinson and Nye, however, agreed that solution of the farm problem was paramount and that there would be no compromise or surrender by the farmers of their position.

Dickinson, in sounding warning to eastern republicans that the demands of the west must be considered, recalled the slogan used by Lincoln's supporters in 1860—"Listen or lose the west." He added that "with democracy led by Governor Al Smith dividing the votes on religious and wet and dry issues," in certain places it "will be a sad day for eastern republicans when they defeat a well qualified man for nomination, on the ground that he happens to be a friend of the farmer."

The Iowa member also declared that the farm relief principles as embodied in the vetoed McNary-Haugen bill had not been abandoned and that "there will be an equalization fight in the next campaign."

EXPERIENCES OF AGED MAN WITH HIS "GHOST BRIDE"

WICHITA, Kas., Nov. 3.—(AP)—His marriage to a "ghost" bride and various transactions with the spirit world were related in court here today by John Seybold, 71-year-old farmer of Liberal, Kas., in his suit for $7,500 against Mrs. Nellie Moore, a spiritualist medium.

Seybold accuses Mrs. Moore of having defrauded him out of that sum, by means of a series of seances in which ghostly advisers helped her take money away from him.

The aged farmer told the court how he married "Sarah," a ghost who at times he could vaguely discern in the darkness of the seance room; of how he bought her roses, and purchased material for a wedding gown, which Mrs. Moore was to make and of how at "Sarah's" suggestion he made various payments to Mrs. Moore.

"When Sarah said she wanted $500 for the wayward girls," Seybold testified. "I asked how she, a spirit, could get it to them. She replied that she would materialize, as she did for me. I drew out $500, and at the next seance when I saw illuminated hands held out for the money, I put it into those hands."

The spirits, Seybold testified, made a lot of noise at these seances. There were a number with whom he became acquainted, he said, including "Dr. Green," a physician; and his own son, who was his "financial adviser." Once he said, when he complained of ill health, Mrs. Moore summoned a number of ghostly physicians who prescribed for him. Some of these ghosts were Indians, Seybold said.

CANTONESE GOV'T MUST SUPPRESS CHINESE PIRATES

SHANGHAI, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Suppression of piracy at Bias Bay, notorious lair of Chinese pirates who long have defied every authority, is the first job that the new Cantonese government has set for itself.

Foreign dispatches from Canton today stated that the Canton group of Nationalists which started a few days ago to establish a new Cantonese government independent of all other Nationalist regimes, is pushing its plans rapidly and is taking an active hand in Canton's administration.

As an indication of the group's intention of operating independently of its erstwhile colleagues at Nanking, it was announced that the 30,000 Cantonese soldiers now proceeding toward Hankow to aid the Nanking regime in throwing out General Tang Seng-Chi, will be called back to Canton.

The first job that the major portion of Canton's army will be ordered to undertake, is the suppression of piracy along the South China coasts.

The latest Bias Bay incident was the capture of the Chinese steamer Irene, on October 19, by a group of pirates who were driven off by a British submarine. The Irene subsequently sank as a result of the submarine's fire.

FIRST AMERICANS KILLED IN FRANCE TEN YEARS AGO

PARIS, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Ten years ago today the first American soldiers killed in action in France fell under enemy fire.

Three men of the Sixteen Infantry met death that night when a raiding party of Germans was sent over into the front line trenches at Artois in Lorraine, about ten miles east of Luneville, two weeks after the first American troops entered the line for the first time.

The sector had been quiet since the beginning of the war and was used by the French chiefly as a rest sector. One battalion from each infantry regiment of the First Division was sent into the line to get its baptism of fire on Oct. 20, 1917. The Second Battalion of each of these regiments went into the line on the night of November 3. As they were making their relief, a German bombardment commenced. Under cover of the heavy barrage, a German raiding party, seeking prisoners, entered the sector occupied by Company F of the Sixteenth Infantry.

Corporal James Gresham, and Privates Merle D. Hay and Thomas Enright of this company were killed during the raid.

The episode was recalled this evening in an article in Le Temps by General P. E. Bordeaux, who commanded the French division to which the American First Division was attached at that time.

WET LEAVES CAUSE CAR TO SKID INTO SWAMP

(Special to The Bulletin)

The driver escaped unhurt and the machine was but little damaged considering its double somersault, this fact being credited to the soft, marshy land on which it rolled. Part of a fence post was rammed through the radiator, however and some of the window glass was broken. The front bumper was also jammed. The machine was hauled to the Jordan Buick garage here.

JEWETT CITY

PRIVATE MANARD RECOVERS HIS SWORD LEFT IN FRANCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 3.—Adrian Manard, private 1st class, Co. E., 313th Inf., of Jewett City, was one of the few World war veterans from this section of the state, who attended the recent American Legion reunion and celebration in France. The 313th Co. was among the first of the American expeditionary forces to see active duty at the front. Private Manard, after the battle of the Argonne, and while with a reconnoitering party across the enemy's front, picked up a German sword. Presently his detachment was moved up, the sword being left at the French home where he had been quartered. Not returning to that sector after the armistice, the much prized weapon was left in France. Now, with the war over 10 years, Mr. Manard returns to the battle fields, and, thinking of the forgotten sword, he was able to locate the house again, make himself known, although clad in civies. Sure enough, there where it had been carefully hidden, he found the sword just as he had left it, ten years ago. He brought it home, back to Jewett City, and has it to show to his friends. Mr. Manard all but missed the trip, for even after his passage had been secured, he fell from a window in performance of his duty as a fireman, at a Hill street fire last summer, and was severely injured.

Up and down Putnam Valley he was known as Putnam's Prize Pretzeleer. And that day his first wisdom tooth had come through!... They found him feverishly biting pretzels with his new tooth—celebrating. Just one letter—a long line of

You don't have to have wisdom teeth to pretzelize. Even a youngster with his milk teeth can become a Grade A pretzeleer. O-So-Gud Pretzels are crunchy because they're so crisp and brittle. And they're crisp and brittle because they're made that way—with a fine, brave salty flavor baked right in.

If you like soup, you'll like pretzels with your soup. They help the soup. Same way with salad. Same way with dessert. Nothing better with gingerale. Eat them before you go to bed. They're that easy to digest. And the family doctor—if you've got a family and a doctor—will say "fine for the youngsters."

DANIELSON

DANIELSON STORES TO TO ADOPT NEW CLOSING HOURS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 3—Danielson's business men may throw one of their long cherished practices into the discard soon after the first of the year. This has to do with keeping open certain evenings each week. For time out of memory stores in various lines here have been open on Monday and Saturday evenings of each week. A score of years ago Wednesday also was a general opening night and, prior to that, stores were open Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday evenings of each week. But times change. First, Friday night was dropped as an opening night. Later, Wednesday also passed out of the picture as a trading night. For years Mondays and Saturdays have been the only nights on which stores have been open in Danielson, excepting, of course, stores in certain lines, like drugs, fruits and tobacconists that have a schedule of their own.

The proposal now is to abandon Monday night opening for Wednesday night opening. There are what the proponents of this plan hold are sound and sensible reasons for making the change. The first of them is to give Danielson an equal chance with other nearby trading centers to share in that part of weekly payrolls of mills of this town that is spent by shoppers immediately after pay day.

Many years ago about all the mills hereabout distributed their payrolls on Monday. That arrangement does not hold any longer. Some of them pay Monday now, others on Tuesday. Again, two opening nights, one at the very end of the week, the other at the first of the week, are regarded as too close together by those who advocate a change.

It is not to be assumed that the plan to abandon Monday evening for Wednesday evening closing will be adopted without some opposition, if it is adopted at all. However, it was one of the matters that will concern the chamber of commerce immediately after the first of the year. It is indicated that a canvass of the business men will be made to determine their individual preferences in the matter and to get their opinions as well as to set forth, where opposition to a change is found, the reasons why a change is being advocated. Owners of a number of the principal stores here have expressed their desire for a change to Wednesday night. The owners are certain that a change will help parry certain trading competition that Danielson, like all other communities, has to contend with and overcome as best it may.

There comes to the people of this community on Saturday of this week an annual opportunity to participate in a work for the good of unfortunate humanity. This opportunity, with many here, has come to be regarded as a privilege. It is that of having a part in building up the November Tag day fund of the Civic federation, an organization that has merited by its works all the good things said of it since its organization fourteen or fifteen years ago. It continues to maintain a highly meritorious record.

Ministering to the poor and unfortunate especially and to many others who have come to know and appreciate what it is doing, this organization maintains a visiting nurse service, holds free monthly chest clinics, sponsors the effort to win back to health and happiness many who, left to their own resources, could never hope for the care and advice they receive. Doing all of these things—and more—day in and day out, year after year the Civic federation operates on purely voluntary contributions. It comes to the public for financial aid but once each year. This year that time will be Saturday of this week. It hopes through this Tag day to raise at least $600, which figure was closely approached last year.

A tag on Saturday will be as a badge of honor for any person who wears one, a sign of understanding sympathy and affection for broken humanity, a sign of honor in helping the unfortunate, a sign that the well and strong appreciate their lot in life and are glad to express the blessings of health by helping the unfortunate who are losing it.

Don't blame the receiving set, radio fans, if things have not been going right with you the past few nights, as to getting stations you always could get at certain places on the dial. It isn't the fault of the sets. There has been a change in wave length assignments for a number of stations, several of them popular with listeners-in hereabouts. This change became effective Nov. 1. Since that date dealers in radio sets here have been deluged with complaints about their sets being out of order and with mournful details as to how one could not get this or that station any more. The sets are, in all probability, working as well as ever. The wave length change merely imposes on the set owner the interesting obligation of hunting up and down the dials until the vagrant favorite stations are re-located. They are all there and still doing business, but at new stands.

Few appreciate the importance in the affairs of the national guard of Connecticut and, incidentally, in the federal government's plans for national defence, of the state armory in Danielson and the troops for which it is the headquarters. Leaving the fine personnel out of the picture to consider only material things, a big investment is represented here. The finely kept armory is the property of the state. It houses among other things, army motor trucks having a combined value of $90,000. Two men are regularly at work at the armory keeping the trucks and other equipment in the very best of condition. The uniforms and other equipment of the armory and the things that pertain to it and its upkeep run the investment here into big money. It is a community asset about which one hears very little, yet is important.

It was announced today that Rev. Leonard R. Richards, himself a veteran of the World war with the British overseas forces, will be the Armistice day orator in Danielson. The plans for the observance have been developing rapidly the past few days, giving promise of the finest marking of Armistice day that has taken place in Danielson since the entire town turned out one May day in 1919, to celebrate all that Killingly's men had done to bring victory for the Allied arms, with hosts engaged in a like crusade for liberty.

At a special meeting of the Order of the Eastern Star held in their rooms November 1st with Worthy Matron Ethel G. Ingalls in charge, 100 were present. A large class was initiated with Mrs. Harold B. Atwood as the soloist. Guests were present from R. I. Refreshments of cake, coffee and ice cream were served by the following committee, Mrs. Ida Thomas, Mrs. Carrie Austin and Mrs. S. W. Bard. All reported a very pleasant evening.

The wedding of Miss Winifred Brown and G. Reno Caron is to take place at St. James' church Monday morning.

Coon hunters tell of the successes they are having these early November nights, and one group of hunters already are credited with taking six coons, one a 23-pounder.

H., will be invited to preach the All Saints' day sermon at Old Trinity next year.

At noon today the body of Pierre Gentilhomme arrived here from New Bedford for burial in St. James cemetery, the committal service being conducted by Rev. Theodems Mollard. M. S. Numpers of Mr. Gentilhomme's Danielson friends of other days attended the burial service.

A church supper at South Killingly this evening attracted attendance from Danielson.

Holders of the second issue of Liberty bonds have only a few days more in which to turn them in, unless they are willing to lose the interest on their investment after November 15. The government has called this issue of bonds for redemption.

Some departments of the big plant of the Quinebaug company here are running nights to speed up production for orders on hand.

Nightly shipments of Brussels sprouts continue to go out of this territory by motor truck to reach the Boston market in the very early morning hours. This crop has come to be of very considerable importance to some vegetable farmers.

Members of the American Legion are especially anxious to have a general display of flags on homes throughout Danielson on Armistice day, which will be the occasion of a fine observance here.

Flashing traffic lights are proposed for the dangerous Broad street—Reynolds street cross-over and for the junction of Main, Reynolds and Spring streets, at Davis park.

Weather somewhat hampered the institute with its interesting program held with Ekonk grange today, the County Farmers' association at the Connecticut Agricultural college extension service co-operating.

PUTNAM

LOCAL STORES ASKED TO CLOSE ARMISTICE DAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 3.—The business houses of the city are asked to close on Armistice day with the blowing of the whistles at eleven o'clock in the morning by the merchants committee of the chamber of commerce. The mills will also be asked to close at the same hour, and several are planning to remain closed for the remainder of the week. There is to be a meeting of the joint committee on arrangement at the Foresters hall on Providence street to perfect their arrangements for the day. The marshal and other officers of the day will meet with the committee.

The recently formed debating club of the Putnam high school held its organization meeting and elected the following officers: president, Miss Alice C. Perry; vice president, Philip Arnold; secretary, Miss Eva Jane Covell. A committee on by-laws was appointed and consists of Miss Evelyn Kaminsky, Harry Thayer and Miss Elizabeth Bennett. About 30 pupils have so far joined the society. The meetings will be held during the fourth study hour on the first and third Tuesdays during term time.

The Putnam trade school has now the largest enrollment in its history with a total of 578. One hundred and seventeen are in the all-day regular course, 287 in the evening school, 111 in the grammar school, 43 in the high school co-operative course and 21 high school students registered at the trade school for part time.

A new concrete bridge is being built over Perry's brook, just over the city line on Grove street. This is the bridge for which an appropriation was voted at the last town meeting.

The Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter, D. A. R., has been invited to attend a meeting of the Sarah Williams, Danielson chapter, to attend a meeting of the Danielson chapter on Thursday afternoon, Nov. 10 at 3 o'clock at the Congregational Parish house in Danielson.

The new road from Miller's corner on Woodstock avenue to Harrisville and the concrete bridge over the Little River are now practically completed and are open for traffic. This new stretch of road makes a shorter and straighter road from Putnam to Woodstock and the Massachusetts line.

The papers have been signed in the deal by which Charles Sedar becomes the owner of the William H. Pierson estate block on Main street known as the Central block. This is one of the oldest blocks in the center of the city and the lower floor is occupied by the Bonneville clothing store, the jewelry store of the late William St. Onge, H. W. Thompson, the optician, and the Elliott shoe store. The second floor is occupied by the law offices of Searls, Bradford and Russell and a tailoring shop. This is the third business block owned by Mr. Seder within the last few years.

Hiram Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis H. Williams of Woodstock avenue, who for several years has been at the head of one of the departments of the Jordan Marsh store in Boston, has gone to New York to accept a better position there. Mr. Williams is a graduate of the Putnam high school and is a World war veteran.

The roll of honor of the Thompson hill school is as follows:

90 to 100 per cent.—Grace Whitney, Alexander Maitland, Jr., George Law, Sarah Ballard, Alan Logee, Mary Hoeing, Edward Bentley, Floyd Cole, Raymond Bates, Joseph Johnson.

80 to 90 per cent.—Raymond Smith, Bruno Kaminski, Nellie Johnson, Esther Munyan, Charles Jacques, Bernicve Lambert, Edgar Elliott, Stanley Johnson, Raymond Elliott, Walter Pratt.

The first prizes were won by Miss Alice Leclair and Lucian Liberty and the consolation prizes to Miss Margaret Aubin and Eugene Alvord. Dancing was also enjoyed by some of the younger people. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Beginning Saturday, Nov. 5, the dogs of Woodstock will go into an indefinite period of quarantine of close confinement or securely chained on the premises of the owner or keeper and no dog is to be allowed at large. The only exception is to be that hunting dogs while actually engaged in hunting game and accompanied by a licensed hunter may be allowed freedom. A dog recently killed there by the dog warden proved beyond a doubt that it had been suffering with rabies.

New headquarters of the Red Cross nursing service is now at the new location at No. 10 Ballou street, which is in the northern end of the city. It is believed that this new location is more central for those using this service and that the nurse will save time in making calls and by those who will visit her at the community health center. Miss Esther Wells, formerly of Hartford, is the nurse now in charge of this work.

Mrs. Emily Butler has closed her summer home in Woodstock Valley and is now at her home on Chapman street for the winter.

THE PAN AMERICAN CONGRESS

In the choice of those who are to represent this country at the Pan-American congress in Havana next January, it is evident from the men chosen that the purpose of the administration is to see that there is nothing lacking in the calibre of the men sent to that gathering.

The selection of such outstanding men as Charles E. Hughes, Oscar Underwood, Henry P. Fletcher, Dwight W. Morrow, James Brown Scott, Morgan J. O'Brien, Dr. Ray L. Wilbur and Dr. Leo E. Rowe has given rise to the belief that there is something more than the ordinary business of such a congress afoot. Whether that is so or not such an array of talent cannot fail to make its impression upon the representatives of other countries, and particularly so when President Coolidge is also planning to be in attendance part of the time.

Our position among the other republics of the western hemisphere has never been any too well understood. Regardless of the attitude which has been repeatedly taken there are those who look upon it with suspicion. There has always been a gross lack of appreciation on the part of certain countries for what the United States has stood for in the past and what it continues to stand for today.

If this coming session is looked upon as the right time for straightening out any misunderstanding or misinterpretations the delegation has been admirably picked. If it is going to be an occasion for the consideration of a league of American nations the representatives could not have been better chosen.

The United States will have occasion to feel proud of the men that it is sending to Havana. The outstanding person who deserves to be put at the head of such a delegation has been placed there. Charles E. Hughes has demonstrated a leadership and a sound and sane judgment that has gained widespread recognition and respect and it is to be expected that he will be quite as influential at Havana as he was at the Washington conference. And the backing that has been given him is highly meritorious.

PREVENT FOREST FIRES

This is the season of the year when conditions are ripe for serious forest fires. This is especially true if there has been no rain and the crop of leaves and the underbrush is like tender.

In this part of the country, with the leaves for the most part on the ground, there has not been the increased danger created by a drought that there has been elsewhere. Out in the Catskills, for instance, a half dozen forest fires have been so threatening that there has been consideration given to the wisdom of excluding all persons from the woods for the purpose of fire prevention. The suspension of the hunting season has been resorted to in various states under similar conditions, but New York has a law which makes it possible to prohibit all persons, whether hunters or not, from going into the woods when occasion demands it.

The generous rainfall hereabouts will obviate any necessity for such protective measures for a few days, but the situation which exists in the Catskills cannot fail to impress all those who go into the woods, regardless of what their purpose may be, that they should start no fires.

Not many forest fires are set with the intention of doing damage. For the most part they are the result of thoughtlessness, but in the great majority of the cases they are preventable. Such prevention not only means the elimination of the possibility of fires from preventable causes but it overcomes the necessity of suspending the hunting season.

Those who travel through the fields and woods must fully realize that they are using the property of other people to satisfy their pleasure. It behooves them not to abuse the privilege and certainly they should put forth their best endeavors to avoid anything that would cause destruction. The burning of woodland means the conversion of somebody's dollars into smoke and ashes, and it can be readily understood that it means a loss which is by no means pleasing.

CELEBRATING HALLOWEEN

Halloween has always been the occasion for monkeyshines, games and a general good time, but there has been a tendency to go from good to bad and from bad to worse in the methods of celebrating until it has gotten so that the authorities have found it necessary to indicate what will and what will not be tolerated.

One police chief found it necessary to give special orders to his men in order to prevent the destruction of property and the molestation of the people. He told his men to "break up the corner gangs. Make arrests if necessary. Stop the soaping of street car tracks and automobile windshields. Request citizens to call headquarters immediately when gangs of boys are observed. Make arrests in all cases where there is property damage."

Halloween pranks can be tolerated up to a certain point. Householders are ready to overlook much in recognition of the fact that they were once children and they now have children who are participating in what may be going on, but they can hardly be expected to sanction the destruction of property or the conduct of celebrants who place no limit on what they do. There is such a thing as having a good time and indulging in wholesome fun, but that gives no one a license to cause damage and serious annoyance, to say nothing of severe injuries and death.

This is a case where the authorities must of necessity act in endeavoring to keep the celebrants within bounds, but it cannot fail to be appreciated that there is a big opportunity for the parents to set up their authority and shoulder their responsibilities that Halloween may be turned back to a safe and sane occasion from the present day tendency in the other direction.

Possibly it is the lack of such restraint that has led to the present situation. It is unfortunate if that is the case for it indicates an undesirable tendency. There can be no desire for the ending of all Halloween pleasures, but there are evidently cities where some are inclined to run wild regardless of results and it is in such places the situation is certain to get worse the longer it is left unchecked.

THE COLORADO RIVER PLAN

While it occupied no inconspicuous place in the last session of congress the control of the waters of the Colorado river, with such other developments as have been contemplated, will figure prominently in the session which opens next month. To the states of the southwest it is a big problem. One might suppose that it would be a matter that would be adjusted among themselves but efforts in that direction have failed so completely that it is now insisted that the only avenue for settlement lies in federal legislation.

There is a desire for the location of dams for the ponding of water for irrigation. There is also a claim by the respective states for water for such purposes while there is also a demand for control that will henceforth safeguard the Imperial valley from floods. In connection with the damming of the river there is also the proposition for a huge power plant.

All these projects have been generally referred to under the Boulder dam proposition and as such it will probably get its airing in congress. Regardless of the attitude which has been repeatedly taken there are those who look upon it with suspicion. There has always been a gross lack of appreciation on the part of certain countries for what the United States has stood for in the past and what it continues to stand for today.

If this coming session is looked upon as the right time for straightening out any misunderstanding or misinterpretations the delegation has been admirably picked. If it is going to be an occasion for the consideration of a league of American nations the representatives could not have been better chosen.

The United States will have occasion to feel proud of the men that it is sending to Havana. The outstanding person who deserves to be put at the head of such a delegation has been placed there. Charles E. Hughes has demonstrated a leadership and a sound and sane judgment that has gained widespread recognition and respect and it is to be expected that he will be quite as influential at Havana as he was at the Washington conference. And the backing that has been given him is highly meritorious.

NORBECK REBELS

When the group of insurgent republicans got together and decided to give their support to Senator Norris as a candidate for the presidential nomination they expected that their group would stick together and by reason of it make it possible for them to have an added influence in picking the party nominee.

However well the plan may have been laid out it failed to work. There are those of the group who will stand by Senator Norris, whose candidacy will have no chance and who would make a poor showing before the country, but Senator Norbeck of South Dakota will not listen to any such scheme. He doesn't believe in giving his support to any of the state favorites just for that reason. He believes his backing should go to a man who has a chance. For that reason he has come out for Lowden and despite the threats to make it uncomfortable for him in his own state by those with whom he failed to side he continues to hold out.

Splitting of the insurgents may not necessarily be caused by this action but it indicates that they are not all guided by the LaFollette, Brookhart or Borah dictum. Possible Mr. Lowden will have no chance in the convention for the nomination but there can be little question but what he stands a much better chance than Senator Norris. Senator Norbeck backs him not because he has insurgent inclinations but because he believes he has a chance. In other words he is actuated by other than insurgent policies. Whether his attitude is invaluable to Mr. Lowden or not, it certainly discloses that he is not being led around by the nose on all occasions and is unwilling to enter into the schemes back of the Norris candidacy.

EDITORIAL NOTES

How much coal have you saved this year through the deferred starting of the heater?

With only two sheets left on the calendar have you begun to think how it is going to seem to write it 1928?

The man on the corner says: There may be some uncertainty about November but it always produces a Thanksgiving.

A mistrial may not be as good as an acquittal, but it helps to delay a verdict in a criminal case, and delays are not dangerous.

New York announces winter coal prices are in effect just at the time when the weatherman has been exceeding the usual temperature.

The national fire loss for nine months is down by over $60,000,000 but that doesn't furnish any cause for regrets or complaint except that it is still too high.

With November starting in with record breaking weather of a favorable character, let's hope it doesn't reverse itself and establish new records in the other extreme before it closes.

BONNIE

Aunt and Bonnie eyed each other across the hearth rug. Bonnie ran a dab of rosy tongue over her chin whiskers and wagged an inquiring stub of a tail. Aunt sniffed.

"She may be a pure-bred whatever-you-say-she-is, but I can't have a dog in my house. They are smelly."

So Bonnie and I went sadly for a walk, and wondered where we would find a home. On the end of her leash my little wire-hair puppy looked more than ever like a toy dog, dancing along on her four straight little legs, poking her ebony nose into everything along the way, and getting the most tremendous wallop out of just being a dog.

Uncle was waiting at the corner as we came back from our run. Bonnie spied him from afar, and with an ecstatic bark, she jerked the leash from my hand and danced in joyous circles about uncle's trim spats.

"I do believe the little thing remembers me. Or do you think it smells the meat in my package?" he asked, in that aloof tone bachelors adopt toward very new twins.

"I am sure she remembers you," said I, gravely correcting his pronouns.

"It—she—is cute" he conceded as I put a quick foot on the trailing strap. "It would be nice if we could keep—her—but you must remember that your aunt isn't well."

For almost thirty years uncle has kept reminding himself, aunt, and all who came within the scope of family influence that aunt was not well. After the first ten of these years, she herself had begun to believe him. And, once convinced, she worshipped at the altar of her disabilities, slowly closing the door of the outside world, first on her own heels, then upon uncle's, shutting them both away in the little English cottage deep among the trees at Heathercote.

It was drizzling when it came time for me to dash for my train to the city. And it was too late to take Bonnie to the kennels that night.

"You leave her here tonight. I will put her in the shed where we can't hear her yelp," uncle decided. Aunt sniffed.

It was a week before I could get back to the English cottage sunk among the trees. But every night aunt got me on the telephone.

"You have got to come and get this dog. She is driving me crazy. I haven't time to heat her milk every morning."

"You don't have to heat her milk. She is no baby," I protested.

"Grumph!" said aunt, and hung up.

And then one day I spied a little black figure hanging over the "Books About Dogs and Pets" counter at my favorite book shop. I could have sworn it was aunt.

Still another week passed before I got to Heathercote. As I came up the hill from the station an animated white dot and a black blob came bobbing down the path toward me. Bonnie, leading aunt on the end of her leash!

"The book says the dog must have exercise," puffed aunt testily. But I had never seen her cheeks so pink or her eyes so bright.

After supper uncle settled himself in his big chair with his paper. Bonnie stood, legs planted well apart, black eyes riveted on uncle's spare knee, one ear lifted, expectantly. Uncle watched me and surreptitiously snapped his fingers. With a bound Bonnie was on his lap. Round and round went her busy little body and settled itself comfortably, warm little paws pinioning a wrist. Slyly uncle's other hand buried itself in her white furry coat, the while his cherished evening paper hung limp and useless at his side.

"Tomorrow, early, I will take her back to the kennel," I said, to make conversation. From aunt's corner came a gulp and a distinct "Sniff, sniff."

In an instant Bonnie was alert, one ear pointed toward the little black figure hunched over in its chair.

"Sniff, sniff," from aunt. A white streak across the hearth rug and Bonnie catapaulted into her arms, her wee red tongue lapping aunt's furtive tears.

"She does bother you, doesn't she?" said I. Uncle leaped to his feet, stamping and waving his paper.

"Now there is no need to be brutal about this," he shouted. "Can't you see that if you take that dog away from your aunt it will break her heart?"

And as we—aunt and I—went about shutting doors and windows for the night, she nestled for a moment against my arm and whispered.

"Of course a dog in the house is a bother. But she is such a comfort to your uncle!"—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Founder of Colchester

Mr. Editor: The little catechism you have been running lately on "What Do You Know About Eastern Connecticut" has been very interesting and instructive. Naturally where the questions and answers must be condensed some slight errors are liable to occur and I am venturing to correct the statement made in Tuesday's paper that "Jeremy Adams was the founder of Colchester."

The "founder" of Colchester was Nathaniel Foote (1647-1703) although he probably never lived in the town! Being descended from the Footes, Skinners, Taintors, Otises, Ishams and other pioneer families and having in my possession some material on early Colchester I am interested in seeing the facts published correctly.

Oweneco, Sachem of Mohegan, on June 9, 1699 conveyed to Nathaniel Foote "for the consideration of love and affection" that part of the ancient Mohegan hunting grounds comprising the present Colchester and certain adjacent territory. This deed was confirmed by patent to the proprietors by the general assembly in 1703. During the later "Mohegan controversy" some reference was made to the questionable introduction of firewater into the ceremony attending the transfer of the land and the title was disputed. (But that's another story!)

"Liberty for a plantation" was granted by the general court Oct. 1698; the bounds were established May 1699 and Colchester was named Oct. 1699. Nathaniel Foote appears as agent and interested party in these several transactions but the only reference to Jeremiah Adams is the mention of the fact that Colchester was to be located "at or near Jeremiah's farm upon the road to New London."

Nathaniel Foote died before he could remove to Colchester but his widow and family settled there. Nathaniel Foote Jr., took his father's place as a leader in civil, military and ecclesiastical affairs rounding out nearly a century before he was borne to his grave. The honorable name of Foote still persists in Colchester, Marlborough and Hebron. In 1703 the widow, Elizabeth Foote was granted 50 acres reserved for the family in Oweneco's deed. On this tract presumably near the junction of Broadway and the Hartford turnpike a building had already been erected which now has been moved to the center of the present village and is the home of Col. Henry Champion chapter D. A. R.

Jeremy Adams was an inn keeper of Hartford who early achieved, questionable distinction by being haled into court because representatives to the assembly had imbibed too liberally and celebrated too hilariously in his taproom. In those days the inn-keeper was held for breach of the peace under his roof.

The luscious pasturage and abundant hay of the Salmon River valley attracted his attention and in 1662 the general court granted him 340 acres of land "in the place where he kept cattle last winter on the road to Monhegin". A deed to him from Uncas in 1662 called the locality, "Tatamacuntaway." John Ginnings a few years later was granted land near Adam's at Uncupsett (the Blackledge river was known as Ungushett). Whether Jeremy or any of his descendants were settled on the land is not certain although we know there were Adams families in town at an early date. Colchester and Hebron grants took in his land and although the proprietors of Colchester had boundary disputes with all their neighbors and were compelled to proceed against the Masons, Stebbins, Palmers, Griswolds, "Saybrook men" and others who encroached on their lands yet we find no record of any trouble or any transaction with Jeremy Adams.

One subject upon which I wish more information could be had is that of the old Indian trails, a network of which must have crossed and criss-crossed the "Hunting Grounds," passing the many pretty little lakes and touching the lookouts or vantage points that must have existed. Only two have been identified as touching Colchester, one of which followed the present New London-Hartford highway quite closely and was called the "Hackanum path" or the "Mohegan road" as are started north or south from Colchester. The other was the "Maelumoodus road" leading towards the scene of many pow-wows at the source of the Moodus noises. This trail probably originated in Windham and passed northward.

We must then recognize Nathaniel Foote as the "founder" of Colchester although we must admit that after the red man our friend "Jeremy" Adams was the first known to exploit the territory of Colchester, nearly forty years before the settlement is known to have been undertaken.

YOUR HEALTH

GOOD HEALTH DEPENDS ON PROPER FOOD

By R. R. Kime, M. D., Orlando, Fla.
Member Gorgas Memorial

Protein in the food of each individual is essential for growth and repair, and a certain amount is needed each day to maintain life and health.

Milk, eggs, fish, and meats contain the largest percentage of protein, while vegetables and cereals contain a smaller amount.

Most persons eat too much protein, especially in the form of pork and beef. Protein should form 10 per cent of the food calories for 24 hours to meet body needs. Much in excess of that amount is injurious to most persons.

The digestion of protein starts in the stomach and it is completed in the small intestine. If digestion fails, protein ferments in the large intestine. Protein in milk, eggs, and fish is usually more easily digested, is less harmful, and has less end products to be eliminated from the body than protein from vegetables. This is specially true if one eats enough vegetables to supply sufficient protein for body needs without milk, eggs, or meat. Not all the protein in vegetables and cereals is digested or used.

An average sized person of 150 pounds, living a sedentary life with light exercise, does not need more than 2,000 to 3,000 food calories per day, which should be approximately 10 per cent protein, 30 per cent fat, and 60 per cent carbohydrate. A constant diet with much less or much in excess of one or more of these percentages will affect one's efficiency and ultimately produce disease.

An excess of protein from pork, beef, and fried foods overtaxes digestion, causes fermentation, and develops poisonous toxines in the intestine that are absorbed and affect the liver and irritate and doubly increase the work of the kidneys. When one's system becomes overloaded with this toxic material, he usually says that he is bilious or that his liver is not acting. To relieve this condition, he proceeds to take all kinds of medicines to rouse up his liver and move his bowels for temporary relief. Then he will eat as before, producing the same condition again, and will treat it as before instead of consulting a physician to regulate his diet and correct any other troubles.

Stories That Recall Others

Forbidden Sweets

A stylishly dressed young woman, perhaps a business woman, erring on the side of plumpness left a candy store and started home. On her face was the contented expression of those who have dined excellently, and it was perhaps in a moment of lightheartedness that she stepped gaily on the scales in the store doorway. The interested observer, walking a few yards behind, saw her smile fade as the indicator swung to a number many pounds beyond the "pleasingly plump" stage. Unwillingly, evidently, to accept this verdict, she hastened on and tested every scale that came to her notice. Becoming aware of the smiles of passersby she loitered slowly along the street until there were few about and then resolutely stepped on the last scale. Worry was plainly written on her face as she sighed and stepped down.

At the corner she halted before a small newsboy and held out a package. "Wouldn't you like to take this home to your mother or sisters?" she asked and thrusting it into the boy's hands, hurried away. The package contained two pounds of expensive candy.

"Say," the astonished newsie commented to a passerby who had noticed the gift, "it's funny how some people hate to be fat, ain't it? My mother's a lot fatter than that, but" he added with pride, "you bet she'll eat this all right."

One of the four Komodo dragons at the London zoo recently suffered from a sore mouth and tail, and four men were required to hold the huge reptile in order to treat it.

Keep Sweet

Don't be foolish and get sour when things don't just come your way—
Don't you be a pampered baby and declare: "Now I won't play!"
Just go grinning on and bear it;
Have you heartache? Millions share it,
If you earn a crown, you'll wear it—
Keep sweet!

Don't go handing out your troubles to your busy fellow-men—
If you whine around they'll try to keep from meeting you again;
Don't declare the world's "agin'" you,
Don't let pessimism win you,
Prove there's lots of good stuff in you—
Keep sweet!

If your dearest hopes seem blighted and despair looms into view,
Set your jaw and whisper grimly: "Though they're false, yet I'll be true."
Never let your heart grow bitter;
With your lips to Hope's transmitter,
Hear Love's songbirds bravely twitter,
"Keep sweet!"

Bless your heart, this world's a good one, and will always help a man;
Hate, misanthropy, and malice have no place in Nature's plan.
Help your brother there who's sighing,
Keep his flag of courage flying;
Help him try—'twill keep you trying,
Keep sweet!

Good Fellowship

THE word "club," in its modern sense of being an association to promote good fellowship, became common in England when coffee-drinking was introduced in the middle of the 17th Century. The coffee-houses of Merrie Old England were the originators of the modern club house.

Today, the homes in which YUBAN is served are veritable "clubs" of good fellowship. YUBAN promotes happiness because it is delightful in aroma, in taste and in its exhilarating effect.

Coffee Making Pointers

Coffee should never be boiled for even one minute. Continued boiling causes the development of bitter and woody tastes. The best results are obtained by bringing the coffee to the boiling point and serving immediately.

NEW LONDON ELKS INITIATE NORWICH CLASS

Norwich lodge of Elks, No. 430, had one of its most notable meetings Thursday evening at the Elks home when a class of 26 candidates was initiated and over 30 applications for membership were read. COMPENSATION FOR WIDOW OF MAN FOUND STANDING DEAD AT FORGE

In the workmen's compensation claim from the death of Henry McIninch, who was found dead standing up at his forge and leaning against the chimney with a pair of tongs in his hand at the Booth Bros. quarry in Waterford, Commissioner Albert J. Bailey finds that the man's death occurred from carbon monoxide poisoning while at his employment.

Compensation is accordingly awarded to the widow, Mrs. Elizabeth McIninch of 40 Reed street, New London, and she is to be paid $18.48 per week for 312 weeks, together with $200 towards the funeral expenses.

The death of McIninch occurred on July 13, 1927, and the cause of death was given by Dr. Ross Black, medical examiner, as "primary cause of death myocarditis, secondary or contributory cause, acute cardiac dilation." At the hearing before the commissioner, however, the claimant introduced Dr. Charles Kaufman and Dr. George P. Cheney as medical witnesses, both of them testifying that they had personally investigated the premises and surroundings where McIninch worked and that they were positive that his death was caused by carbon monoxide poisoning, the gas coming from the forge over which he was at work at the time of his death. Their opinion was based on the appearance of McIninch's features as observed at the time, the position in which he was found, standing upright and leaning against the chimney with a pair of tongs in his hand which held a tool which he was holding over the fire, also the fact that rigor mortis had set in in such a short time, all indicative of death from carbon monoxide gas.

Dr. Satti, who was the only medical witness introduced by the respondent insurer, concurred in the opinion of the other two doctors.

A Chrysler sedan owned by William Selvidio of No. 25 Ore street, and driven by Henry Selvidio, same address, collided with a Chrysler brougham owned and driven by Joseph Cantor of No. 7 Garden street, New Haven. The impact caused Mr. Cantor's machine to collide with an Oakland Six owned by the Rosoff Motor Mart and driven by Robert E. Pellerin of No. 40 Greene avenue. No one was hurt.

Mr. Selvidio claimed that Mr. Cantor pulled out from the curb without putting out his hand to signal that he was going to do so. Investigating the police found that Mr. Cantor did not have an operator's license with him and he was summoned to appear in the city court this (Friday) morning.

One of three turkeys which Deputy Sheriff Oscar H. Main has in the yard at the jail furnished entertainment for a big crowd of children on School street when it took wings to itself Thursday afternoon and floated down Jail Hill to land on the roof of a house on School street.

Flying from roof to roof, the turkey led Turnkey Charles D. Tracy and Delaware Howard an elusive chase as they tried to recapture it, while the children stood in the street and cheered for the bird as it deserted one roof after another to keep out of reach of its would-be captors.

Finally the chase had to be given up, but Sheriff Main believes the turkey will come back to the yard of its own accord some time today.

SAYS CHANCE TAKER IS ACCIDENT MAKER

That pure selfishness is a basic cause of many motor vehicle accidents is a conclusion reached by Motor Vehicle Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel in discussing the theory, previously advanced, that faulty mind actions are fundamentally responsible for traffic mishaps. He also finds that this self-interest often tried to hide behind the cloak of "poor judgment," and that "inattention" is the direct or indirect cause of more than half of all accidents.

Commissioner Stoeckel has made a study of the circumstances surrounding many accidents in an effort to determine primary causes. He presents his conclusions in an article in the October bulletin of the motor vehicle department, which supplements an earlier article on the same subject.

Particularly as it relates to speed does he find that selfishness is apparent in the actions of car operators. "When poor judgment is concerned with speed," he says "it seems as though it might be readily within the scope of correction by every operator if he could be made to realize that speed, either too fast or slow, is a selfish expression of himself.

"Every poor judgment resolves itself into taking a chance, and the chance taker is the accident maker." Judgment would be invariably good if average caution, care and consideration were equally a part of the mental character of every person. There would be no accidents to speak of. The accidents in this category are caused by those persons who have not been blessed with these mental characteristics in the average degree.

The deplorable fact about "inattention" pointed out in the article is that it is almost never criminal, that its consequences most often fall upon persons other than those responsible, and that it is so easy to get into the habit. "The average driver is so good," says the article, "that the habit is encouraged rather than discouraged."

Rules and regulations are almost powerless to correct the fault of the inattention, in the opinion of the commissioner. "Attention," he says, "is a matter of self government and control. Whenever anyone complains that the world in general is picking on him, driving him into the ditch, forcing him into situations from which he escapes only because he is a superior driver, inattention as a habit may be suspected.

"The remedy lies in the operator's control of his own mental processes of operation. If any operator decides that there is ever a time that he is inattentive enough to be dangerous, then mental training is necessary. He must discipline himself and carry with him a conscious determination not to be inattentive but to watch traffic and concentrate on his job of participation therein."

The part that slow speed plays in developing traffic hazards is given considerable space in the article. "Too slow speed," it says, "makes considerable trouble for others, although usually it does not in itself make serious accidents for the persons guilty of it. Where a car is proceeding at a much lower speed than the traffic in which it is moving, all of the operators following look for opportunity to pass, and sometimes become impatient and pick poor places, all of which is caused, somewhat remotely, by slow speed ahead.

"Consideration in this respect is about all that can be asked for, for it would be criminal to urge anyone to drive faster than he feels he reasonably can, but where there is no such limitation, then to cause such difficulties by extra slow movement is selfish and even reckless. It is sometimes bad for the slow mover as well for he stands a chance of being cut off too sharply and of finding himself in resulting difficulties.

"So far as speed is concerned it is a good general rule to keep up with whatever traffic one is in, neither to go ahead of the average nor to drop behind. Necessarily there will always be a number of slow vehicles such as trucks which must be passed, but there are enough of these without adding any unnecessary slow hazards. The proposition of the slow hazard is of recent development, but any disciplinary officer will bear out the statement that it is today one of the worst on the highway."

SIX CHURCH CONFERENCE MET AT PLAINFIELD

The conference of six churches was held at Plainfield Congregational church on Wednesday with 137 in attendance. The program was opened with an organ prelude by Mrs. Henry Leach. Rev. William C. Prentiss, pastor of the church, repeated the 23rd Psalm as the call to worship. After the singing of the doxology, Rev. G. S. Chambers of North Sterling made the invocation, followed by the Lord's prayer. Rev. N. W. Whitman of Pachaug led the responsive reading. The scripture from Act 18, was read by Rev. G. F. Goodenough of Jewett City. A duet, Take Up Thy Cross, was sung by Mrs. Evie Stone of Brooklyn and James Royle. Prayer was offered by Rev. D. C. Stone of Hanover. The collection was received by Reverends Goodenough and Stone. Mrs. Stone sang Neidlinger's Spirit of God, as a solo. The sermon was preached by Rev. George W. Clark of Preston City. His theme was The Missionaries' Vision. The text was taken from Act 18, and the phrase, "I have much people in this City. His subject was Paul, who was sent as a missionary by Jesus. He said that history contains no greater examples of endurance than of the missionaries of the cross. The nation that we enjoy was founded by Pilgrim missionaries. There are many objections. If Jesus and Paul had heeded them where would the world be today? Close the missions of the church and you will stamp out Christ. The first objection is that it costs lives. And he showed how anything of any advance as in science, and other advancements, cost lives, but no one advocates stopping the use of automobiles, inventions, etc., on that account. He said it was safer to be a missionary than it was to try and cross Broadway in New York.

Another reason is because there is such a disturbing influence wherever they go. He said the greatest compliment ever given to the church is that it is a disturbing influence in matters of protesting against any wrong. How much benevolence or help for humanity is done by these people who protest against the work of the missionary? Is there a recompense? It is the consciousness of the Master's approval.

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. E. G. Crowdis of Taftville. Dinner was served by the women of the church, the blessing being asked by Rev. W. J. Reynolds of Newent.

The afternoon praise service was led by Rev. M. Reynolds. The scribe, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, of Jewett City, read the report of the last meeting and called the roll. There were 31 present from Preston City, 7 from Newent, 12 Poquetanuck, 14 Jewett City, 13 Hanover, 40 Plainfield and 25 visitors. A vote of thanks was given the church for its hospitality and to the secretary. Special mention was made of the services given by Mrs. Stone and Mrs. Leach, the organist. Mr. Stone and Mr. Royle sang a duet, "More Like Him." George A. Rose of Lisbon gave an address on The Local Church, speaking of the impression each church in the conference made upon him, emarging upon the fact that the motive of the church should be happiness—to go out to everyone. Mrs. Stone sang a solo. Rev. James F. English of Putnam was to be the other afternoon speaker, but was ill. Rev. Arthur J. Armstrong, pastor of the Baptist church in Danielson, had to be secured to fill the place and he gave a most comprehensive talk on the program of his church, full of good suggestions. The different pastors present and Mrs. Stone spoke at the close of his talk and the meeting closed with the benediction.

JUSTICE MONTGOMERY IS SICK OF THE JOB

(Special to The Bulletin).

ONECO, Conn., Nov. 3.—Justice of the Peace Charles B. Montgomery of this town has notified the state police, local grand jurors and other officers that under no condition whatever, will he try any more criminal cases, first owing to poor health, second, he is sick and tired of having to fine men for violation of the law, especially motor vehicle laws while others who appear to have a "fix it up" violate the law every day in the year and have been doing so for two years.

During his term of grand juror and justice he has taken one part or the other in 213 cases, never lost but one case as grand juror and in that case produced seven witnesses whose word was not contradicted.

As justice he has been compelled to fine the best friends he had in town for law violation while witnesses against that same friend violate the law themselves with impunity.

DESCRIBED STRANGE HABITS OF EAST HADDAM MAN

Descriptions of the peculiar habits of the late Frederick L. Ray, 84, coffin manufacturer of East Haddam, whose $650,000 estate is being contested by a brother, occupied the second day of the hearing before Judge Alvin Brown and a jury in the superior court at Middletown Thursday.

Ray had not washed his hands or face for months, it was stated by Mrs. Irene Ray of Gloucester, wife of the only heir at law, Bertrand Ray, who claims that his deceased brother was of unsound mind when he made his will, which leaves $600,000 to trade boys' manual training school in East Haddam, and the income of $50,000 to Bertrand. The contestant and his wife lived with Frederick Ray about three weeks before he died. In this time, they claim, Ray agreed to leave his money to his brother.

Mrs. Ray testified that the deceased was a "disgusting sight to her eyes." She stated that he would not have a bathroom in the house. She told of the many cracker boxes which he kept in his bedroom and hallway, of which he was especially choice, and how, on his death when the boxes were opened, they contained nothing. Mrs. Ray stated that he always went about in patches and she further said that Ray was under the delusion that President Woodrow Wilson had caused him to lose $75,000.

Mrs. Bertha M. Confield, employed at the Ray home, stated that when two pet cats owned by Roy had died, he gave them an elaborate funeral, interring the felines in plush caskets and planting pansies on their graves.

RELIGIOUS OFFENSIVE BY SALVATION ARMY

LONDON, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The greatest religious offensive ever launched by the Salvation Army—a salvation siege—was under way today after a night of prayer by 102,000 salvationists at 1,000 meetings throughout the country.

The campaign is to continue until November 24. Bold and spectacular methods will be used for "a concentrated and determined attack on the indifference of the great mass of people to religion."

Opened by General Bramwell Booth last night at Glasgow, the campaign is to be taken into public houses and other gathering places in an effort to convert the whole of Britain within a month. The 71 year-old head of the Salvation Army spent 3 1-2 hours on the platform last night praying and leading the singing of Salvation Army hymns. Mrs. Booth similarly conducted the largest of five meetings held here.

ACADEMY-WINDHAM GAME TO BE SATURDAY'S LOCAL GRID FEATURE

Friday

Warwick at Westerly.
Bulkeley (N. L.) at Bulkeley (Hartford).

Saturday

Windham at N. F. A. (2.30 p. m.)
Stonington at Chapman Tech.

The November stretch brings out plenty of traditional battles and there is one of them on tap among the "Big Six" this week end. It comes Saturday afternoon at the campus between the Academy and Windham. Another tilt of more than passing importance comes at New London when Stonington and Chapman Tech clash in an interscholastic league tussle.

However, this week's games, with the exception of the N. F. A.-Windham affair, fall below those of the past few weeks in interest. One reason for this is probably the clubs are marking time for their important battles within the next last two weeks of the season. Bulkeley will save herself for the Academy game Armistice day while Stonington and Westerly will not take any too great chances for the come together in a real "natural" also on next Friday.

N. F. A.-Windham

This game brings together the two strongest clubs this side of the Connecticut river, ones that have been bitter rivals for a long time and should be highly capable of showing a high grade brand of football

The Academy has the better record. There's no doubt about that. Wins over Chapman Tech, Torrington, Westerly and Wilby of Waterbury and a 19 to 6 defeat from Harding of Bridgeport look better than wins over Putnam, Conn. Aggie, Freshman B. squad and Stonington, a scoreless tie with Westerly, and a 25 to 0 defeat by Hartford Public high.

But tomorrow's tilt will not be awarded on records. It will find Windham fighting as she has not done before this season. This is really her objective game while the Academy has the Bulkeley game less than a week hence. Callaghan has been working extra hard with his squad up in the Thread City for this game, realizing that a good bit of the season's success rests on the outcome.

There is that 1926 tie for sectional honors to fight out between these teams, there is Windham's gridiron supremacy over all this section in late years to uphold and there is above all else a 54 to 0 defeat administered by Windham to the Red and Whitestars in the last gridiron in 1923. Which all should go towards providing the requirements for a hot tussle.

Neither lineups have been announced yet and there is the strong possibility that they will not be done so until starting time. The referee will probably be R. J. Guyer from C. A. C.

Stonington at Chapman Tech

The rather dwarfed eastern Connecticut-western Rhode Island Interscholastic league (we mean in numbers, not in name) has an important game in the Stonington-Tech meeting. While two much stronger teams of the section that this league is supposed to represent will be battling it out here in Norwich these clubs intend to show a stiff tussle for honors in their loop. A Tech loss will definitely eliminate her from the running while a Stonington win will place O'Brien's men in a good way to cop the hunting and thus break Westerly's strangle hold. Stonington showed power in taking the first game from Tech 31 to 6 but otherwise she has done little.

Connecticut's two Bulkeleys come together at Clarkin stadium, Hartford, today, but the chief interest in the Insurance City will be on the Hartford High-New Haven Hillhouse game. Bulkeley of New London has not scored a point to date in her six games and she had better get busy and do something in this tilt for the Academy goes down to the Whaling City to do a little invading, just a week from today. Bulkeley of Hartford, now only in its second year, has a nice club that has "taken" two of eastern Connecticut's representatives, Stonington and Chapman Tech without having been scored against. It would not be surprising however, to see the Orange and Black at least score today. A funny coincidence about this meet is that the New London-Bulkeley, wearing Orange and Black is opposing a namesake wearing Red and White. It sounds more than the Academy and Bulkeley.

Westerly, now in the midst of its poorest season in recent years, takes on Warwick (R. I.) high today, a club that is reported as fairly good in Rhode Island scholastic football. Westerly has the Stonington game coming next Friday and if they do not show something today will enter the tilt with their ancient rivals as the underdog for the first time in many years.

According to the dope this week, Westerly, Bulkeley of Hartford, N. F. A. and Stonington should win.

Cross Country Runs

This rapidly growing sport has quite a splurge this week with the Academy-Bulkeley of New London run at the campus between the halves of the Windham game and the Westerly-Chapman Tech skirmish at Westerly this afternoon during the intermission of the grid conflict.

SCOTT CONFIDENT OF BEATING HOUSEN TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Phil Scott, the towering British heavyweight champion, is so confident of taking the measure of Knute Hansen, the "Melancholy Dane", in their 10-round match at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night that he already is planning his American campaign for next year.

This is Scott's first bout in the United States but he expects it to pave the way for him to meet other heavyweight contenders in the elimination tournament to pick another opponent for Gene Tunney. He will return to England for the holiday season but come back to take up the fistic trail later in the winter or spring.

HAGEN BEATS ARMOUR IN TOUGH MATCH, 2 AND 3

CEDAR CREST COUNTRY CLUB, DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 3.—(AP)—In a classic battle of champions, Walter Hagen conquered Tommy Armour today for a semi-finalist position in his fight to retain for the fifth time the titular laurels of the Professional Golfers' association.

Hagen, the defending pro-champion, demonstrated once more his abilities when under fire in eliminating the American and Canadian open champion, 4 and 3.

Tomorrow "the Haig" will match strokes against Al Espinosa, the wily Chicagoan, who defeated Morte Dutra of Tacoma, Wash., Dutra went down gamely, losing his match one down on the 36th green after a sensational rally in which he won seven holes in a row.

Joe Turnesa of Elmsford, N. Y., and John Golden of Patterson, N. J., are the other semi-finalists. Turnesa eliminated Gene Sarrazen of New York, former open champion, 3 and 2, and Golden turned back Frances Gallet of Wauwatosa, Wis., 4 and 3. Golden traded the lead all day with Gallet and finally pulled ahead on the last nine holes.

Hagen triumphed over Armour by getting an early lead and hanging on doggedly. Matching the open champion shot for shot and finally running him out of holes by halving the sixteenth when he was gormie three.

The break in the match came on the fourth green in the morning round when Armour stymied himself after taking the third to be one up. On the fourth green Armour and Hagen both had fairly easy putts for four but Armour was away and above the cup. His putt missed the cup and rolled behind Hagen's ball for a dead stymie which he failed to pitch over.

The break cost Tommy any chance he might have had of beating the deadly Hagen, for Armour found a trap on the next hole and was unable to beat the birdie two which Walter achieved at number six with a 30-foot putt. Armour continued to be wild at the seventh, hooking to the rough behind trees, muffling his out in the foliage and taking a five to give Hagen his fourth straight hole and make him three up.

Taking full advantage of this moment of the unsteadiness Hagen played unbeatable golf the remainder of the match, Armour worked the count against him to one hole by winning the ninth and the twelfth, but Hagen birdied the thirteenth to go two up, halved the fourteenth, and fifteenth and sixteenth, and then birdied the seventeenth and eighteenth to finish the morning round four up.

In the afternoon Armour reduced his handicap to two holes by winning the 24th and 25th with pars, but Hagen won the 27th and thirtieth to go four up again and they both shot four birdies in a row to finish the match at the thirty third.

YALE ALUMNI WEEKLY COMMENTS ON COACHING

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The fundamental question involved in any further change as regards undergraduate athletics has to do with the ultimate good of the undergraduate, and of him alone, the Yale Alumni Weekly will say tomorrow in a resumption of its last week's discussion of the desirability of having unpaid football coaches succeed Tad Jones, when his resignation becomes effective.

"What we would like to have thought about is whether, under present conditions of paid, organized coaching which is forced by public pressure to take the responsibility and of games directed from the bench as so many are, the players and the undergraduates get what they are entitled to. Do the players actually get what so many times is said to be one of the greatest boons of the game, training in leadership that will stand them in well in later years?

"The coaches who direct the teams today of the American colleges and universities * * * are following precedents set some years ago, before some of them went to college, when the sudden development began of what amounted shortly to professional coaching on an expensive scale, of college football eleven. * * *

"Everybody is out to win, and the result on the teams of that pressure of the coaches, and on the undergraduates whose game it is, is lost sight of. * * *

"It is our conviction that much of this difficulty over losing seasons would be avoided if the coach were less conspicuous in the picture and the team and its captain more so. This will not come about so long as the coach is the salaried head of the football system. * * *

"What the colleges and universities are after is not winning seasons for coaches, but a steady and continuous athletic policy that will bring to the undergraduates themselves the best results in spirit, training and initiative that are inherent in the game.

"The paid coach setup, coupled with coaching from the bench in order to win games is all against such a consummation."

KAPLAN MUST REMAIN IDLE FOR A MONTH

MERIDEN, Nov. 3.—(AP)—A broken cartilage in Louis (Kid) Kaplan's left knee, received in a training workout last week and accentuated during his bout with Mike Dundee at the New Haven arena Tuesday night, will hold the retired featherweight champion idle for at least a month.

Kaplan was examined by a Hartford bone specialist today after complaining of continued pain in his knee after the Dundee bout. According to the specialist Kaplan will be unable to resume training for more than two weeks.

The injury has forced the cancellation of Kaplan's 10-round bout with Freddie Mueller, Buffalo lightweight, scheduled for Buffalo on November 21.

HARVARD TEAM OFF FOR GAME WITH PENNSYLVANIA

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 3.—(AP)—The first Harvard invasion of Pennsylvania's Philadelphia stronghold in nearly a quarter of a century got under way today when a Crimson football entourage of 70 men, including 40 players, left Soldiers field after a final hour and a quarter practice.

Kicking and passing drill, an offensive and defensive dummy scrimmage, and a session at the tackling dummies left no soft spots in the day's grind. No inkling as to the possible starting line-up Saturday was given in the lists passed out to newspapermen.

Wesleyan Drills in Rain

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Nov. 3.—(AP)—Despite a heavy downpour of rain, Coach Bill Wood took the Wesleyan squad out on the field for an hour late this afternoon to get the men used to handling a wet pigskin.

The rest of the practice session was confined to indoor work that consisted of dummy tackling and signal practice.

RAIN CALLS HALT IN AGGIE FOOTBALL DRILL

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Nov. 3.—Connecticut Aggies' varsity football squad had an unexpected day's layoff from practice here this afternoon as Coach Dummy A. Dole decided against drilling his men in the driving rain that pelted the campus for the greater part of the day. Freshman Coach Louie A. Alexander likewise called off practice for his freshman squad, though all were required to report in Hawley Armory and taken a written examination on the football rules.

Work in preparation for the Trinity games to be played by the Aggie varsity and freshmen Saturday afternoon in Hartford will be completed here tomorrow, and only a light workout will be attempted by each team. The Aggie-Frosh-Trinity Junior Varsity game is scheduled to get under way at 1 o'clock, and the clash between the varsity elevens of Connecticut and Trinity will follow, probably starting around 2:30 p. m.

KEARNS HAS NO IDEA OF PATCHING UP DIFFICULTIES

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Jack Kearns apparently has no ideal of patching up his differences with Jack Dempsey, as has been persistently reported, with a view to taking over the management of the former heavyweight champion again.

Kearns telegraphed friends here today from Chicago that he has "left no stone unturned in preparations for the Dempsey-Tuckard case November 15," and promises "plenty of fireworks." It was assumed he referred to his action against Dempsey to recover $338,333.00 under the terms of their former contract.

PRINCETON TO MEET CHICAGO IN 1929 AND 1930

No official announcement has been made but the newspaper says Head Coach Bill Roper of Princeton confirms the arrangement, which will take effect at the end of the present two-year agreement between the Tigers and Ohio state.

CAMBRIDGE BEATS HOTSPURS IN FRIENDLY SOCCER GAME

The Rugby league: Yorkshire cup semi-final—Huddersfield 0; Dewsbury 2.

GRADS TO GIVE YALE A REAL BULLDOG MASCOT

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 3.—(AP)—A pool for an "all-graduate gift of a real bulldog" for the Yale campus is the suggestion of the Yale Alumni Weekly, which expresses sympathy with the demand of the Yale News "for a good big underslung hell-for-leather bulldog."

"The undergraduates have looked upon the Army Mule, and seen that he was good," says Weekly. "They have admired the Brown Bear, and wished that they had a mascot of their own to match him."

FAST AMATEUR BOUTS THIS EVENING

Ten good bouts are on the card for the amateur show tonight at Olympic hall under the auspices of the Pastime A. C. with Jackie Burns and Jimmy Quinn as the promoters. Local favorites as well as many of the leading amateurs in Westerly, Danielson, Jewett City and New London will appear on the card. Although it is planned to stage only ten bouts there is such a large entry list that it is possible that more than ten will be put on tonight.

As an added feature of the evening's entertainment the Moose orchestra will give a concert, from 7:30 until 8:15 when the bouts start. In anticipation of a large attendance of the fair sex a section of 300 seats has been reserved for them and their escorts. The club will admit all ladies free of charge.

In looking over the list of entrants with their given weights it is possible that tonight's card will bring together the following: Terrance of Danielson vs. Brooks of New London at 142 pounds; Young Besade of Norwich vs. Young Chappe of Westerly at 133 pounds; Vic Darr of Norwich vs. Al Koziol of Norwich at 130; Young Anthony of Norwich vs. Young Reia of Westerly at 118; Peloquin of Danielson vs. Boots Leary of Norwich at 118; Russo of Westerly vs. Minor of New London at 150; Lizzio of Westerly vs. Young Zibinski of Jewett City at 105; Tennant of Norwich vs. Miske of Jewett City at 125; Lewis of New London vs. Joubert of Jewett City at 135; Young Dempski of Norwich vs. Sterling Bruno of Westerly at 150. Should the weights at the time of weighing in be found to be within the limits it is possible the boys will be matched as above. But if there is a difference in weights the matching will be different. The feature bout on the above card looks to be the bout between Al Koziol and Vic Darr two of Norwich's favorite boys. Young Anthony's presence on the card assures a good bout as the local boy has won his last three fights in the western part of the state where he is a big favorite.

A packed house is expected tonight, and suitable seating arrangements have been made to accommodate a capacity crowd. Jackie Wilson will be the referee and Bobby Mays, New England lightweight champion will be a timekeeper. Jack Sweeney and Mike Kelley will be the judges. Jackie Burns will do the announcing.

There has been so much talk over the slipshod way that amateur boxing has been conducted in Connecticut that the Pastime A. C. is anxious to have the state athletic commissioner present as well as any who think that the game is not conducted as well as professional bouts. There is one outstanding fact about amateur boxing and that is that real honest to goodness fighting is seen in the ring which can hardly be said of some of the professional bouts.

West Ends Down E. G. P. Team

With Tombari starring the West Ends defeated the East Great Plain football team last Sunday 13 to 0 at the Lucas field on the West Side. Tombari made two touchdowns, one in the first quarter when Boldrighine recovered a fumble on the ten yard line, and again in the third period. The lineup: Murphy and Mingo, ends; J. Boldrighine and James, tackles; Haggerty and Sullivan, guards; Zemlicki, center; Tombari, fullback; Bargnesi and Urbinati, halfbacks; Quatte, quarterback. The West Ends play the Jail Hill Colonials on next Sunday.

Yale Practices Indoors

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 3.—(AP)—For the first time this season, Eli football practice was held indoors this afternoon at the armory near the practice field. Because of heavy rain, "Pat" Jones excused all of the squad but the first and second teams, and the first scrubs from reporting. The schooling was a short one that embraced signal drill only.

Riverview vs. Saints Tonight

The Riverview Bowling team opens its season tonight at the Riverview alleys against the St. Joseph five of Norwich. In the Riverview lineup will be Jumping Joe Faber, Lucky Mills, Shiek Moore, Square Ericson and Bullet West. The Riverview bowlers expect to have as successful a season on the alleys as they did on the diamond.

DUNDEE REFUSES TO FIGHT UNTIL PAID

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Max Waxman, manager of Joe Dundee, welterweight champion, declared tonight that the titleholder would not enter the ring in his title bout tonight with Ace Hudkins, of Nebraska, unless he was paid the $60,000 which Promoter Dick Donald in a contract guaranteed him. Waxman said he could produce Dundee within 15 minutes of the time the money is paid him.

Seph W. Streblinger, commissioner of the state athletic commission, declared that the only contract on file with that body was one guaranteeing Dundee only a percentage of the gate. This, he said, conformed with the rules of the commission, whereby no fighter could be made a guarantee. If such a contract is Waxman's describes exists, Streblinger said, it was on the side between Dundee's manager and Donald.

At 10.30 Hudkins preceded by a floral horseshoe and two policemen, came down the aisle and into the ring where he sat down to await the arrival of Dundee.

Hudkins left the ring a few minutes later.

Ring attendants reported that Dundee had arrived in the dressing room as taping his hands preparatory to filling his engagement. This was told to Clyde Hudkins but the latter was obdurate and led his fighting brother protesting back down the aisle while the crowd stood up waiting for the next development.

After further delay Tom Kennedy, of Los Angeles, one of Hudkins' handlers, announced that Dundee had not arrived at the field and that the Nebraskian claimed the welterweight title.

As Kennedy made his statement Ace Hudkins, with his ring togs discarded and fully clad in street garb stood behind him and nodded assent. Then he left the ring for the second time but still the crowd held its places in the stands.

Hudkins Claims Title.

DARTMOUTH HAS HOUR'S WORK IN THE RAIN

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 3.—(AP)—A 24 hour deluge failed to halt Dartmouth's last heavy practice before the Brown game today and after a dummy scrimmage in the baseball cage against Brown plays, Coach Hawley sent his men onto a water-soaked gridiron for a fast signal drill.

Clean handling of the slippery ball and complete success of the aerial game featured the outdoor work. The squad entrains for Providence tomorrow.

PLAINFIELD OPENS SEASON NEXT WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Organization of the Plainfield town team has been perfected—a team that is even stronger than the one that gained an enviable reputation last year on the squared court. The management of the team is still in the hands of Dissinger, and from the lineup it is safe to say that the team will be one of the strongest contenders for state honors. Their first game will be played on next Wednesday night against a fine bunch of ball tossers representing Fall River. The game will be played at Plainfield.

Reaching out into this part of the state and elsewhere, Manager Dissinger has secured such material as Whitey Bernot, who formerly played with Brooklyn, Boston and Baltimore in the American basketball league and for a time played in this part of the state, representing various teams. With Bernot is Billy Scholfield, forward on the Connecticut Aggies team for the past three years and chosen on the All-New England Intercollegiate basketball team for the past two years, a position that is held by very few.

The remainder of the lineup will be picked from players who have shown considerable ability on the court for many years, especially Dissinger, who is rated as one of the snappiest forwards in the state, and Norris, who is equally as well known in the position of the center. Normandin, Stevens and Madden are the others players who saw service with the Plainfield team and Eddie Nichols from Willimantic, who will be given a tryout this year in the center position.

For the Fall River team there are

A LESSON FROM THE DANES.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

Why should the farmers of Denmark be admittedly the most prosperous, the best living, taken all in all the best off of any farmers in the world?

Ever since the undoubted fact that they were such dawned upon me I've been asking myself "How-come?" and seeking a satisfactory solution of a mighty puzzling question.

For Denmark isn't a desirable farming country. Its soil is thin and worn out; its climate is inclined to be sour and backward. So far as the land is concerned, it is really little more than a sort of sore thumb, sticking out from a not over-fertile mainland into the chilly waters of the North Sea. Its seasons are short and its list of possible products is limited. We are accustomed to thinking of New England as poorly fitted, naturally, for agriculture. Yet New England, so far as soil and climate are concerned, is a veritable Garden of Eden compared with Denmark. We can profitably grow dozens of crops on our "stern and rock-bound shores" which won't even live in Denmark. They can't grow wheat or corn or any but the most hardy vegetables. Their activities are confined mostly to animal and fowl breeding, to the raising of potatoes and beets and grass and a few similar products.

And yet they have a higher standard of living, a greater use of comforts and luxuries, bigger incomes and truer prosperity than the farmers of New England average.

We Yankees have been patting our own backs and crowning our own heads and psalming our own praises so long that it has become a conviction with us that "we are the people and wisdom will die with us." We might do better if we'd come down off our high horses, and recognize humbly the fact that we've been out-paced, over-passed and almost distanced by a quarter of a million Danes, living on poorer farming land, under less favorable climatic conditions, and with no better subjective possibilities.

To altogether too many people in this broad land of ours, "Liberty" means simply freedom to make damphools of themselves. This applies quite as much to farmers as to flappers and politicians.

To another also unfortunately large class, "Self-respect" is a synonym for self-conceit. And I think you'll admit, if you've any grace of candor in you, that self-conceit is quite as prevalent among New England farmers as in any class.

Now add to these unprofitable qualities stubborness of purpose, "set"ness of practice, and bigotry of opinion and you've got at least some glimpse into the reasons why so many New England farmers fail even to make a decent living, to say nothing of attaining real prosperity.

I don't want you to charge me, as an old farmer, with trying to befoul my own nest. But the simple truth is that so many of us have got used to soft-soap and soft words that our state calls for the use of hard words, describing hard facts. Even if they arouse resentment and opposition and caustic retort, the result will be better than a somnolent namby-pamby-ism of self-satisfaction.

"Better is a dinner of herbs and contentment therewith," etc. Agreed. But the average New England farmer is far from being content. He's grumbling and growling and grouching because the greens aren't filling enough and because he wants porterhouse steak and mushrooms.

Theoretically, he will agree with you that grumbling and grouching never got him anywhere. But, practically, he doesn't seem over-anxious to open his eyes and stir his stumps and learn a lesson from those who have arrived.

That's why I want to keep dinging away at the contrast between him and his Danish fellow farmer. If he would throw his racial conceit and his national pride and his inherent stubbornness out of the back door and humbly set out to learn why he is towards the tail of a procession which poor little Denmark is leading, it might be for his advantage.

But perhaps it is hopeless to expect anything of the sort from some till they have been pounded over the head by failure a few generations longer.

It is about 75 years since Danish farmers took their first steps towards the co-operation which is now practically universal. And 75 years ago their condition was pitiable in the extreme. Poverty was universal and actual need was common. They were not only without the luxuries of life but without its ordinary comforts or even its fundamental needs. They lived daily within the shadow of starvation. It would have been difficult to imagine their condition growing worse, for it was already practically unbearable. Any change must be for the better, since it was impossible to imagine one for the worse. When one is at the very bottom any movement he may make must be upward.

So the Danes, whom one observer describes as not brilliant but sensible and sagacious, turned in sheer desperation to co-operation. It couldn't make their lot any worse. It might alleviate conditions. They decided to confine their own activities to production and commit such things as marketing and financing to those specialists best fitted for such work.

As a result, in 75 years of loyalty to their co-operatives, faith in their fellows, and full subordination of individual greed to the general gain, 90 out of every 100 farmers own their farms. Hovels have been replaced by comfortable, often sumptuous farmhouses. Barns and other outbuildings embody the very soundest conclusions as to the welfare of animals and the conservation of products. Electricity for light and power is used freely on more than three-quarters of the farms. Travelers report no slums, no beggars and no evidences of poverty.

Precluded by their thin soil and sour climate from competing with other farmers in many directions, they have confined themselves to such products as a hostile nature left possible to them. These are mostly bacon, butter, cheese, eggs and beet sugar.

While the working farmers have persistently and industriously pursued a policy of seeking constantly better and better quality in these products, their expert marketers of the co-operatives have pushed the sale of those products with such vigor and sagacity that today they are exported, not by pounds or cartons, but by whole trainloads, setting the mark for quality and selling for the highest prices. At the same time, these co-operatives have developed a purchasing system by which such fertilizers and feeds as the little state cannot produce are bought abroad by the steamship load and delivered at the separate farmsteads for less than they cost the farmers of the lands where they are produced. The Danish farmer actually pays less, per hundred pounds, for bran and middlings and other stock feeds four thousand miles away, across the ocean, than the average New England farmer pays for the same supplies, though produced in his own land.

They buy by the cargo and divide up the savings. The New England farmer buys by the hundred or the ton,—and the middleman takes the saving.

The Danes started, like sensible men, from small beginnings, not trying to bite off at one gobble more than they could chew. They asked for and got no direct governmental aid. What they did, they did by themselves and for themselves. They took such crumbs as were obtainable at first and made the most of them, waiting for the full loaf till they had learned how and where to get it. As they practically control the government,—these co-operative farmers, I mean,—they see to it that the state aids them, now, in various transportation and terminal facilities. But it supplies no capital, either "revolving fund" or other, and takes no hand in the management of the co-operative societies.

Side by side with this development of material prosperity has gone an advancement in education. "We believe in newspapers, books, and schools. Ignorance and poverty go together," one is quoted as saying. There are about 80 what they call "folk high schools," teaching history, literature and the arts, and 20 agricultural high schools teaching the technique of farming,—practical "dirt farming." These, as I understand it, are in addition to the usual common schools, which, unlike some in New England and elsewhere, devote small time to fads and frills but much to solid learning.

Now, there is no reason in the nature of things why we of New England should have to look to Denmark for a copy to follow. Denmark and the world might, instead, have been looking to us had we, 75 or even 50 years ago, taken up the same system of combination instead of competition; of co-operation with each other instead of cut-throat antagonism against our neighbors.

Must we, too, like the Danes of that former time, be pounded and ground into the bogs of near-starvation and hopelessness, before we will turn our faces upward to the light?

Heaven forbid! Yet, until we get rid,—all of us,—of the unwarranted national or local self-government, and the equally unwarranted opinionativeness, and the even less warranted stiff-necked obstinacy which characterize too many of us, there seems small room for hope that we shall get where we ought to be.

Said one old farmer,—a successful one, too, as success is reckoned agriculturally,—"I never had even a hired man so dumb I didn't learn su'thin' from him."

The wisest man is, usually, the one most ready to admit his lack of wisdom.

The wisest farmer is, usually, not the man who is always telling you "how to farm it," but the one who is frequently asking you how to farm it better.

Those Danes may be "poor furriners," but they can give us cards and spades and Little Casino and still beat us.

Aren't you ashamed of it?

I am.

PRICES OF STOCKS CONTINUED TO RISE IN AN IRREGULAR MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The recovery in stock prices was carried further today, although the upward movement was by no means uniform. As on yesterday, the best prices of the day were generally recorded in the last few minutes of trading, gains of 1 to 5 points being fairly widely distributed, with a few larger ones scattered throughout the list. Total sales crossed the 2,000,000 share mark for the first time this week.

While most observers were agreed that the price movement was determined largely by conditions within rather than without the market, bullish sentiment undoubtedly was created by the ease of money rates, stiffening export copper prices and suggestions that the treasury department would advocate changes in the revenue act which probably would lead to a further distribution of huge undivided surpluses by large corporations.

In view of the sharp decline in stock prices last month, some surprise was shown in the increase of $31,509,804 in stock exchange member loans during October, bringing the total to the record-breaking figure of $3,946,137,374, which was made public after the close of the market. The weekly federal reserve statement on brokers' loans showed a total of $3,371,705,000, an increase of $27,928,000 above that of the preceding week.

U. S. Steel common and General Motors were again prominent in the upturn, steel showing a net gain of 2 points at 135 1-4 and motors also showed moderate improvement, Hupp crossing 25 to a new 1927 high and then losing all but a fraction of its gain by dropping back to 22 5-8.

Recent accumulation of the American Tobacco issues has been based on reports of record-breaking cigaret sales and steadily expanding earnings leading to hopes of special dividend distributions next year. Rubbers held fairly firm in the face of an extension of recent tire price reductions. Oils were again in steady demand with Associated, Atlantic Refining, Marland, Lago, Standard Oil of New York and Houston prominent in the advance. Buying of these shares reflected a more cheerful sentiment in oil trade circles.

Establishment of new 1927 peak prices by Adams Express, American Railways Express, Radio Corporation, United Drug, American Home Products, Midland Steel Products preferred, Calumet & Arizona, American Linseed and Victor Talking Machine was offset by new lows in Remington-Rand common and first preferred, American Metal, American Piano, Electric Refrigeration, Gillette Safety Razor, White Sewing Machine and Foundation Co.

Rails presented numerous points of strength under the leadership of Southern Railway, which crossed 137 to the highest price in its history. Revival of activity and strength in Wabash common was based, in part, on expectations of heavily increased traffic when the Ford plants get into full production with their new models. Texas & Pacific jumped 6 points in the late trading and Canadian Pacific and Norfolk & Southern showed net gains of 4 and 5 1-2 points, respectively.

Call money held steady at 3 1-2 per cent. all day although funds were reported to be obtainable in the "outside market" as low as 3 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Except for a further recession in sterling cables to around $4.87 1-32, there was little of interest in the irregular foreign exchange market. Spanish and Japanese exchanges were moderately higher but the other changes were nominal.

Mixed movements in the commodity market reected the usual switching of speculative accounts on the eve of the government crop reports. Cotton dropped 75 cents to $1.50 a bale but wheat advanced fractionally. Sugar prices held fairly steady and coffee quotations sagged somewhat.

EXPLAINS INCREASE IN COMPENSATION INSURANCE

A prominent manufacturer, upon receipt of a notice from his insurance company informing him of an increase in the rates for his compensation insurance under the compensation law passed by the 1927 legislature, has asked the state Chamber of Commerce to explain the reason for this increase and if the increase is warranted.

The state chamber has sent a letter of explanation to this manufacturer which letter was prepared in cooperation with several officers of a prominent Hartford insurance company, writing workmen's compensation insurance.

The following reply from Clarke Belden, executive vice president, which the state chamber sent to the manufacturer has also been sent to its members:

"The increase in rates of insurance companies carrying compensation policies was fixed by the national council of workmen's compensation rates of New York after a careful study of the new Connecticut law which allows several increases in benefits to injured employes, as your insuring company states.

This increase is at the rate of 4.3 per cent, and has been made, we understand, by all insurance companies, both stock and mutual, that are members of the council. Virtually all the leading insurance companies are members of the bureau, obtaining statistics on loss ratios through this membership. A paid representative of the national association of insurance commissioners, to which all state insurance departments belong, is associated with the council to safeguard each state's interests that might come before the council.

It would seem that the increase is warranted, in so far as the insurance companies are concerned, because under the new law, compensation for partial disability is increased as well as for death and burial expenses. Two examples of partial disability increases follow: Eye, now 156 weeks at $21 (maximum) $3276; was 104 weeks at $21 (maximum) $2184; an increase of $1092. Thumb, now 60 weeks at $21 (maximum) $1260; was 38 weeks at $21 (maximum) $798; an increase of $462. The maximum death benefit is increased from $5618 under the old law to $6552 under the new law. Funeral allowance formerly was $100; now it is $200.

On the other hand, other changes have been made which will work to the advantage of the employer. Compensation for aggravation of a prior existing disease is to be made only for such proportion of the disability or death due to aggravation of such prior disease as may be reasonably attributed to the injury upon which the claim is based. The old law provided for no such determination.

The law also clearly specifies that where an employe who has lost the use of one of his members, or suffered a reduction of vision, is further injured, he will be compensated only for the injury, and not on the basis of the total result of all injuries.

Those sections of the law it was believed by the various groups who conferred on the new law during the drafting and re-drafting of the bill, will tend to reduce the number of claims for which the employer is accountable, and in due time be reflected in the premium rates.

The state chamber, among other interests, worked diligently to help bring about amendments to the compensation law, which would be mutually acceptable to labor, employers, and the insurance companies. This was accomplished and resulted in the noteworthy and harmonious conference of all intedests involved before the judiciary committee of the 1927 legislature, which accepted the proposed revision with but one slight change. We sincerely trust that the result will work out to the best interests of Connecticut's business structure.

ONE REJECTION SLIP WELL WORTH FRAMING

LONDON, Nov. 3. (AP)—John K. Williamson, of Detroit, Michigan, who is stopping in London, has received the prize rejection ship of his writing career from a firm of Chinese publishers.

"We read your manuscript with boundless delight," wrote the Chinese firm. "By the sacred ashes of our ancestors we swear that we have never dipped into a book of such overwhelming mastery. If we were to publish this book it would be impossible in the future to issue any book of a lower standard.

"As it is unthinkable that within the next 10,000 years we shall find its equal, we are, to our great regret, compelled to return this too divine work and beg you a thousand times to forgive our action."

Wills Body To Science

DENVER, Nov. 3. —(AP)—The late Dr. Charles D. Spivak, eminent Jewish physician, dedicated his body to science, and it was given to the University of Colorado medical college. By his bequest Dr. Spivak disregarded an ancient Jewish custom which requires that burial be before sundown on the day of death.

EDMOND SCANLON HELD—ABLE TO SECURE $4,000 BAIL

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 3—Edmond Scanlon, 25, who was taken into custody by Corp. James E. Norman, Wednesday noon at Palace Gardens, in the town of Warwick, and from the state barracks at Scituate was turned over to Chief of Police Frank H. Brown of the town of Hopkinton, and by him lodged in the Westerly police station, Wednesday night, was given a hearing at 8:30 Thursday afternoon. Scanlon was wanted for complicity in the automobile accident last Friday night near the Meeting House Bridge on the Noose Neck Hill road when Vernon Cross, 12-year-old son of Mrs. Lucy Cross of Knight street, Ashaway, was struck and fatally injured by a hit-and-run driver.

Before Judge Oliver H. Williams in Third District court Thursday, Scanlon pleaded not guilty and waived reading of the complaint charging manslaughter. He was represented by Attorney Frank Keenan of Providence, who offered James A. Crene of 7 Harvard avenue, Providence as surety in the sum of $4,000 for his appearance Friday, Nov. 18th at the regular session of Third District court. Appearing for the state, Frank H. Brown, chief of police, of Hopkinton, complainant, was Solicitor John Ferguson of Westerly.

Guest day was observed by Phebe Greene Ward chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, at a meeting at which the regent Mrs. Carrie E. Arrangements were in charge of Miss Grace Carmichael and the trip was made by straw-ride in motor truck and by private autos. Much interest was shown in the opportunity to inspect the workings of the apparatus with which Uncle Sam's lighthouses are equipped.

The fire department responded Thursday at 3:10 a. m., to a bell alarm from Box 125, Boston Post road near the greenhouses for a fire which had started in the wooden framework of a large advertising billboard sign on the south side of the state highway, near the Red Brook filling station. It was thought by many in the vicinity that it was the station which was on fire. Chief George E. Egger and men went to the fire with the Seagraves pumper, only to turn round and return. The greater part of the face of the billboard was of metal and the fire in the framework was under control when the firemen arrived.

The Westerly town clock on the tower of the old Westerly Town hall building on Union street, now occupied by the Westerly Industrial Training school, began duty at 9:10 Thursday morning, after remaining silent since the fire of April 30th last. With regularity and precision the hours were correctly struck at 10 a. m. and on, it is hoped for many years to come. At night for the first time in the clock's history, provision has been made for the electric illumination of all its four dial faces.

At Grace Methodist Episcopal church this (Friday) evening beginning at 7:30 Church Family night will be observed, being divided into four periods, as a week ago. New committees covering all the activities have been named to insure a successful observance.

BIG WILD CAT WAS READY TO SPRING ON HUNTER

Fred Stagg, a well known hunter, was out in the woods after game and was walking along with his dog in company with another hunter named Bert Murray, from out of town. In a tree was a large yellow cat, looking for a chance to spring on someone—a wild cat, that travels the woods. Their real name is Bob-cat. Without any warning the cat made a jump for the back of Mr. Stagg, but Murray said "look out!" With a quick shot in the air Fred got Mr. Bob-cat. When he picked it up it weighed 12 pounds. Murray, from Cromwell, Conn., asked him if he would give him the cat. Stagg said "yes! A man who saved me from getting hurt can have it!" He wanted to show his friends in that town what a Bob-cat looked like. While in the woods, both hunters had good luck, getting two pheasants and three squirrels and four woodcock.

Leo Shandor will leave at the end of the week in his automobile for the Golden West, especially California, a place he always wanted to see. He will stop each night in the town that he happens to make at night-fall. In Helena, Montana, there lives a college chum. Shandor and he spent happy days together during college at Detroit. His name is Max Landson.

The Noank man said if his friend wants to go out to southern California, he will take him along, and they could talk over the good old times at college. When the auto arrives at that moving picture colony, he will stay for a few weeks and see how the oranges grow. The trip will take about two months. He will arrive back in Noank Christmas time.

Ellis came down to his boat, Idella, on Wednesday morning to go out fishing and found all the fishermen waiting for him. Two young men here belong to the fire company and everywhere they meet they tell about what good pool players they are, so a series of three matches was played, each for 100 points, for the best player in the village fire company. Edward Ellis and John Carnerey are the two pool sharps. The first match took place Wednesday evening at the fire room table. Referee Robert Lamay was the man that explained the rules. The little room was packed with nearly 100 people to see the contestants in action. Carnerey was the first one to play and his long shots kept the crowd on edge for a while. He missed after a run of 22 balls, so then came on keen-eyed Ellis, of East Main street who sure could cut up the side shots. He got a big hand, the way he handled the cue, taking his time and making every move count. He made a run of 30 balls. Everybody was saying a good match. In the final game Ellis needed 29 balls to win and Carnerey had to make 43 balls. Ellis beat out his rival by a score of 100 to 92, a lead of 8 points. After the match, M. Barber passed around cake, peanut butter sandwiches and lemonade. The next match will be held next week.

THIS WOMAN FOUND RELIEF

After Long Suffering by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

In a little town of the Middle West, was a discouraged woman. For four months she had been in such poor health that she could not stoop to put on her own shoes. Unable to do her work, unable to go out of doors or enjoy a friendly chat with her neighbors, life seemed dark indeed to Mrs. Daugherty.

Then one day, a booklet was left at her front door. Idly she turned the pages. Soon she was reading with quickened interest. The little booklet was filled with letters from women in conditions similar to hers who had found better health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I began taking the Vegetable Compound," Mrs. Daugherty writes, "and after I took the third bottle, I found relief. I am on my eleventh bottle and I don't have that trouble any more, and feel like a different woman. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to everyone I see who has trouble like mine. I am willing to answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Ed. Daugherty, 1308 Orchard Ave., Muscatine, Iowa.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

RED CEDARS AND APPLES ARE NOT GOOD NEIGHBORS

Choose between red cedars and apples. In the eastern United States, and perhaps in some other parts of the country, a neighborhood may have either but not both of these trees without danger of trouble for both. The cedar and the apple have been found to have a relationship—or antagonism—similar to that existing between the barberry bush and wheat, in which each is affected by one of those strange fungous growths in which one generation of the fungus develops on one plant and can not reproduce on that plant, but only on the other of the pair of plants so strangely coupled.

For years apple-tree rust was familiar to scientists, as was also the Virginia red cedar rust, which produced galls. The two were supposed to be distinct, but after the wheat and barberry coupling was established further studies revealed that a similar relationship existed between apple trees and red cedars. Spores from the cedar gall are blown to apple leaves and fruit, where they reproduce and cause damage within a few weeks, after which the spores of this second generation return to the cedar for a lifetime of about 22 months.

At first the apple rust affected only native crab apples, but from year to year it extended its damage to one supposedly resistant variety afer another. Spraying, fatal to most other fungous growths, did not kill this rust, and Virginia apple growers found that the best method of preventing damage was to kill the cedar trees within a distance of a mile or two of apple orchards. When this was done damage from apple rust ceased. Or conversely, in case the cedars are the more valuable, they should be protected from infectious apples.

FALL PLANTING

Asparagus, multiplier onions for the earliest crops, and rhubarb are the vegetable roots for fall planting to give early spring crops. In seed planting for vegetables the fall work is limited chiefly to spinach, which is now planted quite as often in the fall as in the spring. Late planting is advisable so that the seed will not be started into too much growth. The seed is sown thinly in rows late in the season and the rows covered with a mulch of leaves or straw to be raked off as soon as the frost is out of the ground in spring, whereupon the spinach will start about its business at the earliest possible moment.

While spinach is always in the market it is never quite so good or so valuable a food factor as when freshly pulled from the home garden and cooked. Spinach is a cool-weather plant. It will spin up to see as soon as the sun grows hot. The aim of plant breeders has been to produce a race of spinach that is not so addicted to the seed habit as the old-time varieties, and Danish experts have done very well in this line, giving us new heavy-leaved sorts not so fast to spin up to seed production. When the seed-stalk starts its upward career the value of spinach is over and it might as well be pulled.

Plant some of the newer sorts to get the full benefit of the crop. Leaf lettuce seed is another vegetable that may be sown late in the fall for the earlier crop. This will start into growth as soon as growing conditions permit in the spring and give early lettuce without any effort in spring except to keep weeds down and the lettuce will have a start on the weeds.

Multiplier onions may be set out this fall to give the earliest young onion crop. They are hardy perennials and, once established, are a permanent garden fixture, provided only enough bulbs are left to reproduce. This onion never makes one large bulb, but is continually dividing into small bulbs, which gives its name of multiplier. It is also known as the potato onion. Chives may be set out this fall with a mulch and will give their grassy foliage so excellent for a mild onion seasoning in salads and many other dishes.

A few hills of rhubarb, four good healthy ones, are sufficient to supply the average family. Rhubarb roots should be set out this fall, with plenty of fertilizer and a mulch to keep them in the ground.

MAKING AND STORING FARM BUTTER FOR WINTER USE

Making and Storing Farm Butter for Winter Use, is the self-explanatory title of Leaflet No. 9-L, just issued by the United States department of agriculture. It is designed for use in farm homes where there is a surplus of butter in the summer and where the winter supply is not always adequate for the needs. For butter which is to keep for months, it has been found by experiment that pasteurized, sweet cream should be used, and the butter churned at a fairly low temperature. After being churned it should be washed carefully, salted, wrapped in rolls or prints and covered in a strong brine and kept in a cool place. The brine method of preservation in stone crocks was found far superior to covering with parchment paper, storing in dry salt, or covering with pariffin.

ALFALFA ROOT DISEASES DESCRIBED BY PATHOLOGIST

Root diseases and injuries affecting alfalfa plants in many of the large producing sections of the country are described by J. L. Weimer in Department Circular 425-C, Observations on Some Alfalfa Root Troubles, issued by the United States department of agriculture.

Mr. Weimer does not announce any new discovery but puts on record "what has been seen with the hope that it may be of assistance in ultimately determining the causes of these alfalfa root diseases." He reports on and describes collar rot, heart rot, hollow crown, and two less common root troubles. Collar rot and heart rot are terms selected to designate certain exterior and interior injuries to the root at and just below the crown of the plant, which the author judges from field observations to be due to a form of winter injury which probably facilitates the development of fungous growth. The author notes the distinctions between hollow crown and heart rot. A fourth type of damage in which the root was destroyed several inches below the surface was diagnosed by W. F. Flint, state entomologist of Illinois, as the work of the clover-root curculio.

Collar rot is the name applied to a firm, moist, brown decay of the outer bark of the crown, and the upper part of the tap root, most frequently detected in the spring in the death of scattering plants of young alfalfa.

PORK SHOULD BE COOKED THOROUGHLY—EAT NONE RAW

Though pork is an excellent food it should be thoroughly cooked. This advice from the United States department of agriculture is especially timely during hog-killing time and Thanksgiving and Christmas holiday seasons. Failure to observe this precaution may be followed by a serious illness known as trichinosis.

This disease is caused by a small parasite which sometimes occurs in pork. The trichina parasite is microscopic in size, and consequently is never seen except in very careful microscopic examinations. Ordinarily hogs which harbor the parasites show no symptoms. Besides, pork containing trichinae generally has the same appearance as other pork.

Federally inspected meat products that are intended to be eaten without cooking are prepared in a safe manner. Consequently, any pork products bearing the federal stamp are safe. Most cases of trichinosis occur on farms and in rural districts. Outbreaks also have occurred in cities, especially among families which retain the food habits of countries where pork is commonly eaten uncooked.

Products that are especially likely to contain trichinae are raw pork in any form, smoked and dried sausage, and articles of food containing pork that has not been thoroughly cooked. Frequently an entire family may be stricken, the disease being painful and frequently fatal. It sometimes resembles typhoid fever and may be confused with that disease.

To make pork safe all that is necessary is to cook it until it reaches the stage known as "done," which is also the stage at which pork is most palatable to the average person. Since heat penetrates slowly into meat in the process of cooking, large pieces that are cooked on the outside may be imperfectly cooked at the center. Accordingly, care should be taken that the meat is cooked throughout and not merely on the outside.

HINTS FOR THE FARMER

To prevent market discounts where shelled corn contains damaged kernels, corn producers and country corn dealers are urged to pick out the damaged ears either at the time corn is husked in the field, when it is put into cribs, or when it is shelled. To obtain best results, the damaged ears should be removed at each of these three operations.

All matches are dangerous sources of fire. Smoking or striking matches in barns or stables never should be allowed. Pouring gasoline or kerosene on a smoldering fire endangers life, limb, and property. Open-flame lights should not be used in a garage or building containing a gasoline engine or gasoline in storage. Every open fire should be watched until it is out. All oily rags should be kept in a metal container with an airtight metal cover, and the floor beneath stoves should have a metal covering.

Probably no disease of cattle is the cause of so much discouragement to stockowners in general as the one known as infectious or contagious abortion. It no longer is confined to dairy cattle, but has gained considerable headway among beef herds as well. The set br abortion is its best known symptom. Other results are weak calves, sterility, retained afterbirths, and low milk production. The malady is commonly acquired through the mouth by consuming feed and drink contaminated with the germs and by licking affected animals, mangers and other objects to which the germs adhere.

More than $4,000,000,000 is invested in farm mechanical equipment in this country. Power and labor costs of farm crop production on an average make up about 60 per cent of the total costs. Even minor improvements on farm machinery will result in large savings.

Rain water sweeping over the fields of the United States carries away $200,000,000 worth of plant food material every year, or 20 times as much as is permanently removed by the farmers' crops. This annual loss is estimated at approximately 126,000,000,000 pounds as compared to only 5,900,000,000 pounds permanently removed by crops. In addition millions of tons of rich top soil are carried out to sea annually, leaving in many instances a soil very infertile and difficult to till.

NORTH STERLING

Oliver Credit of Sterling visited his father, Paul Credit here Sunday. They had not met before for eleven years.

Local people attended the old folks' concert at the United Protestant church at Sterling Sunday evening.

Visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Crowell and Mr. and Mrs. George C. Spooner the past week were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Tatro, of New London; Mrs. Minnie A'pn and daughter Elsie of Danielson; Mrs. William Young of Baltic; Mrs. Benjamin Hall and daughter, Alice, of Providence.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Crowell spent two days with friends in Pawtucket, R. I., the past week.

George F. Pierce and family spent Sunday in Worcester.

Mrs. Peter and Little Pete

The young, you'll find, will have their way;
'Twas always so and is today.
—Mrs. Peter Rabbit.

Such a happy reunion as there was in the old bramble-tangle up in the Old Pasture. Mrs. Peter Rabbit had, you know, met a stranger, and the stranger proved to be one of her own children, who when he was little had been called Little Pete. Now he was as big as his father, Peter Rabbit, and quite as fine-looking as Peter ever had been. Little Mrs. Peter's heart was filled with pride as she looked at him. It had been a long, long time since he left the dear Old Briar-patch to go out into the Great World, and his mother had heard nothing from him in all this time. But that is nothing against him, for this is the way of rabbits.

"Is your home up here in the Old Pasture?" inquired Mrs. Peter.

"It hasn't been, but it is going to be from now on," replied Little Pete. "I have just come up from the Green Forest."

"Then you haven't been around in the Old Pasture a great deal," said little Mrs. Peter. "I take it you haven't met your grandfather, Old Jed Thumper, who thinks that the Old Pasture belongs to him."

"No," replied Little Pete. "But if he thinks that, he has old fashioned ideas. If the Old Pasture suits me as well as I think it will, and suits Mrs. Pete, we shall stay here, whether Old Jed Thumper likes it or not."

"Did you say Mrs. Pete?" inquired little Mrs. Peter.

Little Pete nodded. Of course, it was absurd to call him Little Peter, but his mother could think of him by no other name.

"Where is she?" inquired little Mrs. Peter.

"Oh, somewhere about," replied Little Pete carelessly.

Mrs. Peter sighed. "How like Peter he is," said she to herself. "How very like Peter he is," said she to herself. "How very like Peter he is." Then she said to him: "Have you seen your father anywhere about?"

"Who?" asked Little Pete.

"Your father, Peter Rabbit," replied his mother. "He is somewhere up here in the Old Pasture, but I don't know just where."

"What is he doing up here?" demanded Little Pete. "Doesn't he live with you down in the dear Old Briar-patch? I've kept away from the dear Old Briar-patch because I knew it belonged to you folks. Have you left it?"

"Not exactly," replied his mother, hesitating a little. "I'm up here just on a visit, a sort of visit. You didn't say whether you had seen your father, or not."

"No, I haven't seen him," replied Little Pete. "What is more, I don't want to see him up here in the Old Pasture. We've come up here to live and we don't want to be crowded. If I see him I shall tell him so."

"Tut, tut, tut, tut!" exclaimed Mrs. Peter. "You mustn't talk so. The Old Pasture is a very big place. It is a very big place indeed, and you needn't worry about being crowded. But it is a dangerous place, too."

"Dangerous in what way?" asked Little Pete.

"It is the home of Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy," replied his mother.

"Huh!" said Little Pete.

"And Old Man Coyote and Mrs. Coyote live up here," added Mrs. Peter.

"That is going to make life all the more interesting," declared Little Pete.

"He is so like his father," sighed little Mrs. Peter to herself.

Don't dose a Child's Cold

CONTINUAL dosing upsets children's delicate stomachs. Vicks is applied externally and therefore cannot disturb the digestion. It acts in two ways:

(1) The body heat releases the ingredients in the form of vapors which are inhaled.

(2) At the same time Vicks "draws out" the soreness like a poultice.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"What's a seismograph?"

"A ringside seat for an earthquake." —Life.

Harassed Hub—"I wish I lived where the styles in dress never change."

Snappy Spouse — "Humph! There's the penitentiary, if that's all you want."—Boston Transcript.

Lieutenant (instructing recruits)—Why should not a soldier have a lighted cigarette on parade?

Recruit—Quite right, lieutenant, why shouldn't he?—Faun, Vienna.

The caller was young and quite charming. "If you like," said the young man at the desk, "I'll have your poem submitted to the editor."

"No," she answered positively. "I'll read it aloud to him. I prefer to have the editor submitted to the poem."—Punch.

The conductor — "Pardon me, madam, but your girl seems more than 12."

"Conductor! Would you take me to be the mother of a girl of that age."

"Lady, don't tell me you're her grandmother."—Answers, London.

Two flappers were discussing a male acquaintance, and one of them stated that she disliked him.

"But if you dislike him," observed the other, "why did you let him kiss you?"

"Well," was the reply, "one can't be downright rude, you know!"—Tit-Bits.

Mother—"Now, Jimmy suppose you were to hand Willie a plate with a large and small piece of cake on it, wouldn't you tell him to take the larger piece?"

Jimmy—"No."

Mother—"Why not?"

Jimmy—"Because it wouldn't be necessary!"—Pathfinder.

The vicar was putting on a new collar and experiencing the usual trouble with it.

"Bless the collar!" he cried, impatiently, as he tugged and tugged.

"My dear," asked his wife, "what is your text for this morning's sermon?"

"Twenty-first verse, f-fifty-fifth P-psalm," he replied in short gasps. "The words of his mouth were (tug) smoother than b-butter, b-but war (tug) was in h-his heart."—Los Angeles Times.

Managers of Atlantic City hotels say that their maintenance costs have increased enormously because women use so much lipstick and other cosmetics. The women, according to the managers, not only use napkins, bath and face towels to wipe off the lipstick, but also employ tablecloths on occasion. And the lipstick is so strong that bleaching agents are necessary to restore the goods to their pristine whiteness.

The principle of camouflage by broken color dates far its origin farther back than the late war. In fact, certain reptiles and amphibians have long gone in for arrangements of broken coloring which appear as exotic on close view and conceal as effectively at long range as the most grotesquely painted battleship ready for war tactics. Some of these strikingly marked creatures are on view in the hall of reptiles of the American Museum of Natural History in New York. Placed in natural settings, they illustrate the camouflage principle by melting into their background. To bring out more clearly the peculiar ability of the camouflaged animal to merge into the scenery, a solid colored specimen is placed beside each camouflaged specimen. Thus the

DEGENERATE FROM BROOKLYN, N. Y. SPENDS NIGHT IN NEW LONDON JAIL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 3—Joseph Amorel, 490 Throop avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., who has been visiting at the residence of his mother, 167 Crystal avenue, is the brute who attacked Miss Adelaide Stillman, a nurse, of Berkley avenue, last Saturday night. According to his own admissions, he attacked the young woman for the purpose of criminally assaulting her. He was in the police court this morning and was held for trial tomorrow morning in bail of $2,000, which he was unable to furnish, so went to jail. Amorel last night signed a confession admitting his guilt, but when he took the witness stand in his own defense today he denied attacking the woman and said that he had signed the confession simply to satisfy Sergeant Nelson Smith. However, after the adjournment of court Amorel signed another confession, which corroborates the original one and in it he freely and openly acknowledges his vicious attack upon Miss Stillman.

Amorel is 23 and married. He said that he came to New London about two weeks ago with his wife, but that the latter recently returned to Brooklyn. It was another of Amorel's beastial acts that he perpetrated last night that resulted in his arrest and the subsequent charge of attempted rape made against him.

Amorel left his mother's residence about 8:30 o'clock last night, carrying his suit case for he had purchased transportation on the New London line steamer New Hampshire. Instead of going direct to the steamer, Amorel went to Harrison street where he started the role of "Peeping Tom." He went to the yard of the residence at 9 1-2 and there peered through the window of the tenement occupied by Joseph Rybicki, where Mrs. Rybicki was seated. A child from an upper window saw Amorel and acquainted Mrs. Rybicki with the fact that the man was in the yard. Mrs. Rybicki hastened to the yard and finding Amorel at the window, seized him, but Amorel being the stronger, easily broke from Mrs. Rybicki's grasp and made his escape, but he left his suit case, unknown to Mrs. Rybicki, in the yard. Mrs. Rybicki summoned her brother and the two started chasing Amorel, who ran through Harrison street to the Central Vermont railroad bridge. Continuing to Water street, Amorel disappeared into Federal street where he was lost to his followers. In the meantime Mrs. Rybicki had notified the police of the peeper's operation and Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin went to Harrison street and there met Mrs. Rybicki and her brother. While Mrs. Rybicki was informing Officer Martin of the acts of the peeper, Mrs. Rybicki observed Amorel approaching, the fellow having intended to go to the yard and recover his suit case. Amorel was identified by Mrs. Rybicki as the peeper and he was arrested and locked up.

After Amorel had been locked up two hours, Sergeant Smith questioned the prisoner for he partially answered a description of the fellow who was being sought for the attack upon Miss Stillman. Amorel was brought to the detective bureau and when he related a series of falsehoods pertaining to his movements the past week, he finally confessed that he had attacked Miss Stillman. Amorel related that he had walked through Main street to Williams street and when he had walked to a point on the latter street approaching Vauxhall street he saw Miss Stillman carrying a couple of bundles enter Vauxhall street on her way to her home. He followed, walking but a short distance behind her. When Miss Stillman passed Nathan Hale street, Amorel hurried and instead of passing her, Amorel placed both arms around the nurse's neck and started to drag her into a yard. He dragged her but a few feet and when he reached the yard with the young woman he discovered that she had fainted. Evidently the unconscious form of the woman on the ground terrified Amorel, for he says he left her on the ground and hastily left the yard.

Before Amorel was returned to his cell he was questioned further by Sergeant Smith and later Amorel was left with Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield. To the officer Amorel said that the confession he had made to Sergeant Smith was a truthful one and that he had lied when he took the stand and said that he had no knowledge of the attack upon Miss Stillman.

The funeral of Miss Emeline L. Tourjee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Tourjee, of Quaker Hill, who died suddenly of heart disease Sunday while visiting at Basking Ridge, N. J., was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of her parents and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. Herbert B. Hutchins. Burial was in Union cemetery, Waterford.

Mrs. George Carver and infant son, of 38 Rogers street, Edward Williamson, 1057 Ocean avenue and Miss Marion Tucker, Groton, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Joseph Roderick and William Gormley, both of 458 Bank street, were in the police court today charged with theft. Both were sentenced to 10 days in jail, but execution of the sentences were suspended for a year. George Sullivan, another roomer at the Bank St. house, absented himself from his abode several days and when he returned yesterday he discovered that his overcoat had been stolen. The garment being a good one, Sullivan reported the theft at police headquarters and Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh was assigned to the case. Suspicion pointed to Roderick, a marine fireman and Gormley, a mechanic, as the thieves. They were accused of taking the coat, but steadfastly denied the accusation. Sergeant Cavanaugh then ascertained that the coat had been sold by two men to a Bank street merchant. Roderick and Gormley were taken to the store where the merchant identified the men as the pair who sold him the garment and said that they divided the amount of money paid them.

A resident of Waterford will be in Waterford town court tomorrow afternoon charged with intoxication and breach of the peace, the latter charge resulting because of the man having administered a beating to his wife. The man went to his home about 7 o'clock last night and as he had been drinking he was ugly and abusive. He quarreled with his wife and finally attacked her, striking her several blows on the face. The wife made complaint to the state police and Officer Berhard Kenerson arrested the husband, who was brought to New London and locked up at police headquarters.

CAB CO. TO MAKE TEST CASE OF ARREST OF A DRIVER

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 3—The Union Cab company, the largest operators of a public service of this kind in the city, operating 15 cabs, is to make a test case of the city's parking law. The proprietors of the cab company declare that their business is being unjustly interfered with and that the enforcement of the ordinance is illegal. To provide the test case, John Ramistella, one of the drivers, refused to drive his cab from the south side of State street, between Bank street and Railroad avenue last night and was arrested by Patrolman Lawrence Fardy. The case was not tried in the police court today but was continued to next Monday. Ramistella furnished a surety on his bond for his appearance in court.

The cab company maintains an office at the corner of State and Bank streets. Last night Lieut. James C. Sullivan had given the officer on the state street beat orders to drivers of cabs to refrain from parking on the south side of State street. Patrolman Fardy found the car in charge of Ramistell parked in front of the cab company's office and ordered Ramistella to drive it away. Ramistella refused to do as ordered and was arrested. The cab company proprietors declare that Ramistella acted within his rights, and that they will fight his prosecution and seek action to obtain the invalidity of the ordinance.

The city council has designated the Union station as the public service stand. There are thrice as many cabs as the stand will accommodate and last night when Ramistella drove to the depot he was unable to park the cab at the place designated for the parking of public vehicles, so he drove to the cab company's office and parked it so that he would be near in case he was sent on a call. It was while the auto was parked there that Officer Fardy carried out the order of his superior officer. The cab company proprietors avow that if it is illegal for their cabs to be parked on State street when the cab stand is occupied, it is illegal to park their cabs anywhere in the city and that the enforcement of the present ordinance would mean that the cabs would have to be driven to the garage if the stand was entirely occupied.

THURSDAY EVENING'S RAIN OF DELUGE PROPORTIONS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 3—The storm early this evening caused considerable damage for the rain fell in such torrents that the streets in some parts of the city were flooded and resulted in the water making its way into cellars of stores on Bank street. Other streets were flooded, but no damage resulted. Automobiles became stalled in the streets in the heart of the city and the police were called upon several times to push them to points away from traffic. Trolley cars were held up and as a result for two hours an irregular schedule was maintained.

The rain started falling about 5:15, but not until after 6 o'clock did it fall in volume. It continued about three hours during which the deluge was faster than catch-basins could carry the water away, causing the streets to be flooded, the water in some cases reaching between two and three feet. This was the case on Bank street, between Division street and Montauk avenue.

Following the reception yesterday by Captain Charles A. Pinney of a communication from City Manager William A. Holt, Captain Pinney has caused a notice to be posted on the bulletin board that in future any member of the department known to be revealing information that should be given out at the desk will be suspended and that charges will be preferred against the offending officer.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway.

A new comedy team has appeared! Chester Conklin and George Bancroft showed audiences at the Broadway theatre yesterday just what they could do in the exacting art of creating laughs, and they proved themselves masters in that line. We have found Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton an ideal pair of funsters, and now comes this second Paramount team who bid fair to rival the popularity and box-office success of the Beery-Hatton combination.

Conklin and Bancroft have an excellent vehicle in which to make their joint debut. Titled "Tell It to Sweeney," it is a story of railroad life and is filled to the brim with pep, action and real comedy. There are thrills, too, and there is romance. The picture has everything audiences want.

The story has a well-defined plot, centered about two principal characters, Luke Beamish, haughty engineer of another day, and Cannonball Casey, a modern throttle-pusher whose ego and Herculean strength stir the wrath of the veteran. Conklin plays Luke, and the hefty Bancroft is cast as Cannonball, a character that brings to mind the original "Casey" of melody fame.

Palace Theatre

Reviewing the show at the Palace theatre the last half of this week is no simple matter. The reason for this being an almost perfect vaudeville and picture program. The vaudeville bill is opened by Gomez and Gomez, who excel in the art of xylophone playing. Syd Grant follows in reminiscences of yesterday called "Things are different now." Kramer and Mack offer a pretty comedy skit in, "A Bungalow for Two." Fletcher and Smith have them laughing from their entrance with their characters, "Castoria and Cough Drops." Closing the vaudeville program are a group of eight people in a knock-a-bout comedy routine. The feature of this act being a fantastic finish called "The Parade of the Goblins."

A wonderful characterization of the woman who loved and lost is offered by Mrs. Wallace Reid, in the feature screen attraction, "The Satin Woman." The story concerns a woman who was too busy being a fashion leader to devote any of her time to her husband and only comes to a full realization after she has lost her husband. The story is very pathetic and well acted not only by Mrs. Reid but Rockliffe Fellows, John Miljan, Ruth Stonehouse, Gladys Brockwell and others in the cast.

Two unusually good features are to be screened for Sunday night movie lovers when Ricardo Cortez in "By Whose Hand" and Louise Fazenda in the "Gay Old Bird" will be shown.

Bread Theatre

The handsome George O'Brien, star of half a dozen Fox Films successes, and Edmund Lowe, fresh from his great triumph in the role of Sergeant Quirt in "What Price Glory," are a team of male stars hard to surpass in audience popularity. So it goes without saying that if, "Is Zat So?" their picture in which they appear together at the Breed theatre today and Saturday, had nothing else to recommend it, the film would be worth going to see.

New York rocked with laughter for more than a season at the comedy scenes in "What Price Glory," the William Fox screen version of the celebrated stage success by Laurence Stallings and Maxwell Anderson, which will open a week's engagement at the Breed theatre Sunday.

Quinn Martin, of the World, says: I can only bend low in acknowledging to a fine and gifted crew my appreciation for one of the grandest evenings which I have ever spent before a motion picture screen.

Strand Theatre

At the Strand tonight and tomorrow night Priscilla Dean in "The Dice Woman," a great Metropolitan picture which affords Priscilla Dean one of her finest screen roles. It is robust with sentiment, tense drama, humor and thrills.

Fred Thompson and his personality horse in "Silver Comes Thru", is the added attraction. It is a whirlwind western, different and sure fire. Boundless windswept plains, the eerie stillness of the desert night, the urge and thrill of deadly conflict, spiced with the thrill of pounding hoofs and the last effort of a mighty horse.

Werrenrath in Westerly

Those who heard Reinald Werrenrath sing in New London two seasons ago, when he appeared under the auspices of the Connecticut college course, will be glad of the announcement that he will sing in Westerly at the United theatre on November 16 at 8:15 p. m.

They will be handled by the South County Public Service company, Westerly, telephone 2821 at prices specified in the advertisement.

REPORT OF LIQUOR MEAL ANNOYS TEMPERANCE BODY

LONDON, Nov. 3—(AP)—The London, and Scotland United Temperance association was caused considerable annoyance when London newspapers reported that at its annual banquet there was served three dishes in which quantities of wines and liqueurs were used.

During the whole of the next day the chairman and committee of the association was kept busy explaining away the alleged non-temperance meal and finally, in desperation, persuaded the restaurant chef to issue a certificate denying that liquor had been served in the dishes.

His despair turned to joy.

When painful skin trouble is healed after resisting many treatments

East Haven, Conn., March 17:—"I work at Electro Plating and have what is known as "Platers' trouble." Every Plater gets it more or less, but I am unfortunate enough to get it all over my body from my head to my feet. My skin just opened up into a million and one deep cuts, from which ran a nasty watery fluid. I suffered tortures even after many different treatments. I was very much discouraged for some time and had about given up all hope of ever being healed when I tried your Resinol Soap and Ointment. I immediately began to get better and today my face and the tender parts of my body are entirely healed without even a scar. I'll boost Resinol every chance I get and I wish everybody suffering from skin trouble, especially that caused by Electro Plating, would give it a fair trial." (Signed) Samuel J. Dykes, 803 Laurel St.

WORLD NEEDS 350,000 MORE SETS, DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE FINDS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3—(AP)—A world market exists for 10 times as many radio receiving sets as have been sold and there is a potential world market for 20 times as many sets once broadcasting facilities are extended to bring all civilized portions of the globe within the zone of constant reception, the Department of Commerce estimates.

It is estimated that 15,000,00 radio receiving sets now are in use. They provide reception facilities for about 90,000,000 people, but this number represents only nine per cent of the population of existing zones of constant reception. If the zones were extended to include the whole world in the enjoyment of radio programs, 350,000,000 sets would be required. Consequently that industrial bogey, the "saturation point," or the time when every home will have a radio set, is believed to be many decades in the future.

Rumania, Bulgaria and China must be ruled out of this calculation, for in them prohibition extends to radio. On the other hand, there is a surplus of stations in the United States, Canada and Spain, where congestion has been experienced. Broadcasting service of some sort is general throughout most of the world with the possible exception of the Arctic regions, the desert section of Africa and in Central and Northern Asia. Nearly 60 foreign countries depend upon one or several of the 420 stations outside the United States. Nineteen have only one station and 11 of these do not reach beyond national borders.

In many countries radio broadcasting is strictly a commercial proposition. Corporations are given concessions by the government and owners of receiving sets pay for service, either direct to the stations or through the government. The rates vary from one franc in France to $50 in Salvador for the first year's subscription. Invariably the government collects a share of the proceeds.

Uncle Sam has played his part in supplying the world with radio sets and equipment, although he faces strong competition from Germany, England and France. The United States exported more than $8,000,000 worth of equipment last year alone and indications are the volume will be even greater this year, exports of receiving sets alone having increased some 27 per cent.

MANY AMERICANS VISIT GRAVE OF GEORGE ELIOT

LONDON, Nov. 3, (AP)—George Eliot's grave is being visited this year by many American visitors.

The novelist, who died in 1890, is buried in Highgate cemetery, a fact unknown to most of her own people. Her grave was overgrown with weeds and left untended for years until recently two ladies from Baltimore paid to have it re-soiled and planted with flowers.

Americans, in fact, are the principal pilgrims to honour the great novelist. Many of them pluck a flower or leaf and carry it in their guide as a souvenir of their visit.

One way to make both ends meet is to tie them together.

CHAS. D. GEER, NORWICH, IN NEW HAVEN CORPORATION

The New Haven Register of Nov. 1st devotes considerable space to the invention of a Yale man, Henry A. Haugh, an instructor in Sheffield Scientific school. This is a new system of traffic signals, which was to be tried out in New Haven this week. What makes the invention a matter of Norwich interest is the fact that it is one of the activities of a company of consulting and manufacturing chemists and engineers started by three Yale men after graduation, in 1925. One of the three is Charles D. Geer, son of Mrs. Geer and the late Chas. D. Geer, of Norwich and Poquetanuck.

In the Stirlen Corporation, Eugene D. Stirlen is president, Wallace Garland secretary, and Chas. D. Geer treasurer. David Geer is a vice president. The invention of the traffic signal is owned and controlled by the Automatic Signal is owned and con- Automatic Signal corporation, a subsidiary of the Stirlen company. The signal is the newest project taken up in connection with the work of the Stirlen concern. Mr. Haugh, the inventor, has devised a system of control of traffic by signal lights. Comissioner R. B. Stoeckel was to send representative to witness the demonstration of the new system this week.

CORONER FREES PETER LAPPIE FROM CRIMINAL LIABILITY IN FATALITY

In a finding made upon the death of Clarence Walden, 24, of 219 West Main street, who died in the Backus hospital, Oct. 14, with a broken neck sustained in a collision between the motorcycle he was riding and an automobile driven by Peter J. Lappie of Fitchville, Coroner J. J. Desmond has given his opinion that there was no criminal negligence on the part of Lappie, but there was failure to exercise sound judgment and each driver became confused at the last moment.

In his finding, Coroner Desmond says:

Clarence Walden came to a violent death in the town of Norwich on Oct. 14, 1927, from injuries received by him in a collision between a motorcycle, which he was operating, and a Star touring car operated by Peter J. Lappie of Fitchville, town of Bozrah. The collision occurred on Oct. 12 at about 2 o'clock in the afternoon near Taftville, in the town of Norwich, at the junction of Norwich avenue and the road leading to Lisbon over the bridge crossing the Shetucket river next southerly of the main factory of Ponemah Mills at Taftville.

On Oct. 12. Lappie was operating his car southwardly on Norwich avenue on his way to Jewett City from his home, and his route involved his turning to his left across the avenue to enter the Lisbon road. At the same time Walden, operating his brother's motorcycle, on which his brother was riding behind him, was traveling northwardly on Norwich avenue on his way to Taftville. The two motor vehicles came together near the point where the easterly line of the avenue intersects the northerly line of the Lisbon road and just easterly of the trolley track, which runs on the easterly side of the avenue along the easterly edge of the macadam surface of the avenue. This macadam surface is 26 feet wide at this place, and here the avenue makes a sweeping curve westwardly, the most easterly part of the curve being approximately at this intersection. A driver approaching the intersection from the north, and before reaching the junction, has a clear view of the avenue for several hundred feet to the south, and, similarly, the driver approaching the intersection from the south, has a clear view of the avenue for several hundred feet to the north.

The weather was clear and fine and the road surface good.

Shortly before he reached the intersection two automobiles going north on the avenue passed Lappie, and he claims that he slackened the speed of his car as these two machines passed. In the Star car, with Mr. Lappie, were Mrs. Ethel H. Winchester of Fitchville and her two young children on the rear seat. Both Walden and Lappie were experienced motor vehicle operators.

When about to turn into the Lisbon road, Lappie extended his left hand as a signal to any possible driver following him, and looked forward and back, and saw no vehicle approaching on the avenue in either direction, and there was no traffic on the Lisbon road, and as he neared the trolley track, he again looked southwardly along the avenue, to his right, and then saw the Walden motorcycle coming north towards the junction.

Thinking that he still had time to leave the avenue and supposing that Walden would turn to the west and pass in the rear of the Star car, Lappie continued to drive slowly across the trolley track, until it appeared to him that there was danger of a collision, when he stopped his car, and the motorcycle operator turned to his left, and the motorcycle came forcibly into contact with the front end of the touring car; both riders on the motorcycle were hurled to the ground, and Clarence Walden received injuries from which he died two days later in the Backus hospital.

There is a substantial brick pier at each point of this intersection; and there is a gentle slope downward from the junction on the Lisbon road; the avenue is level at this place.

A fair and careful review and analysis of all the evidence leads to the inference that Lappie believed he would have time to leave Norwich avenue before the motorcycle would arrive at the junction; but he must have misjudged the distance, or speed of the motorcycle, or both; and, on the other hand, Walden, having observed the Star car turning towards the Lisbon road and noticing that it stopped on the trolley tracks, and whilst still on the avenue, may have assumed that this was for the purpose of allowing the motorcycle to pass in front of the touring car, and this deduction acquires additional weight when one bears in mind that Walden could not have a view of the avenue north of the touring car on his left, and, so, could not know that other vehicles were not approaching from the north on the west side of the avenue.

It seems obvious that the situation which resulted to this lamentable tragedy should not have been created. The operators of two motor vehicles approaching each other in daylight, moving in opposite directions, should have been able to avoid a collision, and it was their manifest duty to do this.

But at the same time, there is apparent in this case no such glaring lack of vigilance, caution, or the rights of others as to bring the conduct of either driver within the realm of criminal negligence. Misunderstanding there was and failure to exercise sound judgment; and these account for the accident. Each driver became confused at the last moment.

I am satisfied and find that the death of Clarence Walden was not caused by the criminal act, omission or negligence of any other person or persons.

JUDGE BOOTH DENIES MOTION TO SEPARATE

In the $20,000 suit brought against the city of New London by Annie R. Morgan, Judge John Rufus Booth of the superior court has denied the city's motion to separate.

In his memorandum of decision Judge Booth says:

The cause of action as alleged is for damages which are claimed to have resulted to the plaintiff by reason of a claimed breach by the defendant of a contract alleged to have been entered into between the parties.

The complaint contains some allegations which at first blush appear to set out an action of trespass quave clausen fregit; some which appear to set out an action of conversion and some which appear to set out an action for damages resulting from a change of grade, but a careful reading thereof discloses that the property and land referred to in all of the allegations had at the time been transferred by the plaintiff to the defendant and therefore could not be the subject of any of these actions.

The complaint also contains in several allegations elements of damage which are undoubtedly irrelevant to the proper measure to be applied and some references to the property involved which are perhaps ambiguous, but no entire cause of action is alleged therein other than that of a claimed breach of contract.

For the foregoing reasons the motion to separate is denied.

DIRECTS PLAINTIFF TO MAKE MORE SPECIFIC STATEMENT

Counsel for the city of New London in the $20,000 suit brought against the city by Annie R. Morgan will win their motion for a more specific statement, according to a decision given by Judge John Rufus Booth.

In his memorandum on the motion, Judge Booth says:

Paragraphs 1, 2, 3 and 4 of the defendant's motion for a more specific statement are granted and the plaintiff is ordered to amend her complaint by stating more particularly:

1. What agent or employes of the defendant city entered into an agreement with the plaintiff and when and by whom these agents or employes were authorized so to do.

2. What portion of the property of the plaintiff, if any, the defendant cut a way through.

3. From what land of the plaintiff, if any, the defendant moved the 1,500 loads of loam, and the time when this was removed.

4. The date of the claimed change of grade of the highway known as Ashcroft road.

BEQUEST OF $1,000 MADE FOR DANIELSON MAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 4.—Ellsworth E. Babson of Danielson, Conn., is left a bequest of $1000 in the will of Adelaide M. Babson of Webster, which was filed at the Worcester probate court here.

The bequest to Mr. Babson is to be paid before any amounts are paid to church or relief corps, mentioned in the will, the document states, referring to the clause which leaves the residue of the estate to the First Congregational church of Webster and the Women's Relief corps of that town, in equal shares. A number of other bequests to relatives and friends are mentioned in the will, but none larger than that left the Danielson resident. The approximate value of the property is given as $10,000.

BAILEY WINS POINT IN SUIT AGAINST CITY

Overruling a demurrer brought by counsel for the city of Norwich in the $20,000 suit brought against the city by Howell S. Bailey of New York for failure on the part of the city gas and electric department to remove guy wires and a pole at the Bailey property, 359 Main street, Judge John Rufus Booth of the superior court may bring suit in the superior court as has been done.

In his memorandum of decision, Judge Booth says:

The first count of the plaintiff's complaint alleges in substance that on the first Tuesday in November, 1926, the plaintiff instituted before the court of common pleas for New London county, an action against the defendant for an injunction, requiring the defendant to remove from the property of the plaintiff certain wires and a pole and for damages; that on Feb. 12, 1927 the court of common pleas rendered judgment in this action for the plaintiff to recover $620 damages and costs of $12.52, and for the removal by the defendant, on or before Sept. 1, 1927, of the guy wires and pole erected on the property of the plaintiff; that the defendant refused and neglected to comply with such portion of the judgment as directed the removal of wires and pole, and that by reason of such neglect and refusal the plaintiff has suffered injury and damage to himself and to his property.

The second count is a repetition of the first, except that instead of several there are special allegations which set forth in particular the elements of which the claimed injuries and consequent damage to the plaintiff are composed.

The action then is for damages which the plaintiff claims resulted from the continued maintenance by the defendant upon the plaintiff's property of a pole and certain wires during the period subsequent to the date fixed by the court of common pleas in its injunctive order as to the time when they should be no longer so maintained.

In a situation such as described by the plaintiff two remedies, or forms of remedy, were open to him, one by means of an equitable ancillary proceeding incident to the original action before the court of common pleas and one by a proceeding at law for damages resulting from the continuance of the trespass or nuisance which was involved in the action before the common pleas court.

While both of these remedies were open to the plaintiff, a recovery could not have been had in each as they are alternative remedies only and the recovery upon one would bar all recourse to the other. The same measure of damage would be applied to each however. Though the former would necessarily have had to be brought through the court of common pleas, while the later might quite properly have been brought to any court having jurisdiction of the parties and the subject matter of the controversy.

Having the right so to do, the plaintiff has evidently elected to proceed at law instead of in equity.

The demurrers of the defendant, while general in terms, appear to be based upon the assumption that the remedy of the plaintiff is limited to an action in equity and that the action demurred to is in fact such an action. Such assumption, however, is erroneous, for, as previously noted, the action is one at law for damages which are alleged to have been created by acts of the defendant which occurred subsequent to the period within which it was judicially ordered to act in a contrary manner, the proper form of remedy for which as previously stated may be such as that utilized by the plaintiff in this case.

In view of the foregoing neither of the reasons in either of the demurrers as filed are sufficient to justify the sustaining of them and they are therefore overruled.

NORWICH TOWN

At the Sacred Heart church Monday morning at seven-thirty, the pastor, Rev. Edward J. Quinn, celebrated a month's mind requiem high mass for the repose of the soul of William Casey. The music was under the direction of Mrs. William A. Murphy, organist. Miss Mary Buckley sang the solos in the mass and at the close, she sang Abide With Me.

Tuesday, All Saints' day, a holy day of obligation, masses were celebrated at Sacred Heart church at 5 and 7 o'clock. There was a large attendance at both masses and many received holy communion. At this church Wednesday morning, masses for All Souls' day, were celebrated at 7 and 8. The last mass was a high mass. A very large number received communion in memory of their dead, also for the souls of all the faithful departed.

For the first Friday of the month, mass will be celebrated this (Friday) morning at seven o'clock. In the evening at 7:30, there will be devotions in honor of the Sacred Heart of Jesus.

In attendance at the Home Missionary convention of the New England Southern conference, held in Trinity M. E. church, Norwich, Wednesday and Thursday, those from the Norwich Town Methodist church, representing Dorcas society were the president, Mrs. William Weaver, Mrs. George H. Randall, Mrs. Albert G. Miner, Mrs. Arthur Fulton, also Mrs. LaValley. Some of the members attended the sessions all day Wednesday and most of the day Thursday. For the two days, Mrs. Randall entertained two of the out-of-town delegates at a local hotel. At her home on Huntington green, the president of Dorcas society, Mrs. Weaver, had as guests Mrs. William Fellows and Mrs. Merrill E. Johnson of Providence, delegates to the convention.

In the large barn at the rear of 30 Town street, Miss Beatrice Smith and her cousin Albert Smith, entertained at a Halloween social. There were thirteen present, including Polly Jones, Katharine Hough, Fanny La Pierre, Claire Sullivan, William Leonard, Billie Wilcox, Henry Counterman, John Carter, Thomas Mullen and John Nylan, all in masquerade costumes. The barn was decorated with festoons of orange and black crepe paper, Jack o'Lanterns, and paper witches. From seven until ten o'clock the company of young folks enjoyed numerous games, also dancing to the music of a Victrola. With all seated on the floor, Miss Beatrice Smith assisted by others served potato salad, sandwiches, cookies, punch and ice cream. A guess cake which was cut and distributed, provided much fun.

A special meeting of New London Home and Farm bureau is to be held Tuesday, November 8th, at the home of Mrs. Arthur Fulton on Huntington avenue. The feature of the all-day session will be millinery, with Mrs. Belle H. J. Robynson, of Gales Ferry, demonstrator. Each person desirous of a silk hat will be expected to bring her own material and thread to match. The meeting will be under the auspices of the Norwich Town club, as will also that of the regular meeting, scheduled for November 10th at the home of Miss Florence Browning, of Plain Hill road.

Thomas H. Bacheler returned recently to his home on East Town street, after several weeks' trip to his former home in Michigan and other points of interest in the west. While watching to see how the apple crop was materializing, he saw none to speak of except a few trees of Wayners, which were loaded with luscious fruit. On a trip into Eastern Massachusetts last week, Mr. Bacheler expected to find trees barer of leaves than in Norwich; but very few of the trees had dropped many leaves.

DEATH TOLL AND PROPERTY DAMAGE BY THE FLOODS CONTINUE TO MOUNT

Unconfirmed Reports Place the Loss of Life in Montpelier, Vt., at From 137 to 212—A Score of Deaths Have Been Reported From Widely Separated Towns in New England—Rain at Portland, Me., Was Accompanied by a 66-Mile Gale—The Village of Becket, Mass., Was Devastated When Reservoir Dam Burst.

(By the Associated Press.)

A steadily mounting death toll and property damage of millions of dollars was indicated today in flood-ravaged towns of New England. Fear also was expressed of a food shortage.

Unconfirmed reports were that from 137 to 212 persons lost their lives in Montpelier, Vermont, with the collapse of a large reservoir.

A score or more of other deaths were reported from widely separated towns in Vermont, Connecticut and Massachusetts, in the grip of floods for two days due to dams in rivers bursting as a result of excessive rains.

The affected area comprises largely the New England mill district and due to lack of power machinery was idle today, while residents of many sections spent the night in darkness, and thousands of families were forced from their flooded homes.

Flood conditions extended into part of New York state, up into Maine where a 66-mile gale whipped the sea into a fury and sank at least one ship, and into Canada where crops were destroyed and railroad lines washed out.

BECKET, MASS., DEVASTATED BY BURSTING OF DAM

BECKET, Mass., Nov. 4.—(AP)—One dead, nearly 150 people homeless, 25 residences and business places swept away and $1,000,000 damage to property made up a partial toll of the flood that swept through this little town early today when a mountain reservoir burst its barriers and sent a torrent rushing down upon the village.

Tonight those who escaped the fury of the waters took many whose homes were swept away into their residences and cared for them. The town hall was converted into a place of refuge for others. State police and Red Cross workers helped in restoring order and aiding those who lost their possessions.

But for the heroism of William Ballou, owner of the reservoir, the loss of life might have been far greater.

When the downpour last night threatened to burst the walls of the reservoir he went on guard and with the first indication that it was giving way drove his automobile through the village warning the people to run for their lives. Most of them heeded the warning and reached safety before the wall of water struck the town.

Mrs. Gustine Carroll, the only victim, heard the warning, but hesitated, and before she could leave her home the water struck it and she was swept away.

Those who ran to high ground saw a wall of water, nearly 150 yards in width, hissing and roaring, bearing down upon the town. As it struck the buildings many collapsed like cardboard and disappeared in the flood. Others bobbed on the surface and came to rest along the shore and over 100 yards downstream.

Philip Raymond, for 22 years a meat dealer in the town, saw his savings of nearly $20,000 wiped out in a twinkling as the flood hit his place.

ONE DEATH AND HEAVY DAMAGE BY FLOODS IN CONN.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 4.—(AP)—One death traceable to the storm, damage which will run into the millions, and suspension of manufacturing which is the life of many small towns in the state, marked the passage of the severest rains which Connecticut has experienced in the memory of the weather bureau.

The person to lose his life was William Lampson of Canaan, killed when a car in which he was riding, skidded on a country highway and plunged down a fifty-foot embankment.

The textile section in northeastern Connecticut was hard hit as rivers there which give power to many large plants were on a rampage isolating some mills and in most of them compelling total suspension of operations.

Far south in the sparsely settled section of Stonington, Green Falls dam on the Ashaway river broke during the night sending down a flood which swept the river banks, taking bridges, houses and barns with it, and joining with the Pawcatuck river about Westerly, R. I., created water conditions in that city which were unlike any recalled for forty years. In Westerly the damage was estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars. Word also came of a man being washed off a flooded highway at Wequetequock, but communication was not to be had to determine if he was drowned.

A general survey indicated that heavy as the losses are estimated to be, Connecticut appeared to have fared better than her sister states in New England.

DETAILS OF HAVOC WROUGHT IN NEW ENGLAND

BOSTON, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Flood waters tonight still gripped New England. Rain had ceased in most sections but streams which had taken a toll of at least a dozen lives and probably more, continued to rise. Railroad service was paralyzed in Vermont, New Hampshire and western Massachusetts. Scores of bridges had been swept away, with several dams. Highways were many feet deep in water over extensive areas. The damage will total several million dollars.

The known dead:

Northampton, Mass.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rubeck.

Sharon, Vt.—Mrs. Claude Reynolds and two of her children.

Rutland, Vt.—John Sabula and Mrs. Lucy Salter.

Barre, Vt.—Ralph Winters and Gerald Brock.

Westfield, Mass.—Mrs. Anna Kanka.

Worcester, Mass. — Mrs. Marcella Rawlins.

Becket, Mass.—Mrs. Gustine Carroll.

Millbury, Mass.—Mrs. Charles A. Putnam and daughter Dorothy, 3.

Boston—Carmilla Bardilio.

Bennington, Vt.—Martin Shepard.

Reported dead: Westfield, Mass.—three unidentified persons; Pittsfield, Vt.—unidentified man.

Missing: Westerly, R. I.—Albert Blacknall.

The flood came without warning. The heavy rains of last summer had left the streams higher than usual at this season. Rain began to fall yesterday in Vermont and western Massachusetts. Last night it became a downpour and spread into New Hampshire and eastern Massachusetts. The rainfall varied from three to seven inches in different localities. Countless brooks carried the surface flow into the little rivers which quickly became rushing torrents, went over their banks and in turn sent mighty volume of water into New England's great rivers, the Connecticut and the Merrimac.

There was not withstanding the force of the walls of water which swept down the valleys. Foundations of bridges scumbled and the superstructures crashed into the streams. Where small streams had been dammed to form reservoirs or millponds, the great added weight of water burst the dams. Houses were swept away by the dozen and hundreds of others were left standing with water up to the second story or higher. Cattle and sheep, in the pastures or tied in barns, perished in large numbers.

Electric light and power ceased to function in numerous cities and towns. Industry came to a standstill and schools were closed. Telegraph and telephone wires went down by the hundreds and many communities were isolated. Even the supply of drinking water was cut off or contaminated in some places.

RUTLAND, VT., WAS HIT HARD BY FLOOD WATERS

RUTLAND, Vt., Nov. 4—(AP)—Restored partly to communication with the outside world this afternoon after being isolated for 24 hours, this city was able to recount a loss of two dead and damage of $100,000 to bridges and highways alone. The situation was still precarious with rain falling and the waters in the 1,500 acre lake behind Chittenden dam continuing to mount.

Although the known death list for this vicinity stood at two, scores of anxious relatives were frantically combing the crippled city for members of their families whom they had been assured had been saved but with whom they had not been united.

John Sabula, a marble worker, went to his death when Ripley bridge in Center Rutland went out late last night. Mrs. Lucy Saller had dropped dead from fright a short time before. The telephone and telegraph service was at a standstill until late this afternoon when the first brief messages could be transmitted. Not a train has left Rutland for 24 hours and the railroad officials here tonight with the reports of a dozen bridges destroyed staring them in the face, would not hazard a guess as to when service might be resumed. It was practically impossible to use any of the highways outside the city.

Both Mr. Reckord and Mr. Carr are experienced disaster workers, having served in the Florida hurricane and the Mississippi flood disaster.

Miss Marjorie Da , New York field representative, has been detailed to Pittsfield, Mass.; (Mrs. S. P. Weeden, the Rhode Island field representative, has been sent to Windsor, Vermont, and Edward S. Singleton the Vermont field representative, to Montpelier, Vermont.

FEAR COUPLE IN AUTO MET DEATH IN FLOOD

HARTFORD, Nov. 4—(AP)—Harold Dewey, 19 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dewey, of Phelps-Croft, Simsbury, and Miss Helen Moore, of Westfield, Mass., are missing. They were last seen last night on a road near Westfield, Mass., members of Dewey's family said tonight.

With no word from the young couple tonight, it was feared that they were drowned when their car was swept off the highway by the flood. They were returning to Miss Moore's home from a visit in Feeding Hills.

Dewey was driving his touring car, Connecticut license number 17933. His employer, Selectman Harry N. Curtis, Simsbury garage owner, went to Westfield today to look over automobiles that had been salvaged from the flood but Dewey's car was not among them. Mr Curtis said that many automobiles were still submerged.

Curtis learned from a section foreman that a car believed to have been Dewey's was seen on the highway last night and appeared to drop into a hole. The foreman said he saw a youth and a girl crawl out to the top of the car. The youth evidently could swim but the girl could not. Curtis said his informant told him he made an effort to rescue the couple but they disappeared in the water before he could reach them

BENT ON ALTITUDE RECORD, BALLONIST IS MISSING

SCOTT FIELD, Belleville, Ills., Nov. 4—(AP)—Lost to the view of four Army escort planes, when he disappeared into the clouds over McLeansboro, Ky., shortly after 3 p. m. today Captain Hawthorne Gray, bent on breaking the free balloon altitude record was missing tonight.

Captain Gray whose previous attempts ended in failure, ascended from Scott field at 2:22 p. m. and was soon up to an altitude where the winds were blowing at 50 miles per hour. The four army planes followed him until he and his craft were swallowed by the clouds. Two planes landed at Henderson, Ky., and the other two at Madisonville, Ky., officials of Scott field said tonight it was possible that Gray had landed in the mountainous country of southwest Kentucky and if that were the case, the balloonist would probably not be heard from until tomorrow.

BOY FATALLY INJURED WHEN STRUCK BY TRACTOR

BRISTOL, Nov. 4. — (AP) — Leon Kadulis, 14, was fatally injured here tonight when he was struck by a tractor driver by Robert Manchester, of this city.

Manchester and his brother, Donald, were using the tractor in their orchard to pull out a truck load of apples. The truck had become stuck in the tall grass. Leon was holding a lantern for the men. They moved the tractor but a few feet, when they turned towards the boy. Only the lantern was visible lying in the grass. They found him beside the machine where he had fallen after apparently striking his head against the body of the tractor.

He was removed to the Bristol hospital and died within an hour.

COOLIDGE FIRM FOR TAX REDUCTION LIMIT OF $250,000,000

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4—(AP)—While witnesses before the house ways and means committee today were suggesting an overhauling of the nation's revenue laws, President Coolidge let it be known that the $225,000,000 reduction maximum set by the treasury must be adhered to in drafting the new law.

The president was pictured as standing squarely behind the treasury estimate and the white house discussion of the tax cut in advance of the treasury estimate when the president made known that he was opposed to the $400,000,000 reduction proposed by the United States chamber of commerce.

Slayer of Willimantic Woman Captured

Mrs. Annie Berkowitz Was Killed by Shot Intended For Her Husband.

(By a Staff Correspondent)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 4—In one of the most gruesome murders ever recorded here Mrs. Annie Berkowitz lost her life and her husband, Jake Berkowitz, was wounded, when Savva Mathvink, a Russian, opened fire on them with a shot gun at their home, 275 Prospect street, in the heart of the residential section of the city about 6.10 o'clock. Mathvink, about 38, and a resident of 59 Chapman street, is being held at the police headquarters and unless there are unexpected developments will be charged with the murder and assault.

Although no definite motive had been ascertained at the time it was intimated that Mathvink was enraged over a deal involving property and in which it is said that he has lost money.

Mr. and Mrs. Berkowitz and their 12 year old daughter, Gertrude, were having supper in the kitchen of their home, when the rear door was pushed open and a shot from a 12 gauge single barreled shot gun was fired. It is believed that the shot was intended for Mr. Berkowitz, but Mrs. Berkowitz, who had gone to the door received the entire charge in the back of the head, from a distance of about three feet. The shot opened the skull and spattered the brains and flesh all about the kitchen. Mrs. Berkowitz dropped on her face instantly dead. Undaunted by this terrible mistake the enraged murderer, after dropping the shot gun, pulled out a 32 calibre revolver and shot at Mr. Berkowitz, who ran from the house calling for help. The killer chased Mr. Berkowitz from his home, down Walnut street to the intersection of Valley street, a distance of a third of a mile. At this point he caught up to his intended victim and Berkowitz fought to defend himself. Mathvink hit Berkowitz over the head several times with the butt of the revolver and would soon have beaten him unconscious, but for the timely arrival of Merrill P. Ides, 19, of 86 Spring street.

The Ides boy upon leaving his home had heard a shot from the direction of Prospect street and then saw the race against death down Walnut street. He ran to the struggling men and succeeded in grasping the gun out of Mathvink's hand. Joseph Syre, truck driver for the Hurteau-Busse corporation furniture dealers, arrived about the same time as Leroy M. Roberts, conductor of a gasoline station on Lower Main street. Young Ides had the Russian under control by this time and he escorted him to the police station on Hyde street.

In Mathvink's pocket when he was taken to headquarters were found 10 slug loaded shots for the shot gun and two boxes containing each 50 32 calibre bullets for the revolver, which he carried.

Questioned at the coroner's inquest held a few hours after the shooting of Mrs. Annie Berkowitz, Savva Mathvink broke down and confessed to the killing. He claimed that he had gone to Berkowitz's house and carried the shot gun with the intention of securing $7,000 alleged to be owed to him by Berkowitz or else that he would kill the man. The Russian said that he came to the back door and asked Berkowitz for the money. He claims that Berkowitz replied by making a lunge at him and he fired, the shot practically blowing off the head of Mrs. Berkowitz.

Mrs. Berkowitz before her marriage was Annie Kantrowitz. She had been a resident of this city since childhood and was about 28 years of age. Besides her husband and daughter, Gertrude, she leaves her parents, who reside in Hartford and a number of relatives in this city.

Earthquakes Along Central Cal. Coast

Railway Traffic Was Halted and Ships at Sea Were Rocked.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 4—(AP)—A series of moderately heavy earthquake shocks over the Central California coast today halted railway traffic over the Southern Pacific railroad north of Santa Barbara and shook the inland town of Santa Maria more severely than any earth disturbance since 1906.

The earth tremors continued during the day. Seismographs at Santa Clara, Calif., recorded tremors at 12:02 p. m., although no cities reported they felt these shocks. The main disturbances occurred after 5 a. m.

The shocks apparently were heaviest in the vicinity of Honda, a rock-bound promontory 35 miles north of Santa Barbara. It was here the Southern Pacific tracks were thrown out of alignment. Trains were delayed some hours but later proceeded at a slow speed.

Ships at sea were rocked, the Mackay radio station reported. The steamer Los Angeles radioed two shocks felt after 12 noon, vibrated the steamer. The ship was then 25 miles north of Point Arguello, Santa Barbara county.

At Santa Maria five shocks were felt in five hours, the second of which at 5:49 a. m., was the most severe.

Stones in the Masonic hall were dislodged and plate glass windows were cracked.

The zone of disturbance apparently extended to a point north of San Luis Obispo. Reports from that town, a few miles from the coast of San Luis Obispo county, said the shocks were only slight.

A long rumbling quake was felt at Santa Barbara but no reports of damage were made. Ventura, 30 miles south of Santa Barbara, also had a light shock.

The southermost point of the disturbance is believed to have been in the Los Angeles sector.

SPECULATION CAUSED DOWNFALL OF BANKER

FINDLAY, Ohio, Nov. 4—(AP)—Alleged speculations of Fred P. Conaway, 42, cashier of the Arcadia Bank and Savings company, of Arcadia near here, arrested last night at Toledo following disclosures of shortages in the bank, will amount to more than $250,000, County Prosecutor J. E. Priddy said tonight.

Prosecutor Priddy said Conaway had admitted to him his defalcations saying they covered a period of eight or ten years. Conaway told Prosecutor Priddy he had used the money trading in grain futures.

The exact amount of the speculations cannot be ascertained until state bank examiners have completed their audit, Prosecutor Priddy said.

Arraignment of Conaway on a charge of forging a $3,700 note will probably not take place until next week. Just when the Hancock county grand jury will consider the case is uncertain, Priddy said, but he will take the case before that body along with other matters which he has to present.

"We can do nothing until such time as the state examiners complete their report and make known its exact total Conaway took," Prosecutor Priddy said.

HIGHWAY FLOODED BY FARMINGTON RIVER

WINDSOR, Nov. 4—(AP)—The Farmington river broke over its banks here tonight flooding the detour for the main highway. All traffic between this point and Windsor Locks was tied up for several hours, since the main road is closed for repairs at a railroad underpass.

Hartford-Springfield Coach company busses were able to get around the flooded section by passing into the yar dof the General Electric plant. A high board fence was torn down to make the way clear.

Windsor is close to the mouth of the Farmington river, where it empties into the Connecticut. Flood conditions here indicated that the branch river peak was being added to the Connecticut's burden.

They arrested Szczerba, on charges of breach of the peace and intoxication. It was not Joe's first experience with the police. He has been arrested a number of times in the past for similar offenses.

WARRANT FOR SINCLAIR IS BEING HELD IN ABEYANCE

Pending Final Action by the Grand Jury Now Investigating Activities of Detectives of the Burns Agency—Formal Complaint Charges Sinclair and One of His, Agents Henry Mason Day, With Conspiracy to Tamper With Jury—Day Has Surrendered Himself, Waived a Preliminary Hearing, and is at Liberty on $2,800 Bond to Await Action of the Grand Jury.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(AP) — A formal complaint charging Harry F. Sinclair and one of his agents, Henry Mason Day, with conspiracy to tamper with the jury which was hearing the criminal oil conspiracy charge against the wealthy oil operator and Albert B. Fall was issued today by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage.

A warrant against Sinclair also was sworn out, but subsequently District Attorney Gordon said this action had been a mistake and that the warrant had been revoked. It developed, however, that the warrant simply was held in abeyance pending final action by the grand jury which is investigating activities of detectives of the Burns agency in shadowing members of the trial jury.

The complaint was sworn to by Neil Burkinshaw, assistant district attorney in charge of the grand jury inquiry, immediately after Chief justice McCoy, of the District of Columbia supreme court had ruled that Day could not be compelled to testify before the grand jury which he had taken the position that any evidence he would give might tend to incriminate himself.

Day and his counsel, former Justice Daniel Thew Wright, of the district court, accompanied Burkinshaw to the commissioner's office and were present while the complaint was prepared. Day surrendered himself; waived a preliminary hearing and was liberated on $2,800 bond to await the action of the grand jury.

While these stirring events were transpiring in and around the district court building, Albert B. Fall suffered a relapse in his apartment at the Mayflower hotel and was ordered to bed by his physician, J. J. Kilroy, who said the former interior secretary's physical condition was bad on account of his previous illnesses.

Fall's immediate ailment is a congestion of the lungs, superinduced by a chronic plural condition. The former cabinet officer who is 66 years old, had pneumonia less than a year ago and was in bad physical shape when he came here in mid October for his trial with Sinclair. He had expected to leave today for his home at Three Rivers, New Mexico.

With attorneys and secret service men, engaged in running down many rapidly developing new "leads" in the case, the grand jury inquiry proceeded only slowly during the day with six witnesses questioned. They were Mrs. Anneta L. Malley, Conrad J. Herzog, William Goucher and John P. Keen, members of the trial jury; Charles Marchal, a chauffeur, reported to have been in Sinclair's employ here, and A. C. Gill, a Washington newspaper reporter, who investigated reports that private detectives were obtaining information about prospective jurors before the oil trial started on October 17.

The grand jury will meet for two hours tomorrow to carry forward the investigation, and upon reassembling Monday will have before it William J. Burns, head of the detective agency; his son, W. Sherman Burns, to whom the chief of the private operatives here reported, and Sheldon Clark, vice president and general manager of the Sinclair Refining company. Clark was in Washington while the trial was in progress and the government charges that the Burns men reported to him as well as to Day.

The day at the district court started when Chief Justice Frederick L. Siddons, the trial judge in the original Fall-Sinclair case, fixed Monday, January 16, as the day for the beginning of the second oil conspiracy trial. This date was suggested by special oil counsel and was not opposed by counsel for the defendants.

Then came the first sensation.

Former Senator Atlee Pomerene, associated with Owen J. Roberts of Philadelphia as oil counsel, filed a motion with Justice Siddons for the issuance of a rule against Harry M. Blackmer, former chairman of the board of the Midwest Refining company, and a missing witness, to show cause why he should not be adjudged in contempt of court.

Blackmer, who is now in France, through representatives will seek an agreement for a date for a hearing on the motion. If no agreement is reached Justice Siddons will be asked to set a time.

Should the contempt rule be issued the government will ask that Blackmer be fined the limit under the recent Walsh act—$100,000—for his failure to return here for questioning about the operations of the Continental Trading Company, Ltd., of Canada, who once held the $230,500 in Liberty bonds which finally were used for the benefit of Fall and his son-in-law, M. T. Everhart, a Pueblo, Colorado, banker.

After the filing of the Blackmer motion, the grand jury appearer before Chief Justice McCoy with the citation against Day.

TEXT OF COMPLAINT AGAINST SINCLAIR AND HIS AGENT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Here is the text of the formal complaint against Harry F. Sinclair and his agent, Henry Mason Day, charging attempts to influence the jury in the oil conspiracy trial:

"Before me, Needham C. Turnage, United States commissioner for the District of Columbia, personally appeared before me this day, Neil Burkinshaw, assistant United States attorney, who being first duly sworn, deposes and says that on the first day of October to and including the first day of November, 1927, at Washington, in said district Henry Mason Day and Harry F. Sinclair and others, in violation of Sections 137 of the penal code of the statutes of the United States did unlawfully conspire, confederate and agree together to commit an offense against the United States, to wit, to violate Section 137 of the penal code of the statutes of the United States, to wit, that is to say, to attempt to influence the action and decision of a petit juror or jurors then and there serving as such in the case of the United States vs. Harry F. Sinclair and Albert B. Fall and in furtherance of said conspiracy did commit the following together with overt acts did employ and direct certain private detectives to influence and attempt to influence the action and decision of petit jurors then and there serving as such in the case of the United States of America vs. Harry F. Sinclair and Albert B. PLAN LONDON-NEW YORK AERIAL PONY EXPRESS

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—(AP)—An aerial pony express between London and New York, on a 35-hour schedule calling for eight landings on ships at sea, is planned by an American shipping corporation, it was announced today by Lawrence R. Wilder, one of the backers of the plan.

Eight ships of the new Blue Ribbon Steamship line, he said, would serve as mid-ocean landing places for a fleet of passenger planes operated by the same line. The United States shipping board has been asked to aid in the financing of the undertaking with a loan of 80 per cent of the construction cost of the steamships.

Several aviation experts, Mr. Wilder said, have endorsed the service, declaring that it is entirely feasible and would serve until the development of planes able to cross the Atlantic without stopping. If the Atlantic service proves successful, he added, a similar line may be established across the Pacific and ten-day round-the-world service may be undertaken. It was not announced when the operations would start.

The shipping board, he announced, has granted a hearing on November 21 with regard to financing the building of the Blue Ribbon vessels.

FOUR COUNCILMEN OF INDIANAPOLIS INDICTED

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 4—(AP)—Four members of the Indianapolis city council were indicted late today on charges of bribery the indictments alleged that they received money from filling station deals and through the purchase of fire apparatus.

Those indicted are: Walter Dorsett, republican; Boynton K. Moore, republican; Otis E. Bartholomew, republican; Millard W. Ferguson, democrat.

They were placed under bonds of $1,000 each.

There are five other members of the city council, including Claude E. Negley, president, who is mayor pro-tem until next Tuesday when the council will select a permanent mayor to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of John L. Duvall.

Duvall resigned a week ago about the time the city council ruled that he automatically ceased to hold office when he was convicted Sept. 22 of violating the corrupt practices act.

Approximately sixty civic organizations of Indianapolis are endeavoring to bring pressure on the council to select as mayor one of five business men named by the clubs. The indictments against four members of the council will not prevent them from having a part in the naming of a new city executive.

80 YEAR OLD MAN VICTIM OF "HIT AND RUN" DRIVER

STAMFORD, Nov. 4—(AP)—Struck down by a "hit and run" driver, George Windsor, 80, of this city, was in the Stamford hospital at the point of death tonight. He suffered a broken leg and abrasions and bad cuts about the head. Hospital authorities gave him little chance to live because of his advanced age.

Louis Olah, of Bridgeport, saw the elderly man as he was hit by the automobile while crossing Main street. He said that it was a touring car and that it headed toward Bridgeport, but he was unable to catch the license number. Bridgeport and Westport police have been asked to watch for the car, which apparently broke one of its headlights when it struck Windsor.

LINDBERGH FORCED DOWN BY RAIN AND SLEET

CURTISS FIELD, N. Y., Nov. 4—(AP)—Col Charles A. Lindbergh and Major Thomas E. Lanphier, who took off for Buffalo from Mitchell Field, near here, in separate planes today, were forced down by rain and sleet near Binghamton, N. Y., Col. Lindbergh notified friends here.

The planes were undamaged, he said, and they planned to go on tomorrow, landing at Buffalo for fuel and continuing on to Selfridge Field, Detroit, where Lindbergh will be the guest of Major Lanphier for several days.

LITTLE STORM DAMAGE IN WILLIMANTIC DISTRICT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 4.—A survey of post-rain conditions in this vicinity today showed that Willimantic had again been favored by the storm which played havoc in many other sections of the state and in northern New England. Damage caused here was comparatively light and was confined for the most part to washouts in the highways and on country roads in some localities. Early this morning there was enough water in some of the gutters to float a rowboat and Street Superintendent Edwin O. Sumner kept his entire force busy cleaning out gratings of leaves and other debris. The result was that the water finally found its outlet without flooding to any damaging extent. There was hindrance to traffic on Main street near the base of Church and North streets where sizable rivulets poured down from the hill section and the clogging of the sewer manholes checked the water for some time. Meadow street was covered for a time by four inches of water and pedestrians were forced to detour to cross this thoroughfare. The railroad tracks at the foot of railroad street were covered with two or three inches of water.

The Willimantic and Natchaug rivers roared throughout the day dispensing with an excess flow from tributaries in the uplands. Water pouring over the six dams on the Willimantic river was measured to a depth of 16 inches. The dam at the supply reservoir at Mansfield took on the role of a cataract for a time. The washing of dirt at the foot of Jillson Hill, leading to Windham road, caused the usual trouble to the trolley car system. The trolley due at the Main street terminal at 6:50 this morning was nearly three hours late, due to being derailed by debris which covered the tracks at the curve just outside of South Windham. The front trucks of the car left the rails and the car arrived here after being replaced by the Greeneville crew, at 9:40 o'clock. The damage caused the local system of the Southern New England Telephone company was quite light considering the severity of the storm. But 12 lines, or 60 stations being reported out of order.

A testimonial in honor of local men who have won state-wide recognition in various fraternal and civic organizations will be given by Willimantic lodge, No. 1311, B. P. O. Elks, according to plans formulated. Among those to be officially recognized are Edwin J. Donnelly, president of the Exchange Club association of Connecticut, James P. Mustard, grand commander of the Knights Templar of Connecticut, Walter R. King, grand chancellor commander of the Knights of Pythias of Connecticut and John B. Edgarton, district deputy grand exalted ruler of Connecticut east, of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

Mrs. Mabel R. Bath, 41, wife of Robert M. Bath, died early this morning in St. Joseph's hospital after an extended illness. The cause of death was given as anemia. Mrs. Bath was born in this city, October 30, 1886, a daughter of James G. and Louisa Chesbro Robinson. Besides her parents who reside in Hartford, the deceased leaves her husband and two children, Ruth E. and Robert M. Bath, Jr.; and two brothers, James G. Robinson, Jr., and Everett E. Robinson of New York city; also two sisters, Mrs. Olive L. Best of Mahwah, N. J., and Miss Bernice Robinson of Hartford.

A pathetic sight was witnessed by a local automobile salesman this morning near the junction of the Flanders road and the Columbia highway when he saw a cow and a newly-born calf stranded on a small knoll of about ten feet diameter, which was surrounded by water caused by the flooding of the Willimantic river. It was evident that the calf had been born this morning. Apparently undisturbed by impending disaster, the mother cow was proceeding to administer the necessary cares to its young. The owner of the cow and calf discovered the animals at about the same time that they were seen by the local man. The mother cow and calf were led to safety and apparently both are now doing well.

The Willimantic Business Men's Association will hold its annual meeting in the chamber of commerce parlors Thursday forenoon of next week. Officers will be elected and several matters of importance are to come up for vote. The association has voted not to close the stores conducted by members on Friday, Nov. 11, (Armistice day). It was agreed to change the weekly half holiday during the summer season from Thursday to Wednesday afternoon, and this vote will come up for ratification at the annual meeting.

The massive 12-ton steam shovel that had served its purpose in hastening excavations on the site of the old Card block on Main street completed its work this mornigs and was engineered out of the 22-foot cellar by running up a runway built of heavy beams, under its own power. It is believed that local records for excavating and building foundation walls have been staggered by the speed of the work accomplished at the site of the new Hall block.

A Halloween masquerade was enjoyed in connection with the regular meeting of Puritan Temple, No. 2, held this evening.

JEWETT CITY

RECORD RAINFALL EXCITES WONDER OF TOWNSPEOPLE

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 4—Since the establishment of the water gauge at the reservoir of the Jewett City Water company on Stone Hill, there is no record to approach even half of the rainfall here which came between 7 p. m. Thursday, and 7 a. m. Friday morning, which was 5.57 inches. At sundown the big reservoir was two inches low, during the night the unprecedented rise was 20 inches. The Quinebaug began to rise in mid forenoon, and on the back water gauges at the Ninigret lower wheel the depth marks showed a rise of eight inches for the Quinebaug from 1045 to 11:30, a record never known. At 2 p. m., the rise at the Lisbon bridge was steadily from 10 to 14 inches an hour. The Shipman and Slater groves were both under water before nightfall with the flood steadily increasing, and all the low-land below the bridge was like a small ocean.

The big main belts in the Aspinook and Ninigret turbine pits were cut off early in the afternoon, a necessary high water procedure, likely to happen in spring freshet times, but never heretofore in the fall. At Voluntown, the Collins dam went out early in the day, followed by another small one on the stream that comes into that section of the town from the east. The Beachdale mills at Voluntown were partly under water as were some of the smaller mills, (not now in operation) below.

All the afternoon every available conveyance here was in use for the hundreds of people who went to Central Village, Mosbup and Sterling to witness the ravages of the flood.

Late tonight, crowds were at Lisbon bridge to see the raging Quinebaug, which ran at a higher mark than is remembered by any man for a fall flood.

BISHOP BROWN, DRIVER, DROWNED AT CLAYVILLE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 4.—Bishop Brown, who drives the Foster vegetable truck that comes here from Providence, was drowned early this morning when his truck went down into a swollen stream. The bridge and a section of the roadway went down out of sight near Clayville, R. I.

He was employed by W. S. Sweet, and had to rise at 4 a. m. so as to be at the Providence fruit curb at 6. He has been 18 years in the business, during which time he saved, it is reputed here today, $200,000.

POST OFFICE AT VOLNTOWN IS TO BE DISCONTINUED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 4.—Postmaster W. T. Crumb received notice today from the post office department at Washington, D. C., that the Voluntown post office is to be discontinued Dec. 1. This office, which has steadily fallen off in patronage, received its final set-back with the discontinuance of the operation of the several Briggs cotton mills.

The office, according to Daniel Phillips' records, has been in existence over 100 years, having been established July 29, 1826, with Miner Robbins its first postmaster. The following appointments, up to 1863 were: Kinney Gallup, 1832; Gideon W. Gordon, 1844; Ralph R. Minor, 1851; Mr. Gordon again in 1853, after four months of service by Mr. Minor; Samuel Gates, 1854; Isaac D. Kenyon, 1861; Charles H. Kinney, Feb. 25, 1863.

Voluntown is to get its mail supply through Jewett City, probably by R. F. D. route No. 4, operated from this office by William Watson; in this case, the measurements by Postmaster Crumb show that his regular route will be increased 2.5-10 miles, making a route 32 miles in length, with some good roads and some of the ordinary country sort. In event of this increase, and of one R. doing the service, Mr. Watson stands to get an increase in salary of a little in excess of $300 per annum.

The late John N. Lewis was the last regular postmaster at Voluntown. Jonas Herbert held the office one of the longest terms in the century of existence. It will be discontinued with Mr. Marion as acting postmaster.

As the local railroad line is the logical detour for the big main line express on account of a washout at Stonington Thursday night, eight or ten of the night trunk line trains, including the Owl and Postal express, were due to be returned, on account of wash-outs on the Midland and Plainfield divisions over which they were to be dispatched to Boston.

The Bar Harbor express, Train 93, west-bound, passed the Jewett City station 12 hours late. The north-bound boat train, train 704, was only an hour and a half late at Jewett City, but it was held at Plainfield the greater part of the day.

HOEY ASSEMBLY, C. L. OF C. HOLDS A COSTUME DANCE

In Club hall, Baltic, Monday evening, the Catholic Ladies of Columbus held an old fashioned costume dance which was largely attended by people from Norwich, Willimantic, Windham and surrounding towns. The hall was prettily decorated in Hallowe'en colors and emblems. Miss Mayme Papineau, president of the assembly, acted as general chairman with a staff of faithful workers who made the affair most successful. The assembly offered a beautiful big doll to the girl over eight who would sell the greatest number of tickets for the dance. This incentive aroused an active interest in the children and resulted in the sale of a large number of tickets. During the evening the girl winner of the doll was announced as little Miss Cecil Larivier who was heartily applauded for her efforts. The members are now planning an anniversary banquet to be held Nov. 15 on the birthday of the institution of Hoey Assembly.

DANIELSON

HIGH WATER ALONG MOOSUP RIVER DOES MUCH DAMAGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 4—People of Sterling, Almyville, Moosup and Central Village were breathing easier tonight after as hectic a day as they have experienced in many a year. Beset by the worst flood since 1888, with a dam at Sterling burst and the Moosup river on a wild rampage, there were hours during this afternoon when only the most optimistic felt that the worst of a very dangerous situation had been experienced and that the time had come to hope for better things.

Tonight the trunk line highway out of Central Village for Providence is closed to through traffic, for one bridge went out at Sterling today, and, a few miles farther east over in Rhode Island, the roadway had been swept out at one end of Fairbanks hill bridge, blocking any chance to get through to the Rhode Island capital even by circling the Sterling blockade.

Much of the flood damage came during the early hours of this morning, and things were looking up when, under the tremendous pressure of the flood, a section of the dam of the United States Finishing company collapsed at Sterling, releasing a seething, roaring mass of water that swept along the course of the Moosup river into Almyville, on to Moosup and descending upon Central Village like a beast hunting prey. The dam break came early this afternoon and within an hour mill concerns along the streams knew that the had their work cut out for them. At the Glen Falls plant of the American Woolen company a crew of men began filling bags with sand and piling them along the approaches to the ends of the dam. This activity was duplicated at the Cranska and Aldrich mills in Moosup. All the Moosup dams were regarded as in real danger, and were, up to 4 p. m., when the flood began very slowly to recede, with the dams holding firmly and giving promise to withstand any further strain to which the flood might subject them.

The tremendous rainstorm that caused all the trouble put the Moosup river, at Central Village, to within 13 inches of the high water mark reached there in the famous flood of 1888. Tonight only guesses may be made as to what the flood damage will amount to along the course of this stream, but it is going to be a whole lot of money. Water flooded the lower floor of the U. S. Finishing plant at Sterling, getting into the collanders and doing other damage. The new concrete highway bridge in that community was standing firmly at nightfall tonight, after having its roadway submerged by the flood for hours. Parkhurst's store, in which the postoffice is located, was like an island in a little sea. A fine new wall completed only yesterday along the easterly bank of the river fronting the new plant to be built for the Finishing company was undermined and thrown over into the raging waters. A few score yards to the west a small wooden bridge on the trunk line highway collapsed as its underpinning was undermined. The flood having accomplished this destruction, proceeded to dig a channel right across the state highway, and the waters were gnawing away on this new route making it wider hour by hour as night came on. Only the most rapid and efficient work by the state highway department will make it possible to arrange even temporary passage there over the week end, and motorists are advised to take other routes.

The flood forced the closing of mills all along the Moosup river this morning. The American Woolen company plant at Almyville was flooded in its basement, water getting into the dye rooms and ruining between $3,000 to $4,000 worth of dye stuffs. The Aldrich mills had some water on a lower floor, but no serious loss was experienced.

At the plant of the Central Worsted company in Central Village there was three feet of water in the finishing room this morning and the mill itself seemed set in the midst of a lake. The water had begun to recede just before noon, when the break in the Sterling dam came and soon after the water was rising again. Thousands of dollars worth of valuable yarn were drenched at the Central Worsted company plant, by Charles Bragg of the company said this afternoon that he believed this could be dried out and salvaged.

Rushing on, the waters swept up planks and other lumber caught in the overflowed areas, and here and there a chicken coop was picked up and set off on a dizzy ride downstream. In Sterling this afternoon the water was up to the steps of some of the tenement houses, which had been temporarily vacated by their occupants as a measure of precaution in case of a further rise in the flood waters. Close by the broken dam chickens were perched on the roofs of flooded coops or had found places high up in the trees. They were a forlorn looking lot of poultry.

Cameras clicked steadily all along the course of the stream today making a pictorial record of such a flood as eastern Connecticut has not experienced in nearly 40 years.

Piles of debris are banked against the abutments of bridges along the course of the river, and there is going to be some fine salvage when the waters recede for people living along the lower reaches of the Quinebaug, in which direction everything on the course of the Moosup river was riding pell mell tonight.

Estimates of the rainfall from 7 o'clock Thursday night to 6 o'clock this morning run from 5 to 6 inches.

PACO DAM THREATENED WHEN CANAL WALL BREAKS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 4—Pressure of slack water tore a hole in the east side of the canal wall of the Powdrell and Alexander canal at Attawaugan today. The rush of water went down a steep embankment and back into the river. All day employes of the company labored by placing sandbags to keep the dam below the mill from going out and the dam was still holding tonight.

WORST FLOOD DAMAGE IN DANIELSON IN 40 YEARS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 4—The worst flood damage in this territory in 40 years was caused during the early hours of this morning by a torrential rainfall approximating a cloudburst. From early morning until late tonight reports of damage continued to come in and represent losses and repair costs that will run into scores of thousands of dollars. An estimate of the damage to the highways of Killingly alone with incomplete reports on all highways tonight runs from $5,000 to $10,000.

The Moosup pond road leading from South Killingly to Moosup has been closed to travel. It is impassable and badly damaged. Part of this road is in Killingly, part in Plainfield. Stearns street, here in the borough is also badly torn up and it was said today likely will be closed to through travel. Street after street here in Danielson and highways all over town are washed out and torn up. Sterling, too, is hard hit, and has many an interesting bit of information about flood damage such as has not been experienced since March of 1888.

Trains on the New Haven road through Danielson were blocked for hours this morning by a washout in the line near Quinebaug lake, about three miles south of here. Freight train 718 south-bound about 8 a. m. discovered the trouble. The head end of the train managed to get over the washout, which later became worse, before stopping to cut off the rear end of the train, leaving 53 cars north of the danger point, while the locomotive with the head end of the train proceeded to New London. Later the cars left were hauled back to Danielson and a work train out of Putnam went to work filling up a big hole in the road bed and replacing ties that had been washed away. The northbound boat train, with mail and newspapers, did not get into Danielson until after 11 o'clock.

Here in Danielson a cellar full of water was as common as shoe on one's feet. Nearly five feet of water found its way into the cellar of the Danielson Trust company building, causing damage estimated at $1,000. This loss is represented in calendars, advertising literature and bank supplies of various kinds. The new Dowe building had about four feet of water in its cellar and there was plenty in the next building north, where the office of the Eastern Connecticut Power company is located. Pumps worked for hours clearing the Danielson Trust company cellar. The big pumper of the fire department worked for several hours this morning getting water out of the Furnace street plant of Powdrell and Alexander.

The Center street brook, running through the central section of Danielson, under streets much of the way, overflowed in the rear of the fire station on Academy street and caused much trouble for residents in homes along the northerly end of School street.

Selectmen of the town were as busy as bees today getting action toward repairing most seriously damaged places, and they realize that weeks will elapse before even reasonably good repairs can be made. At East Killingly, for instance, there is a washout at least 15 feet deep and big enough to easily hold a New England bus, in the highway leading north from the west end of Lambert's blacksmith shop. This was caused by the flooding of a brook deep underground. Capt stones failed to hold the water in check and the damage that resulted will cost the town a pretty penny to repair. From Coomer hill, the Sparks district, Mashentuck and other sections came reports of more or less serious road damage. No bridges were reported out in Killingly, but some are said to have been washed away on routes in Foster and the northern section of Sterling.

Both the Quinebaug and Assawaga rivers were roaring along their courses through Danielson tonight with the mad rush characteristic of floods. The Quinebaug was continuing to rise as night came on, and at the Dyer dam at 4 p. m. about 3 1-2 feet of water was going over the dam. The dams on these streams were regarded as in no danger of going out and were standing as though of solid rock. Water here reached the highest point touched by these rivers since 1888.

Hundreds of individuals in this town have suffered personal losses from the flood. These have been caused by cellars being flooded, ruining things kept in them, by having walks or lawns washed out and in one way or another.

The storm that wreaked all this damage was an extremely unusual one. Rain that began in a mildly innocent way Thursday afternoon became a deluge in the early evening hours and by midnight Danielson was practically afloat. All night long the rain beat down with such tremendous volume as to constitute practically a solid wall of water. A rain gauge at King George Jacques place in East Killingly, showed a fall of six inches, a record for all time in such a brief period in this territory. Most of the flood damage hereabouts was caused between one o'clock and six this morning, when such a great amount of water had accumulated that ordinary drainage systems were utterly inadequate to cope with it.

From across the border in Rhode Island came many tales of the damage done, and with them the usual set of wild rumors about fatal accidents and such like that never occurred. It was regarded as a rather remarkable thing that not an automobile accident was reported hereabouts as due to the storm, which was a blinding one to drive in.

This afternoon the funeral of Mrs. Bestey J. Greene was held from the home of her son, on Furnace street, with funeral services at 2 o'clock at the Nazarene church, of which she was a member, Rev. A. E. Gallup, the pastor officiating. During the service Mr. and Mrs. Kent A. Darbie sang Saved By Grave, and I Shall Know Him. The bearers were Ralph Bowen, Harold Bowen, of Danielson, Charles Peterson, Jr., Clifford Peterson, Lawrence Peterson of Jewett City, and Ralph N. Bowen, Willimantic, all relatives of Mrs. Greene. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. A. F. Wood was the funeral director.

An evening school to continue 75 nights will be opened at the high school next Monday evening, Supt. W. E. Parker announced this afternoon. The school is to be in session Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday evenings from 7:30 to 9 o'clock. About 50 have registered for the courses, and others who wish to may do so at once or at the school next Monday evening.

Announcement of the plan to have an evening school came as a surprise. It will be recalled that an effort to organize one was made back in September, but an insufficient number registered to make it advisable to start one. Disappointed over this turn of affairs, registrants craving an opportunity to study went out and have succeeded in interesting enough additional students to make it possible to have a school.

Another promised event for Armistice day in Danielson is a football game on the Quinebaug grounds between the K. H. S. team and the Freshman B eleven of the Connecticut Agricultural college.

At Elmville today a large area of the Sayles farm was under water from the overflow of the Assawaga river, the water reaching across a long reach of fields to within a short distance of the state highway.

Persistently repeated tales that the Brooklyn Savings bank will be held up from starting its new building at the corner of Main and Academy streets in the spring, because of any lease in the present buildings on the site are pure fabrication. Work on the building will start as scheduled. No such lease as is talked of exists.

Even cord wood was washed away in the terrific downpour of rain in Danielson last night, and today the borough is messed up with debris of all sorts, carried along by the rush of water.

The announcement has been made that the links of the Putnam Country club will remain in use until December 1.

A harvest supper and election of officers will feature the meeting of Brooklyn Grange next Thursday evening.

Mrs. Sidney W. Bard entertained a large number at a whist arranged by the League of Women Voters at her home in Brooklyn Thursday evening.

WASHOUTS NEAR PUTNAM DELAY TRAIN SERVICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 4—Trains from the south over the midland division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad were held here today because of a washout of both tracks near East Thompson, which is about eight miles north of Putnam. There is a double track at the place of the washout and but little of the roadbed is left and it is doubtful if necessary repairs can be made to permit the resumption of traffic over it today. The train from New York was more than an hour late in reaching Putnam this morning and was held here for several hours and then was finally transferred to the Worcester track and resumed its way to Boston by that way.

The morning train from New London also arrived in Putnam several hours late due to a washout near Jewett City, and it was also held here for several hours but as far as could be learned the tracks between here and Worcester are clear and both the New York and Boston trains can be detoured that way until the break at East Thompson can be repaired.

William Walsh of New London died suddenly at his home yesterday. He was for a number of years connected with the Victory theatre in this city and for several years past has been connected with a theatre in New London. On Monday, Congressman Richard P. Freeman of this district is expected in Putnam and will be shown the several possible sites for the proposed new post office building in the city. Mr. Freeman comes at the invitation of Postmaster Macdonald and will be entertained at the Putnam Inn by the committee. It is thought that if congress is to be asked for a further appropriation of thirty or forty thousand dollars for the Putnam postoffice building, that Congressman Freeman will probably be asked to present the bill and therefore it will be better to have him personally acquainted with the situation.

Twenty seven members of the local Women's Relief corps attended the meeting of the McGregor Relief corps at Danielson and attended the dinner and the inspection.

Flora E. Eddy of East Woodstock, has been appointed administratrix of the estate of Byron E. Eddy, late of Woodstock by Robert E. Harris, judge of probate.

Mr. Bellerose is a brother of Rev. U. S. Bellerose, pastor of St. Mary's church, is a cousin of Alex Gilman and has many other relatives in Putnam.

The town of Thompson has now but one selectman in active duty and he is George E. Whitney, he third member of the board, Charles V. Chase, resigned the first of the week to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Dyer S. Elliott as town clerk and treasurer when the accounts of the latter showed irregularities by expert accountants who have been examining the books.

Four generations of the Jenkins family, have been members of that church. Ralph C. Jenkins is the superintendent of schools for the town of Putnam.

MAINTAIN THE BRIDGES

What was good and sufficient in the old days will not meet present day strains and requirements. This has been found to be true in connection with both roads and bridges.

This week at Westfield, Mass., an automobile struck the iron post of a bridge over Little river causing the bridge to collapse and it was by a stroke of good fortune that the two occupants of the automobile escaped death. The accident was not so different from that which resulted in Bozrah about a year ago under very similar circumstances when a bridge was put out of commission when struck by an auto. Other instances of the trouble which has been experienced with bridges include those at Versailles and Oneco.

What was adequate in other days does not suffice today. Bridges are being subjected to much more traffic and much greater loads than ever before. Even the improved roads which were built in response to the demands for good roads are not substantial enough to stand the wear and tear of present traffic. Much bridge reconstruction has been made necessary in the building of new highways and on highways where new construction has not been necessary for some time the heavily loaded trucks have made it necessary to give close attention to the bridges to see that they are kept in condition fit to meet the demands made upon them.

Experiences with bridges have been much the same everywhere. We demand roads that will stand up but it is even more important from the standpoint of public safety that we have bridges that will stand up under the loads that are placed upon them, as well as keep their place under such battering as they may receive from bad automobile driving. In most instances bridges are posted as to the weight they can carry but more and more there is demand for structures that will sustain heavier loads. If bridges go down under excessive loads it is one thing. When they collapse by being struck by an auto it is another and each must come in for attention sooner or later. Whatever must be done eventually ought not to be delayed to the point where it jeopardizes human life.

RETAINING INDUSTRIES

Many a New England city is being brought face to face with a new taxation problem because of the situation that confronts the textile industry. Not a few of the cotton mills of New England have gone south or established branches in that part of the country because they have found it impossible to stand the southern competition. Some have gone out of business and the plants have been sold and transferred. Others are in the process of being moved.

Under such conditions it has for some time presented a problem as to what the New England textile centers can do to prevent this gradual disappearance of industries upon which dependence has been placed for years. There are those which have been forced to a recognition of the fact that the solution does not rest solely with the industry itself. If the mills are to be retained where they have been for years and where they are needed from a community standpoint they must be given the needed encouragement.

This means that the municipalities must revise their schemes of assessment and taxation. Industries which are established in a community are much to be preferred to those that might be attracted. Going concerns are an asset where the come-and-disappear factories are a detriment.

If industries that are feeling the southern competition to the point of extinction unless they get into the southern field can be relieved of some of the burden that existing methods of taxation impose, that phase of the matter should get close and careful attention. And why shouldn't it? There is nothing to be gained by taxing it out of existence. It is far better that attention should be centered upon the curtailment of expenditures possibly the elimination of extravagance and inefficiency, and retain industries even though they pay a lower tax than to force them to the wall or to another locality by insisting upon something which they cannot pay, and compete with others in the same line of production. The cities which are cutting values or cutting taxes in other ways when conditions have been shown to require it, are protecting themselves.

REGULATING HEADLIGHTS

We are getting to that season of the year when the number of automobiles on the road will decrease somewhat. Nevertheless the closed cars and the cleared highways make motoring throughout the year very comfortable. Thus there is no particular time when the uniform and properly focused headlights are of more importance than another. They should be in use whatever the season and they will be if they are required and the requirement is enforced.

Only recently it was disclosed in the neighboring state of Rhode Island that such efforts as have been made to deal with this problem are almost valueless. Most anything in the shape of a headlight goes. It makes little difference whether it serves its purpose, whether it is glaring or whether it is focused on the highway where it is needed. A check-up on this state of affairs has recently caused the Rhode Island board of public works to concentrate upon the situation and to find that it has it within its power to deal with it, to put into effect new headlight regulations, subject to the approval of the governor, and to end a situation which is deplorable.

With the idea of bringing about such a change at an early date the study of the requirements in other states has been started. Rhode Island will probably look over the law as it exists in Connecticut and the one that is enforced in Massachusetts. It is likely that it will give some attention to the regulations of other than neighboring states, but it will have good reason for coming as close to the laws of adjoining commonwealths as possible in the interest of uniformity and the convenience of its own auto drivers when visiting other states. If states in a group like those in New England insisted upon the same requirements there would be less chance for unintentional conformity to the law than there is where each state insists upon decidedly different regulations. Rhode Island has delayed action too long but it is apparently headed now in the right direction.

THE ESTATE TAX

Connecticut was one of the leaders in the display of opposition to the federal inheritance or estate tax. It was willing to accept it as an emergency tax, but it believes that it is a form of taxation which should be left to the respective states and that continued federal encroachment in that field is unjustified.

When congress made changes in it during the last session it should have abolished it. The demand for that action is still strong and growing stronger. With almost all of the states urging its repeal it is apparent that the representatives of those states in congress must give heed to this appeal.

In such plans for tax cutting as have been put forth during the hearings before the ways and means committee of the lower house of congress, the abolition of this tax has invariably been advocated. Others who have expressed themselves concerning tax reduction have also pointed out the desirability of such a move. Not satisfied with this, the states have effected an organization that will direct the fight for the repeal of this law before the house committee and later on if necessary. This discloses the widespread demand for relief of this character, laying emphasis upon the fact that this is a reserve field for state taxation that ought not to be invaded by the federal government. In fact the taxpayer ought not to be called upon for such double taxation which has worked gross injustices in the settlement of estates. With the chance to put the knife into taxes, this is one that ought not to be denied attention at this coming session of congress. The action of the states ought to be regarded as representing the sentiment of the people.

LEAVES

The frost and the rain have brought down the leaves. There are but few left on the trees but the problem of disposing of them is just as great as ever. There must be a persistent raking up of the scattered foliage if the accumulation is to be kept down.

Many of them wind themselves in about the flowers and shrubs to give them protection through the winter months. Some of them are buried by those who know the value to their gardens of decayed leaves and quantities are heaped up and weighed down to rot for similar purposes.

In some cities the street departments make a point of clearing the streets of such accumulations as fast as they fall and cart them off to be disposed of in various ways. In some cities the employes pile them up in the gutters and burn them, quite the same as many householders do in order to get rid of them and minimize the danger of fires from having a match or some other firebrand dropped into them when they are dry.

We have no desire to get along without trees. We appreciate the shade which the leaves afford during the summer time and we must overlook the bother which they make when they fall. For the children, there are happy days when the leaves fall and they can roll about and play in them as a new means of diversion. The leaves mean work and they also mean a menace, but both are responsibilities that must be accepted and met in full realization of the fact that it is the order of things. In the list of complaints the leaves occupy a minor position.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

The men and women who dazzle the world by some unexampled adventure are not novices. It would tackle popular fancy still more if some daring fellow should emerge one day from the cornfield and fly to Paris the next. It would make a certain type of mind fairly beside itself with delight if some girl who had never been in the salt water should suddenly leave her dishpan in the forenoon, and then strike out in the afternoon to swim the English channel. But unhappily nature doesn't work that way—it never has and it never will. Great deeds are invariably preceded by adequate preparation. No boy wins a prize in the higher mathematics who has not studied that branch of learning for years. Chauncey M. Depew once pointed out a table in his house to a visitor, remarking with a smile, "There is where I prepare my extemporaneous addresses."

When will human beings learn that any deliberate departure from the path of rectitude comes back upon them sooner or later like a boomerang? There is certainly all about them enough evidence of the fact. Take as an illustration the brilliant young bank president of Aurora, Ill., whose rise in the world of finance had been phenomenal. He had a "beautiful home, charming wife, alert and talented children, virtually everything men strive to attain." In spite of all this he went inexcusably bad. It almost makes one believe that men are sometimes possessed of the devil. But why is it that they do not seem to learn that fundamental lesson of morality that, "whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap?" There is always evidence enough in sight to teach any man with his eyes open. The large sum misappropriated put him back of prison bars. Will the primary lesson of honesty ever be learned?

Is there not a sound financial policy back of these dollar day sales? At first it struck me as a shrewd way of disposing of unsalable merchandise. But I have been radically converted from this idea. There may be wares apparently unsalable because they are not known to the public. Wide advertisement will bring something out that somebody wants. Of course material for which we have no immediate use and may not in the future would not be cheap as a gift. But in the great variety offered for sale there will be something that everybody wants. The writer remembers on one occasion finding a box of collars of a somewhat unusual shape, but particularly adapted to his unique type of beauty; they were ridiculously low—in fact the dealer almost threw them at him, only too glad to get rid of them at any price. It gave an honest penny to the dealer and it saved the buyer some sleepless hours of anxiety.

There are some rich experiences within the reach of our attainment that we either partially, or wholly, ignore. For instance, cultivating the delights of calmness. It is quite the thing for people of the noisy variety to poke fun at the Quakers who do not chatter themselves away into utter depression. They have learned one of the major lessons of life as to when, where and how to be silent and quiet. They have learned that when the emotional nature is under rigid control they are in the best condition for receiving the deeper and more abiding impressions. Have we not been in public gatherings called for the purpose of giving moral instruction when we have been perfectly disgusted with the thin and abundant chatter that was devoid of a single idea that was worth remembering. Many of our churches are slowly committing suicide by talking themselves to death. But churches are by no means the only institutions that are dying by inches.

The above paragraph brings to mind what our psychologists have been advocating for a long time, and that is the practice of what is called the "dead still exercises." Probably there has never been a time when the cultivation of calmness was more seriously demanded than now. One of the leading characteristics of the American people is to rush; to see how much can be done in a given time, and the natural result is the over-straining of the nervous organization. It is really wonderful how much the nerves will stand. But when they break out in open acts of rebellion they are something awful to deal with. All this can be wholly avoided by giving ourselves proper rest. Now the "dead still exercises" are nothing more than keeping perfectly still for a given length of time. Is it not possible for people whose occupation is more or less nerve-racking to find 15 or 20 minutes in the middle of the day to lie down flat on his back and not move a muscle! Just simply breathe and live.

Some years ago a prominent clergyman of New York used this expression: "He is our true advisor who will hurt our self-conceit rather than suffer our self-conceit to injure us." Which is the more honorable thing to do to tell us things that others know we want to hear, or to say things that we ought to hear though they cut us to the quick? Which is one's true friend? A real friend who says to us things that bring tears to his own eyes will make a more lasting impression for good than one who wishes merely to tickle our self-conceit. It is no soft snap for anyone at times to speak the absolute truth, but if we had more of it we would soon have a better world. There is one great danger to which the truthful speaker is exposed, and that is he is apt to be sensorious. We must guard against harshness. Let us be truthful but gentle, and gentle without being unfaithful.

In a neighboring town last week a deer was killed on the highway, standing perfectly still in the path of an approaching automobile. The unfortunate animal was fascinated by the glaring headlights. His capacity for self protection seemed to have deserted him entirely. Usually his celerity of movement is his great protection, but there was something in the brilliant light that overcame his power of motion. Is there not a parallel here to some of the strange actions of both men and women. Take for instance the effect of high life upon the young of both sexes. The gilded dance hall with its varied associations, and all other factors of human life that have thrilling experiences to offer. Unless one is grounded in principle he is in danger of meeting the same fate that the deer did. Take the politician who has gone clear up the ladder until he is a great power even he needs to beware of the headlights—many have fallen right at this point.

As these lines are written we are having what some call the "Indian summer"—a very broad term that can be applied to any warm, gentle, sunny, hazy day, all the way from Oct. 15 to Nov. 1st. But the important thing is not so much when this delightful season appears as what it is, and how can it add to our enjoyment. The "Indian summer" is a season when a somewhat milder temperature than usual prevails which is very pleasing to our susceptibilities. But in order to fully enjoy it one must either ramble over "God's open spaces" or take an auto drive out into the country. Atmospheric conditions are just right for bringing out the full splendors of the changing foliage. To get the full benefit of an east view one must climb a hill in the afternoon—when the sun is at one's back—to get the greatest glory of the west the climbing ought to be done in the morning. Looking in the direction of the sun we get the haze magnified.

THE WORLD'S BREAD AND MEAT.

What of the world's bread and meat supply since the World war?

The world's population has been growing: Have these two primary food items kept pace?

Since the problem is being approached from the western world, let wheat stand, for the moment, for bread, and beef for meat.

Wheat Production Increases

A bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters summarizes the world wheat and beef production as follows:

"The average yearly world production of wheat during the five years immediately preceding the World war was roughly three and a half billion bushels. In late years the average has been closer to four billion bushels. The wheat supply, therefore, has advanced along with the number of mouths to eat it. So too with that part of the wheat crop that is transported from country to country. Approximately 800 million bushels (nearly 23 per cent of the production) of wheat and flour entered international trade channels in prewar days, and about 850 million bushels (22.4 per cent) enter now.

"But although the World war had no lasting effect on wheat production and its steady growth, it played havoc with the world trade in wheat. This flow of wheat from the less developed countries to the countries with great urban centers has been an important factor in world economics since the rise of cities. Doubtless Babylon drew grain from its satellite countries. When Rome came to be a great power a veritable river of grain flowed to it from northern Africa, Spain and the Near East.

The Medieval Flow of Grain

"During the Middle Ages commerce in food staples lagged, each country, for the most part, producing its own food. But with the planting of colonies and the coming of the machine age, the tide of grain began to run again, setting toward Europe and western Europe from Russia, the western hemisphere, and finally from the Antipodes.

"Russia was the big factor in the wheat trade before the war. She produced more than one-sixth of the entire world crop, and exported a fifth of the total international shipments. After a big drop, Russia has almost reached her former position in the matter of production. But apparently the Russians of today are better fed; only three per cent of the world's wheat exports now come from that country.

Canada Heaviest Exporter

"Canada has become the chief factor in the international wheat trade. She produced less than 200 million bushels before the war, and shipped only 11 per cent of world shipments. In 1926 she grew more than 400 million bushels and her exports far surpassed the greatest shipments of Russia, reaching 37 per cent of total international exports.

"But although Russia and Canada have stood out as the greatest shippers of wheat, in the matter of production they have been surpassed since well before the World war by the United States. This country, in 1926, produced 832 million bushels, more than a fifth of the world total. Only European Russia came anywhere near this mark, with 890 million bushels. Even when Asiatic Russia's 260 million bushels are added, the United States is still in the lead by more than 40 million bushels.

"But Uncle Sam's 120,000,000 mouths consume most of this vast volume of wheat. Some years the exports jump to a quarter of a billion bushels. Usually, however, they are little more than 100 million bushels, making up the 12 per cent of world shipments that was the rule even in pre-war days.

Smaller Nations' Exports Drop

"While Russia has dropped out of the world wheat trade since the war, at least temporarily, and Canada has moved to first place, there have been significant shifts in the positions of other wheat-producing countries. Rumania, which contributed one-sixteenth of the world exports, dropped out entirely for some years, and now supplies only one-ninety-sixth. Bulgaria has cut her contribution to one-third the former figure; and Hungary's 55 million bushels have shrunk to 20 million. India, too, has been slowly losing ground as an exporter.

"Next to Canada, Australia has shown the greatest growth in wheat shipments, raising her pre-war figure of 6 per cent of the world shipments to 15 per cent. Argentina has shown a less spectacular growth from 10 1-2 per cent to 12 per cent.

Some Heavy Crops of Europe

"A surprising fact disclosed by a survey of the wheat situation is the magnitude of the crops produced by France, Italy, and Germany, all of which are relatively densely populated, consuming countries. France's crop of 350 million bushels in 1925 was considerably larger than that of Argentina (223 millions) and approximately twice that of Australia. Italy's 240 million bushels was also greater than the Argentine crop; while Germany's 118 million bushels was not far short of the Australian production. All three of these countries found it necessary to supplement their heavy home production by taking from 4 to 9 per cent of the world shipments. There has been little change in the volume of French wheat and flour imports since before the war, but that of Italy has increased, and that of Germany has decreased.

"The greatest importer of wheat continues to be Great Britain, which takes about one-quarter of all international wheat shipments. In 1926 she imported 203 million bushels of wheat and flour, an amount about equal to the total combined shipments of the United States and Argentina. In addition, Great Britain raised more than 50 million bushels of wheat at home.

U. S. Leads Also in Beef

"In beef cattle, as in wheat production, the United States leads the world, with close to 80 million head. Russia probably ranks next with slightly under 40 million, although both Argentina and Brazil have almost as many. Germany, France, and Australia follow with 17, 14 and 13 million. There are heavy holdings of cattle in India and other parts of the Orient, but the beef production from these countries is very light owing to religious scruples and vegetarian habits.

"The World war seems greatly to have affected the meat eating habits of the west. Apparently France learned meat eating from her allies. Her pre-war imports of beef were only 41 million pounds, while she exported 62 million pounds. Now the exports have been cut almost to one-half the former figure, while the imports have increased more than six fold. They are now 7 1-2 per cent of all international exports.

"Germany has doubled her imports, and now takes 18 per cent of the world shipments; her exports both before and since the war are negligible.

Great Britain Greatest Importer

"As with bread, so with beef Great Britain is the greatest importer. She imports now more than one and three-quarters billion pounds per year, against one and a quarter billion in pre-war days.

"Changes in the sources of beef have not been great; rather, the pre-war tendencies have been followed out. Russia was never an important factor in Europe's beef supply, and her withdrawal from European affairs had little effect on the meat trade.

The World's Meat Counter

"Argentina is the world's chief beef purveyor. Before the war her contribution was 45 per cent of the total international exports; now it has grown to 50 per cent. Uruguay is a poor second with 11 per cent; about double her pre-war proportion. Australia, which furnished 14 per cent of beef shipments before 1914, sends out only 9 per cent now. The United States, too, has dropped from a 10 per cent contribution in the years prior to the war, to 5 per cent today.

"The only other country with exports which equal 5 per cent of world exports, is, strangely the Netherlands, with more than 7 per cent. This country has only two million cattle. The explanation lies in the heavy imports of beef, most of which are re-exported.

"Because the teeming population of the east lives largely on rice, it would be natural to assume that more rice is grown than wheat. But the fact that the people of the west are on the whole much better fed, apparently turns the scale in favor of wheat. The average estimated world rice crop for five years preceding the World war was two and a half billion bushels, while the corresponding wheat crop was approximately one billion bushels greater. The average annual crops for the years 1921 to 1925 were nearly 3,000,000,000 bushels for rice, and nearly four billion bushels for wheat.

Less Rice Exported Than Wheat

"A much smaller percentage of the rice crop enters international trade than that of the wheat crop. In pre-war days 8 per cent of the world's rice production was exported, as against 23 per cent of the total wheat. The percentages now are practically the same.

"Pork plays second fiddle to beef, as rice does to wheat among the meats and grains consumed by man. There are fewer hogs in the world than cattle—about 250 million as against more than 600 million. The United States leads all other countries in the number of its hogs—between 50 and 60 millions. The nearest competitors are Germany with 16 millions and Russia with 14 millions.

"The United States is also first in pork exports, sending out nearly one and a quarter pounds, more than half the total international shipments. The next most important exporters are Denmark with 463 million pounds, and the Netherlands with 259 million.

"In pork England is again the world's exports, 57 per cent of the total."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Treat All Dogs Alike.

Mr. Editor: As I was reading the dog quarantine in your paper, I would like to ask why should any dog be allowed to go loose hunting, any more than those not hunting? So many dogs are roaming around and lost. Does it protect us farmers any more from the dread disease rabies by allowing the dogs to be liberated by a hunter than by any other person? We think all dogs should be confined alike to stamp out rabies, as one coming down with rabies while it runs around, may bite other dogs, sheep, cattle or children. If confined as the law recognizes, they would be safe on a chain with the other dogs. One day there were seven stray dogs roaming the lots among cattle and who knows where they come from. There should be no law to let one dog go and not all. We hope that law will be looked into and mended so no dog can get through until disease is wiped out, as all dog owners pay the same tax. Why not use all owners alike?

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Sir Alfred Yarrow, who at 75 years of age has announced his retirement from active business, is famous as a pioneer in the design and construction of high-speed vessels, such as torpedo-boat destroyers, and of vessels for the navigation of shallow waters, and his firm, first established at Poplar and subsequently removed to the Clyde, is known all over the world for specialized naval construction of this kind. His success was not achieved without a great deal of research and experiment, a fact that has found recognition in his generous donations to various institutions for scientific investigation for the promotion of industry. Other instances of his generosity were the establishment of a home for the children of professional and well-educated people in poor circumstances and the founding at Cambridge of a studentship in Assyriology, in memory of one of his sons who was killed in the war.

Sunday Morning Talk

EVERY DAY.

The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? The Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid? Psalm 27-1.

There are few psalms more conspicuous in holy biography than the 27th psalm. We meet it everywhere. All manner of pilgrims have drunk at its springs and gone on their way rejoicing.

Bishop Hannington on the shores of Lake Nyanza. He has been seized "confined in a miserable prison, surrounded by noisy drunken guard." "He is consumed with fever at times delirious from pain, and menaced every moment with the prospect of death." And yet in the midst of the terrible alarm when he is quite broken down, he makes this short entry in his journal: "Comforted by Psalm 27."

The psalm abounds in consolation. One pastor says, "I have preached more sermons on this psalm than any other psalm in the book." Again and again we turn to it, and always with a new surprise.

It is a song of cheerful hope, fitted for those in trial who have learned to lean on the Almighty Arm.

Let us think upon the spiritual concentration suggested in these words: "One thing have I desired of the Lord," we live in a day when the fruitfulness of life is blighted by divided aims. When life was more simple it was easy to pursue a single ambition, but now we are the victims of numerous distractions and multitudinous engagements, and yet the complexity of modern life need not destroy the spirituality of life.

The same sweet air may persist through complicated variation, and abide through the busiest and the most complicated life. Wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business? That was the holy purpose in the earthly life of Jesus, and it reminded an unbroken purpose whether He were in a crowd or in solitude, at a marriage feast or by an open grave, in a carpenter's shop or in the courts of His temple, the Psalmist had set his mind devotedly upon the pursuit of one thing.

The Psalmist says again, "That I may dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life." It is his ambition to be a permanent guest of the Lord. There are men and women who have all the characteristics of tramps, they appear only now and again at the King's gate and only when they want something. Their appearance implies need; they never come to give, but to take. "In their distress they cried unto the Lord," but never at any other time could their cry be heard. The Psalmist desires to dwell with the Lord to be one of the household of faith to be continually with Him.

YOUR HEALTH

DON'T SQUEEZE PIMPLES

By O. Van der Velde, M. D., Holland, Mich., Member Gorgas Memorial

Would you cross a street while blindfolded and with the red light against you? Perhaps you would be fortunate and the passing motorists would be kind enough to avoid you. However, your actions would invite serious danger. Just as dangerous is the unscrupulous squeezing of the simple and apparently innocent pimples on the face. Perhaps nature, like the kind motorist, will smile upon you and you will get away with it. Nevertheless your actions have courted serious consequences.

The ordinary pimple on the face is a localized infection which in itself is harmless, if properly treated. Nature is very kind and builds a wall around such infections, thereby protecting the remainder of the body. However, when one squeezes a pimple the protecting wall is broken, the surrounding healthy tissue is bruised, and an ideal field is created for the spread of the infection. This bruised tissue is not only ideal food for germs to multiply on, but has also lost its normal resistance to the growth of those germs. After a pimple has been squeezed nature still does her best and often builds a second wall around the bruised and infected tissue, but then a thick hard bunch forms which may remain permanent.

This may be said of pimples anywhere on the body. When they occur on the face the danger is increased, because the blood drainage of the face above the lower lip is toward the brain. What increases the danger is that the veins leading to the brain in this area do not have valves to hold back the infection.

The nose normally harbors many germs and occasionally a pimple will occur within it following the injudicious pulling of hairs from the nose. These hairs have a function to perform. They strain the air we breathe, thereby preventing foreign particles from entering the nose. Should this hair become too thick and long, have it removed with small shears. Do not practice pulling them out. When an infection does occur within the nose, do not hesitate to place yourself in the hands of a competent physician.

CHARLES C. BLISS, JEWELER

(From Norwich Bulletin, Mar. 18, 1892)

The news of the death of Charles C. Bliss on Friday morning was received by his friends and patrons with surprise, as few people were aware that he was sick. He had been confined to his rooms at the residence of Mr. William N. Andrews since Saturday last, and for a day or two had been attended by a professional nurse. No one realized that his end was so near. He passed away suddenly at 3:30 a. m. of heart disease.

Mr. Bliss was a descendant of Thomas Bliss, who came from England and settled on the Bliss estate at Norwich Town, where he erected a dwelling house in 1699. In this house Charles C. Bliss was born. He was educated in the public schools of the town and served as an apprentice to a watch and clock maker in Norwich Town and subsequently went to Boston in the employ of George E. Porter as a watch chronometer maker.

He was a skilled workman, and was an appreciator of ingenious mechanical work. He gave his mind to inventions, and a system of self feeding kerosene lamps for store and home illumination was the most pretentious piece of work he ever patented. He used it in his own store and it was adopted by a few local firms, but no extensive use was made of it.

In 1856 Mr. Bliss returned from Boston and established himself in business in the city as a seller of and repairer of watches. He afterwards entered the employment of E. T. Huntington and subsequently bought out his stock of jewelry at what is known as Bailey's corner, and conducted business there for several years.

In 1864 he moved into the store he occupied at the time of his death, and 29 years of business there made him known in this part of the state as a leading reliable jeweler of eastern Connecticut.

He was a bachelor and was the last survivor of the branch of the family he represented. He devoted himself strictly to business, was an honest and fair-minded man, and enjoyed the respect of his clerks, to whom he showed every consideration.

He was a member of the Arcanum club, and found diversion and pleasure in the privileges and sociability of the club house.

Mr. Bliss leaves a handsome property. He has two cousins residing in New York city.

There are no prisons in Iceland and practically no crime.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Mrs. Peter and Mrs. Pete.

Friendships that age fast and true
Bring the best in life to you.
—Mrs. Peter Rabbit.

Mrs. Peter and Mrs. Pete were both up in the Old Pasture, but hadn't met. Mrs. Pete was quite new to the Old Pasture. Perhaps it would be better to say that the Old Pasture was quite new to Mrs. Pete. She had been brought there by Little Pete, who now was little no longer. In fact, he was fully as big as his father, Peter Rabbit, and looked just as Peter had looked at his age. But his mother still thought of him as Little Pete. She had been a little startled when he had mentioned Mrs. Pete and then she had been filled with great curiosity. "Where is Mrs. Pete?" she inquired for the second time.

"I suppose," said she, "that you are Mrs. Pete."

As before, Little Pete replied carelessly, "Oh, she's around somewhere."

Mrs. Peter said no more, but began a thorough inspection of the bramble-tangle and it was all cut through with little paths. They were the work of Old Jed Thumper. Following along one of these little paths, Mrs. Peter presently came to a mossy old log. It was a hollow log, one end entirely covered by brambles. This end was open, and sitting just within she discovered a very neat, trim-looking young rabbit.

Mrs. Peter stopped and looked long and hard at her. "I suppose," said she, "that you are Mrs. Pete."

The young rabbit nodded. "Yes," said she, "I am Mrs. Pete, but I didn't know you."

"I am Mrs. Peter Rabbit, and I am Little Pete's mother," replied Mrs. Peter.

"And who," inquired Mrs. Pete, "is Little Pete?"

Such a funny look as passed over the face of Mrs. Peter. "What a funny question," she said. "Haven't you just said that you were Mrs. Pete?"

The neat-looking young rabbit nodded. "Yes," said she, "I am Mrs. Pete, but what has that to do with Little Pete? I haven's seen any little rabbits around here."

For a second or two Mrs. Peter blinked. Then she began to chuckle. "Oh," said she, "I quite forgot that Pete isn't little any longer. I always called him Little Pete and I suppose I always shall. Do you know, my dear, he is the living image of his father. I used to think that Peter Rabbit was the handsomest rabbit that ever lived."

"Well, he wasn't" interrupted little Mrs. Pete, "for Pete is the handsomest rabbit that ever lived."

Right then little Mrs. Peter knew that she and his young rabbit were going to be the best of friends. She hopped nearer and they touched noses. It established friendship. Mrs. Peter squatted down close by the old log for a little gossip. Of course, she wanted to know all about Mrs. Pete; where she had met Little Pete, where they had been living and what their plans were. Sitting there gossiping, she quite forgot her own troubles. She quite forgot that so far she hadn't been able to find Peter Rabbit. She forgot the fright she had had from the two bear cubs. As for Mrs. Pete, she was just as pleased. She had been left alone more than she liked while Little Pete had been exploring. It was good to have some one to talk to. It was good to feel that she had a friend.

So it was that Mrs. Peter and Mrs. Pete took to each other. They knew that there never would be any trouble between them.

MAKES MENTAL INCAPACITY CLAIM IN MARRIAGE ANNULMENT SUIT

A new angle was introduced into the marriage annulment suit of Mrs. Jennie Kane Chapman against Leonard H. Chapman, both of this city, when it came up on a continuance here in the superior court Friday afternoon before Judge Allyn L. Brown, when Attorney E. W. Perkins of counsel for Mrs. Chapman filed an amendment to his complaint in which he alleged mental incapacity on the part of his client, Mrs. Chapman, at the time of the marriage on June 1 last.

Attorney V. P. A. Quinn, counsel for Mr. Chapman, objected to allowance of the amendment at this time, claiming that it was a surprise sprung on him and that he should have had notice from the opposing counsel so that he would be prepared to combat this new matter with medical testimony. Judge Brown made the comment that opposing counsel should have had notice of the proposed amendment, but said he would allow it and grant the defense counsel time to meet it. Attorney Perkins disclaimed any intention to surprise the opposing counsel and said it had been an oversight on his part that notice of the amendment had not been given to Attorney Quinn.

Judge Brown stated that he would continue the case until next Monday morning at 10 o'clock and would direct that the plaintiff be available for medical examination by physicians selected by Attorney Quinn.

Dr. Franklin S. Wilcox, superintendent of the Norwich state hospital, was in court, as well as several other witnesses, and the counsel on both sides agreed to go on with the case as far as they could, pending the continuance to Monday morning.

Attorney Perkins, accordingly, called to the stand Miss Dorothy M. Kane, a sister of the petitioner, who is employed at the Theunos company plant, as was her sister at the time she was married. Miss Kane denied that she had never heard any mention made of any attachment which her sister had for Chapman and said there was no objection on her sister's part when her mother took her away from Chapman immediately after the marriage ceremony.

Taking up the cross-examination of Miss Kane, Attorney Quinn learned from her that the Kane family was in the habit of going to New London every Saturday night from Groton Long Point to do shopping. Chapman frequently met them there and they went to the theatre. At these times, the witness said, Jennie and Chapman sat together and the other members of the family in another part of the house. The attorney inquired about times Chapman had taken Jennie to Watch Hill and Westerly and Charleston. The witness said she didn't know about attempts to get a marriage license.

Asked about the "engagement ring," the witness said this was not an engagement ring but a present, and she denied that her mother threw Jennie's engagement ring and wedding ring back at Chapman. She said she saw Mrs. Kane hand the rings to him but she denied that her mother told him she would spend her last cent to fight this case.

Judge Arthur F. Libby was recalled to the stand by Attorney Quinn and asked if Miss Kane told him in his office that she was old enough to know her own mind, but Judge Libby said he could not remember that she said anything about being married. Judge Libby denied that Chapman had ever told him that Jennie Kane told Chapman not to "give up the ship," but that she would marry him. The witness also denied that Chapman told him he tried to break up with Jennie and take back his engagement ring.

This closed the evidence for the day and court adjourned to next Monday morning at 10 o'clock to continue trial of the case.

Alienation Suit Before Jury.

During the court session, Attorney Quinn informed the court that his client, Leonard H. Chapman, had elected to have a jury trial for the alienation suit which he has brought against his wife's mother, Mrs. Sarah H. Kane, and her sister, Dorothy.

Cruelty Case Continued

Hearing in a divorce action brought by Anna Holtham Jack of 60 Golden street, New London, against Oliver M. Jack, a Coast Guardsman stationed at Section Base 4, was continued until Friday to introduce additional testimony They were married April 5, 1926, and intolerable cruelty is alleged to have begun shortly thereafter.

Mrs. Jack testified in court that her husband continually beat her and that he frequently came home drunk, having purchased liquor with money she had earned as well as his own.

Continuance until next Friday to permit introduction of further testimony was ordered by Judge Booth in a hearing on the suit of Ruth Blaisdell Blair of New London, for a divorce from Walter Y. Blair of Stamford, a former state policeman, stationed at the Centerbrook barracks.

Mr. and Mrs. Blair were married June 23, 1916. The suit is based on grounds of intolerable cruelty.

ACADEMY AND WINDHAM RESUME FOOTBALL RELATIONS AT CAMPUS TODAY

The probable lineup:

N. F. A.		Windham
LaCroix	Left End	Usher
Shea	Left Tackle	Monast
Mish	Left Guard	Reynolds
Ingalls	Center	Sumner
Fox	Right Guard	Whitford
Kahn	Right Tackle	Ahern
Greene	Right End	Tinker
Tirrell	Quarterback	Coutu
Kelly	Right Halfback	Warren
Marks (C)	Fullback	(C) Heller

With the eastern Connecticut grid title at stake, the resumption of grid relations after four years, the desire of Windham to uphold her supremacy of the football world in this section, and, most important of all to local fans, the struggle to erase the memory of that awful 54 to 0 defeat that Windham dealt to the Red and White in 1923, their last meeting, it is no wonder that all this part of the country is steamed up over the clash at the campus here this afternoon between Windham high of Willimantic and Norwich Free Academy. From this distance, it looks like a momentous occasion.

The kickoff comes at 2:30 with R. J. Guyer of Conn. Aggies as referee, Keefe of New London, a central board official as umpire and Whipple head linesman. There is a seating capacity for 2,000 or over and more standing room. The visitors occupy the north side and the Academy's supporters the rest of the sidelines.

That these two teams are the strongest this side of the Connecticut river is taken as a foregone conclusion. Between them they have worked through the season in a sort of elimination tournament.

Westerly was put out by both teams, the Academy winning 19 to 6 and Windham playing a scoreless tie. Chapman Tech lost to the Academy, Putnam and Stonington lost to Windham so that outside of this group there are few teams that might have a claim to any title.

The Academy has a successful season to date, winning four of five games while Windham has won three, tied one and lost one which is slightly below her usual standard.

While, as the record of their twenty-year series will show, Windham and the Academy have not been so evenly matched, nineteen games being shutouts, there is nothing at all to point to a continuance of this custom this afternoon. These clubs appear on a level and today will be starting at scratch, as it were. It's a toss up and a pretty large toss, at that.

The situation whereby the two clubs claimed the eastern Connecticut title in 1926 caused much comment in both towns, it was carried through the basketball season when Windham won both games, then strolled into the baseball campaign when the state championship N. F. A. outfit administered a 13 to 1 defeat in the first game, after which the second scheduled meeting was called off by Windham. Now comes pell-mell into the gridiron campaign, a year later. Which eleven was better last season would have been quite a job to dope out so the problem was laid aside to avoid severe cases of brain fever and called a tie. This year there will hardly be any need for such an act, unless the unsatisfactory tie creeps in. Only four of these have come about in 20 years.

The resumption of relations in this series provides an ideal stage for the settlement of the sectional title. With the exception of Bulkeley the Academy has probably not had a more "hated" opponent. Their games have always been marked with the bitterest sort of rivalry and the resuming of the string of conflicts after such a one-sided game on the last meeting should make today's tilt all the more hard-fought.

Both teams have put that extra tinge familiar to crucial games into their practice sessions this week. Though neither has had any harder work than usual during the last few days nevertheless the drills have been thorough. The Academy had but one genuine scrimmage session, that of long duration on Tuesday. Thursday there was no work because of the rain and Friday a short signal drill was held. Windham had pretty much the same schedule although on Thursday an indoor blackboard session was held. The last minute shift in the Windham line sends Whitford and Reynolds to the guar positions, replacing Kelleher and Tomasko and Sumner to center in place of Nelson. The Academy's starting lineup, although not officially announced, is expected to be filled with regulars. Shea is expected back at tackle and Red and White followers will look for much from him.

Both schools had their "pep" rallies Friday. The Academy assembled first in Slater and then on the bleachers at the field, listened to a short address by Principal H. A. Tirrell, drilled in their school songs and cheers and in general, got in A-1 shape to back the boys to the limit. This is the time to show school spirit. Mr. Tirrell stated that he hoped as many as possible would attend to cheer the team on to victory. At Windham's rally a similar program was held.

Bulkeley-Academy Cross Country Run

Between the halves of the game a cross country run between N. F. A. and its well known rival, the Orange and Black of Bulkeley of New London meet for the first time in history in cross country. This is Bulkeley's first year and second run at this sport while N. F. A. goes into their second year and fourth run. In Belden and Ward, Bulkeley has two capable performers who made quite a name for themselves on the track team last spring. The Academy's inexperienced material today stands a good chance of coming out with the victory however. Those to start for the Academy will be Weisgraber, Holdridge, Avery, Peck, Lyons, Navick and Lascowitz.

ACADEMY HAS WON 20 GAMES FROM WINDHAM

The Windham-Academy football series, dating from 1907 with 29 games played, is one of the most lopsided that the state can offer among high school competition. The locals have 20 wins, Windham has but five and four were ties. The Academy has scored a total of 740 points and Windham 155 points.

The unevenness in the affair comes mostly before the World war for Windham did not win over the Academy until 1916 and during eight games from 1912 until they broke into the win column in the second game of the '16 season they were shutout, most of the times by decisive scores.

In all, Windham scored but 17 points in 17 games of nearly ten year's competition, from '07 to the last game in '16. In the first game of which the Bulletin has record, played between teams of the two schools it was the Academy's second team that participated against the first team of the Willimantic school, but since then it has been the first teams every time.

There have been 19 shutouts in the 29 games. N. F. A. scored 16 of these and Windham 3. Thirteen of the shutouts scored by the Academy came before Windham broke into the win column.

There was no game in 1918 because of the World war and the teams have not met since 1923. The record:

1907, N. F. A. (seconds) 36; Windham (first) 6.
1908, N. F. A. (first) 23, 64; Windham (first) 0, 0.
1909, N. F. A. 15, 23; Windham 0, 0.
1910, N. F. A. 6, 0; Windham 6, 0.
1911, N. F. A. 15, 17; Windham 0, 5.
1912, N. F. A. 13, 19; Windham 0, 0.
1913, N. F. A. 30, 21; Windham 0, 0.

1915, N. F. A. 25, 6; Windham 0, 0.
1916, N. F. A. 13, 0; Windham 0, 26.
1917, N. F. A. 20, 7; Windham 7, 0.
1918, no games (World war).

DUNDEE FACES CRIMINAL CHARGE IN CALIFORNIA

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 4—(AP)—Joe Dundee, world's welterweight champion, who declined to defend his crown against Ace Hudkins of Nebraska last night in the absence of a reported guarantee of $50,000 today was faced with the necessity of defending himself against criminal action.

The Baltimore titleholder, his manager, Max Waxman and Promoter Dick Donald were charged with false advertising in warrants issued by the city prosecutor.

Possibility that the charge might be increased to "attempting to obtain money under false pretenses" appeared later when it was learned that the prosecutor contemplated such action if any of the ticket holders cared to make the complaint. When Dundee refused to enter the ring at Wrigley baseball field, members of the commission pointed out that they had no knowledge of the reported guarantee to the champion.

The commission today looked over Hudkin's claim to the welterweight title by default and tabled it. A crowd of angry ticket holders, with tickets ranging in value from $2 to $11, stormed Donald's office and demanded return of their money.

A committee of businessmen was appointed to assist in getting refunds for the ticket holders. Ball park officers estimated that the "gate" probably exceeded $50,000. Of this amount, it was expected that the state and federal government would lop off their tax after that, the preliminary bout fighters would have to be paid as well as ushers, ticket sellers, policemen and firemen on detail.

An advance of $33,000 on Dundee's guarantee was returned to the commission by Waxman.

KELLEHER, B. C. ATHLETE, DIES IN HARTFORD

HARTFORD, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Jack Kelleher, Boston college graduate and one time holder of the world's professional sprint championship, died at his home in this city tonight after an illness of only three days. He was engaged in the sports goods business in Hartford and was prominent as an organizer of several amateur baseball leagues. He was also a well known football official and was the organizer of the Central Connecticut board of approved basketball officials. He leaves a widow and four children.

GENERAL SPORT COMMENT

Clearing skies and snappy autumn air late yesterday afternoon gives promise of ideal football weather for the gridiron classics this afternoon.

Local interest in high school football will center on the Academy-Windham contest at the campus today. Windham has won just five times from the Academy since 1907.

The Brown-Dartmouth game at Providence will draw a large number from Norwich as there are many of the Brown alumni in Norwich. Those who saw Alton Marsters, Dartmouth sophomore who is playing his first year with the big Green team were much impressed by his work.

Already being considered for All-American honors Marsters in his senior year will be the country's leading football player if he continues as brilliantly as he has begun. This lad only 19 years old, 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighing 178 is one of the best broken field runners seen in the east this season. He is a flash on his feet and his brain is lightning fast. He will be watched with interest today.

In looking over the list of college games for today we pick the probable winners as follows: Dartmouth to beat Brown; Yale to beat Maryland; Harvard to beat Penn; Ohio State to beat Princeton; Notre Dame to beat Minnesota; Pittsburgh to beat Washington and Jefferson; Northwestern to beat Minnesota; Pittsburgh to beat Washington and Jefferson; Northwestern to beat Purdue; Illinois to beat Iowa; Michigan to beat Chicago; Wesleyan to beat Williams. Stanford to beat Washington; Holy Cross to beat Fordham; Conn. Aggies to beat Trinity; Academy to beat Windham.

This picking the winners is more or less of a haphazard game as there are so many things that can upset the best of dope and many times the weakest team will win on a "lucky break." One person's guess is as good as another.

The Dundee-Hudkins flop on the West Coast Thursday night was a black eye to boxing in California. It seems to be up to the California commission to discipline Dundee. Hudkins seems to have a valid claim for the title.

HAGEN AND TURNESA TO MEET IN P. G. A. FINALS

CEDAR CREST COUNTRY CLUB, DALLAS, ex., Nov. 4—(AP)—Walter Hagen, "the invincible" of the links, and Joe Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y., flash, hurdled the last barriers of a great field of golfers today to fight it out tomorrow for the championship of the Professional Golfers association.

Hagen, who hails from Pasadena, Fla., putted to one of his typical triumphs over Al Espinosa of Chicago on the 37th hole of their semi-final match. "The Haig" already has won the professional golf title four times.

Turnesa gained the final bracket in a runaway match with John Golden of Paterson, N. J., whose putter acted like a sore thumb today and forced him to bow 7 and 6 before the handsome Anglo-Italian from New York.

Espinosa put up one of the greatest battles of the tournament against Hagen. The Chicagoan won holes with his putter and niblick when his longer clubs deserted him, but the strain on the last nine robbed him of the services of these trusty friends and he was in trouble on the 36th and 37th while Hagen was dropping his safe pars.

Tunesa played perfect golf in his morning round, every shot almost taking the shortest line to the pin and every first putt either dropping for a birdie or hanging on the lip of the cup for a sure par. Golden on the other hand was far off this putting game. He could not get close enough to the pin to be sure of his next putt and he flailed to win a hole all morning, shooting 81 while Turnesa turned in a 33, two under par on the first nine and finished the round in a par 71.

The Hagen-Espinosa match was ragged in many spots, but their dramatic fighting comebacks time and again added an electric quality to it which the Turnesa match lacked.

Tomorrow's battle will be a battle between youth and age and the novice and the veteran. It will also contain a slight element of revenge as Turnesa was eliminated in the first round of the P. G. A. event last year by Hagen. Turnesa is no stranger to major competition having been a runner up in the open of 1926 but he has never won a big classic and compared to the much be-titled Hagen, his is a new comer in the finalist ranks. Tunesa is 27 years old and Hagen is 35.

EARLE SANDE DISQUALIFIED FOR FOULING JOCKEY LANG

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 4—(AP)—Charged with deliberately forcing Jockey C. Lang and forcing his mount against the rail, Earle Sande, whose horse Bateau and Lang's Reigh Count were leading at the home stretch in the $40,000 futurity classic, tonight was suspended from further racing at Pimlico this season.

Stewards contended that "after Sande failed to elbow Reigh Cut against the rail he deliberately cut across in front of him, pushing Reigh Count into the rail and forcing him to lose his stribe." Sande was immediately stripped of his jockey's badge and ejected from the grounds.

Willie Doyle, a patrol judge who said he was stationed at a point near where the alleged fouling occurred, declared Sande's case will be brought before the Maryland Racing commission, which alone has power to revoke his license as a jockey."

Reigh Count, with C. Lang up, was coming in between Bateau and the rail. Sande had ridden Bateau rather wildly at the bend, and had left the rail he had been hugging at that point. When he saw Reigh Count coming alongside he slipped over in and shoved with his elbow but with no avail. He tried it again, but failing, rode deliberately across the rail, throwing Reigh Count against the rail and ruined his stride.

"Grade, taking advantage of the mixup, dashed ahead as the victor wiht Pettee Wrack as the second. Engine S. was third.

Sande went when told of the club's action and denied he committed a foul.

GREENEVILLE TIGERS CLASH WITH BLACKSTONE SUNDAY

Sunday at the J. B. Martin field the Greeneville Tigers take on one of the toughest teams of the season in the Blackstone A. C., of Worcester. The Worcester eleven comes to Norwich in the middle of a most successful season and with an undefeated record behind them. The Blackstone lineup includes the pick of the semi-pro talent in the Massachusetts city.

The Tigers will throw their strongest lineup into the field in an effort to make up for the showing last week. The regular backfield will start the game with Tennant calling the signals and Hudson, Charlie McGrath and Nelson as the other members of the backfield quartette. To strengthen the team Manager Boyd has signed up Pon French and the mysterious Mr. X of the defunct Speedboys.

The lineups:

Blackstone — Manning le, Borowski lt, Lynch lg, Dolan c, Norman rg, Thompson rt, Cheris re, Luoma qb, Gordon lhb, Fulton rhb, Perry fb.

Tigers—Gay le, Butts lt, Christie lg, Mlecki c, Rokoski rg, Langevin rt, Tombari re, Tennant qb, Hudson lhb, Nelson rhb, C. McGrath, fb. Subs, S. Boyd, Steigel, Jones and French.

YALE WILL START ITS STRONGEST LINEUP

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 4.—(AP)—In final preparation for their tussle with the "Old Liners" of Maryland tomorrow, the Blue's first and second teams went through an hour's signal drill in the bowl this afternoon. Despite the heavy rains of the past 24 hours, the field was in good condition because of the excellence of its drainage system. It was the coldest practice day of the season.

Coaches paid particular attention to the first eleven, as they planned to start them in the game and possibly use them through most of the first period. The lineup remained the same as that which faced Dartmouth last week.

TWO KNOCKOUTS FEATURE PASTIME A. A. AMATEUR BOXING CARNIVAL

"Al" Koziol local wind-mill scrapper was presented with a win over "Vic" Darr Greeneville lightweight in the main attraction of the Pastime A. C. amateur boxing show at the Olympic hall last night. After Darr had hung a sweet lacing onto the Keenan protege in at least two of the three rounds, the bout was called a draw, whereupon Darr refused to answer the bell for the extra stanza. During the first two rounds, Darr boxing a clever bout was set for each of Koziol's rushes, meeting him on practically every occasion with clean solid blows from either side. In the third round, Koziol solved the Greeneville lad's style and took the round, and without a doubt would have won had Darr gone the extra stanza ordered. However, in the opinion of the writer there was no need of the extra session as Darr's margin should have carried him to a three round victory.

The entire card of eight bouts was a corker from the beginning to the unsatisfactory end, each bout with the exception of the sixth, which was a poor exhibition, keeping the crowd of about five hundred fans on edge during every moment. The sixth bout between two friendly New London welterweights, Mickey Alberts and Kid Lucy, could hardly be called even a good exhibition. The boys had toyed their way through practically the three rounds when Alberts forgot his orders and clipped his opponent a little hard. Lucy immediately called it an evening, and walked calmly to his corner, through for the night.

The curtain raiser won by Joe Paradis of Danielson in an extra round proved a good tune-up affair and had the crowd soon howling with delight, as the Danielson lad and his New London opponent Young McClure, whaled each other with hardly a let up. Paradis landed the cleaner blows and won a popular decision.

"Boots" Larry of Norwich, fighting the second scrap of his career, won by a technical K. O. over Johnny Harkell of Danielson. Harkell who had held the local lad even for two rounds, began to wither after stopping a flock of Larry's haymakers in the early part of the third, and the towel soon came fluttering in from his corner. The boys fought at 125 pounds.

The third scrap saw Bobby Tennant alias Kid Swift of Greeneville, a lightweight, taking a boxing lesson from his more experienced opponent, Kid Polinski of Colchester. Swift's gameness was the only thing that kept him on his feet to the final bell.

Again the towel found the center of the ring in the third round of the fourth bout. Young Anthony of Greeneville with clean blows driven with bullet-like force, stopped Young Golas of Jewett City, after the mill towner had spent his strength in the early rounds trying for a knock-out. Right now it might be said that Anthony was the sweetest little boxer on the card.

Young Brooks, New London colored welterweight lost to Young Russo of Westerly in the fifth bout when he refused to come out for an extra round after the first three had been called even.

Lucy pulled the "You play too rough," act in the sixth scrap, and the next bout a slashing extra round melee saw Young Lawrence of Westerly winning over Younk Wakely of Danielson. Weights 114 pounds.

It was in the eighth and final scrap that Koziol won on default. It might be said in Koziol's favor that he fought under a severe handicap, hardly a handful of the fans taking his part, while the biggest part delighted in razzing him. Whenever this youngster fights, he given his best and it seems as if the fans misunderstand him.

The officials handling the bouts were Jackie Burns and Jim Quinn, matchmakers; Jackie Wilson, referee; John Carney, timekeeper and Michael Kelley and Tom Connelly judges. Previous to the bouts the Moose orchestra put on a well arranged concert.

COTTLE WAS ONE OF YALE'S GREATEST ATHLETES

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Edmund P. Cottle, Jr., who died today in Buffalo, N. Y., will go down in the annals of Yale university as one of her great athletes and social leaders.

His two runs in the last few minutes of play in the Yale-Brown football game of 1925 and brought about touchdowns placed him among Yale's notables. He was also an outstanding hockey player and a fair tennis player.

In his junior year, he led the class "prom" and in the senior questionnaire, he was picked as the "handsomest man" in the graduating class, by his fellow students.

Scroll and Keys, a senior society, tapped Cottle together with several other athletes and he also made D. K. E. fraternity.

When Cottle made his now-famous runs against a strong Brown opposition, the first for a touchdown, he turned the tide of defeat into victory for Yale had been on the short end of a 3 to 0 score. Thousands of spectators had left the bowl when the roars which went up from the Yale stands reached their ears and the exodus was immediately turned into an influx.

Cottle was the lion of the day and was credited by his team-mates with having pulled the iron of the fire at the crucial moment.

JOE DUNDEE ARRESTED BY PASADENA POLICE

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 4—(AP)—Joe Dundee, world's welterweight boxing champion, was arrested tonight by police of Pasadena, near here, on a Los Angeles warrant, charging false advertising in connection with the title bout fiasco here last night.

The titleholder's manager, Max Waxman, also was arrested on a charge of false advertising.

They were taken into custody by the Pasadena officers when the Santa Fe train pulled into the station there. The officers found Dundee and his manager aboard. Although Dundee put up an argument of several minutes, he and his companion accompanied the officers docilely.

Dundee and Waxman were put in an automobile and headed back toward Los Angeles.

Dick Donald, promoter of the bout, in which Ace Hudkin, Nebraska "wildcat" sought to win Dundee's crown, was the object of a police hunt in Los Angeles. He also is wanted on a warrant charging false advertising.

BREAK IN RELATIONS OF N. Y.-PENN. COMMISSIONS

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4—(AP)—Relations between the New York and Pennsylvania state athletic commissions were broken tonight when the New York boxing authorities refused to change its stand and recognize Benny Bass of this city, as the world's featherweight boxing champion.

There had been a close working agreement between the two commissions for years, but it became strained last week when Chairman Frank Wiener of the Pennsylvania commission, requested the New York body to accept Bass as the titleholder after his defeat of Red Chapman, of Boston. This the New York authorities refused to do.

Another letter containing a threat that unless Bass was recognized as champion the Pennsylvania commission would sever its relations with the New York commission brought a second refusal. Tonight the Pennsylvania commission made good its threat in a letter to the New York commission.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Racing will not begin at Havana this winter until December 10.

The record for home runs in a world's series is 13, made in the 1925 series.

Down east they don't seem to be doing much predicting this year on the outcome of the Yale-Harvard football game.

Dan O'Leary, whose feats of pedestrianism thrilled our grandfathers, is 85 years old, but he is not yet through walking.

The Gladiateur prize, at four miles, a feature of the fall racing season at Longchamps, is the longest flat race in the world.

The 1926 show of the Westminster Kennel club, the greatest of the annual exhibitions of canine aristocracy in America, will be held in Madison Square garden, February 13-15.

Dave Bancroft, who has resigned as manager of the Boston Braves to become shortshop and captain of the Brooklyn Dodgers, made his major league debut 12 years ago with the Philadelphia Nationals.

Uncle Sam needs something like half a million dollars to send his star athletes to the Olympic games next year. A whole lot of money, but the most of the people will agree that a victory for America against the world's best is worth every penny of it.

In an ordinary round of golf the player walks about four miles, and makes on an average 95 strokes with various sorts of clubs. In playing three rounds he does just about the same amount of manual labor as a man does in ploughing an acre.

Balkline is recognized as the standard game in billiards for players of championship calibre, although three-cushion is rapidly growing in popularity. The carrom game is popular because players of ordinary ability often can make an excellent showing against three-cushion stars.

South Africa, which of late years has produced many long-distance runners, has found another good one in D. R. Jacobs, who won the 10-mile cross-country championship recently over the Pretoria course, which consisted of stony roads, kopjes, uphill veldt roads, and barbed wire fences, in 54 minutes 39 1-5 seconds.

The first track team ever sent by an American college to England was the Yale team of 1894. The Elis were defeated on the other side by the Oxonians.

Several of the prominent football teams are going through the present gridiron season without a captain, but the University of Idaho eleven has two captains.

Scoring his team's first touchdown for three consecutive seasons is the distinction claimed for George Cole, quarterback of the University of Arkansas eleven.

As a forerunner of the present "Big Ten" conference a football league was formed in 1892 by Northwestern university and the Universities of Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota.

Attendance reports from the numerous places where they have played in exhibition games indicate that Ruth and Gehrig, as a result of their barnstorming trip will be amply supplied with pocket money during a long-hard winter.

In the early days of college rowing in America many of the most notable victories were won in paper shells. The paper boats, however, were found expensive and of short life and now have been entirely superseded by the cedar craft.

Fox hunting, that is the chase of the fox with horses and hounds as a recreation, arose in England with the Restoration, when changes in customs and agricultural conditions caused the disappearance of falconry. Before long the new sport had become surrounded with a strict code of social usages and legal enactments.

Participation in outdoor sports by all classes of population is said to have increased several hundredfold in Austria since the war. Fields of sport limited to a comparatively few privileged persons before the war are now enjoyed by the masses, and Austria is rapidly becoming one of the most enthusiastic sport centers in continental Europe.

HANSEN KNOCKS OUT SCOTT IN FIRST

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Knute Hansen, "Melancholy Dane," knocked out Phil Scott, British heavyweight champion, in the first round of a ten-round bout at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Scott, making his debut in an American arena, was floored seven times when the referee stopped the bout. At the start Hansen sent the Englishman down for a count of three with a right jab to the head. Hansen kept pummelling Scott with right and left hooks, sending him to the resin six more times when the refuge lugged the Britisher to his corner senseless.

Fifteen years ago today Woodrow Wilson was elected president of the United States.

The Most Rev. J. J. Harty, Roman Catholic bishop of Omaha, today enters upon his 75th year.

The former German emperor and Princess Hermione today celebrate the fifth anniversary of their wedding.

Premier Mussolini has issued a decree effective after this date, abolishing all public ceremonies, celebrations and anniversary observances until further notice, so that production in Italy will not be halted by the loss of a single day's work.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway.

Beauty as well as comedy adorn the railroad story, "Tell It To Sweeney" which finishes a successful run at the Broadway theatre tonight. Chester Conklin and George Bancroft make their debut as a Paramount comedy team in this highly enlivening vehicle. Doris Hill has the leading feminine role, while the handsome Jack Luden, who is one of Paramount's new western stars, is the clever juvenile.

Doris and Jack carry the romantic theme, while Conklin and Bancroft supply the comedy, of which there is no end.

Beginning this afternoon a Kiddie Frolic will be held on the stage of the Broadway theatre at every Saturday matinee. Ten beautiful gifts will be awarded to the winning children each week. The gifts consist of dolls, toy autos, games, books, etc. They are of the finest quality and are sure to please the children. Samples of these gifts are now on display.

Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton have fought in the army, swabbed decks in the navy, dodged submarines and now they complete the service cycle by donning flyers' costume and soaring aloft in "Now We're in the Air" which will be at the Broadway theatre on Sunday, Monday Tuesday and Wednesday. Production of this picture was virtually demanded by the public which longed to be entertained once more by the great team of comics. Ever since Beery and Hatton scored so smashingly in "Behind the Front" and "We're in the Navy Now," Paramount has received innumerable requests to the effect that the funniest service men in the movies be placed in the realms of the clouds.

Palace Theatre.

The picture program to be presented at the Palace theatre on Sunday night is one of exceptional merit. It is very unusual to place regular three-day program pictures on a one-day program but this is exactly what is being done, in presenting Ricardo Cortez in a super mystery drama, "By Whose Hand," and Louise Fazenda in an hilarious comedy, "The Gay Old Bird" as the double features for Sunday night only. It would be quite impossible for one to seek better entertainment value than these two sterling features.

"Figures Don't Lie," starring Esther Ralston is the feature screen attraction for the first, three days of next week commencing Monday. Miss Ralston takes the part of a private secretary who carries on the business of her employer, the latter being none other than Ford Sterling. While engaged in her duties she wins the love of Richard Arlen. Thrill after thrill and laugh after laugh is in order when the hero rescues the heroine from drowning. The picture is directed by Edward Suther and, the man who made "We're in the Navy Now" and many other successes.

The vaudeville bill shown in conjunction with "Figures Don't Lie" is of the highest calibre bringing forth the best obtainable on the vaudeville stage.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre.

Every decade there appears on the theatrical horizon a stage or screen presentation so powerful in its appeal, whether it be comedy or tragedy, that it at once radiates its fame to the remotest corners of the nation. It immediately grasps attention and becomes a byword and the topic of everyday conversation. Everyone will admit that there is no more positive proof of this than "What Price Glory." At a stage play it was a sensation. Now comes along that most powerful and searching of all agencies that reflect and re-create, the motion picture, and the sensation takes on all the wide-spread and interest arousing energy of a furore. This is exactly what has happened to William Fox's screen presentation of this celebrated play, which will have its local premeir at the Breed theatre, commencing tomorrow evening at 6.45 and the second performance will go on at 8.45.

Strand Theatre.

Last showing tonight at the Strand of Priscilla Dean in The Dice Woman, also Fred Thomson and his wonder horse in "Silver Comes Through."

Tomorrow, Sunday, the Strand theatre will present two feature pictures first run in Norwich, and will continue that policy changing four times each week. See Monday's advertisement in the Bulletin.

Ralph Lewis in "One of the Bravest" and Bob Reeves in "A Narrow Escape" are the feature pictures for Sunday.

Beginning Sunday night, Professor Herbert Rich, late of the Baltimore Symphony orchestra, will conduct the orchestra at the Strand theatre.

Pictures at Y. M. C. A. Sunday.

Three great Americans will be portrayed in moving pictures at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. on the coming Sunday at 4 o'clock.

Charles Lindbergh who has been well called "our air ambassador" will be shown in two thousand feet of film, including his flight to Paris and his welcome back to America. "Lindy" can justly be called the typical young American, combining courage, ability, patriotism and strong moral character. Abraham Lincoln, personified by Benjamin Chapin will be shown in the episode "Tender Memories," portraying the great American, with his heart always turned to the common people with superb sympathy. On one of the battlefields he sees a soldier raising a cross over a fallen comrade, and it recalls to him a tender memory of another grave—his beloved mother's — under its coverlet of snow.

Washington, the father of his country" will be presented on the screen in an authentic biography of his wonderful life, from his birth at Bridges Creek, Virginia, in 1732, through his varied experiences in war and as the first president.

This will be an unusual patriotic service, and doubtless a large audience will take due advantage of the opportunity.

Rev. M. E. Genter, the district superintendent of the Methodist church, will speak briefly on the topic, "The Fight is On."

The general public is invited with the restriction that children under 14 are not admitted. A free will offering will be taken.

Christ Episcopal Church.

The service at 10:30 in Christ Episcopal church Sunday will be unusually interesting. The Girls' Friendly society will make their corporate communion, it being their national Sunday for this event. It is expected that several thousand of the Friendly Girls will attend the service in Trinity church, Boston, and all over the world, their hymn will be sung, "Blest be the Tie that binds," in every cathedral and parish church. Also it being Armistice Sunday and a special service, with hymns and prayers, has been sent out by the department of Christian social service of the national council. The two choirs with St. Vincent's Guild will take part in the service. The announcements will be made of the social hour of the Girls' Friendly Monday night and the Woman's auxiliary meeting on Friday at 2:30 with a special speaker. Dedication Sunday comes Dec. 4th, the second Sunday in the advent season. Thanksgiving day service Nov. 24th at 9 a. m.

Lawrence Hall, New London

A featured attraction at the Lawrence ballroom, New London at their dance this coming Monday evening will be Ernie Andrews and his Broadway Troubadours. This famous orchestra has recently completed an engagement at Malet's Bay and Canada.

On the Shores of Tennessee

"Move my arm-chair, faithful Pompey,
In the sunshine bright and strong,
For this world is fading, Pompey—
Massa won't be with you long;
And I fain would hear the south wind
Bring once more the sound to me
Of the wavelets softly breaking
On the shores of Tennessee.

"Mournful though the ripples murmur,
As they still the story tell,
How no vessels float the banner
That I've loved so long and well,
I shall listen to their music,
Dreaming that again I see
Stars and Stripes on sloop and shallop
Sailing up the Tennessee.

"And, Pompey, while old Massa's waiting
For death's last dispatch to come,
If that exiled starry banner
Should come proudly sailing home,
You shall greet it, slave no longer—
Voice and hand shall both be free
That shouts and points to Union colors,
On the waves of Tennessee."

"Massa's berry kind to Pompey;
But ole darkey's happy here,
Where he's tended corn and cotton
For 'ese many a long-gone year.
Over yonder Missis's sleeping—
No one tends her grave like me;
Mebbe she would miss the flowers
She used to love in Tennessee.

"'Pears like she was watching Massa,
If Pompey should beside him stay;
Mebbe she'd remember better
How for him she used 'o pray;
Telling him that way up yonder
White as snow his soul would be,
If he served the Lord of heaven
While he lived in Tennessee."

* * *

So master and slave watch beside the river until they see, above the foliage yonder
Something flutters wild and free!
"Massa! Massa! Hallelujah!
The flag's come back to Tennessee!"

"Pompey, hold me on your shoulder,
Help me stand on foot once more,
That I may salute the colors
As they pass my cabin door.
Here's the paper signed that frees you;
Give a freeman's shout with me—
'God and Union!' be our watchword
Evermore in Tennessee."

Then the trembling voice grew fainter,
And the limbs refused to stand;
One prayer to Jesus—and the soldier
Gilded to that better land.
When the flag went down the river,
Man and master both were free,
While the ring-dove's note was mingled
With the rippling Tennessee.

The Kicker

Away down south in a backwoods town,
Lived a lanky cutter, named Jabez Brown.
Nothing suited under the sun,
Whatever was said whatever was done,
By gum he'd kick.

If he went to meeting on the Sabbath day,
To hear the minister preach and pray,
The sermons weren't right and prayers weren't good,
He'd just pitch in with all his might
And kick and kick.

When he sat down to eat a meal,
Whether it was turkey or chicken or veal,
It made no difference if ever so good
All the while he was swallowing his food,
By gum, he'd kick.

He'd kick at the rain, he'd kick at the snow,
He'd kick at the wind cause it didn't blow,
'Twas either too wet or too blooming dry
To be contented he'd never try
But just kick.

And so he'd keep kicking all his life,
Tormenting his neighbors and worrying his wife,
Complaining of everything under the sun,
How this was said or that was done
And so he'd kick.

Till one day he met Aunt Nancy Green,
The pleasantest critter that ever was seen.
She see on his brow that terrible frown
And she says, says she, "Now Jacob Brown,
You need'ent kick."

Just take a little advise from me,
And practice it always wherever you be.
Whatever folks do or what ever they say,
Unless you can do it better than they,
Don't you kick.

The Old Fashioned Husking Bee

When the grain was in the bin and the corn was in the stock,
When the faded leaves were falling from the trees,
When the wild geese were squalling as they took the Southern track,
Then the old barn was lighted for the merry husking bee.

The drip of tallow candles was dropping on the floor,
And the lanterns were swinging from the hay,
A dozen shadows flickered on the big barn door,
And the sleepy cows were munching at their hay.

In the low-raftered kitchen the husking feast was spread;
There were pork and beans, and honest loaves of rye,
There were nutcakes and pickles and country gingerbread,
There was cider, apple sauce and Mother's pumpkin pie.

O, loud with the sound of jollity the old barn rang,
And swift was the husking, the big floor to clear,
And gay was the laughter when out a lad sprang,
To kiss the pretty maid who had found a ruddy ear.

Now take down the fiddle and rosin up the bow,
And strike up the strains that our fathers used to love,
While the hours speed by and the hunter's moon sinks low,
And the stars peep down through the rafters up above.

Under the swinging lamps and out into the dusk,
The young folks and old folks trip it, toe and heel,
To the strains of Fisher's Hornpipe, of merry Money Musk,
The Irish Washwoman and the old Virginia Reel.

You may have your city folderal of "dancing in the barn."
Your fads for summer pastime and loafing by the sea,
But you'll never get the savor of the olden country farm,
And the old-fashioned flavor of the real husking-bee.

Dad's Old Breeches

When Dad has worn his trousers out
They pass to brother John
Then mother trims them round about
And William puts them on.

When William's legs too long have grown
The trousers fall to hide 'em,
So Walter claims them for his own
And stows himself inside 'em.

Next Sam's fat legs they close invest,
And, when they won't stretch tighter,
They're turned and shortened, washed and pressed,
And fixed on me—the writer.

Ma works them in to rugs and caps
When I have burst the stitches;
At doomsday we shall see (perhaps)
The last of Dod's old breeches.

GOD'S APPOINTMENT

Dear Social Corner Sisters: God's appointments are sometimes our disappointments but His way is always best. Our faith often becomes very dim, pride, selfishness and daily cares rise up before us and obscure the light that is shining for us in God's beautiful sky. We grow sick and discouraged over life's mysteries, we try to fathom the whys and hows of our Father's plans and even go so far as to feel impatient with Him because we cannot have our heart's desires fulfilled and because He allows our path to be rough and uneven. Sometimes life's plans are thwarted, plans made with all sincerity of purpose, yet he blocks the way. We stop to ask, why did we not plan to do this to serve God? Hush rebellious thought. It is His appointment. He has some other place for you to fill, a place where you can do more and be happier. His appointment is best.

May this be to you a profitable day! Find time for something besides your own ease and enjoyment, something besides the things you want to do, your own comforts and pleasures; make a little sacrifice if need be to help some one along and you will find a great deal more happiness in it than in serving merely your own interests.

This thing on which thy heart was set,
This thing that cannot be
This weary disappointing day
That dawns my friend for thee;
Be comforted! God knoweth best
The God whose name is love
Whose tender care is evermore
Our passing lives above.
He sends the disappointments.
We'll then take them from his hand.
Shall God's appointment seem less good
Than what thyself had planned?

Perhaps thou hast special need of God's blessing today dear friend. Every heart knoweth its own bitterness as well as its own sweetness and whatever be thy condition today I ask for thee God's blessing. May it gladden and comfort thee and rest upon thee wherever thou art!

TAKE WEATHER AS IT COMES.

Dear Sisters and Editors: First, thanks for the yellow slip. Am very much pleased to get one. I am also thankful for the lovely sunny days we are having although I don't expect our editor had anything to do about that. How I wish they would last all winter. Someone has made the prophecy that all November until Thanksgiving will be nice, then very severe weather. Last winter I dreaded the cold weather so much I made myself and those around me miserable talking about it. Instead of looking ahead to those long weeks of cold, we should just take each day as it comes. They are soon past. If the next six weeks go as quickly as the last have gone, the days will be getting longer before we realize it. So "Take no thought of the weather of tomorrow, for the weather of tomorrow will take care of itself."

The red squirrels are rushing from dawn till dark gathering horse-chestnuts. It seems as though they must have bushels laid by. A pair of gray squirrels are working but not so openly as the red ones. I get a glimpse of them once in awhile. They have been working in a field of corn just over the wall, too, and the jays have raided harder with the outside of the shocks. They scratch off the husks and get a few kernels and go to the next one. The jays with the chickadees, sparrows, juncoes and some crows will stay all winter. They are very friendly and the dog doesn't even notice them so he doesn't frighten them away.

Aries: I received your card and will write you soon. I know you must be busy, there are so many things to be done at this time of year.

E. L. M.: Just wait till you see my hat!

Skipper: Have you made up all those patterns yet?

Ethelyn: Many thanks for the pinball. They sure are handy.

Blandina: Hope you have a pleasant trip. Think of me sometimes when you are enjoying the wonderful climate

GOOD SUGGESTIONS

Dear Corner Sisters: My first letter to the Corner and as I know no one, I will introduce myself saying, "best wishes" to all. I have been an interested reader for years, so at last, I've sent in a penname.

I doubt if I can write half as good a letter as I have read, but will try.

Here's a cellar hint: if the cellar is dark, it's a good plan to have the bottom step painted white so it can be plainly seen in the dim light. In place of corks, cut a strong piece of muslin large enough so that you can tie it. Lay the muslin on the table and pour hot sealing wax on it then put it on the bottle and press down tight around the edges and sides. Tie up, then run some more sealing wax on the top and it will do as well as a cork for chili sauce, catsup, or pickles of any kind.

WHITE TULIP.

PLANNING MEALS FOR SCHOOL CHILD

Dear Social Corner Members: So many have written me requesting me to write what they should feed their children. I saw an article by Mrs. Christine Frederick, in the "Shrine", which I thought was very good.

I presume your child is above six years old and in all probability she started in going to school in September. She is so proud that she "goes to school", and carries a lunchbox, of course there are three vital needs to satisfy, (1), she must keep the machinery of her body going, (2), she must get power to learn her lessons and to play, (3), she must have surplus left for her bodily growth. This child must need eat at every meal, she mustn't skip a meal without real danger, since she has no food reserve; if she is not fed her growth stops and she will be stunted not only physically but mentally. Examinations of health officials shows that countless children are under-nourished, that they are eating but not truly "fed". Such pupils are often sleepy and backward or their vitality is lowered, and they will become easy victims to the many diseases to which children is heir, diphtheria, coughs, colds, even tuberculosis, which is based on under-nourishment.

Mrs. Christine Frederick says: The first rule of child feeding is—the child must have regular meals at regular intervals. This sharply affects breakfast, no school child must be allowed to miss breakfast and enough time must be given or allowed for it so that it is eaten without haste or fear of being late.

Breakfast of this age should consist, of a warm and thoroughly cooked cereal and top milk and a warm cup of milk or weak cocoa. A mild stewed or baked fruit and preferably whole wheat bread and unsalted butter.

In the case of all young children between the ages of nine and ten years old, it is a splendid plan to prepare a mid forenoon lunch for them, consisting of milk, cracker, and the juice of an orange. Experiments have shown that even this light snack at 10.30 a. m. is valuable for small children who must adjust to new conditions of excitement, play and routine. If such a lunch was not provided by the school (as it should be) then an extra sandwich, apple or orange should be put in the lunch box and eaten at recess.

Mrs. Frederick says that they should also be fed two groups of foods in special abundance, (1), more growth food like the proteins and, (2), energy food like the starches. That is the child must grow and also provide for muscular activity out of all proportion to the statue of height. The slogan for every child is "one quart milk a day," and should be practiced in every home and by every mother. Then the children will not require meat until she is eight years old. Milk may be drunk plain, have weak cocoa added, be used in an egg nogg junket and with all kind of cereal and dishes. Milk contains calcium of which your child's teeth and bony structure is being formed—plenty of good milk and good teeth are sure to follow.

Eggs are an ideal child's food, because in the eggs is placed the food for the growth of the chick. It's sulphur and fat, its albumen will make sturdy muscle and tissue. Eggs may be given coddled, scrambled over hot water, beaten run into soups, or in egg nogga. Now for the energy food, a potato baked in the skin of course, is the simplest and the best way in which to offer the starch for the day. Mashed and creamed potato will do, but never fried. Noodles and macaroni are digestible and have added food value. These can be rotated with the true cereals, such as wheat, oat meal and rice, both for the noon and evening meal. Other energy foods much liked by children are raisins, dates, figs and the natural sugars of molasses and honey, these will satisfy your child's sweet tooth much better than commercial candies. Raisins of the seedless may be soaked over night, a slight simmering, and used as a wholesome and laxative sauce.

And now for the vegetables. Practically any green and watery vegetable (with spinach, lettuce and tomatoes heading the list) is suitable if properly prepared, and this is where the mother needs real dietetic and culinary skill.

Fruits are also daily staples especially oranges, the perfect fruit of childhood, because of its mild, laxative salts, its lime content and its high per cent of natural sugars. Prunes, apples, stuffed with marmalades or raisins, baked bananas, fruit, salads served with a dressing made of its own fruit juice and a little sugar.

The mother whose child must carry a lunchbox has a real responsibility in seeing the box contains food and not froth, and inferior stuff. These should be two hearty sandwiches (protein) such as peanut butter, mashed egg, one light sandwich as of jelly or fruit, butter, a fresh fruit as orange, apple, or ripe bananas or their equivalent in stewed fruit carried in small jar. Sweet chocolate, raisins, or prunes stuffed with peanut butter or nut meat will satisfy the sweet tooth better than candy. In cold weather an individual Thermos bottle of cocoa, milk, or soup may be carried.

A VISIT TO THE HAUNTED HOUSE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: Well, I think we have had our Indian summer. I do hope it doesn't come off cold. Kochia: I have been to the haunted village. Some 200 years ago when the village was first built it must have been an Eden. It is the most lovely place I ever saw. It is a level tract of land between two wooded hills. There are some giant oaks 200 years old and they look so stately and grand. The river is a very crooked one on the west side and there is one on the east side. They had better have called it the ram's horn instead of the ram's tail. There were four small cottages and one long two tenement and one two story house. This, with the old mill, comprised the village. Some dear hand had set a lilac by the step of one of the houses and it is still a memorial of the dear one that is gone, a last reminder. The last family lived there over 50 years ago.

The mill was built by a man by the name of Potter. I have not found out just when but it was many years ago. I wish you and Peggy Alder had been with us. Where is Historian? Just call on me and we will find out about that lost village. It is not far from here. I am going to try and see that one too.

Aries: How are you and Adam? Both feeling fine I hope. I look at my little pine after many thanks for all. Tell Adam I think it must have been one of your babies that caught the poor little squirrel so as to get his tail. They say they bring one good luck that keeps one.

Kansas Lily: I hope you are having a nice time. Hope your health will be improved when you come home. It sure is lonesome. Peggy Alder: Your ma and daddy called Sunday and I was glad to see them. I am glad to have any of my friends come to see me if I cannot get out much. Ann Tenna: Many thanks. I hope you are fine.

WAYS TO USE CRANBERRIES.

Dear Sisters:—Cranberries charm the eye because of their decorative shape and rich ruby color. But the housewife informed on food values knows that the acid "salts" and favorful tang of the cranberry are exactly the needed contrast to rich meats, especially the holiday turkey—duck—or goose. Their refreshing acid cuts the fats and makes them more assimilable, and therefore digestible not only the fat of meats, but the shortening of pies, pastries or puddings. Mrs. Christine, declares there is as much health value in the little inexpensive cranberry as in more costly foods.

As in any cooking there is a right and wrong way to cook cranberries to bring them to the full perfection of flavor and appearance.

A basic recipe for cranberries as a delicious sauce, useful for many purposes follows: One quart of berries allow 3 cups of sugar and 2 cups of water. Wash and drain the berries in a colander discarding all imperfect fruit. Bring sugar and water to a boil and cook 10 minutes and to this syrup add 2 cups of cranberries, cover, simmer until each berry is tender, and translucent. Do not have the fire rapid or the berries will burst.

If you wish a thick jelly cook 4 cups of berries in one cup of boiling water 10 minutes, strain, return to the fire with 2 cups of sugar and allow to come to a boil, stirring constantly to dissolve the sugar. Turn into wet glass molds.

Refreshing Cranberry Sherbet—Boil 4 cups of water, and mash to a pulp: strain, add 2 cups of sugar and the juice of one lemon, cook up once, cool and freeze. It should be the consistency of water ice. For variation, the strained pulp may be combined with whipped cream, placed into a fancy mold and buried in ice or snow for several hours. It is then a mousse or a frozen fruit cream.

Thanksgiving Punch — Cover one quart of berries with water, simmer until soft, then strain; to one quart of this strained pulp add 1 1-2 cups of sugar and let cook up to dissolve the sugar. When cool add 2 cups crushed pineapple (canned) and syrup, flavor with 1-8 teaspoon cinnamon and 1-16 teaspoon of ground cloves. Pour over cracked ice, fill up with charged water or vichy and garnish glasses with whole candied cherries and spray of laurel leaves.

Cranberry Pie Supreme—2 cups of cranberries cut in holves, ½ cup of water, 1½ cups of sugar, 1 cup seedless raisins, 1 table spoon each of orange juice, almond extract, 1½ teaspoon vanilla, 1 table spoon butter, 2 table spoons of flour, ½ cup sifted crumbs. Line pie plate with flaky pastry and sprinkle the bottom of the crust with crumbs to absorb excess juice. Into sauce pan pour water, sugar and orange juice and bring to a boil. Then add cut berries and raisins and simmer for 10 minutes. Add butter, then flour (which has been mixed to a paste with cold water) and continue cooking a few moments longer. Remove from fire, add almond and vanilla extract and fill pastry shells. Finish tops with criss cross strips of pastry and bake in moderate oven 25 minutes. A meringue may be used in place of strips and the mixture baked in tarts instead of as a whole pie.

Spiced Cranberries — Four cups of cranberries, 1 cup cold water, 12 cloves, 12 allspice, 2 sticks cinnamon, 2 blades of mace, 2 cups sugar. Simmer clowly according to best method for sauce preparation.

Cranberry Fruit Butter: 3 quarts cranberries, 2 cups of water, 2 pounds of sugar. Cook berries in water until tender and soft, then sift. Return pulp to fire, add sugar, stir 30 minutes over simmering fire until quite thick and when cool turn into sterilized jars, and seal. A blend of cinnamon, cloves and grated nutmeg may be used for seasoning.

RECIPES AND IDEAS

Dear members of Social Corner: Thought I would send in recipe for my orange pie. Bake a shell and fill with this orange custard and see how good it is.

Orange Pie: Grated rind and juice of one orange, if large, two oranges if they are small, one cup sugar, 2 tablespoons flour (pastry), yolks of two eggs; stir all together, add one cup milk and cook in double boiler, add a small piece of butter. When cool pour in shell. Beat the two whites, add 2 tablespoons of sugar to each egg white, flavor with lemon, put on pie and brown lightly.

Sweet Potato Pie: One pint cooked mashed potato, two eggs, one cup sugar, about cup and a half of milk, or just enough to thin same as for squash or pumpkin, little butter, flavor with lemon. Bake like custard pie.

Rhubarb Cake: Cream one cup sugar with 1-2 cup butter, spices, cinnamon and cloves, 1 cup raisins, 1 cup unsweetened rhubarb sauce, 2 cups sifted pastry flour with one teaspoon soda; add one egg if you like to it. Can be made without, but I think it better with the egg. If you don't have rhubarb, use one cup of apple sauce. For frosting use one tablespoon milk with sugar to spread.

I am enclosing some ideas for fairs or Christmas:

At a recent bazaar they had a walking grab bag and it proved a great success. An old-fashioned dress was worn, something like the old crinoline dresses, with 100 patch pockets sewed on. In each pocket was a grab. Little handmade things like pot holders, sachets, bags, needle books, dust caps, men's handkerchiefs, garters, pins, etc., were used and everything went before the night was half over. The pockets can be numbered and one can charge according to number, or one can charge same amount for everything.

To make stocking cats to sell at fairs: Cut a pattern of a sitting cat about eight inches long by three inches wide of black cambric. Then take black stocking legs and nick at a little above the ankle for ears, and pull over cambric. Stuff with cotton wadding. Pull together and sew firmly at bottom and attach a quite long tail made by sewing a strip of silk stocking. Embroider lashes for eyes, two dots for nose and whiskers in white. Small pink mouth. In any bead store get some flat beads for eyes. They are very natural when attached. Tie ribbon around neck and on tail close to body. The whole cat does not cost more than eight cents to make and they are very simple to put together.

SEEING NORTHERN NEW ENGLAND.

Dear Social Corner Members: What a lovely day this has been, a real fall one. I only got as far as church as it's my day on duty. Last Sunday I had out, and had a wonderful ride of about 140 miles and I went down Dark Lantern hill which I have read so much about. It must be a wicked one in winter and I don't wonder we hear of so many accidents there.

Nancy Peck: Guess you have me mixed with some one else, as the only Washington I have ever been to is in Rhode Island. I should very much like to go there and also would enjoy meeting the white collie as I fall for all dogs, no matter what their station. I did get a trip through which I thoroughly enjoyed. We left home about 11 o'clock and went to Stafford fair in the afternoon. The next day went to Newfane, Vt., coming back to Brattleboro for the night. The next morning we went to a farm on the mountain where a large herd of registered Guernsey cattle is kept. Then we took the pretty 39-mile ride from Brattleboro to Bennington, over Hogback mountain. Some hills, but they were so well posted, "to be taken in second gear" and with various other warnings. We then went back north to Manchester. That was 30 some miles and then a moutain road of 33 miles to Springfield where we spent the night. So much for Vermont. We liked it very much. Every one was so cordial and their roads are kept so good. Every little while we would run into road workers. Their horses and harnesses looked so nice. Their wagons looked funny as the bodies were regular length but narrow with low side boards. They laughed at me because I liked to ride over the covered bridges. From there we went across to Keene, N. H., which is a nice place, through several towns to West Brookfield. We stayed that night in a lovely home of three elderly ladies. There was a beautiful lake there with cottages all around it where people go for the summer. From there the next morning we went to Worcester, Springfield, Hartford, Waterbury, Danbury to Norwalk and stayed there. The next morning we started for home through Bridgeport and New Haven. While this trip is nothing like those that many of the sisters have taken nevertheless we enjoyed it. When we got nearly home I thought, "We'll I guess I wont get to the Social Corner meeting at North Stonington tomorrow," but Cosmos who kept house for me had left plenty cooked to leave at home and something to carry, so by hustling in the morning I left a good dinner for the four men and enjoyed the Social Corner meeting too.

I must tell you about the bear we saw. One day as we were driving along the driver began to back the car saying there's a little bear. We got out. There were three or four houses along there and by one a little building with heavy wire in front and in it a sure enough bear, with a sign up five cents to see the bear. He was a dear. A lady was going past and we said, "Where is the kid that takes the pay?" She said, "Gone to school," but soon a boy came out. He said his father was blueberrying right up on the hill across and he saw the mother bear and two cubs and he caught the one. He wanted $50 for him. We got some cookies out of the car to feed him. There were some cookies with a jam filling. He would pull them apart and eat the jam first. The boy fed him tiny carrots. He was very fond of them.

Beth C.: I was surprised to learn you were still with O. D. Thought you went home the 15th.

Tafts: I think you must be a wonderful cook.

Skipper: Hope you are better by this time.

RECIPES FROM MOTHER PRESTON.

Dear Social Corner Editor and Friends: What lovely weather we are having but the frost has come so hard on three nights that most of the trees are almost bare. It looks so much like fall.

I was very much surprised to think that I won a prize in the Social Corner, for one of my letters of last month. And I do appreciate it very much. It will be used in buying a plant for a dear sick friend of mine and some stamps. Do you know sisters we are helping more than one when we buy stamps. We are helping Uncle Sam, too, as well as helping the Social Corned editor, who has so much patience with every one to look over all these letters and correct them. Really do we stop to think how tired he must get, and how good he is to give every one a chance in the Social Corner? We surely must do our duty to write every week or twice a month and help him the best we know how.

As I was visiting a friend a week ago we went into the theater. I sat down with ease and after a few pictures were over near the middle O! such lovely ones. I saw of our navy. Such large battleships and the water rolling and dashing upon the boats. Oh! how I long to be on one knowing I have two brothers there. It looks so good to see them.

I am going to send in a recipe for

Potato Pudding: Rub through a collander 6 large or 12 middle-sized potatoes, beat 4 eggs, mix with 1 pint of good milk; stir in the potatoes, sugar and seasoning to taste; butter the dish; bake one-half an hour. This recipe is simple and economical, as it is made of what is wasted in many families, namely, cold potatoes, which may be kept two or three days, until a sufficient quantity is collected. To be eaten with butter.

Oyster Soup: To each dozen or dish of oysters put one-half pint water; milk 1 gill; butter one-half ounce; powdered crackers to thicken. Bring the oysters and water to a boil, then add the other ingredients previously mixed together, and boil from 3 to 5 minutes only. Each one will choose to add salt, pepper, etc., to her own taste. Keep about these proportions if you should have to cook for an oyster supper, for parties, etc.

THE AMERICAN HOUSEWIFE'S THANKFULNESS.

Dear Sisters: I wonder how many of us pause a moment and see for what we should give thanks. The last Thursday in November is our official Thanksgiving day.

It doesn't seem as if we American women and housewives could fail to realize the number of comforts that we are privileged to enjoy day after day. It may be we do not see ourselves in comparison with women in other countries.

I think "first" we should be truly thankful because we are keeping house in America, and not in some other country. Do you realize that we are able to touch a button, and plug in to a dozen electrical conveniences. I have just bought a new roaster and I wouldn't believe they were so wonderful.

Second—We are thankful because we have the varied, abundant and universally available pure food supply of America.

Third—Because we have state and national government truly interested in solving the multiple problems of the housewife. The free bulletin of our department of agriculture, of our state institutions, the work of our home demonstration agents—all these have helped immeasurably to raise the standards of housekeeping and dignify homemaking into a profession.

Fourth—Thankful because we have manufacturers and advertisers with vision and willingness to aid the consumer and house manager.

Fifth—Thankful because we are American women.

Sixth—Thankful for the American and the American husband. In no other land is he so generous. I know the man of our house says. I install the most up-to-date files and equipment in my office, and the women folks have a right to the best there is in the home.

Now, Social Corner Sisters, haven't you something to be truly thankful for Thanksgiving day?

DELIGHTFUL DAY AT AUNT SARAH'S

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Once more I take my pen in hand to greet you all and so help keep the page full. First of all I wish to mention the lovely time which I had at "Aunt Sarah's" home. Such a beautiful day as it was. It made us all think of the good old summer time as we sat outside under the trees. She certainly has a lovely home. And such a lovely dinner as she gave us, together with her kind greetings to us certainly made the day to me one long to be remembered.

Bumblebee and I started right early from our home, had a very agreeable chauffeur, (which was one of the family of Bees) and I can tell you we just buzzed right along at a fine speed. We were very glad to see the yellow bows flying about to greet us, as well as the hostess and her many helpers.

Effie M.: Glad you were there to help me out. I.

Olga: Be more cautious next time.

Golden Glow: Hope you did not get too tired.

Queen Elizabeth: Glad to see you.

Nespa: Come down some of these beautiful days.

Butter Scotch Pie: Piece of butter size of walnut; 2 egg yolks, 1 cup brown sugar, 3 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk, 3 tablespoons cold water, vanilla flavor. Put all in double boiler, cook until thick, put in ready baked crust.

Make merique of the whites of the eggs put on top of pie and brown.

The Same One: You were jolly.

Bachelor Maid: What a good chat we had. Hope we meet again soon.

A BEDROOM MAT

Dear Editor and Readers: Just a line to fill in a corner. Presume you are all getting up steam for Thanksgiving day. This sort of autumn weather makes us all inclined to look on the bright side of life, which is fit and proper. Sorry I have not been able to attend any of the meetings so far but where there is life there is hope.

Want to tell you about a mat I made for bed-room floor. Had some woolen pieces cut from Adam's old suits. Washed, ironed and cut them circular and some like a rose petal. Bound the edges with red bias tape and arranged pieces on a firm foundation of burlap. Sewed the bound pieces to simulate a flower, the petals being of different sizes. Large ones at outer edges, smaller ones toward center.

How many are gathering bay berries to put into small cases on which to rub your flat-iron? They sell well at church bazaars.

We are now in the astrological sign Scorpio (The Scorpian) signifying "death." Death to foliage, insects, year. This sign corresponds to the part in our Lord's prayer "Lead us not into temptation" i. e. lead us not to slaughter, death.

DEARIE L. T. H.: Letters received. Many thanks for kind invitation. Au revoir.

HUGGING BEES

Dear Editor and Every Social Corner Member: I am sending a new way to make money for the benefit of the church, hoping some of the active members of the Social Corner will try it.

Out in Missouri they have hugging bees to make money for the church. An exchange quotes the price per hug as follows:

Girls under 15, 25 cents for each hug of one minute.
From 15 to 20, 50 cents.
From 20 to 25, 75 cents.
Schoolmarms, 40 cents.
Widows (according to looks) from 10 cents to $2.00.
Old maids, 3 cents apiece, or two for a nickle, and no limit of time.
Ministers are not charged.
Editors pay in advertising, but are not allowed until every one else gets through

CLUB 6 TO MEET IN WESTERLY

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: How are you all this beautiful morning? We are certainly having lively autumn weather. I hope all the shutins may be able to enjoy a day outdoors. It would do them more good than medicine.

I attended the meeting in North Stonington and had a delightful time.

The November meeting of Club No. 6 will be held in Veterans hall on West Broad street, Westerly. Look for the yellow bow. Each one bring their own dishes, and those that haven't been solicited please bring pies, cake or sandwiches. Hope to have a large attendance with visitors from other clubs.

Connie: You have my sympathy. I missed you at our last meeting.

With best wishes to all.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: I am acquainted with a number of members of Club No. 4. I think I would like to join the Social Corner and that club so I can attend the meetings. I will take as my pen name

GREATLY ENJOYED MEETING

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: Here it is November 1st, and what a lovely day it has been! Seems more like June than November. I have been out for a walk this afternoon, met Rosalind and husband and had a nice buggy ride home.

Hope all the sisters are feeling good after the lovely meeting we had last week Thursday. Seems so everything was perfect that day, and what a lovely dinner we did have. I enjoyed the day very much and was glad to see so many there.

Thirty Two: I see you won a prize last week. Was so glad to see you and family at the meeting Thursday. We don't see you all very often.

Bay State: I wonder why we don't hear from you about the ribbon badges. Hope nothing has bone wrong with them. Have been looking for it to come for a long time.

Three cheers for Sister B. Buffalo and Moses' Wife and our Social Corner.

Will now sign off. Best wishes to all.

Lesson No. 5

Question: Why should school children receive emulsified cod-liver oil?

Answer: Because the strain of the study-period and playground uses up energy, and emulsified cod-liver oil not only provides energy but also protects with its vitamins.

"There is no better way to save one's soul than to help others save theirs," was one of the ideas conveyed by Right Rev. Maurice F. Bishop McAuliffe also paid tribute to the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women for their interest and support in the National Catholic Service School, which the different councils have helped to finance. FLUCTUATING STOCK MARKET CLOSED WITH CONSIDERABLE IRREGULARITY

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—(AP)—Alternate periods of weakness and strength characterized today's stock market, with final quotations disclosing considerable irregularity. Special strength in a number of the coppers, tobaccos, biscuits, coals, cans and drugs was offset by the weakness of a number of steels, motors and specialties. Total sales crossed the 2,000,000 share mark for the second time this week.

Banks called about $15,000,000 in loans but call money continued in plentiful supply at the renewal figure of 3 1-2 per cent. The increase in brokers' loans proved disappointing to speculators for the advance although financing of recent new bond flotations was generally held to be responsible.

The weekly mercantile reviews provided little ground for encouragement in their analysis of the trade situation. Copper shares, however, responded to the reports of improvement in that industry. Calumet & Arizona was sold up more than 5 points to 95 3-8, the highest price in more than 10 years but lost half its gain on realizing. Magma reached new high ground at 51, and substantial gains also were recorded by American Smelting, Howe Sound, Anaconda and Cerro de Pasco.

Revival of activity and strength in the American Tobacco issues, which sold at new high records, followed the announcement that cigarette sales were breaking all records, with unusually favorable prospects for holiday trade. New peak prices for the year, or longer, also were established by American Linseed common and preferred, American Home Products, Radio Corporation common and preferred, United Drug, Burroughs Adding Machine and several others.

Renewal of selling pressure against the motors was attributed in some quarters to the unofficial reports of a new plan of financing for Ford cars. General Motors, Hudson, Mack Trucks and Pierce Arrow preferred being the hardest hit. Steels were liquidated as a result of the recent softening tendency in commodity prices and the disappointing character of fall business.

Bear traders succeeded in ferreting out a number of weak spots among the minor specialties. New low prices for the year, or longer, were registered by Electric Refrigeration, Foundation Co., United Cigar Stores, American Piano, Remington Rand, American Beet Sugar preferred, Cuban Can preferred. Rails drifted lower, but the declines, as a rule, were not large. Northwestern shares were strong in the early trading, but lost most of their gains.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Commodity markets were mixed. Cotton sold off at the opening and then rallied briskly, closing 2 to 30 points higher, with the day's operations largely devoted to an evening-up of accounts preparatory to the publication of the government crop report. The average guess of 87 members of the exchange estimates indicated production at 12,555,000 bales. Wheat declined 1 1-8 cents a bushel. Coffee and sugar showed little change.

Foreign exchange trading was quiet with changes narrow and irregular. Dutch guilders attained a new peak for the year above 40.30 cents and sterling cables sank below $4.87.

WESTERLY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 4—Torrential rains which began late Thursday afternoon and continued all Thursday night and early Friday morning filled the watercourses, brooks and tributaries of the Pawcatuck river. All overflowed their banks and sweeping across roads and through adjacent improved lands did thousands of dollars worth of damage, drove people from their homes and caused much suffering to man and beast. The waters continued rising along the lower reaches of the Pawcatuck river until late Friday afternoon. Reports came of various dams giving away up along the Pawcatuck Valley watershed, and later it was found that the Laurel Glen and Moscow dams had given away, while flashboards, were carried away from the Potter ill dam.

In the late hours of Thursday night streets and highways were so filled with rain, that in many places pockets and cutverts could not care for the excess water and miniature ponds and lakes formed. In Dixon square the water coming down the streets of Quarry Hill formed a pond which backed up to the post office steps. At the head of Main street, water found its way into the basements of buildings entering the furnace pit of the Washington Trust building, corner of Broad and Main streets and extinguishing the fire. At noon a gasoline pump was put in commission on Main street and the suction laid to the firebox pit to pump the water out of the basement. At a late hour Olcott G. Mills and John Ferguson were in the Westerly Furniture store of the Hinckley-Mitchel block on igh street and hearing the trickle of water, found that the leadoff from the roof had become stopped and water was working its way in through the roof. Proprietor John O. Mills was called an Fire Chief George E. Egger and helpers to assist in moving the furniture and getting rid of the water.

The brook, known as Babcock brook, having its sources near Phoebe Rocks, off Oak street and near the Frasier railroad bridge, flowing down across Narragansett avenue, became swollen beyond its culvert and drain pipe course and backing up, entered the cellars of many houses. A pony of Carl Crandall in the barn at the rear of his Grove avenue residence was released during the early morning while swimming with its nose on a window sill and with much difficulty was taken through the fences to higher ground. Many automobiles in garages were buried in the swirling waters and many on the highways went dead when water got into the mechanism.

A 15-foot hole was washed out, some forty feet in length and 12 feet back into the roadway, on Railroad drive, just above the tanks at the Picard filling station on Industrial drive. Sections of fence rail were carried down and the dirst and gravel washed clear from many feet distant all around an electric light pole which allowed it to drop down half its length damaging the wires which it carries. At the rear of Seidner Mayonnaise factory, on Friendship drive, a spur track for 100 yards had its entire gravel bed washed out and in places the rails and ties were left suspended in the air and water service pipes to the plant were left exposed. Much of the gravel washed down into Shady Side and at the rear of the Westerly Silk mill plant. An oil tank car was left stranded at the end of the spur track near the Picard filling station. At the Westerly beef house of Armour company, a refrigerator car was pushed ahead when a section of track there was undermined by the gravel filling washing out. The railroad embankment to the Pawcatuck river bridge was badly washed, the filling piling up on the property of the gas works plant of the South County Public Service company, between Canal street and the river. Employes were kept busy all night on the company grounds, salvaging all that could be kept out of the water's reach.

Early Friday morning the Pawcatuck river overflowed the dike along Canal street and swept over the highway from Varietyville corners to Riverside Park and at a second place near the Stillmanville bridge. The rising waters flowed back from the inundated section, crossing Canal street near the Eagle Waste & Metal junk yard. A dike or barricade was placed west of the highway and north of the gas plant grounds of the South County Public Service company.

Train service on the New Haven railroad was interrupted by washouts near Wood River Junction and between Pawcatuck and Wequetequock. The first trains by, in either direction, were six hours late. No. 39 westbound at 7:20 a. m., and east-bound No. 89, mail train making Westerly station stop at 8:30 a. m. Other night expresses followed closely, when repairs had been made at the washouts.

Trial of the civil case Samuel W. Clark of Hope Valley, R. I., vs. Jed Cousins of Jamaica Plains, Mass., required all the morning session of Third District court, before Judge Oliver H. Williams. Suit was brought by Clark to recover for work and supplies to a motor boat of the respondent, brought from Boston to Point Judith. Clark testified that in company with Captain Townsend on the trip, it was necessary to put into Plymouth, Mass. From 1924 to 1926 the witness installed a new propellor, sent to him by Cousins on which the boring work was done in the Hope Valley garage. Among other expenses incurred was the hiring of Capt. Hanson of Wakefield, R. I., to assist in the installation of a cock pit, placing a deck, repairs and changes to the engine, the total bill amounting to $350. The boat was the forty-foot motor craft, "The Loon."

Charles Clark of Hope Valley gave evidence that he had overheard the conversation between Cousins and Clark in which the latter was to take out his part when he sold the boat, and the balance to be given to the owner, Cousins. LeRoy Sherman of Hope Valley testified to making repairs to the marine engine.

Ned Cousins told of making an agreement with Clark for him to use the motor boat to enter the fishing business and denied any deal in which an auto was to have been taken in part payment, the sale to be for $1000. He said he was a metal worker. Charles A. Richmond, owner of a boat yard at Dorchester, testified to the boat's leaving those waters. Capt. Hanson of Wakefield stated that he did not value the boat highly. Judge Williams rendered decision for the defendant with costs.

Ernest Remor pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless driving of an auto on Elm street, Oct. 28th and was fined $25 and costs. Other court business was disposed of as follows: New writs entered before the call of the docket—John vs. James Bliven. If unanswered, continued one week.

Criminal Docket—State, Corp. James E. Norman vs. James Nicosia. Corp. Norman of the state police telephoned the court that duties on state highway washouts would prevent his court presence and the case was continued two weeks.

NOANK

The Saturday Night club gave a party for L. McGrath at his home. On account of the weather only about 20 members attended and the room was decorated with November flowers and crepe paper. Games were played the prize being a large picture of North Dock on a busy day. Billie Fitzgerald was the lucky man and won the prize. Carl Ashcraft with his handsaw played June Brought the Roses. Gordon Clark played two tunes on the piano at once; something the club members never saw before. A trio sang. A fine chicken dinner was served by chef Eugene Mallett. At the table, President William Crowell, in behalf of the club, gave Mr. McGrath a picture of the whale ship in 1877. He received many other presents.

In the fire room Thursday evening when the rain was coming down hard, the American Legion post, No. 55, held its meeting. Before the session, the Boy Scouts, troop No. 19, 24 strong, in charge of Scout Master Clifford Phillips, marched from their room on East Main street with their 12-piece band, leader Red Eldreigh, for it was the young soldiers' night with the Legion, taking their places at the table. In the kitchen was an ex-army cook, W. Lamphere, who spent many hours while at Camp Devens back of the stew pot for soldiers in his company of 300 men. Cook Lamphere gave them a real Noank oyster stew. The tables were set for 50. Home made cake, with West Mystic coffee and soda water for the scouts was provided. The Legion colors stood in front of Commander E. Francke, who opened the meeting, and chaplain Lester Smith offered prayer. Four new members were taken in. It was voted to go to Taftville by bus Monday, also to get cups. A prize will be given to any member getting the most members for 1928. The smallest fireman, Charles Ellis had the honor to be with the Legionnaires for the evening and he thanked them with a speech. Scout Master Clifford Phillips was invited to speak and he told how good it was to be with the ex-soldiers of the Legion.

After the meeting, chairman Stretch Morrison had charge of the program and a two-act play was put on. The Life of a Soldier at an Army camp. Col. Mike Long was Arthur Berry, cook; Billie Strong was Edward Morgan. The colonel's wife was Mrs. Mike Long as Miss Nellie Grant. The maid was Miss Sarah Sweet. The Dempsey and Tuhney fight picture was shown in the village hall recently, when the hall was packed. The people could see the 7th round where Tunney went down and it has stirred the whole town. The corner store members said Dempsey should have won the fight because he did all the leading while others said Tunney was too much of a boxer for Jack. A slow picture showed that Tunney got up at the count of 9. They all agreed it was a great fight, but one thing that several almost came to blows over was when Dempsey was knocked down and Referee Barry started to count with Tunney in the center of the ring. Nobody can explain it in or around Mystic or Noank. Several bets are being held up over it and the fans would like to have newspaper opinion on it, so the Stove-pipe club members will have the point settled.

A Halloween party was given Leland MacGrath at his home. The rooms were gay with Japanese lanterns, pumpkin moonshines, etc. He was surprised to see over 35 friends there to make it a real evening. The one who had the worst looking costume received a shaving set. William Trump, Jr., with his trousers patched with all colors and a straw hat, and with a corn cob pipe in his mouth was the winner. The wizard who read the palms was Stretch Moran. Games were played. Camerey's Noisy Five orchestra sent out the music to the ones who wanted to dance. Leland MacGrath and Miss Nellie Moore gave a piano duet, while Elliott Bennett sang "In the Evening by the Moon Light". Pumpkin pie and Ledyard sweet cider with grandmother's sugar doughnuts were the lunch.

"I agree with Morris Gest Luckies are most enjoyable"

Said Nikita Balieff, leader of Chauve-Souris, to one of his stars, during a performance of their nation-wide tour.

You, too, will find that LUCKY STRIKES give the greatest pleasure—Mild and Mellow, the finest cigarettes you ever smoked. Made of the choicest tobaccos, properly aged and blended with great skill, and there is an extra process—"IT'S TOASTED"—no harshness, not a bit of bite.

Morris Gest,
World-famous Theatrical Producer, writes

"Most of the American actors in my productions smoke Lucky Strikes—if not, I recommend these cigarettes because they protect the voice and are more enjoyable. Likewise I suggested Lucky Strikes to the Russian cast of Balieff's Chauve-Souris, which I am bringing back to America. First the men adopted them, then the women. To give the public one's best, either in spoken parts or in singing, my stars appreciate that Lucky Strikes are ever kind to the throat and are always superior in flavor."

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week the United Workers opened their "home" at No. 61 Thames street for the inspection of the public interested in the work they proposed to do there. The same week Rev. William James resigned his position as acting pastor of the First Baptist church. The republicans of the town nominated the Hon. L. F. S. Foster and I. W. Carpenter as their candidates for representatives to the state legislature. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Norwich Bulletin of October-November 1877 are as follows:

Monday, Oct. 29, 1877—Tramps flocked to the lodgings at the City hall in unusual numbers Saturday night, realizing, it may be supposed, that their keeping will be free, as work cannot be expected of them on Sunday. Seventeen applicants night before last but not half that number the night before.

D. T. Byington had a very narrow escape from a fatal accident at the Bacon Arms company's works on Franklin street, on Saturday. He was runing a buff wheel revolving at a rate of 3,000 times a minute, when it burst cutting him very badly over the eye.

The Rev. Mr. Montgomery gave a very earnest discourse last evening to a crowded house on the subject "Is Hell Endless?" At the close of the sermon three converts were baptized. Next Sunday evening he will preach on "Heaven."

Tuesday, Oct. 30, 1877—An alarm from box 16 about half-past one this morning was caused by a small fire in some excelsior lying on the steps at the entrance of the workshop of N. S. Gilbert & Sons in the Treadway block on Little Water street. The fire without doubt was of incendiary origin. The department was promptly on hand but was not needed. The damage was slight.

The United Workers will throw open "The Home" No. 61 Thames street, on Wednesday of this week, between the hours of 10 a. m. and 4 p. m., for the inspection of all persons interested in the work to be done there. They especially request the physicians of Norwich and vicinity to come and see for themselves the provision made for the sick in the hospital department.

The Rev. William James has resigned his position as acting pastor of the First Baptist church, West Side and preached his farewell sermon last Sunday. Mr. James has been laboring with the church for a year, a temporary arrangement having been entered into at the time of his engagement that the year should be a trial one. He now thinks best to continue it no longer.

Wednesday, Oct. 31, 1877—The ladies connected with Victory lodge, I. O. G. T., gave a very pleasant entertainment in G. A. R. hall. A bountiful supper and vocal music constituted the substantial part while pleasant conversation with the ladies made the affair a success socially.

Mrs. C. H. Brown of Preston City gave a second public reading to a crowded house in Preston Baptist church Monday evening.

The house on the farm in Franklin belonging to the William M. Converse estate, was burned yesterday morning about three o'clock. Undoubtedly the work of an incendiary.

Thursday, Nov. 1, 1877—The United Workers received a number of visitors yesterday at the building on Thames street which they have rented and fitted up for a hospital; and had not the weather been stormy in the afternoon, doubtless many more would have acted on the ladies invitation. The house is eligibly located, the apartments are nicely furnished, the medicine closet well stocked, conveniences for the sick room and the operating room are ample and there is a generally cozy and inviting look to the place.

The Rev. James L. Smith intends leaving the city about the 12th inst., to visit his former home at Heathsville, Va., in the vicinity of the Freedmen's school taught by Miss S. M. Thomas.

The unterrified greenbackers held their caucus at Uncas hall last evening. There was a fair attendance, considering the weather. Edwin J. Starr, president of the greenback club presided. Thomas E. Ryan and Levi G. Sutliff were chosen to bear the banner of the party at the coming election of representatives to the legislature.

Friday, Nov. 2, 1877—A fire was discovered by Sergeant Grant in the Pequot building, Central Wharf, Wednesday night, near midnight, but was put out without much damage. The floor had caught and the discovery was timely.

A fine crayon portrait of the supposed president of the O. D. Ones arrived in town yesterday and is on exhibition in the city on Shetucket street. Those who are familiar with the face of the gentleman, declare it unequalled in style, finish and portraiture.

A large number of boats were on the river yesterday, filled with men gathering oysters. It was the first day that the law allowed them to be taken.

Saturday, Nov. 3, 1877—The republicans of the town held their caucus for the nomination of representatives to the legislature last evening. Mayor Osgood was chosen chairman and Mr. Charles E. Dyer clerk. The meeting was well attended considering the weather. The chairman stated the object of the caucus and the voting for candidate for first representative was proceeded with. The Hon. L. F. S. Foster received a large majority of the votes cast and his nomination was made unanimous. Mr. I. W. Carpenter was unanimously chosen for the second place on the ticket.

Conductor Cody's train to New London, which leaves here at 12:55 struck a man named Patrick Connor at Thamesville yesterday afternoon. Some of his ribs were found to be broken and his wounds are doubtless fatal.

The old reading room in Hall's block which has been engaged by the Woman's Temperance Union will be opened this evening at 7:30 o'clock with a temperance prayer meeting.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 4—The funeral of Thomas Roche, son of Mrs. Maria Roche, of 66 Jay street, a World war veteran, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners, including delegations of members from the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars. The solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Raymond J. O'Callahan, with Rev. Michael Reagan deacon and Rev. George Clark, subdeacon. Miss Julia Murphy sang at the offertory, "Ave Maria," also gave as a waiting hymn, "Face to Face." The bearers were Earl Rose, Frank Silva, Charles Frink, William Reed, Earl Rose, Calvin Edmunds and John Sousa. The flower bearers were James Kanure and William Denehee. The body was accompanied to St. Mary's cemetery by an escort of sailors from the submarine base, a squad firing a volley over the grave and sounding taps as the casket was lowered to its final resting place.

DEATH OF WILLIAM WALSH FROM SUDDEN HEART ATTACK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 4—William Walsh, 45, employed as motion picture operator at the Capitol theatre, died suddenly of heart disease, aggravated by an attack of acute indigestion at his residence, 17 Tilley street, early this morning. He was the son of the late James and Ellen Walsh and had always resided in this city. Mr. Walsh is survived by his wife, three daughters, Dorothy, Doris and Pauline Walsh; two brothers, John Walsh of New Jersey and Joseph Walsh of Middletown and by four sisters, Mrs. Edward Thomas, Mrs. Charles Keenan, Mrs. H. G. Weeks and Miss Nellie Walsh.

Mr. Walsh performed his duties at the theatre last night, returning home about midnight. A short time after he arrived there, he suffered the attack of indigestion. He breathed with difficulty and a physician was summoned. Emergency treatment was prescribed for Mr. Walsh, but he rapidly succumbed to the heart attack.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 4—John Neilan, about 55, well known resident of New London, died suddenly, of apoplexy at his residence, 23 Pleasant street early this morning. His lifeless body was found when Mr. Neilan failed to appear about the house as usual. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Neilan and is survived by five brothers, James P., Edward S., Francis W., Joseph P. and Ambrose Neilan, the last named a resident of New York, and by three sisters, Misses Martha and Lena Neilan this city and another sister who resides in Bridgeport. He retired as usual and during the night he experienced the fatal attack, dying in bed without being able to summon assistance.

JOSEPH DAVANZO CAUGHT ROBBING THE CONWAY STORE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 4—The police made the capture of a burglar early this morning, it is believed, one of the crooks who has been robbing automobiles of their contents and it is probable that he has been guilty of burglarizing stores on a small scale. The man is Joseph Davanzo, 61 Golden street. He has been suspected a long time of bootlegging by selling liquor from his pocket, although he has never been arrested for that violation of the law, because he was never caught doing so. Davanzo was arrested while in the act of robbing a store and in the police court five hours after he was apprehended, probable cause of statutory burglary was found and the accused was held for trial at the next term of the superior court. He could not furnish a bond of $2,000 so was taken to jail.

Patrolman Frank Philopena was making his rounds through Main street about 4 o'clock and was trying the doors of business houses for the final time of the night. He tried the door of the tobacco store of Eugene Conway, 109, where Conway is proprietor of a clubroom, known as the Mohawk. He found the door unlocked. He entered the store and found Davanzo wrapping eight boxes of cigars, valued at $35 in a newspaper and about ready to depart. Davanzo was arrested and taken to police headquarters and locked up. The store and clubroom have been burglarized twice before. The first time cigars and cigarettes were stolen and the last night cigars, cigarettes, a sum of money and an architect's instrument, for Conway is an architect by occupation. The robbery this morning, nor the previous burglaries did not reveal any signs whatever of entrance having been forced, so the police were satisfied that the thief was using a key. Conway had stated however, that there were but two or three keys to his shop unless some one who he had entrusted with a key had caused a duplicate one to be made. When Davanzo was arrested it was learned that he had used a key to open the door. Believing that he was guilty of the previous robberies, Davanzo's room was visited by Detective Sergeants Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh and there valuable articles were found which the officers claim Davanzo has stolen. These articles comprised gold and silver plated cigarette cases and match holders, a camera, quantity of padlocks, a half dozen eye glass rims and a leather companion case, which had the initials, "R. Z. 2" in gold letters on it and which contained leather covered receptacles for holding shaving soap, cream and combs and brushes. These articles, it is believed, were stolen from automobiles that had been parked in the highway. The architect's instrument stolen from the Conway store was also found.

An automobile driven by Morris Rogoff, Station 5, Waterford, struck Miss Frieda Gentilella, 858 Bank street, at the corner of Union and State street. Miss Gentilella refused to be taken to the office of a physician that she might be examined to ascertain whether she had been injured, but walked away with the statement that she was unhurt. The accident occurred when Miss Gentilella was on the crosswalk and as the car turned from State into Union streets.

Patrolman Clarence Wells is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, where he underwent a minor operation yesterday.

Patrolman John Foley has resumed duty after having been confined to his home on Huntington street for a fortnight because of illness.

Joseph Amorel, 430 Trippe street, Brooklyn, N. Y., married and an ex-sailor, charged with attempted assault on Miss Adelaide Stillman, nurse, of Berkley avenue, was presented in the police court today. Probable cause was found and Amorel was held for trial at the next term of the superior court. His bail was fixed at $3,000, which he could not furnish, so he will be in confinement two months before he goes to trial for an offense, if he is convicted, which carries with it a severe prison term or heavy fine or both. After the adjournment of today's session of court Amorel talked freely and even said that he was willing to accept any punishment that the court meted out to him. There is a possibility that Amorel is partially of unsound mind and it would not be surprising if a commission were appointed within a day or two for the purpose of examining Amorel.

Nora Noonan, wife of William Malone, died this morning at her residence, 13 Wall street, after an illness of but a few weeks. She was the daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth and the late John Noonan and was born in this city. Mrs. Noonan is survived, besides her husband and her mother, by a son, William Malone, Jr., two brothers, John and Daniel Noonan and two sisters, Mrs. J. B. Almeida and Miss Elizabeth Noonan, of this city.

The police tonight received a telephone message that a Buick automobile had been parked for a day or two in a lot off Mohegan avenue, opposite Connecticut college and that the markers were Connecticut, L-2803. These markers are the property of John Wall, Hill street, who reported to the police Oct. 29th that they had been stolen, but the automobile is not that owned by Wall. It is believed that Wall's markers were stolen and placed upon the auto that apparently has been abandoned.

The police this afternoon raided a North Bank street restaurant where, it was believed, liquor would be found, for they had been informed that the eating house was a distributing point by the glass and bottle of booze of the home-made variety. Prohibition Enforcement Agent Joseph Fitzpatrick, Detective Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith and a squad of patrolmen went to the restaurant about 3 o'clock and conducted a systematic search, but were not rewarded in the finding of any semblance of liquor.

VIEW OF DAM AND GATEHOUSE AT DEEP RIVER RESERVOIR

CITY'S NEW RESERVOIR ON DEEP RIVER IS APPROACHING COMPLETION

The city's new 450 million gallon reservoir on Deep River is at present so near completion that probably within three or four weeks the gates will be closed to begin filling the pond behind the dam, of which a small portion at the foot of the dam can be seen in the accompanying picture.

At the present time the dam is practically completed, but there is considerable cleanup work to be done in the basin of the reservoir in the way of pulling stumps, ploughing and leveling off, which employes of the contractor are now engaged at.

The superstructure on the gatehouse which is shown in the picture has been completed and the gates could be closed at any time to begin the accumulation, which it has been estimated will take about a year to reach full pond. One of the latest pieces of work has been the completion of the spillway, a view of which is given in one of the accompanying pictures, showing how it is stepped down in a series of broad concrete slabs to break the force of the waste water when it pours out of the reservoir pond. At the lower end of the spillway the water discharges into the brook and there the big steam shovel has dropped a flooring of big boulders which will prevent the bed of the stream from being washed away by the flow of water.

The heavy storm of Thursday night gave a precipitation of 2.37 inches, according to the measurements taken by the water department, and showed its effect at once on the two city reservoirs. Stony Brook, which was 1 foot, 3 inches, above the old full pond mark last Tuesday, was three feet above the old full pond mark Friday afternoon. This is within two feet of filling the pond to the top of the five foot addition that was put on the original dam.

Fairview reservoir on Friday was 5 feet, 5 inches, below full pond.

REV. EDWARD EELS WILL BE SPEAKER SUNDAY

Trinity Methodist church is bringing to Norwich for Sunday evening a man who has a long record as a lecturer and preacher. He recently appeared in the large church in South Manchester and the pastor Rev. Joseph Cooper says of his message: "It was finely rendered. Mr. Eels is dramatic, humorous, thoughtful. His message is a refreshing tonic to the mind. It lifts the shadows from life by sane council. It gives a Christian basis for optimism. The message is worth hearing and the messenger is well worth knowing. I recommend it for everybody and anywhere."

In the vestry of the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church, Friday from 5 to 6:30, a company of 24 children whose ages range from six to 14, also four adults, enjoyed the following appetizing supper: Escalloped potato, beef loaf, cabbage salad, rolls, cake, fancy cookies and cocoa. Mrs. Jerome Greer, wife of the pastor of the Gales Ferry Methodist church, and a former pastor of the Norwich Town Methodist church, was the guest of honor. Preceding the supper, the pastor of the entertaining church, Rev. Albert E. Whitten, said grace.

Mrs. Frederick H. Bushnell and Miss Florence M. Bennett were in charge of the special arrangement to bring Mrs. Greer before the children. To them she gave a most interesting talk along the line of missionary work, holding the close attention of her listeners. Miss Edith Ellis and a class of girls from the Central Baptist church, Norwich, will meet the same group of children at the Methodist church Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock.

When the Norwich Town club of New London County Home and Farm bureau holds a special meeting on millinery, at the home of Mrs. Arthur Fulton, Huntington avenue, Tuesday next, felt is the material that members should bring for that type of hat, not silk material. The thread which is to be used should not be silk.

AWARDS COMPENSATION FOR WORKER'S BROKEN LEG

In the workmen's compensation claim of Max Mayerhoff of New London against Schwartz Leather Co. of that city, Commissioner Albert J. Bailey has overruled a contention that the employe had not entered upon his employment at the time he sustained injury on June 24, 1927. The commissioner awards compensation at $15 a week for 12 3-7 weeks, amounting to $183.42 for the time from June 24 to Sept. 19, together with payment of medical and hospital bills.

Mayerhoff was driving in a motor truck from New York on June 24 with his employer when he fell from the truck in Colchester and broke a bone in his right leg.

At times prior to June 24, 1927, the employer and employe had made arrangements whereby Mayerhoff was to come from New York to New London to direct employes in the use of machines at New London, and the accident occurred while Mayerhoff and his employer were traveling to New London by the motor truck which was being used to bring material to New London for use in the leather company plant there.

PAYS $5 FINE FOR NOT CARRYING LICENSE

A fine of $5 flat was imposed on Joseph Cantor of No. 7 Garden street, New Haven, when he was presented in the city court Friday morning on a charge of driving a machine without having his operator's license with him. His arrest came about as the result of an automobile accident about 10:30 o'clock Thursday night on Water street near the Strand theatre, when the machine he was driving collided with a machine driven by William Selvidio of No. 24 Ore street. The crash caused Cantor's machine to collide with an Oakland 6 owned by the Rosoff Motor Mart and driven by Robert E. Pellerin of No. 40 Greene avenue.

Franklin Group Organized

Mrs. Belle H. Robinson, home demonstration agent of the county farm bureau, met the Franklin group Thursday for an all day meeting at the home of Mrs. Jason Kingsley of Lebanon road. A class was organized with the following officers: President, Mrs. Maude Kahn; vice president, Mrs. Jason Kingsley; Mrs. Austin Rathbun, secretary.

Sixteen were present, twelve felt hats were finished and others were started. A delicious noon luncheon was served consisting of vegetable and fruit salads, hot rolls, corn custard, pickles, sandwiches, cake and coffee.

Attendance Day at Central Church

At the Central Baptist church on Sunday morning special effort will be made to have members of the church who cannot be in regular attendance present. Automobiles will be available by telephoning Miss Ellis before nine o'clock Sunday morning. The theme will be "Hosea, the Prophet of Forgiving Love," and the Lord's Supper will be observed.

George D. Hernandez will render three groups of Negro spirituals at the evening church service. He is a soloist of very unusual ability, having been trained for concert work. His numbers will be:

"In My Father's House are Many Mansions", Jewell; "Steal Away to Jesus", Baker; "Go Down Moses", Burleigh.

"Goin' Home", Fisher; "Were You There", Burleigh; "No Death", Ohara.

"Poor Me", Dett; "Don't You Let Nobody Turn You Round", Schaffer; "One Sweetly Solemn Thought", Ambrose.

Frank B. Lenz, resident in the orient for many years, a writer of ability and a member of the International Y. M. C. A. council, will be the speaker of the evening.

It is expected that nearly every denomination in Connecticut will be represented in this big gathering.

Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock of Willimantic Congregational church will make the address at the evening session when the Norwich Christian Endeavor union holds its annual fall meeting on Friday, Nov. 18, at Norwich Town Methodist church. A banquet will be served at 6:30.

THIEF SELECTED MACHINE FROM BALTIC GARAGE

Sometime Wednesday night a 1925 Ford coupe owned by a Baltic man was stolen from the Main street garage in Baltic. The garage, which is owned by William Stenson, was entered through a rear window which was forced. The garage was ransacked and the stolen car was driven through the main entrance. Seats in several machines in the garage were raised as if the thief or thieves were looking for tools. A new Chrysler machine was not touched. The cash drawer and papers in the office were not disturbed.

TAFTVILLE

In an interesting article on the Boys' club of Bristol, of which Edward Benoit, a former Taftville young man is the physical director, the Bristol Press says among other things: "A very pleasant surprise was sprung by superintendent James G. Bobson when he called for the physical director of the club to present a group of the older members of the club, who under the direction of Edward Benoit, gave a very interesting exhibition of work which was the result of only six weeks of training. These young gymnasts went through various stunts on the parallel bars, following which were evolved several pyramid formations ending their exhibition with a grand cheer for the club and campaign. It was a very positive demonstration of the possibilities of the work that will be possible with a well equipped gymnasium. In speaking later in the evening, Toastmaster Major Malone paid a special tribute to Leader Benoit, stating that the remarkable physique that he possessed had been developed by careful training and a determination to succeed, this change having come about from a condition of but a few years ago when the young man was crippled."

A meeting of various members of the Taftville Congregational church parish was held Thursday evening in the church vestry to make plans for the annual church fair. Allan Bogle was elected chairman, and Rev. Edwin Gordon Crowdis, treasurer. It was decided to have a two night fair, with entertainment on both evenings. One night a comedy will be presented under the direction of Miss Gertrude M. Young, and a minstrel show is to be given on the following night in charge of Richard Oat. The booths will be taken care of as usual by the various parochial organizations, the Ladies' Benevolent society having the fancy work and home cooking booth; the Ocowasin Camp Fire Girls' the candy booth; the members of the W. P. G., the ice cream booth, and the church school, the apron booth.

The monthly business meeting of the Ponemah Wheel club was held Tuesday evening at the clubhouse on Norwich avenue. There was a large attendance and at the business session, at which the president, Christopher Troeger presided, several important business matters came up for consideration.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Bogle of Providence street have been recent visitors in Montreal, Canada.

Miss Noella Bouley of Hunters avenue has resigned her position with the local mills.

Thursday's rain caused motorists to use extra caution in proceeding about the streets of the town, and several minor accidents were reported. At the corner of Providence street and Norwich avenue, a car skidded while coming down the grade known as Post Office hill, striking the curb in front of Mill No. 1 of the Ponemah company and demolishing the rear wheel. On the Canterbury turnpike, just west of the residence of Charles P. Busnnell, another car figured in a skidding accident, crippling the fender and damaging the rear end, tearing off two tires and knocking down a section of the state road fence. On the same road, unusually slippery throughout the day, a touring car skidded across road and buried the radiator in a sand bank, but without damage to car or occupants.

When the members of Council Gagnon, No. 208, Union St. Jean Baptiste d'Amerique held their monthly business meeting at their rooms in the Parish hall building on Merchants avenue Thursday evening, the president, Edmund Proulx had charge of the meeting.

The Basketry club met Thursday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building. The evening was devoted to both instruction and work.

A great many young people of the village are taking advantage of the night school sessions which are held at the Wequonnoc school. Many are attending to take their first lessons in English.

A meeting of the members of the St. Louis society was held Friday evening.

Mrs. Roy Clarke and her daughter, Miss Marian L. Clark have returned to New London after spending the past few days at the home of Mrs. Clarke's father, Axel L. Aberg and her sister, Miss Helen C. Aberg of North Third avenue.

Invitations have been sent to members of the Taftville Social and Football club for a lunch and smoker to be held at the clubrooms at the Ponemah house next Monday evening. David Murphy is chairman of the entertainment committee, and the members are expecting "Dave" to live up to his reputation in furnishing talent which helps to make the crowd merry and the evening pass quickly.

So much rain fell Thursday night that the gutters which line the streets were unable to take care of the overflow, and the fallen leaves which were carried into the pipes by the sudden rush of water helped to make the condition worse. A gang of men were busy most of the day Friday getting the leaves out of the pipes so that the water could run off.

"SHAMPOO" IS HINDOO FOR MASSAGE

The secret of beautiful hair is in the word "Shampoo." In Hindoo, it means massage; in English, thorough cleansing of hair and scalp. Frequent cleansing with antiseptic pine tar soap, which banishes germs, tones and stimulates—together with vigorous exercise of the scalp—keeps hair and scalp healthy. Hair specialists usually recommend Packer's, the standard brand of tar soap for 55 years, for the shampoo. At all dealers.

POETRY

Indian Summer

These are the days when birds come back,
A very few, a bird or two
To take a backward look.

These are the days when skies put on
The old, old sophistries of June—
A blue and gold mistake.

Oh, fraud that cannot cheat the bee,
Almost thy plausibility
Induces my belief.

Till ranks of seeds their witness bear,
And softly through the altered air
Hurries a timid leaf!

Oh, sacrament of summer days,
Oh, last communion in the haze
Permit a child to join,

Thy sacred emblems to partake,
Thy consecrated bread to break,
Taste thine immortal wine!
—By Emily Dickinson.

The Rain in the City

'Tis raining in the city,
The chilly, autumn rain;
It makes one sigh to see it
Because it falls in vain;
No grass to give it welcome,
No thirsty roots to feed
Until they lift their flowers—
Not even a wayside weed.

'Tis raining in the city,
The gray drops thick and fast
Are slanting through the twilight
As if they feared the blast;
The wind is fierce and fitful,
Its wrath they cannot brave,
It hurls them down in splashes
Of mist along the pave.

'Tis raining in the city
Upon a frowning throng;
Indeed I fear some curse it
Who haste the curb along,
As though the falling water
By any chance would choose
To wet their wretched raiment,
Or soak their broken shoes.

'Tis raining in the city—
But from my cosy room
I view the dreary chilliness
Without a thought of gloom:
I hope there's naught that's selfish
Behind my window look;
To all outside I'm wishing
Good cheer across my book.

'Tis raining in the city;
May all the hurrying feet
Ere long find one that's waiting
With smiles their step to greet—
And so I salve my conscience
With wish akin to prayer,
For than a home what's dearer
If but one loved one's there.
—Samuel Minturn Peck.

KALEIDOSCOPE

A recent survey shows that only 1.5 per cent of all the doctors graduated in this country in the last ten years have gone to practice in rural districts.

Steel tapes used in international boundary surveys and other measurements of outstanding importance permit of a precision of better than one part in a million.

British farm experiments show that strawberries should be planted as closely together as possible, because a picker spends more than one-fourth of each hour in walking from plant to plant.

Free liquor was dispensed with a liberal hand along a District of Columbia road. The dispenser was the operator of a large automobile which had broken down. Apparently determined on saving his car from confiscation by federal agents, the driver gave his liquor to passing motorists as fast as possible. There seemed to be a good demand.

The first long-distance telephone conversation was from Boston to Cambridge in 1876, and the length of the line was only two miles, according to the New Jersey Public Utility information committee. At the end of 1926 there were nearly 6,300,000 miles of telephone wire devoted exclusively to long-distance messages, which total about 2,400,000 every day. By means of transcontinental trunk lines and branches running north and south it is possible to carry on a long-distance telephone conversation between almost any two points within the United States as well as in Canada and Cuba.

An odd error in translation from English to German and back to English again, which resulted in a native "tea" shrub of the south being misnamed "Japan," is recalled by Victor K. Chesnut of the United States department of agriculture, who made a chemical study of the plant in collaboration with the late Dr. F. B. Power. The shrub, which is related to the holly and contains considerable caffein, has long been used along the South Atlantic coast as a source of a tealike beverage, and was thought of during the war as a possible raw material for the soft drink industry. The Indians, who used it before the white men came, called it "Yaupon," and it is still known by that name. Shortly after the revolutionary war a German traveler, Johann David Schoepf, made a journey through the newly liberated states, writing about everything and anything he saw. He made notes about this Yaupon tea, and since the German letter "J" has the same pronunciation as the English "Y," he transliterated the name as "Japan." More than a hundred years later, his book was translated into English, and the translator simply lifted the "Japan" out of the German original, so that the Indian plant was dowered with an oriental name.

FLOOD DEATH LIST NOW 125; DAMAGE MANY MILLIONS

The Flood is Receding in Vermont—A Score of Towns, Left Partially Destroyed, Will Be Cut Off From Rail Communication For Many Days—Highways in Many Districts are Impassable—Army Planes Have Flown to Vermont and New Hampshire Towns With Typhoid Serum, Medicene and Salt—Pneumonia Serum is Needed.

BOSTON, Nov. 6—(AP)—Without stopping to count their dead or estimate property losses, survivors of flood-swept northern New England towns today were occupied with caring for the living.

The flood has spent itself in the sections first stricken by the mad waters but a score of towns left partially destroyed face a prospect of being cut off from rail communication with the rest of the country for many days with the highways presenting a problem hardly less dark.

The death list stood at approximately 125 with additions likely as the losses are more definitely compiled. Property damage at the moment defied estimate. It was known that the final accounting will reach a total of many millions of dollars.

With the highways impassable and in some cases no longer in existence relief was sent to the marooned people from the air.

Where broad, smooth highways invited swift, sure transportation before the flood came, scores of ditches, 20 feet deep in some cases, have been cut by the rushing waters and stand to mock attempts to drive motor cars through to the cities that were.

Army airplanes today made a survey of the situation, curtailed in part by storms and snow. Ludlow, Vt., home town of the attorney general, John G. Sargent, was being swept by a storm accompanied by snow as the observing plane flew over it.

Northfield, Vt., home of Norwich university, was also reported cut off and an airman trying to see just what the situation is was forced back by a storm at Bethel.

Randolph, Vt., from the air seemed almost entirely cut off by water, an aviator reporting that it seemed to be the most seriously damaged town south of Montpelier.

Aviators flying over Montpelier said that the waters had receded and the river was back in its banks.

Army planes have reached Vermont and New Hampshire towns with supplies of typhoid serum, medicine and salt, and Major General Preston Brown, commanding the first corps area, went by plane to Montpelier to confer with Governor Weeks on the question of relief measures.

Lieutenant Colonel Foulois, commander of Mitchel field, flew to Concord for a survey of the flood district.

In addition to the typhoid serum being supplied, pneumonia serum is also needed.

At the request of Governor Weeks, General Brown has halted a movement of troops from Burlington to Montpelier. The Vermont chief executive advised the army officer that no further need exists for soldiers or supplies. Food from St. Johnsbury relieved that vital question for the capital.

Messages by circuitous routes and persons fighting their way through the mud from the Winooski valley have confirmed earlier news that the most sorely stricken towns in the flood's path are Waterbury, Bolton and Richmond. Reports of severe loss of life in these three places persisted, although today's reports made no additions to the tentative total of three score flood victims in the Winooski valley.

Montpelier, escaping with slight loss of life, was hard hit physically and although the city remained isolated by lack of transportation facilities, the hardy residents stood in the debris about them and started the work of repair.

At Montpelier the waters reached a height of 15 feet in the business section and receding carried away the houses and automobiles which had been floating in the streets. In contrast to the high water at the capital, the flood reached only four or five feet in the streets of Barre but swept through the town with a velocity not felt by its neighbor. The death of Lieutenant Governor S. Hollister Jackson was attributed to the speed of the rushing waters. As the second state ranking state official stepped from his automobile near his home he was swept to his death.

The passing flood was succeeded by snow at Rutland, Vt., and Becket, Mass.

Another wholesale destruction of a family was reported when news came that in the 25 deaths at Waterbury were red Charles and all the members of his family, seven in number. Earlier reports had told of the death of the John Sargent family, totalling seven also.

Joseph Osmun Skinner, editor of the Hanover, (N. H.) Dartmouth, was back at his editorial office today after a perilous trip in which he won the honor of being the first "outsider" to penetrate to Barre, Vt.

Leaving Hanover at 8 o'clock Friday night he reached Barre, 54 miles away under normal conditions, at 9 o'clock yesterday morning, travelling, however, 109 miles. He spent four hours on one hill and finally had to abandon his automobile and finish the journey on foot.

At Barre and Montpelier, Mr. Skinner told the Associated Press he was amazed at the extent of the property damage wrought by the flood.

BOSTON, Nov. 6—(AP)—With several towns in the Winooski valley of northwestern Vermont, where the floods of last week levied their heaviest toll, still to be heard from, the list of known dead tonight had reached 89. ARMY FLIERS REPORT SCENES IN FLOODED AREA

BOSTON, Nov. 6—(AP)—All troops sent from Fort Ethan Allen, near Burlington, to the relief of Montpelier, were ordered withdrawn by Major General Preston Brown, commanding officer of the first corps area, after word had been received from Governor Weeks of Vermont today that their services were not needed.

Governor Weeks notified General Brown that there was no further need either of soldiers or supplies and the order directing the return of the troops which set out yesterday when the situation in Montpelier was uncertain, was obligatory under those circumstances, it was explained at the army headquarters here.

Army fliers ranged over the flood area in flocks today many converging on Montpelier and Barre. From their reports the most adequate picture yet obtained of the flood area, was pieced together. It showed many towns and villages still practically cut off from outside communication, although the streams were falling and rivers were dropping back within their banks.

Two airplanes carrying typhoid fever serum, medicine and yeast, landed at Montpelier a report sent back to the army base established at Concord, N. H., said.

Another flier, who made a reconnaissance about the Montpelier area, reported the waters had receded there and that the river again was within its banks. Many automobiles could be seen passing back and forth across the bridge in Montpelier and others were running in the streets of the city. Most of the railroad and highway bridges, between Montpelier and Barre appeared to have been washed away.

On the north side of the city of Barre railroad tracks appeared to be washed out and between Montpelier and Northfield Falls the track was out in a number of places.

A summary of the early reports sent back by the arby fliers gave the following observations:

Montpelier: Water receding and automobiles moving about.

Barre: Water receding; many bridges and railroad tracks washed out.

Randolph, Vt.: Apparently almost entirely cut off; conditions apparently worse than in any other place south of Montpelier.

Ludlow, Vt.: Storms raging; communications restored.

Bellows Falls, Vt.: No suffering; no loss of life, heavy property damage apparent.

Windsor, Vt.: No suffering; no need of outside help or food; heavy property loss.

Northfield, Vt.: Cut off from outside communiction.

Bethel, Vt.: Snow falling.

AN ARMY FLIER WAS FORCED BACK BY STORM

BOSTON, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Ludlow, Vt., the home of Attorney General John Garibaldi Sargent, was struck by a heavy storm which swept that portion of the flooded area of Vermont today, army aviators who flew over the region reported upon their return.

The army flier, Lieutenant Overacker, who had set out for Northfield, Vt., with a load of yeast which he planned to drop on the parade ground at Norwich university, was forced to turn back by the storm in the vicinity of Bethel. He reported that snow was falling in that place, and that the storm was general over that region.

Lieutenant Overacker's plane carried about 20 pounds of yeast which was reported to be needed badly at Northfield, which was virtually cut off from outside communication.

HEAVY SNOW FALL IN NORTHERN NEW YORK

DUNKIRK, N. Y., Nov. 6—(AP)—Dunkirk and surrounding towns were hit by a snowstorm today. Motorists arriving here from Mayville and Dewittville this afternoon reported a heavy snowfall in that end of Chautauqua lake. They encountered drifts on the Mayville-Westfield state road that were four feet deep in spots.

None of the tugs of the local fishing fleet were able to go out on account of snow flurries and a southwest gale.

Copper producing figures for the nine months of 1927, showing world output of 1,249,132 tons of which the United States contributed 719,560 tons, or 57 per cent, is considered indicative of the control of the industry by American capital.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

SHANGHAI, Nov. 6.—(AP)—About 135 women and children were killed here in the collapse of a building where women textile workers had gathered to form a new labor union.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The British automobile industry has launched an intensive campaign to hold its own against an expected new offensive from American automobile manufacturers.

LONDON, Noc. 6.—(AP)—A Reuters despatch from Allahabad says that information has been received there that Lieutenant Otto Koennecke en route from Germany to the United States via the Orient, made a forced landing at Etawah, 177 miles from Allahabad.

BODY OF GENERAL GOMEZ BROUGHT TO MEXICO CITY

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 6—(AP)—The body of General Arnulfo Gomez, one of the chiefs of the recent revolution, was brought back to Mexico City late last night. Gomez had been captured and executed near Teocelo, state of Vera Cruz, by General Escobar, commander of the federal forces, early Saturday morning. Two other rebel officers were executed at the same time, Gen. Vizcarra and Col. Castanos, and their bodies were on the same train.

It was difficult to recognize the Gomez of old. His characteristic turned moustache was gone; there was a light growth of beard, and the body was thin, showing the effects of privations Gomez must have suffered during his short lived rebellious adventure. A mole on the left cheek, near the mouth, made identification possible and a photograph was taken of Gomez, his nephew, Francisco Gomez, Vizcarra and Colonel Salvador Castanos, as the bodies, dressed in civilian clothing, were laid in ambulance stretchers at the railway station, while large crowds anxious to satisfy their curiosity surged around.

Gomez showed seven bullet wounds, four near the heart, Vizcarra thirteen, Castanos five. When the surgeons' work was completed, Gomez and Vizcarra were laid in two silk lined coffins bearing silver plates, on which the names and dates of death were inscribed, and turned over to Vito Alessio Robles, brother of the president of the anti-reelectionist party supporting General Gomez in the presidential race. The body of Castanos remained unclaimed, on a marble slab in the hospital.

WHY THE VAN LOONS HAVE SEPARATE DOMICILES

CHICAGO, Nov. 6—(AP)—A twenty year old red-haired son has identified himself as one reason his father, Hendrik Willem Van Loon, and the third Mrs. Von Loon, Frances Goodrich, the actress, keep separate establishments.

The "reason," Henry Podvitch Van Loon, (Henry Podvitch) he said, when with his mother, the first Mrs. Van Loon, offered his explanation while Mr. Van Loon upon arrival here was reiterating that there was nothing new about his marriage arrangements.

"Besides," put in the youngster, "dad and I just about fill up our apartment anyway."

"Sure," said Van Loon, with a healthy smack on his offspring's back, "have to get up every morning to make coffee for the kid."

Van Loon, author and illustrator, came to attend the opening of an exhibition of his drawings.

"There are hundreds of wives and husbands living in separate apartments as we do," he said. "It got on the front page this week because there weren't any murders on that particular day. If the jury tampering in the Fall case had been discovered a day earlier no one would have paid any attention to us.

"We have separate apartments because we each have our own work to do."

"Of course, we see each other," answered Van Loon, with a show of impatience. "See her every day. She buys her own things and I buy mine. When we go in the subway together I pay the fares. And I buy her a daisy once in a while too."

CLAIMS WORLD'S SPEED RECORD FOR AIRPLANES

MITCHEL FIELD, N. Y., Nov. 6—(AP)—An unofficial world's speed record for land planes was claimed today for Lieutenant Lloyd J. Williams, U. S. N., when he announced he had attained a speed of 322.6 miles an hour during the first test today of his ship since its recent conversion from a seaplane.

The present official world's record of 278 miles an hour for land planes was established in France in 1925 by Warrant Officer Bonnett, of the French army Yesterday it was announced in Italy that Major Mario de Bernardi, Italian flying ace, had attained an official speed of 315.43 miles in a hydroplane.

Williams said his speed mark today was made while traveling with the wind over one lap of the same course over which he established the present American speed record of 266 miles an hour for land planes.

Williams announced that he expected to make an official flight later in the week in an effort to establish a new world's record for land planes. His confidence in the ability of the plane to meet this demand was reflected in his statement that later he planned to install a new motor, equipped with a super-charger, in an effort to establish additional records "that will stand."

The flight today was at dusk, and was made officials said, in weather that was not ideal. Weather bureau officials said the wind at the time of the flight was at a velocity of forty miles per hour.

Driven From Homes on Hartford River Front

River Has Risen to 28 Feet and 9 Inches and Still Rising Slowly.

(By The Associated Press)

Unleashed, an angry seething [illegible] strom, the flood peak of the [illegible]ticut river roared into this s[illegible] night on it away to the waters [illegible]g Island sound with inhabit[illegible] cities and towns along its [illegible] fighting desperately to check [illegible] career marked with death a[illegible]struction to the north.

Measurements t[illegible] by the Loomis Institute in Win[illegible] six miles north of Hartford, indic[illegible] that the peak had been reached in the river there when no rise in the water was recorded between 6.15 and 7 p. m. Every building of the institute was without heat when the flood put their power plant out of commission, and 500 students were grouped about open fireplaces in dormitories to keep warm. Raw cold weather prevailed.

Two sections of Windsor were entirely cut off from the rest of the town and the Dyke road, from the Farmington river to Windsor Locks, was flooded for the first time since it was built 50 years ago. Trolley service to Hartford was stopped when the lines were covered with water near the Windsor town line, and busses were used for transportation using round-about routes.

Three houses near the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad bridge across the Farmington river were flooded nearly to their eaves, and the occupants were driven out. In Hartford, hundreds of people along the river front were driven from their homes as the water passed the 28-foot level. At that point, the water continued to rise slowly. In event of its reaching the 30-foot mark, the city would be left without electric power, gas and telephone service. Water in manholes in the south end crippled telephone service in that area. Firemen were conducting a losing fight in an effort to keep the river waters from the power house.

The Red Cross opened a refugee center in East Hartford, providing food and shelter for the homeless.

Early stages of the big river's rampage were crippling Middletown, to the south. The city lay in darkness tonight as the rising tide of the sullen waters drove families from their homes along the low river front section. Light was supplied the railroad and traffic bridges by the Leesville plant of the Central Connecticut Power and Light company.

The swirling river reached the second floor of the Hartford and New York Transportation company wharf forcing Captain Dwight Hooker, dock master and his wife to make their escape in a row boat.

Back wash at the junction of the Salmon river and the Connecticut closed the main east side highway at East Haddam.

MIDDLETOWN PRESS TO BE PRINTED IN MERIDEN

MERIDEN, Nov. 6—(AP)—Arrangements were made by the management of the Middletown Press this evening for the publication of its paper tomorrow at the plant of the Meriden Morning Record. This step was necessary because of the flooding of the transformer room in the electric power plant in Middletown, which caused the shutting off of all electric light and power lines in the city of Middletown.

The electric light company expects to have other transformers installed on higher ground in Middletown by tomorrow afternoon, in time for the resumption of electric light and power service by evening.

Detective Burns to Be Called As Witness

Before Grand Jury Investigation of the Mistrial in Oil Conspiracy Case

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6—(AP)—With the government expected the coming week to bring startling developments in the grand jury investigation of the mistrial of the Fall-Sinclair Oil conspiracy case, Sheldon Clark of Chicago, vice president of the Sinclair Refining company, and W. J. Burns, head of a detective agency, are the most important witnesses summoned to face the inquisitors when they resume their search tomorrow for evidence to support government charges of jury tampering.

Clark is charged by the government with receiving reports from operatives of the Burns Detective Agency who followed members of the jury hearing the case of Harry F. Sinclair and Albert V. Clark is charged by the government with receiving reports from operatives of the Burns Detective Agency who followed members of the jury hearing the case of Harry F. Sinclair and Albert B. Fall, charged with conspiracy in the leasing of Teapot Dome naval oil reserve to Sinclair by Fall when he was secretary of the interior.

Another employee of the Sinclair companies, Henry Mason Day, vice president of the Sinclair Exploration company, also charged with receiving reports from the Burns detectives, now is under $25,000 bond. This action was taken after he told Chief Justice McCoy of the supreme court he had refused to answer questions asked by the grand jury because to do so would tend to incriminate him.

At the time of Day's arrest on Friday, a warrant was sworn out for Sinclair, charging him with having attempted to influence the jurors in his case. Service of the warrant, however, was withheld pending completion of the grand jury investigation.

The government contends that twenty odd operatives of the Burns agency were employed to follow jurors, inquire into their private affairs, keep them under surveillence, and, to make improper contacts with the ten men and two women who composed the trial jury. The district attorney's office seeks to learn from Burns on whose behalf his men were engaged in checking so closely the movements of the jury.

No agent of the Department of Justice, the government said, had in any way been used in connection with the oil conspiracy trial. It is charged, however, that the Burns agents dogged the footsteps of the jurors and that they were well supplied with funds to carry on the work.

Information reaching the district attorney was that each Burns agent was given $50 expense money when sent to Washington and that $1,800 more was brought here from the Baltimore office of the concern.

NEGROES IN HARLEM PAID THEIR FINAL TRIBUTE TO FLORENCE MILLS

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—(AP)—Harlem, the most populous community of Negroes in the world, today paid final tribute to its idol, Florence Mills, the 32-year old singing comedienne, who died last Tuesday after an operation for appendicitis.

With more than 15,000 lining the route, the body of the brown skinned crooner of "blue" melodies, resting in a $10,000 copper casket, led the funeral cortege 26 blocks through the heart of Harlem.

Five thousand Negroes jammed into the Motion Zion A. M. E. church, crowding galleries, pulpit, baptistry, choir loft and all of the aisles except the center, down which ten men carried the heavy casket, blanketed in costly flowers, amid sobbing outbursts. Many women moaned piteously and swooned in the hush of the pall-bearers' entry.

Outside approximately 150,000 Negroes massed themselves before the church where they smoked, stamped and scuffled in the chill autumn air.

The services which lasted for two hours, were halted at one point when Juanita Stinnette, of the vaudeville team of Stinnette and Chapelle, broke down while singing "Florence"—a song written by her partner, Chappelle, and dedicated to Miss Mills. Arriving at the line, "the hours you spent with us, Florence," the singer swayed and several ushers rushed to her support. Miss Stinnette was carried from the church screaming "Florence" in an agonized voice.

The Carolina choir sang the Negro spirituals which had been announced as a part of the program. Their most significant rendition was "Deep River," from one of last year's short run shows.

After the ceremonies at the church, the casket was forced through the masses of spectators outside the door and into a hearse which conveyed it to the Woodlawn cemetery.

En route to the church, twelve automobiles, loaded with floral pieces estimated to have cost $100,000, led the cortege. Thirty girls, friends of the "blackbird," clad in grey from head to foot and bearing flowers in their hands preceded the hearse.

In the mass of flowers were contributions from representatives of the stage, screen, boxing ring and society. The largest piece, an immense offering in the shape of "Gates Ajar," attested the sympathy of Harry Wills, the former heavyweight champion of his race. "Bleeding Heart" was the offering that U. S. Thompson, husband of Miss Mills, laid upon her bier.

Scores of actors who had appeared with Miss Mills were among the attendants as were the leaders of the Negro race in New York. Messages of sympathy that were read came from Mayor James J. Walker and former Mayor John F. Hylan, Lady Cooke of England, Archie and Edgar Selwyn, A. H. Woods, David Belasco and Florenz Ziegfeld, theatrical producers; Paul Whiteman, orchestra leader and others.

6,000 PERSONS HOMELESS IN SPRINGFIELD AND VICINITY

The State Armory Saturday Night Sheltered Several Hundred Men, Women and Children—A Company of National Guardsmen Was Sent to Patrol the Flooded Area, Following Reports of Looting in West Springfield—Department Stores in Springfield Suffered Heavy Damage When Water Poured Into the Cellars.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 6—(AP)—The surging flood waters of the Connecticut river and its tributaries were releasing their grip on cities and towns in the Springfield area tonight. The crest of the flood passed this city early this morning and in its wake followed a cold wave that is now adding to the suffering already caused by the mountain of water that rolled down the Connecticut.

According to a conservative estimate, following a close check by welfare officials, 6,000 persons in Springfield and vicinity have been made homeless. The state armory in this city housed several hundred men, women and children last night, while the American Legion, Salvation Army and other relief agencies threw open their quarters for those driven out by the rising waters.

Of the homeless, 3,000 are members of Springfield families, while 1,500 are listed from West Springfield, 5,000 from Agawam, and the remainder from neighboring villages and towns. Health authorities are now centering their efforts against an outbreak of disease and have warned all persons to boil drinking water.

Feeling that the relief work has been well organized in this vicinity, plans are now being made for rehabilitation work. The western Massachusetts associations of chambers of commerce executive committees have been called to meet at noon tomorrow in Holyoke and outline such preparations.

Following reports of looting in West Springfield after families had deserted homes and merchants had closed stores, a company of national guardsmen from Springfield were sent to patrol the flooded area.

The department stores in Springfield's business section suffered heavy damages, caused by waters backing into cellars. Pumps were put into operation but most of the stock in all cellars was practically ruined.

Girls from Smith college in Northampton joined in relief work and several of the faculty houses were thrown open for homeless persons in that city. Prisoners in the Hampshire county jail in Northampton were called out this morning to help strengthen dikes when it became apparent that the barriers were weakening under the rush of the waters. They performed heroic work and stemmed the tide.

In North Hadley a search was begun to recover the body of Benjamin Denico, a mill worker, who lost his life Saturday.

WATER SUPPLY HAS BEEN RESTORED IN BARRE, VT.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 6—(AP)—Private advices received here today indicate that Barre, one of the hardest hit in the Vermont flood area, now has its water supply restored. So far as could be determined here, tday was the first time since Barre was isolated that it could be reached by telephone.

ASSISTANCE OFFERED BY GOVERNOR TRUMGULL

HARTFORD, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Governor Trumbull announced late this afternoon that he had sent telegrams to the chief executives of the states of Vermont and New Hampshire, offering local assistance to the people of the flooded areas of both of those communities.

At the same time, the governor made public his response to a telegram received from Governor Smith, of New York, in which a similar offer was made to the people of Connecticut. The message to Governor Smith expressed Connecticut's appreciation of his proffered assistance, but added that the situation was not serious enough to warrant its acceptance.

After making known the content of his telegrams, Governor Trumbull declared that he was immensely pleased with the manner in which the people of Connecticut have arisen to meet the flood situation as it affects their state.

"Connecticut," he said, "usually arises to meet all emergencies. I am sure that she will in this case. She will not in any event, require outside aid, although offers of such aid are greatly appreciated as are the numerous expressions of sympathy which have received."

Governor Trumbull's telegram to General Weeks of Vermont was as follows:

"On behalf of the people of Connecticut, I extend sympathy and offer every assistance within our power to help the people of Vermont in their present distress. Connecticut stands ready to furnish medical assistance, doctors, nurses and supplies."

To Governor Spaulding of New Hampshire he wired:

"The people of Connecticut sympathize deeply with the people of your state who have been affected by the flood. We are prepared to place medical assistance, doctors, nurses, supplies at your disposal."

His telegram to Governor Smith follows:

"Your generous offer to help and sympathy is greatly appreciated by the people of Connecticut. Fortunately, our state was not as hard hit as some of our neighbors. We are coping with the situation successfully and will not require outside assistance."

Governor Smith's telegram to Governor Trumbull was also made public by the latter. It read:

"Please accept the expression of my sympathy. The resources of the state of New York are at your command. If we can be of any assistance to your people in the flood districts, we are prepared to send immediately doctors, nurses, coats, blankets and other supplies together with men and vehicles.

"We have formulated a committee of relief to meet your wishes whenever made known."

DIVORCES INCREASE FASTER THAN MARRIAGE RATE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6—(AP)—Divorces continued to increase at a faster rate than marriages during 1926, the commerce department has found upon completion of its annual census.

Marriages for the year totaled 1,262,079, an increase of 1.2 per cent over 1925, but 1926 divorces granted numbered 180,868, an increase of 3.1 per cent.

A loss of popularity for marriage was read into the statistics, because while weddings increased 1.2 per cent, the gain in total population was estimated at 1.5 per cent for the year.

Great variance marked the marriage rate in the states, Michigan showing a decrease of 14 per cent. This was however, attributed by the report to the passage of a state law effective in 1926 requiring marriage license applicants to submit their petitions five days in advance. Repeal of a similar law in Nebraska was effective in 1926 in bringing about an increase of 19.5 per cent in marriages as compared with 1925.

For the United States as a whole, the average rate of marriage during 1926 was 10.26 per 1,000 of population, but states differed greatly in this respect.

For the entire nation, the divorce rate per year was set at 1.54 divorces per 1,000 of population. Nevada, by this standard, still holds its preeminence, for the state's rate was 18.19. The New York state rate of divorce, 0.41 per 1,000 of population, was the lowest in the union in 1926, except for the District of Columbia, which had a rate of 0.18 per 1,000.

BENT ON ALTITUDE RECORD, BALLOONIST LOSES HIS LIFE

SPARTA, Tenn., Nov. 6—(AP)—The story of what perhaps was an epoch making flight into the "deep blue" stood partially revealed today in the instruments and equipage of a wrecked balloon, while the body of Captain Hawthorne C. Gray, the pilot, lay in the basement mortuary at a country store.

Captain Gray took off from Scott field, Illinois, Friday in an attempt to set a world's altitude record.

His own log showed he was alive when he reached 40,000 feet; instruments showed he climbed to between 42,500 and 43,000 feet, either mark a record; but what passed between the entry of that last 40,000 on his cardboard logsheet, and the drifting to earth of the 30,000 foot bag will probably never be exactly determined.

Army officers here to safeguard the instruments and take charge of the body agreed today, however, that exhaustion of the oxygen supply on the three-hour journey from Scott Field, Ill., caused Captain Grays death.

His clock had stopped shortly after 3:17 p. m., the last recorded time entry. The balloon was then about 30,000 feet up.

Farmers saw it floating low about dusk Friday, but were unable to catch training ropes. No answer came to their hails. A few hours later the balloon was caught in a tree and collapsed. A youth, climbing the tree Saturday morning, discovered Captain Gray's body.

ELECTIONS THROUGHOUT NEW YORK TOMORROW

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—(AP)—Voters of New York state will go to the polls Tuesday to decide the fate of nine proposed constitutional amendments, elect 150 assemblymen, a state senator, a congressman, and 10 supreme court justices.

Mayors also are to be elected in 61 cities of the state. These, however, do not include New York, Buffalo, Rochester and Albany, where municipal elections were held last year.

Interest in the "off-year" election has centered chiefly in the democratic fight against Amendment No. 6, a measure designed to increase the term of governor to four years, with gubernatorial elections in presidential years.

Party lines on the four-year term proposal have been sharply drawn with the democratic organization opposing the measure and charging that it is a republican move to capture control of the national issues and state by submerging the election of governor under interest in national issues and candidates in presidential years.

DENIAL MADE BY THE RUMANIAN GOVERNMENT

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Nov. 6—(AP)—An official statement issued today declares that foreign reports that Queen Marie and Princess Ileana were virtually prisoners are "inaccurate". WESTERLY

THEATRE PIANIST HAS TO PLAY WEARING RUBBER BOOTS IN PIT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 6—Residents of the flooded area of Westerly and Pawcatuck whose property was inundated, caused by the heavy rains of Thursday night, experienced marked relief Saturday and Sunday, when the water receded. The sinking waters left thousands of dollars damage to property, highways and food supplies. The Pawcatuck river overflowing the east side dike crossed the highway from Varietyville to the foot of Canal street hill, beyond the New Haven railroad tracks. At the upper end the waters took an easterly course to cross again in a westerly direction along the plant of the Federal Felting company. Where the waters rushed down Canal street from the Stillmanville bridge, the brick wall along the property of the Slinigret Mills, formerly the Westerly Woolen company property, was undermined, toppled and fell when the sidewalk was gouged out by the rushing waters. The same condition existed along the dwelling house property where the driveways were gullied by waters rushing back to the river. All the Riverside park grounds and adjoining properties were flooded as waters rushed across Pleasant street, leaving holes and gullies.

On the Pawcatuck side may cellars were flooded. The Seagraves pumper of the Westerly Fire department was used several times to pump out basins. At the Higgins pharmacy, water rose almost continually, in spite of much pumping. The piano-player in the pit of the Central theatre played with rubber boots on. A fifteen-foot section of the river dock of Frank N. Wilcox was washed out, stone was carted Friday and Saturday for filling, while sand bags were piled in the breach made. An incoming barge of coal, fortunately not at the dock, was delayed in being brought up the Pawcatuck river.

Along the state highway from Westerly to Bradford, in the vicinity of Burden's Pond and White Dog swamp, waters continued to rise even Saturday afternoon, caused by the backing up of water from the Pawcatuck river into Burden's pond, which flowed backwards into the farming section of District No. 6. At the Bradford Dyeing Association plant the waters which rose Saturday morning receded somewhat in the afternoon.

On Canal street, trucks of the Westerly Highway department under direction of Road Engineer A. L. Leon, ferried the residents of flood-surrounded houses, with the help of rowboats.

Sunday many automobile visitors came to Westerly to see the damage done in the flooded areas. Many Westerly residents went to Potter Hill and Ashaway to view the havoc wrought there.

Friday only light auto traffic was allowed to use the Nooseneck Hill road to Providence, busses and heavy trucks being routed by way of the Boston Post road.

At the late hour Sunday afternoon no trace was reported of finding the body of Albert Blacknall, who, in attempting to cross from the Boston Post road to his home, Mosquito farm, Lower Pawcatuck, was washed into Wequetequock cove and drowned by the waters of the brook which rushed across the bridge over the brook. Watch Hill coast guardsmen under direction of Caut. Amos E. Broadmeadow, searched the cove unsuccessfully Friday and Saturday and volunteers continued the search Sunday.

For half an hour he cranked and cranked, but it failed to move. Looking at his watch, he saw the last car was coming into the waiting room for Mystic. DANIELSON

LOCAL MAN CAUGHT IN FLOOD IN VERMONT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 6.—First hand experience with the flood that devasted sections of Vermont was the lot of L. S. Ingalls of the West Side. Just prior to the heavy rains that caused the floods Mr. Ingalls left here for Ludlow, Vt., where he has business interests, but never completed his journey.

Telling this morning of what he saw in the territory around Springfield, Vt., Mr. Ingalls said that newspaper accounts in no way exaggerate the destruction that has been visited by the raging waters on that section of the state. In fact, he is impressed that the damage has even been underestimated.

Roads around Springfield, Vt., and in the Ludlow country are absolutely gone for miles and where they were looks like the bottom of a dry river. Mr. Ingalls tells of a recently completed macadam highway flanked by a concrete wall along the Black river course that was cut down and washed out by the flood and of wooden bridges, some of them covered ones, lifted bodily from their foundations and swirled down stream, to be broken up eventually in collision with stationary objects against which they hurtled.

A harrowing incident that came to Mr. Ingalls' attention was that of a family whose home was being engulfed by rapidly rising water. The father managed to carry two of his children to safety by wading through to higher ground with them. So fast did the water rise that he could not again reach his home and within a few minutes he saw it whisked off by the torrent of water about it, carrying along his wife and another child.

A barn that came riding down on the swiftly running waters was smashed to kindling wood when it crashed against a heavily constructed bridge.

At the hotel in Springfield where Mr. Ingalls stayed on account of being unable to get through to Ludlow the guests were reduced to half a glass of water as a ration after the bursting of the water mains, and there were no lights in the town because the storm had torn down lines and otherwise damaged the property of the lighting company.

When the water had receded Saturday Mr. Ingalls said that automobiles were to be seen all about under strange conditions. Three of them had been chained together and then to a tree to save them from being washed away, as happened to many a car that had to be hurriedly abandoned.

An appalling amount of damage and loss of life in that section of New England has left Mr. Ingalls shocked by all he saw. He returned to Danielson Saturday evening.

Saturday night in North Sterling, where she had been a resident the greater part of her life, the death of Mrs. Mary Anna Spooner, 72, wife of George C. Spooner occurred. She had been in poor health for several years, but seriously ill only a comparatively short time.

Mrs. Spooner was a native of the town of Killingly, born June 27, 1855, a daughter of Robert and Louise Kettelle Pierce.

She leaves her husband, a daughter, Mrs. Henry M. Crowell, a son, William, and a brother, George Pierce, all of Sterling, and two sisters, Mrs. George M. Pilling of Danielson and Mrs. James Rollingson of Auburndale, Fla. Mrs. Spooner was a member of the Baptist church.

The people of Danielson and other communities of the town of Killingly, and even residents of other towns who happened to come here Saturday, contributed liberally to the annual Tag day fund of the Civic federation. The treasurer, Mrs. Susan Armington, said this afternoon that tabulations of Saturday's collections showed a total of $524.73, but this sum will be materially increased by contributions that will come in later. Monday tagging will be done at the plant of the Assawaga company in Dayville, from which source a considerable sum comes to the federation each year. Goodyear residents were particularly generous toward the fund this year, Saturday's returns show and the federation members are highly appreciative, as they also are, of course, to every one that purchased a tag. During the course of Saturday a total of 62 persons helped sell the tags, some of them working only part of the day.

MANY COME TO VIEW HAVOC WROUGHT BY FLOOD

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 6—This was a day of sight seeing in flood wrecked areas in this vicinity and in nearby sections of Rhode Island. Many a motoring party made the flood zones their objectives and while the water had receded and that part of the picture is gone, the damage done is all the more visible.

The state highway out of Central Village for Providence remains closed to through travel. At Sterling, where a small bridge collapsed when a section of the dam went out last Friday afternoon, traffic is being diverted just west of the bridge through a normally little used way that runs south into a section of the community where the postoffice is located. A comparatively new concrete bridge over a section of the river near the plant of the United States Finishing company is undermined and regarded as in dangerous condition. A few miles east of Sterling the big washout at the Fairbanks Mill bridge blocks the use of that structure. A temporary footbridge has been built across the stream over which passengers riding on bus lines between Providence and eastern Connecticut points are transferring.

In Sterling today a large force of men was at work building a bulkhead of sand bags back of the point where the dam broke through, that repairs of a permanent nature may be undertaken at once. Another force was at work in the Finishing company plant today clearing away flood damage. In other mills along the Moosup river between Sterling and Central Village work was also being done today to restore departments that had been flooded to something like normal conditions.

All bridges on the Providence route out of Danielson are safe and traffic is moving over this heavily traveled line in the ordinary way. At scores of places between Danielson and Providence there are bad washouts along the sides of the state highway, where the rushing water dug trenches of greater or lesser depth. These washouts are marked and have red lights near them after dark, but they are something that all careful drivers will think of for several days. Repair work on this route was underway Saturday, but likely will not be completed, and then only in a temporary way, for at least a week.

The rivers through Danielson continued to run high today, but well within their coures and they were not causing any damage. Cellars here have been cleared of their flood waters, but Killingly's highways present a problem that will keep many men at work a long time in repairing.

The sin of drunkenness was denounced by the pastor, Rev. Antheleme Mollard, M. S., during the course of his instructions at the masses at St. James' church today. A striking remark was one addressed to the heads of families who are given to excessive drinking and reckless expenditure of their earnings in gratifying that particular vice. Father Mollard warned all such that, considering their family obligations, the money these men earned is not rightfully theirs, but really belongs to their wives and their children, for whose well being they are held responsible.

Mrs. Adah Spencer of Academy street had gone to Middletown to spend the late fall and winter season.

OBITUARY.

John J. Sullivan.

John J. Sullivan, familiarly known as "Doctor John," died at Backus hospital, Norwich, Saturday, after a long illness, having been in the hospital six weeks. He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Hannah Shanahan of Jewett City and a brother, Jeremiah Sullivan, of Providence.

A Lisbon man who has lived on the bank of the Quinebaug for close to half a century and is familiar with the winter wash of the big watershed, says: If the ground had been frozen hard, as it is in winter, with the almost six inches of local rainfall within the space of 12 hours, the flood of 1886 would have been equalled here. As it was, the ground being soft and open, a large per cent. of the torrent was absorbed.

The news that Red Cross workers have already been sent to aid flood sufferers in New England, brings close home the fact that such aid, needed at once, can only be financed by the money sent by chapters to headquarters at the time of the annual roll call. It must be money held in the treasury for just such emergencies, not by waiting for contributions after a disaster. There is no greater humane agency in the world than the Red Cross, and this disaster so near one's own town shows what the Red Cross will do. It is the one dollar membership that makes it possible.

NEW ENGLAND STORMS

How many in this immediate vicinity realized that we were experiencing rains last week that were going to cause such serious floods as have occurred in many parts of New England? Locally there were hard showers when much water fell, but we have experienced just as hard storms and had much more serious washouts. The fact is that in those places where so much havoc has been wrought the downpour must have been much more severe. The high water which has been experienced here came as the result of conditions some miles to the north. Nevertheless Norwich does not feel bad because it escaped as it did and even though it did escape it is thoroughly convinced that other places did not.

New England may well pride itself upon being a section of the country which does not experience earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, cyclones, tidal waves and tornadoes. Its high winds are broken by the hills but there are times when it feels the effect of floods. Seldom is it, however, when there is as much loss of life and property as accompanied the recent storm. With such a great quantity of water dropped upon the hills and valleys in such a short space of time it was inevitable that there should be high water or that some dams should experience irresistible strains. Not all, but some of the worst results were due to the release of ponded water in addition to the accumulated rainfall.

New England has had brought home to it, to some extent, the meaning of that great disaster in the Mississippi valley. Its losses will run into the millions and its death mount to a surprising number for this part of the country, and it will be a long time before there is a complete restoration of the destruction that was wrought by that storm.

The lesson of it is that while this part of the country may be immune to many of the undesirable things which befall other sections, for all of which we are thankful, we cannot always expect to escape the ravages of severe storms and in the construction of dams, bridges, railroad tracks and even mills and residences consideration may well be given to it. What has recently occurred must be taken into consideration in the restoration of the destroyed property.

LIGHTS FOR PEDESTRIANS

A year and a half ago the governor of Rhode Island appointed a committee to cooperate with the national conference on street and highway safety and as the result of its efforts it has, among other things, come to recognize the fact that many serious injuries and fatalities have occurred to pedestrians on highways and the committee believes the time has come for demanding legislation to protect such individuals by requiring them to carry lights at night when traveling on that part of the highway used by motor vehicles.

Nothing is said as to whether the advocacy of such action by a Connecticut legislator at the last session of the general assembly had any influence upon the committee, but even though that may have been regarded as more or less of a joke, it now becomes evident that the need of something of the kind is being recognized by others.

Drivers of automobiles are given the scare of their lives sometimes by suddenly coming upon a person at night walking in the traffic lane of the highway. Being on the right hand side of the road they do not anticipate anything in the way unless it is lighted. For the most part on the straight away sections of the road they are not likely to fail to see a pedestrian ahead but in turning corners the position of a pedestrian is not revealed until the lights are again thrown upon the roadbed.

Some time ago the desirability of having trunks carry reflectors at the back in order that other cars might locate such when loads on such vehicles cover the tail lights. Perhaps a reflector strapped about the body or arm of a person would serve quite as effectively as a light. But whether it is a light or a reflector, the desirability of having something that will give warning to the auto drivers can well be appreciated. Even under such conditions there would be more accidents than ought to occur.

COMMERCIAL AVIATION

For a considerable period of time commercial aviation in Europe has been far in the lead of that in this country. It has awakened no little comment in view of the fact that it was in the United States that the airplane was proved to be a success, and there has been a feeling that we were not making the most of our opportunities, that aviation was not being given a chance and that there was less safety in such operations here than abroad.

Because of that there will be interest in the survey which has been made of commercial aviation in the United States by an air transport company which shows that for the year 1926 the transcontinental airplanes operated by the government covered a total distance of 2,392,273 miles with only one fatality, and in the same year contract mail pilots made 2,086,395 and only two of the fliers were killed.

It will be possible before long to know just what has been done in commercial aviation during the year, which has seen the transcontinental mail service placed in the hands of private concerns and the government dropping out. There have been many lives lost in attempts to fly across the ocean to Europe and to Hawaii but it has also been a year when there has been a considerable expansion in flying. The flying machine is rendering a greater service for mail, for express and for passengers. The demand for its service is increasing. Communities are providing airports in appreciation of the value of such service, and it will be surprising if the survey for 1927 does not show some interesting figures concerning commercial flying and the safety connected therewith.

In various ways more and more confidence is constantly being established for flying. It hasn't put any other means of transportation out of business but the facilities for cutting time and distance are unquestioned and when it comes to the real efforts in commercial flying the results as far as safety is concerned are not to be confused with those in stunt flying. Even if it has lagged in the past this country must not remain second to Europe in commercial flying.

KNIFING THE DEBT

Those who are urging that the tax reduction should be so arranged that there will be an opportunity for a reduction in the federal debt of $1,000,000,000 a year are fully aware of the fact that this will mean the lopping off of $40,000,000 each year in interest and therefore just that much reduction in the amount that must be raised through taxation. Slightly over a billion was cut from the debt in the past year. Just as long as that billion was allowed to remain it would have meant paying out $40,000,000 a year for it. Every time such a slice is removed from the debt it permits that amount of interest to be turned into other channels, for further debt cutting, tax reduction or such expenditure as it is believed desirable to make.

What such a yearly tax reduction means can also be viewed from another angle. As the federal debt stands at the present time it costs the government more than $900,000,000 a year in interest alone. That is a huge sum to think of carrying along indefinitely. If there should be no debt reduction for a period of years the interest bill would mount to a tremendous sum and there would still have to be faced the annual interest as well as the debt itself. It wouldn't require many years at that rate to pay out in interest the equivalent of the entire debt and still the debt would have to be met. By a steady yearly reduction of the indebtedness the obligation will be discharged at the least outlay by the government and it cannot fail to be recognized that every time the debt experiences the loss of a billion there is just that much strength added to the position of this government.

MEXICAN SOVEREIGNTY

Much attention is being given in Mexico to the statements made by Ambassador Morrow. He has made a most favorable expression and Mexico expects his service there to be fruitful. In a recent address Ambassador Morrow referring to the two countries made reference to the international relationships of "two sovereign and independent states."

The United States and Mexico have not recently become sovereign states. This country has not recently recognized Mexico as a sovereign state, but the Mexican newspapers appear to be much gratified by the ambassador's reference. Without doubt it was a good diplomatic move, a pertinent statement on the part of our new ambassador, but Uncle Sam has not been taking exception to any of Mexico's sovereign rights. All of our ambassadors have recognized Mexico as a sovereign state and any question which may have arisen concerning Mexican acts have had to do with the action it has taken concerning the international rights of Americans in Mexico.

This country has never undertaken to tell Mexico how it must handle its own affairs. It is free to recognize or to withhold recognition from a Mexican government without affecting the sovereignty of Mexico. Sovereignty does not permit it to violate the rights of Americans in that country any more than the sovereignty of the United States entitles it to disregard the rights of Mexicans in this country.

Mr. Morrow has nevertheless pleased Mexico by his reference. If that and more of it is all that is necessary to bring about a complete understanding between the two governments, or if it is just the entering wedge, it will make the solution the easier.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: About time to crank up the heater for the winter.

Some people never give a thought to taxation except during the week taxes have to be paid.

When they want to do a big job well they frequently call on Charles E. Hughes and he meets expectations.

Every now and then movements are started to put an end to tipping but they seldom make much progress.

Those five inches of snow in western New York mean that the snow shovel will soon have to be brought forth from the storage place and made ready for its busy season.

It will soon be time to explain to those who cannot understand the waste in Christmas trees that there are those who make money out of growing them for that purpose.

Nothing demonstrates the menace to the highways of some drivers more than their disrespect for signs, warnings and signals at railroad crossings. If they are not mindful of their own safety they are not going to give the other fellow much of a chance.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Clarified beef drippings can be used instead of butter in molasses cakes.

Save the water in which vegetables are boiled and use as a basis for soups.

A dampened chamois used as a duster will make furniture look like new.

Before cooking beef liver, pour boiling water over it to draw out the blood.

Wax paper wrapping from bread are nice cleaners for the hot iron.

To save time in wiping dishes take two plates together, wipe as picked up, then reverse them and wipe the opposite sides.

Generous use of shortening and sparing use of water gives the best results in making pie crust.

Grease with lard and lightly flour tins before pouring in the cake batter.

Dingy overshoes can be made more presentable if wiped off with a cloth wrung out of warm ammonia water.

Housewives with cellars for storing vegetables should exercise scrupulous care to remove at once any vegetables unfit for use.

Fish bones are more easily removed if melted butter has been rubbed down the back bone before the fish was cooked.

Chocolate topped by whipped cream that has been flavored with mint has a piquant taste quite delightful and satisfying.

Apples contain a large quantity of phosphorus and are therefore very good for brain workers. They should not, however, be eaten between meals.

When making a vegetable or meat stew be sure to put a layer of vegetables below the meat as well as above it. This prevents the meat from boiling hard and gives it a much better flavor.

When using the oven to prepare dinner, as when cooking a roast, fruit for the next morning's breakfast may be cooked. This applies to such fruits as apples, prunes, figs, stewed apricots, peaches and rhubarb.

USE KITCHEN SHEARS

Kitchen shears may be used satisfactorily for cutting celery, bacon rinds, lettuce, etc., or for cutting off the edges of cake that has been burned.

USE THE LID

If you are carrying a cake to a picnic or a church supper, use the lid of the box for the cake and the box itself for the lid, and you will have no difficulty in removing the cake from the box.

FOR BAKED APPLES

Baked apples will seem more delicious if served in special low dishes of transparent glass in tones of amber, green or peach. There are small plates to match. A set may be purchased for a little more than five dollars for six.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Raw onions are valuable, like other fresh vegetables, for their minerals and vitamins, and their bulk. The theory that certain foods are beneficial to the nerves has been exploded. A well-balanced diet helps to keep all parts of the body healthy.

The hair always falls rather more than usual during autumn, and when it is naturally rather thin and poor a tonic should be applied to the scalp two or three times a week. Dandruff, which is another autumn trouble, is best treated by a tar shampoo. This can be obtained at the hairdresser's or any druggist will make up the shampoo, and it can be applied at home. It will be found most refreshing to the head and will give new life to the hair.

The use of a soothing skin lotion after each time that the hands are washed and dried is a winter-time necessity for every one, regardless of how little manual labor may be done. The office assistant and professional women need such a lotion just as much as the housekeeper or laundress, but it usually happens that the former types of workers, who do not do heavy work with their hands, are more faithful in the use of skin beautifiers and manicure tools than are the latter, who need them more.

NURSERY FOOD WARMERS

On holidays and picnics and other occasions of like nature, many mothers are perplexed as to how to warm the baby's food. The problem is simply solved by the use of a simple food warmer. It is made of white metal and so shaped that it exactly holds the feeding bottle and allows the rubber nipple to extend beyond the ends. It is heated by so simple a means as a night-light.

RUBBER GLOVES

Many housewives wear rubber gloves for most of their housework. They will wear much longer if, after they have been washed, rinsed and dried, they are sprinkled with dry cornstarch, both inside and out. The gloves can be slipped on readily, too, if this is done.

MATCH MARKS

Rub the marks made on white paint by matches with a cut lemon and then with a damp cloth dipped in powdered whiting. Rinse with cold water and dry with a soft cloth.

NEW ONE

Place the ball of kitchen twine in a small funnel with the end through the funnel and hang on the wall.

CIDER VINEGAR BEST

When pickling be sure to use the best pure cider vinegar. It is the safest and best. Do not under any circumstances mix two kinds of vinegar.

FOR CLEANING FRAMES

The water in which onions have been boiled is excellent for cleaning gilt picture frames. It not only removes specks of dirt, but also brightens up the frames in a wonderful way. Do not use the water until it is quite cold.

SWEEPING RUGS

When sweeping rugs, wet your broom in a basin of water to which a tablespoon of vinegar has been added.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Shoes of black suede are conspicuously featured for autumn wear. They are smartest in opera pump or single strap styles.

Satin of a heavy, lustrous quality is featured by all the leading designers as one of the most important fabrics of autumn.

An evening cape of gorgeous sable strikes a new note by having its smoothly fitting shoulders run to a collarless neckline.

A smart fashion of the moment is to wear bloomers which in color are the exact shade of beige or gray as the stockings.

Smart women are still wearing bouquets of violets but instead of the white violets of the spring they are in tones of deep mauve, rose and pale lemon color.

One of the smartest combinations of fur and fabric is seen in the new coats of fine black broadcloth luxuriously trimmed with badger.

A very wide, tightly draped girdle with flower entwined bow, in deep fuchsia velvet, is very decorative on a crepe frock in paler tone.

Black and white, brown and beige, and two shades of purple, in checked patterns in fine woolens fashion stylish autumn tailleurs.

Two-piece frocks made on the simplest jumper lines are extremely smart when fashioned of dotted velvet in shaded black and white effects.

Diamante and crystal alternate in embroidering a white velvet bag for evening which is hectagonal in shape and has white cord and tassel.

A coat designed especially for a young girl is of small patterned wool with collar and deep revers of nutria. It is smartly belted with the same material.

Quite the smartest of the new bags are those made from a felt beret. They are of pouch shape, attached to a straight metal frame, and fasten with three large metal balls.

FALL ENSEMBLES COMBINE COLORS

If you are wondering whether a brown frock will limit your color scheme to the browns, observation of many fall ensembles will show you otherwise. One of the most interesting combinations with brown—though an unusual one—is its use with gray. Over a brown sheer woolen, a coat of gray tweed with a natural lynx collar, is worn to good effect. A gray felt hat banded in brown, brown pumps and gray hose are the accessories.

ALL-BLACK GOOD FOR WINTER COAT

If you are wondering whether your black winter coat shall be trimmed with black fur or contrasting—it must be a matter of personal choice, with becomingness as the determining factor—for both fashions are well patronized.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Starch clothes wrong side out. Leave them wrong side out until they are sprinkled.

To dye a sweater remove the buttons and weigh the garment while it is dry. Buy enough dye to color the number of pounds the sweater weighs.

Down puffs when soiled are most satisfactorily cleaned if sent to a cleaner. However, if you do not care to go to this expense, put the puff in warm water, soap well with pure white soap and leave to soak for an hour. Rub with the hands and wring as well as you can. Put through three waters and then hang on the line. A windy, sunny day should be chosen to dry puffs.

When white clothes have turned yellow with much washing, put them in the boiler half full of water, to which a handful of salt and washing soda has been added. Bring this to a boil and keep simmering for some hours. Rinse the clothes in plenty of cold water and hang them in the sun to dry. Clothes treated in this way will be perfectly white.

CARE OF LAUNDRY

If you use a washing machine to do your washing don't overload it. If you use a washboard, rub gently. Sometimes a small brush is used on delicate fabrics. Wring as dry as possible so the clothes will dry quickly. Fold buttons inside so that they do not injure the rollers and are not wrung off. Few professional laundresses seem to heed this rule. If a starch is used a boiled one is always smoothest. Six tablespoons of cornstarch dissolved in a half cup of cold water, then stir into it a quart of boiling water; add a half teaspoon of paraffin, and cook gently for 15 or 20 minutes. Many laundresses blue the starch faintly instead of putting the starched things through a blue rinse. When hanging the things to dry hang on the straight of the goods or by the bands; fold sheets and tablecloths double in windy weather so they won't whip.

A GLASS ICE JUG

Another useful item for keeping liquids cool is a glass ice jug. It has a central compartment for taking the ice and the entire jug is inclosed at the top, so that not only are the contents cooled, but they are kept free from flies and dust. This is very useful at the tennis party, where open jugs of lemonade, etc., seem to invite all the insects to commit suicide.

THE MODERN TOWELING

A roll of paper toweling is convenient in the kitchen in place of the old-fashioned linen roller towel. It means no half-soiled towels and no laundry bills. Also, the paper toweling is excellent for draining foods that have been cooked in deep fat.

SOMETHING WORTH TRYING

When parsley looks wilted, put it in a dish with a small piece of soda and pour boiling water over it. This will immediately restore its color and freshness.

TO REMOVE INK

To remove ink from linen dip the article in milk and let it soak for about two hours; then take out and wash with soap while the milk still remains on the spot.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Railroad shops throughout the United States employ a total of more than 300 women.

As health officer of Bloomsburg, Pa., Miss Gertrude Sterling enforces all the health rules of that city.

Mrs. Virginia Tubbs, a widow, earns more than $1,000 a month teaching Chicago bridge fans how to play the game correctly.

Fraulein Frieda Herzfeld-Hoffman, Germany's first woman patent attorney, was a scientist before taking up law as a profession.

Miss C. F. Blam, said to be the only woman metallurgist in the world, was the only woman in a party of 252 which toured Canada recently.

CARDBOARD IN RUBBER BOOTS

When rubber boots are not in use, keep them standing erect by rolls of cardboard. This will permit a free circulation of air and prevent them from cracking.

STORED LINOLEUM

To prevent linoleum from cracking after it has been rolled and stored away, place before a fire for a few hours and let it get thoroughly warm before unrolling it.

RECIPES

Butterscotch Apples: Five apples, two-thirds cup brown sugar, one-half cup water, three-fourths cup milk, one-half tablespoon cornstarch, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one half to one tablespoon butter, one-half tablespoon vanilla. Wash apples and cut into quarters, pare and core them. Into saucepan put sugar and water and heat. When syrup boils add apples. Cover and boil gently until apples are tender. Remove apples from syrup with skimmer or wire egg beater and place in sherbet glasses. In another pan mix milk and cornstarch thoroughly. Stir and cook until mixture reaches boiling point, then add it to syrup in which apples are cooked. Boil for few minutes. Add salt, butter and vanilla. Stir these into mixture, then pour sauce over apple. Serve hot or cold.

Ham Toasties: Cut some bread in thin slices, butter them evenly, then spread half of the slices with canned deviled ham. Put together with the buttered slices in sandwich form. Dip the sandwiches quickly, so that they will not be soaked, in a butter made by beating two eggs slightly and adding to them one cup of milk and one-half a teaspoon of salt. Saute in a buttered skillet or grill until brown on both sides and serve hot with maple sirup. This amount of butter will make at least six large sandwiches.

Dr. Albee was chosen as the opening speaker at the German surgical congress held in Berlin just before the outbreak of the war. At that conference he demonstrated his original bone graft and reconstruction methods, which were later adopted by the German government and subsequently by the other combatant nations. He later was chosen to demonstrate his methods in various military hospitals in France. Dr. Albee's great work in surgery has been commented upon in the novel, "Empty Pockets," by Rupert Hughes.

WHY NOT LAUNDRY SOAP FOR THE HANDS?

Some men seem to think any old soap with which they wash their hands is good enough for shampooing. Though they wouldn't use laundry soap for bathing, they never think they may be shampooing with an unsuitable soap. Specialists have prescribed Packer's Tar Soap for shampooing for 55 years. Its pine tar is antiseptic, stimulating—ends dandruff, helps avert baldness, keeps hair and scalp healthy. At all dealers.

Should Read Law on Birds

Mr. Editor: I see Paul Malerba is telling about shooting a barn owl and had it shown at The Bulletin office. Has Mr. Malerba read the law on birds.

John Brassil of Franklin

Mr. Editor: I do not wish to take up too much of your space in eulogy of our good friend, John Brassil of Franklin, who had just passed away, but I would like to put on record one little story, to show what kind of a man he was. One Thanksgiving day, as the family were sitting down to dinner, a tramp knocked at the door and asked for a bite. John invited him in but the tramp demurred. "Just give it to me out here," he said. "Come in," said John. "Man! it is Thanksgiving day." He got a plate and knife and fork and made a place for him at the table.

The Armistice Day Parade.

Mr. Editor:

A few words in connection with the contemplated parade in New London on Armistice day, Nov. 11, may not be amiss and may perhaps clear up some misunderstandings with regard to the participation in it of some of the organiaztions in Norwich.

It was definitely understood that in return for the hearty co-operation of the organizations in New London in our observance of Armistice day, last year, the organizations in Norwich would endeavor to reciprocate and would co-operate with New London in 1928, to help them make their efforts a similar success. Up to a very short time ago, it was understood that there would be no parade in New London this year, owing to the plans for next year, but apparently there is to be a parade, according to later information.

In the matter of arranging for parades at short notice, it must be admitted that New London possesses advantages which Norwich can never expect to even approach owing to the location there or in the immediate vicinity of various stations from which considerable numbers of uniformed men can be secured; the cadets of the U. S. Coast Guard academy with their band, the marines and sailors from the U. S. submarine base with often the band from U. S. S. Camden, the regulars with their band from Fort Wright and the three local units of the National Guard with the band of the 102d F. A., C. N. G., in addition to a post of the American Legion and one of the Veterans of Foreign wars in line will make a very good parade and the expense for transportation can be kept at a minimum.

Neither of the local units of the Connecticut National Guard, nor the post of the American Legion were invited to participate in the New London parade; these organizations have all accepted invitations of the Montville post of the American Legion to join with it in the dedication of an "honor roll" in that place at 2 p. m., Armistice day.

Mrs. Henry M. Pollock
(Contributed)

Saturday, November the 5th, on the eve of her birthday, Caroline M. Pollock, wife of Dr. Henry M. Pollock, passed peacefully out of a life that was full rich and happy at her home in Boston.

Those who had the good fortune to know her during the years of residence in Norwich were impressed by her many delightful qualities. They recall her cordial and friendly approach, her practical wisdom, her direct investigation of any subject, her courage in meeting new, untried experiences, her loyalty to that which was worth while in life and noble in friendship, and the charm of her unusual personality.

To these most attractive gifts were added, a warm heart, deep sympathy, a keen mind, loyalty to her friends, devotion to her family.

MOTOR CRASH ON MOHEGAN HILL SENT FOUR MEN TO HOSPITAL

A head-on crash on Mohegan hill on the Norwich-Montville road sent the four occupants of two machines which collided to the Backus hospital for treatment for their injuries, but all four were able to leave the hospital after receiving attention there Sunday afternoon.

The smash-up occurred at about the middle of the hill as two sailors from the Groton submarine base, Roy Hughes, 26, and L. C. Frentzel, 27, driving a red-bodied sport Ford roadster, were proceeding up the hill and are reported to have pulled out to pass a truck ahead of them. As they did so, their machine met a Buick coming down the hill, owned and driven by Walter Rakowsky of Uncasville, who had Merton Noyes, also of Uncasville, with him. The collision sent the two sailors flying out of their machine, one of them landing by the side of the road across the trolley track and the other on the rear mudguard of the roadster. The Uncasville man's machine left the road and landed against a telegraph pole.

A call was sent in for the Backus hospital ambulance but before it could arrive a passing motorist had taken the four men to the hospital. Rakowsky and Noyes suffered minor scratches on their faces and heads. Frentzel had his chin cut open and Hughes had a scalp wound, besides other cuts and lacerations about the face and head. After their most severe cuts had been sewed up and other injuries, both sailors were conveyed to the submarine base.

The roadster they had been driving was literally torn apart in the collision and was nothing but a heap of junk after the crash, while the Uncasville man's car was badly damaged about the front end, axles, radiator and steering gear.

State Policeman Whitmarsh from the Groton barracks made an investigation of the accident.

PATRIOTIC SERVICE WAS HELD AT Y. M. C. A.

Enthusiasm and patriotism were manifested at the afternoon service at the Norwich Young Men's Christian association Sunday, when every chair was taken and the special bleacher seats were practically filled in the large gymnasium. The meeting opened with the singing of America, this being followed by scripture reading and prayer. Impressive moving pictures of three typical Americans were shown, Washington Lincoln and Lindbergh. The life of Washington and his unusual career were faithfully portrayed, and his love of and sacrifices for country were emphasized on the screen. Abraham Lincoln was shown, being personified by Benjamin Chapin in the very impressive episode, "Tender Memories," picturing "Lincoln as "America's Great Heart," as he followed his ideal that "right makes might," and that the showing of mercy is the sign of strength; this episode made a deep impression. The young American who has been termed "Our Air Ambasador," Charles Lindbergh, was shown in two reels, including his flight to Paris and his welcome back to America; the young hero was shown starting on his thrilling journey, his arrival in Paris, etc Lindbergh's boarding the cruiser Memphis and his experiences aboard ship are shown with acuracy; his arrival in America, his trip up the beautiful Potomac; thousands cheer him as he stepped ashore. The hearty and tender welcome home from his mother; the great reception in Washington, D. C., and the greeting of President Coolidge and his presentation to "Lindy" of the first distinguished flying cross. The whole picture was one of patriotic triumph.

Between the reels Rev. M. E. Genter, district superintendent of the Methodist church, gave a brief address which was most inspiring. Mr. Genter emphasized the fact that war did not cease with the signing of the Armistice, but that the greater war is still on; the war between right and wrong, and that every full blooded American, and especially every Christian must face the fight with courage and with patriotism The speaker's remarks were timely and were listened to with marked attention. Hugh Kinder furnished the music for the service with ability. General Secretary Edwin Hill had charge of the service.

HIERNIAN DIVISION, NO. 1, BEGINS MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

The First division, Ancient Order of Hibernians, held its regular monthly meeting Sunday afternoon in the rooms in the Rockwell building on Main street, having an unusually large attendance as many who do not attend meetings during the summer were present to renew their activity in the order. The membership drive was inaugurated and proposal blanks and other literature were distributed to all present.

The officers were requested to arrange for a joint meeting and installation of officers with the other divisions and the ladies auxiliaries, for which the date is to be designated by the county president. The national convention held in Buffalo last July pledged $50,000 from the members and an additional $50,000 from non-members to the Irish college in Rome, which was founded 300 years ago and has been a tower of strength for the Irish race since its beginning. New buildings have been constructed at considerable expense and the amount pledged by the Ancient Order of Hibernians will assist materially in finishing and furnishing them. Pope Pius XI has made a direct appeal to the A. O. H. for funds and out of his own purse has contributed towards the building fund the sum of two million Italian lire, equivalent in our money to $100,000. At the joint meeting of the divisions next month arrangements will be made for collecting the amount expected of the local divisions and ladies auxiliaries.

While many of the reports that are sent out on the situation in China are exaggerated, Mr. Lenz said, that country is really experiencing five revolutions in the same time and it will take time for stable conditions to become established, but there is no reason to be discouraged over developments and missionary work and Christianity are yet to have a glorious future in China.

ONE PARIS COURT DAY TO AMERICAN DIVORCES

PARIS, Nov. 6 (AP)—Americans seeking divorces in French courts are becoming more and more numerous despite the discouraging attitude of judges who of recent months have been adhering more and more rigidly to the exact letter of the law.

So many apparently bona fide applications are now before the tribunal of the Seine that the presiding judge has been compelled to set aside one day a week for hearings on American applications alone.

Earlier in the year scores of United States citizens, sure of quiet, painless and questionless legal separations found their applications refused because they had not complied strictly with the requirement that they establish bona fide residences in France. Since then, investigation has showed, the undiscouraged divorce seekers have in most cases actually established a residence.

The ministry of justice, alarmed at the increase in American and English divorce applications, is studying means of further discouraging the practice. It is probable that a bill to that effect will be introduced in parliament during the winter.

GREENE'S RUN IN LAST QUARTER GIVES ACADEMY WIN OVER WINDHAM

Windham, the feared, is no more.

The educated left arm of Harry McGlone and the steel-like arms and legs of Johnny Greene decided that Saturday afternoon at the campus when a forward pass that covered 65 yards won for the Academy over Windham High 7 to 0. It was Windham's first grid defeat by an eastern Connecticut high school in five years and by the Academy in six years.

It was a beautiful play that gave the Red and White such a much desired and well-deserved win. It came early in the final period, on the fifth play in this quarter to be exact. Windham had punted from her 42 yard line to the Academy's 30 to open the session. The locals used three line plays before Harry McGlone stepped back and heaved another of those fine passes. It went about 35 yards to the Windham 25 yard line where Johnny Greene, right end, was sprinting to the center of the gridiron. Two Windham players all but touched him as they strove to ground the pass while another was not ten steps away. Johnny circled around and neatly reached through these Blue and White arms, received the bullet like throw steadied himself a second and then was off with those long strides of his for the 25 yards to the goal. But one of the opposition was in position to give pursuit and he was easily outdistanced. Tommy Vitiano then contributed a nice dropkick for the extra point.

The Academy showed better football than Windham through a majority of the game. Windham got all the important breaks but still did not have the power to convert them into anything like scores. A fumbled punt in the opening moments of the tussle on the Academy 20 yard line gave Windham much of an advantage all through the rest of the half. After recovering this punt they worked to the eight yard line only to yield. Toward the close of the half the Academy unleashed a dazzling aerial attack that brought the ball to Windham's 37 yard line as the half ended. Except for this late spurt the Academy was on the defensive most of the time but Windham made little use of her opportunities. The only other Red and White offensive show during the first two quarters came when the Academy received the kickoff and on runs by McGlone and Kelly worked past midfield from the 25 yard line. It was at this time that the Academy lost the ball on downs and on Windham's punt the above mentioned fumble occurred.

To open the third period Windham received on the 35 yard line and got little farther. An exchange of punts, three to be definite, gave the Academy the ball on Windham's 40 yard line because of an offside boot. However, any break here was nullified and Windham was presented with twice as large a one with a 30 yard penalty to the Red and White that sent the ball down quite close to the N. F. A. posts. Marks punted to Windham's 40 yard line. However, Windham was still failing to show anything of which champions are made for she lost the ball on downs at midfield. The Academy took it and punted to Windham's 22 yard line, Windham kicked back to Norwich's 35 yard line, Saba getting off the best boot of the afternoon. The Academy kicked back to Windham's 42 yard line and with one try at the line the period ended.

Windham immediately punted to the Academy's 30 yard line. The Academy's backs went at the line for three plays before McGlone tossed the first pass of the half, the history-making one and Johnny Greene scored.

Windham received the kick-off and kicked back to the Academy 15 yard line. A ten yard run by McGlone and another first down put the ball near midfield before Windham intercepted a pass. The Willimantic outfit then threw passes desperately, a few connected to bring the ball to the Norwich 28 yard line where the locals took the ball on downs. As the teams lined up for the second play the game ended.

Marks, McGlone, LaCroix, Greene Kelly and Mish played fine games for the Academy, while Nelson, Coutu, Warren and Saba did good work for Windham.

HAGEN WINS P. G. A. TITLE FOR THE FIFTH YEAR

CEDAR CREST COUNTRY CLUB, DALLAS, Nov. 6. — Walter Hagen, veteran of many classic struggles of the links, came from behind Saturday to shake off the challenge of youth and successfully defend his title of champion of the Professional Golfers' association.

Joe Turnesa, handsome 25-year-old pro from Elmsford, N. Y., played a versatile game and led the "old master" most of the way, but cracked for a moment in the last six holes and lost the match, one down on the 36th green.

In winning the title, Hagen added the professional crown to his winter wardrobe of fancy headgear for the fourth consecutive year and for the fifth time in his career. Then P. G. A. tournaments have been held and Hagen has won half of them, in addition to being runner-up in 1916. He first won the coveted championship in 1921, after which Gene Sarazen of New York ruled for two years, but Hagen came back in 1924 and has occupied the throne since that time.

PRINCETON ONLY UNBEATEN TEAM IN THE EAST

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Princeton stood out today as the only unbeaten team and untied major football team in the east.

Beating back the challenge of Ohio State by 20 to 0 Saturday, the Orange and Black maintained a spotless record of six victories with 145 points and only 17 for its opponents.

Of all the eastern teams, large or small, Tufts College, Medford, Mass., is the only other team in the unbeaten and untide class. Tufts won its sixth victory at the expense of New Hampshire by 39 to 0 Saturday.

When those two mighty giants and rivals, Pittsburgh and Washington-Jefferson, locked horns in a scoreless tie Saturday they eliminated each other from the select list, although both still rank but a notch below the Princeton pace-setters, on the record books.

Two strong small college teams which suered their first defeats of the year were George Washington, which fell before Penn State, and Rochester which was trimmed by Union in a desperate fight.

New York University's stock took a swing upward with victory over Carnegie Tech and the Violet now ranks in about the same class at Pitt and Washington & Jefferson.

Making a powerful bid for high-scoring honors despite a defeat three weeks ago by Syracuse, Georgetown beat Lafayette 27-2, and carried its total to 292 points with only 21 scored against it. Dartmouth, too, marched onward, trampling over Brown which now has lost five games in a row.

Penn's ambitious eleven, despite its formidable schedule, now has won four of its first seven games, adding the latest at downtrodden Harvard's expense.

The games Saturday also emphasized the growing power of Yale which overwhelmed Maryland, and the weakness of Columbia and Cornell which both were tied by small college teams.

NO MORE GOLF FOR HAGEN UNTIL 1928 SEASON

DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 6—(AP)—Wearing his imposing list of golf titles lightly, Walter Hagen, who added his fifth professional gorl association crown to his collection here Saturday, when he defeated Joe Turnesa of Elmsford, N. Y., in the 1927 finals, left for his home in Rochester, N. Y., today. With him went a score of professionals from the midwest and east, all homeward bound after a week of the most keenly contested tournament play in the history of the association.

The other two score golfers from various sections of the country who participated in the tournament also left fo rtheir homes.

"No more golf for me until spring," said Hagen before he left. "I am going to build up by ball club and that will take me all my time until the 1928 season starts."

Hagen recently purchased an interest in the Rochester club of the International league. He will return to represent the club at the meeting of the meeting of the national association of professional leagues on December 6, 7 and 8.

"The professional champ broke all records that had been established in capturing national golf titles in the 450 years of the pastime's history," Alex Pirie, veteran president of the P. G. A. said. "Never before had any golfer won five consecutive national titles. James Braid, English pro, won the British national three times, which is the nearest approac hto Hagen's achievement."

Illinois has two more conference foes to engage, Chicago and Ohio State. Michigan and Minnesota each have one more big ten battle when they play each other another at Ann Arbor in the closing game of the season a fortnight hence.
